track of their time in six-minute increments (e.g., investigators and lawyers). 5. I have reviewed the file of the Department of Health (the Department) in relation to this case.

6. I have reviewed the Department's "Time Tracking System Itemized Cost by Complaint" for the case referenced herein, which is among the attachments to the Motion to Assess Costs. I have only reviewed and analyzed the time entries for the Prosecution Services Unit.

Regarding: DOH v. Complaint No. 2017-01439 L3 AF-DO

Dear Department of Health, Prosecution Services Unit,

This investigation involves alleged practice below Standard of Care.

Questions:

1. I do not know the Subject or complainant. I do not have direct knowledge of the circumstances surrounding this case.
2. I currently treat patients with similar problems.
3. The Subject did not meet the standard of care. See Summary/Conclusion.
4. The Subject's assessment of the patient's complaints and symptoms was adequate; the assessment was complete, including diagnostic imaging studies, laboratory tests, and examinations. A complete history and physical examination is documented in the record appropriately.
5. The Subject's documented diagnosis and differential diagnosis met the standard of care in that it was appropriate, timely, adequate, and accurate. However, his treatment is below the standard of care in that the subject requested and ordered treatment for the patient that the subject had not referenced to or made in the diagnosis. The treatment ordered is not indicated for the documented condition nor supported by his examination or documentation.
6. Appropriate specialists were involved in the care of this patient.
7. The Subject's documented treatment plan was appropriate.
8. The Subject did not prescribe medications appropriately. There is no clear indication to utilize oral codeine based cough suppression Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) in this patient.
9. The medical records maintained by the Subject demonstrate a complete history and examination, but do not accurately and completely document or justify an indication for codeine based narcotic treatment Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) as ordered utilized in the care of this patient.
10. The billing records were not provided for review.
11. Appropriate steps in the record was not documented in order to resolve the issues of the case as there is no documentation of the disposition of the codeine based cough suppressant Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) by the subject.

12. The response of the subject to the investigator was not reasonable nor supported by records reviewed. His explanation that in 14 years there were no prior events on his license, that this is a misunderstanding with “no harm no foul” and that we did things at the Cleveland Clinic do not provide support for an indication to utilize oral codeine based cough suppression Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) in this patient.

Summary/Conclusion:

This is a case where a patient (JR) presented to the emergency room from in-patient rehab after suffering a cardiac arrest. The patient had had a left cerebellar accident. He was found down and unresponsive. He underwent a resuscitation including intubation with a subsequent return of spontaneous circulation. A central line was inserted. Antibiotics, vasopressor agents including norepinephrine and an induced hypothermia protocol was instituted. He was admitted to the Intensive Care Unit.

After admission to the Intensive Care Unit the patient was documented as being maintained on mechanical ventilation with an endotracheal tube was place. The patient was diagnosed with acute kidney injury, reactive hyperglycemia, and was demonstrating a metabolic acidosis. He was in shock requiring vasopressor agents. He was status post a prior Percutaneous Gastrostomy Tube insertion. The patient had had atrial fibrillation.

The record documents that on 01/20/2017 at 0045, an order for oral Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) was placed for the patient. At the time of this order, the patient was on life support, sedated and there was no documentation of prior cough or bronchospasm or any of these symptoms actively occurring at that time. The patient was not documented as having obvious pain as Intravenous medications were being utilized. This medication is not part of the West Florida Healthcare Hospital’s hypothermia protocol in the chart. The hypothermia protocol was to a cooling temperature of 32 degrees, the patient was noted to be bradycardic, was breathing in synchrony with the ventilator and the endotracheal tube at that time was without secretions. The patient was on Propofol. The protocol is a standard series of orders that appears usual and customary. There is no clear indication to utilize oral codeine based cough suppression in this patient. The records are legible and the chart does documents the dispensing of the codeine based narcotic Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) but did not document the administration of the medication.

Subsequent Pulmonary Medicine consultation did not mention cough or bronchospasm. Atelectasis was diagnosed, a fiberoptic bronchoscopy for mucus retention was required. Oral Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) would of exacerbated this situation if it had been used.

The subject could of taken other actions and not have had the medication given to him to dispense. The usual Intensive Care Unit standard is for the ICU RN to administer medications as ordered by the physician unless the medication ordered is beyond the standard of practice for an RN and requires a physician to administer.

The subject did assert that he utilizes codeine-based cough syrups in bronchospasm. This is not the normal standard of care practice. The use of Hycodan in cough variant asthma would be possibly supported, but the use of the medication is for cough and not the bronchospasm. The assertion that “we did things differently at the Cleveland Clinic” is not supported. I do not have a copy of the actual hypothermia protocol from Cleveland Clinic but a limited review of published data does show a presentation from Cleveland Clinic on Therapeutic Hypothermia After Cardiac Arrest Best Practices 2104. (1) This public document shows that their protocol uses Meperidine, Buspirone, and deep sedation with Midazolam, Fentanyl and Propofol and Lorazepam plus or minus neuromuscular blockade. It does not appear that oral codeine is included in the Cleveland Clinic’s protocol. I could find no other supporting data to his assertion of the use of an oral codeine based medication attributed to the Cleveland Clinic is being used in the their induced hypothermia protocol.

In his actions, the subject demonstrated that he did not meet the Standard of Care in the ordering and having a codeine based cough syrup Hycodan (hydrocodone 5mg/ homatropine 1.5mg 5ml TID prn) for a patient who did not require it.

If you have any further questions, please call (407) 766-0882 to schedule an additional telephone conference.

David H. Lindner, D.O. MBA, FCCP

Synopsis: This supplemental investigation is based on a request from PSU Attorney GEOFFREY CHRISTIAN, ESQ. asking to serve an AC package to FERNANDEZ.

On 1/17/2020, this Investigator went to the address for FERNANDEZ, which is listed in the DOH database, 684 NW 127th Ave, Miami, FL 33182. Upon finding that no one opened the door, a note was left attached to the front door requesting that FERNANDEZ telephone this Investigator.

On 1/21/2020, FERNANDEZ telephoned this Investigator from Minnesota and explained that his wife found the note left on the door and contacted him in Minnesota where he is currently living. This Investigator asked FERNANDEZ if he needed to update his mailing address information with the Florida Board of Medicine to reflect his Minnesota address and he said he is still keeping his address in Miami as his residence.

This Investigator and FERNANDEZ began an email chain. In the email chain, FERNANDEZ provided his address in Minnesota where the AC Package could be sent. The address is 1615 30th Street, NW, Bemidji, MN 56601.

This Investigator checked in Accurint for the address in Minnesota that FERNANDEZ provided in his email. Accurint does list this address for FERNANDEZ.

Re: DOH case # 2017-01439

Hello Dr Fernandez,

During our telephone conversation this morning, you explained that you were contacting me because I had gone to your residence in Miami on this past Friday and left a note attached to your door. You told me that when your wife found the note, she contacted you in Minnesota and told you about my note.

I asked you if you needed to update your mailing address information with the Florida Board office to reflect your Minnesota address and you said you still keep your address in Miami as your residence.

Can you tell me when will be the next time you plan to be back in Miami or in Florida?

Thanks,

Robert

Synopsis: This investigation is predicated upon receipt of a complaint (Case Summary and Attachments) (EXHIBIT 1) from WFH informing that on 1/19/17 FERNANDEZ was working as a hospitalist and called the hospital pharmacy to personally prescribe himself Hycodan Syrup 100ml. The pharmacy refused as they are not a prescribing pharmacy. Then after midnight on 1/20/17, FERNANDEZ placed an electronic order for patient JR (81 yo/male) for Hycodan (Hydrocodone 5mg/Homotropine 1.5mg). The pharmacist, MUMBI CHITI (PS 53178), later checked the eMAR for JR and discovered the dose was not documented. It was revealed that FERNANDEZ had a Unit Coordinator, BRADLEY MITCHELL, pick up the medication from the pharmacy and personally deliver it to FERNANDEZ. FERNANDEZ was questioned and he claimed to have left the medication at JR's bedside; however, surveillance video and interviews indicate FERNANDEZ did not enter JR's room throughout the shift. INVESTIGATIVE DETAILS

SUMMARY OF EXHIBITS/RECORDS/DOCUMENTS

On 1/27/17, Investigator LANIER searched the Florida Clerks of Court and found no criminal history on FERNANDEZ.

On 1/27/17, Investigator LANIER telephoned the ECSO in regard to this complaint. Investigator LANIER spoke with investigations division and staff stated the case had not made it to their office yet and suggested Investigator LANIER contact the reporting officer, DRAKE FAWCETT. Investigator LANIER called FAWCETT at 850-436-9127. Staff informed Investigator LANIER that FAWCETT was not in the office and staff was not sure if he was working on this date, but that a message would be sent to FAWCETT's cell phone to contact Investigator LANIER at his earliest convenience regarding this case.

On 1/30/17, Investigator LANIER called the ECSO again and asked for FAWCETT. Staff apologized that FAWCETT had not called back yet. Staff stated she would send another email to FAWCETT and his supervisor and that someone would call Investigator LANIER on this date. On the same date, FAWCETT returned the call. FAWCETT stated he took the report, but during that time the facility representatives told him that they would not pursue criminal charges and planned to handle the matter internally. FAWCETT advised Investigator LANIER that it was fine to notify FERNANDEZ of the DOH case. A copy of the incident report is included as EXHIBIT 13.

On 1/30/17, Investigator LANIER left a voicemail message for JEREMIAH BAILEY, Diversion Investigator, DEA, requesting a return call. On 1/31/17, BAILEY returned the call and stated it did not seem that this matter had been reported to his office. BAILEY opined that FERNANDEZ was aware that the matter had been reported and that it was up to Investigator LANIER as to whether or not to notify FERNANDEZ. BAILEY stated he would like to meet with Investigator LANIER on 2/2/17 at the Pensacola ISU office. On 2/2/17, Investigator LANIER met with BAILEY at the Pensacola ISU office. The allegations were discussed and BAILEY opined the DEA would likely move forward with a case after reviewing some supporting documentation.

On 1/30/17, Investigator LANIER left a voicemail message for ROBERTA KING, Risk Manager, WFH, requesting a return call. On 1/31/17, KING returned the call. Investigator LANIER asked KING to provide the order for the medication and the CDAR form for when the medication was picked up. Investigator LANIER asked KING if she could provide a copy of the surveillance footage and KING stated she could not provide the surveillance footage without a subpoena. On 1/31/17, Investigator LANIER served the subpoena to KING at WFH. KING stated she would begin processing the request and contact Investigator LANIER once it was available. On 2/7/17, KING telephoned Investigator LANIER and stated she had the documentation and thumb drives of the surveillance available for pick up from her office at 1:00pm this date. [INVESTIGATOR'S NOTE: The passwords for the thumb drives is "WestFlorida". There is a zero in place of standard "o" in Florida.

On 2/1/17 and 2/8/17, Investigator LANIER left voicemail messages for JILL BOSCH, Records Custodian, Walgreens, checking on the status of the prescription profile requested. As of this date, BOSCH has not returned the calls; however, the profile was received with a certification form. A copy of the certification form is included with the profile as EXHIBIT 6. The original certification form will be sent to PSU by FedEx delivery.

On 2/8/17, Investigator LANIER called Ciox to check on the status of the medical records. Staff noted the subpoena was received on 2/1/17 and they were in the gathering and copying process. Staff stated an estimated completion time could not be provided; however, staff provided Investigator

LANIER with a log ID #152137768 for reference when calling back to check the status. On 2/13/17, Investigator LANIER called Ciox to check the status of the medical records. Staff informed that the records had been produced and were sent for certification. Staff stated Investigator LANIER should expect to receive the records sometime this week.

On 2/16/17, Investigator LANIER called Ciox to check on the status of the medical records. Staff stated the records were scanned in on this date and Investigator LANIER should expect to receive them in the portal later on this date. On 2/20/17, Investigator LANIER called Ciox and staff stated the records were still being processed. Staff stated that it appeared there were about 728 pages of medical record being scanned in. Staff could not provide an estimated completion date.

On 2/21/17, Investigator LANIER called Ciox and informed them that the records appeared to be scanned into the portal, but were not available yet. Investigator LANIER informed them that he could see that it had been in process since 2/16/17. Investigator LANIER asked what could be holding it up. Staff informed that it typically takes about 5 days before they become available in the portal even after they had been scanned in. Staff informed Investigator LANIER that the records should be available soon. The medical records were received on 2/22/17 and are included as EXHIBIT 12.

On 2/16/17, Investigator LANIER left a voicemail message for TINA HERNANDEZ, Health Information Management Director, WFH, checking on the original certification form associated with the medical records (EXHIBIT 12). Investigator LANIER requested a return call. On 2/20/17, Investigator LANIER spoke with HERNANDEZ by telephone. Investigator LANIER asked HERNANDEZ about the certification form for JR's records. HERNANDEZ stated she certified the records on 2/16/17 and the form was scanned into Ciox. HERNANDEZ stated that it appeared Ciox had completed the request and that the records were being mailed to Investigator LANIER. Investigator LANIER asked if the original certification was available. HERNANDEZ stated that was not the procedure. HERNANDEZ stated the hospital keeps the original for 6 months and then it is destroyed. Investigator LANIER asked HERNANDEZ if the original could be provided and she stated that it was not part of their procedure.

FERNANDEZ stated it was a misunderstanding of protocol and that was it. FERNANDEZ stated he had practiced at the Cleveland Clinic and they do things slightly different there. FERNANDEZ stated that he understood the matter still had to be investigated, "no harm no foul." FERNANDEZ stated he would call Investigator LANIER once he had received the notification letter and the matter could be discussed further.

On 2/7/17, Investigator LANIER left a voicemail message for FERNANDEZ asking if he had received the notification letter. Investigator LANIER requested a return call. On 2/9/17, FERNANDEZ returned the call and left a voicemail message for Investigator LANIER. FERNANDEZ stating he did receive the notification letter; however, his grandfather passed away and he had been busy working on the funeral arrangements. FERNANDEZ stated he would call on 2/10/17 to give his statement.

On 2/16/17, Investigator LANIER interviewed FERNANDEZ by telephone. FERNANDEZ apologized and stated he had been busy dealing with his grandfather's death. FERNANDEZ stated the statement that he provided to the facility had not changed, but he asked if he could call back on Monday (2/20/17) and give his version of the story. Investigator LANIER informed FERNANDEZ that would be fine. On 2/23/17, Investigator LANIER left a voicemail message for FERNANDEZ requesting a return call. As of the completion of this report FERNANDEZ has not called back.

HCA Medication Diversion Prevention Policy CSG.MM.003

EFFECTIVE DATE: September 2015

REPLACES POLICY DATED: 2013

SCOPE: All Company-affiliated facilities including, but not limited to, hospitals, ambulatory surgery centers, home health agencies, physician practices, service centers, outpatient imaging centers, all Corporate Departments, Groups, Divisions, Markets, and Parallon. This policy covers all HCA employees, healthcare professionals, contractors, and students, as well as those applying for employee positions.

PURPOSE:

1. Promote patient safety.
2. Promote a healthy work environment.
3. Define medication control processes.
4. Define monitoring processes that provide early detection of medication control irregularities.
5. Mandate strict compliance with requirements of the DEA, FDA, regulatory boards, federal and state survey agencies, accreditation standards, local law enforcement agencies, and HCA Policies and Procedures and guidance documents.

POLICY: HCA is dedicated to fostering a culture that supports safe and effective patient care and a healthy work environment. It is the expectation of all HCA staff¹/Licensed Independent Practitioners (LIPs)² /Advanced Practice Professionals (APPs)³ to strictly adhere to processes that support the prevention of medication diversion. Staff, LIPs and APPs are responsible for reading this policy and understanding their role in preventing medication diversion. Diversion of medication is a criminal act punishable by local, state and federal authorities and a violation of local and corporate HCA employment policy and medical staff bylaws, rules, and regulations. This policy is intended to be used in conjunction with CSG.MM.001, Controlled Substance Monitoring Policy⁴ and CSG.MM.002, Substance Use in the Workplace.

PROCEDURE:

Section I - Selection

Within HCA, DEA Controlled Dangerous Substances listed in Schedule II – V, (including 2N and 3N) will be controlled along with State or Federal-mandated controlled substances (if applicable), and additional items deemed necessary by the facility. HCA requires propofol to be designated as a controlled substance in every facility.

Section II - Access

Controlled substances in patient care areas, pharmacy and/or designated storage areas are to be maintained in an automated dispensing (ADC)⁵ or locked in a substantially constructed cabinet (hereafter referred to as "locked cabinet") that is stored in a locked area. Only patient care staff members who have completed an authorization/access form/education process (see Appendix A - Sample Authorization/Access Form) and are approved by the appropriate individual may remove controlled substances from the ADC or a locked cabinet that is stored in a locked area.

1. The following healthcare providers have the ability to request access to controlled substances based on their job description and competencies: LIPs, APPs, RNs, LPNs/LVNs, Registered Pharmacists, Pharmacy Technicians, EMS staff, and other qualified staff as authorized by the facility. If other staff are to have authorization to request access to controlled substances, this must be identified in written policy and procedures, staff job descriptions and competencies. Ref: 482.25(b)(2)(iii)⁷ which details authorized access to 'locked areas'.
2. Contract staff will receive access only to the ADC or locked cabinet that is stored in a locked area on the unit in which they are scheduled to work. Access must be limited to areas that are needed to perform assigned duties and for the designated time period of the contract. Access for staff working on a shift-to-shift basis is limited to the shift assigned.
3. Only staff authorized to have access to controlled substances will have access to the controlled substances in medication storage areas (e.g. locked cabinets, refrigerators, mobile medical carts, etc...).

4. Access for all employees authorized to access controlled substances must be limited to the areas that are needed to perform assigned duties.
5. During times when locked areas are not occupied, the keys to these areas must be located in a secure location, not accessible by individuals without authorized access to controlled substances.
6. A staff member's, LIP's or APP's access to medications may be revoked at any time.
7. A physician may request access to controlled substances for a qualified staff member who will work under his/her direction (e.g., RN, LPN/LVN, radiology technologist) when working in, as examples, an outpatient imaging center or physician office practice.
8. Keys to locked cabinets/areas are not to be reproduced or removed from the facility or from a physician's office practice.
9. Maintaining Security
 - All staff, LIPs, and APPs will protect their access to ADCs, locked cabinets, and/or combination locks.
 - When a user suspects the integrity of their access has been compromised, steps must be taken to immediately report the incident to their supervisor and deactivate the previous access form. This does not apply to individuals exclusively using biOID.
 - If a hard key is lost, all related locks will be re-keyed as soon as possible.
 - ADC passwords will be changed at least every 90 days for facilities and 180 days for corporate.
 - Keypad and combination locks will be changed at minimum once a year; this procedure will be documented with a work order.
 - It is recommended that all facility medication storage areas utilize badge access.
1. Any unattended or unlabeled controlled substances must be immediately reported to the appropriate unit manager, confiscated, and appropriately secured, per facility policy. This event is documented as an occurrence report (refer to Section XII).

Section III – Secure Storage

1. Controlled substances in patient care areas, pharmacy, and/or designated storage areas must be maintained in an ADC or a locked cabinet stored in a locked area.
2. Controlled substances requiring refrigeration will be placed in refrigerators connected to the ADC or that will utilize the Remote Stock function (key to the refrigerated locked container is kept in the ADC or in a designated locked area). Controlled substances stored in free-standing refrigerators must be double-locked.
3. Controlled substances will not be stored in crash carts.
4. Only medications will be stored in the designated locked cabinet that is secured in a locked area.
5. When an ADC is not utilized, reconciliation of controlled substances will be verified by two (2) licensed individuals at the end of each case or shift, or at close of business.
 - a. Because licensure is not required for medical assistants in most states, medications in physician practices will be reconciled by two individuals, at least one of which holds a clinical position in the practice.
6. All controlled substances that have been removed from their storage area (i.e. for procedural use) will be returned to the designated storage area at the end of each case or shift, or at the close of business as defined in facility policy.
7. Mobile storage devices (e.g., small refrigerators, medication carts, anesthesia carts, epidural carts) containing controlled substances must be physically secured, locked when not in use, and stored in a locked area. Consideration will be given to utilization of self-locking medication carts.
8. The procedural room and other areas where high-risk operative or other invasive procedures are performed are considered secure when the suite is staffed by a person that is permitted to have access to controlled substances and staff are actively providing patient care. When the suite is not in use (e.g., weekends, holidays, afterhours), it is not considered secure unless one of the following situations are in place: the facility may choose to lock the entire suite, lock non-mobile carts containing medications, place mobile carts in a locked room, or otherwise lock drugs in a secure area. If an individual operating room is not in use, the facility is expected to lock non-mobile carts, and ensure mobile carts are in a locked area.
9. Patient-owned Controlled Medications

* Medications will be sent home with family members/patient representative, if at all possible.

- a. Patient-owned controlled substances not sent home must be logged and kept in a locked location or ADC.
- b. Logging the patient's controlled substances consists of counting and verifying the medications by the patient/patient's representative, when possible, with two licensed staff members, and placing the medications in a sealed tamper-resistant bag. Medications must not be transported in an open bag or solely in the original vial/container by staff members.
- c. These medications will be logged at the time they are received and when they are returned to the patient (see Appendix B – Sample Patient Medication Storage Log).

- d. For facilities that have a 24-hour pharmacy, the medications will be stored in a secure location in the pharmacy. Facilities without a 24-hour pharmacy (including those with no pharmacy), will store the controlled substances in a locked area.
- e. Patient-owned controlled substances need to have a chain of custody from the time of receipt to the time of return.
- f. If patient-owned controlled substances cannot be returned to the patient, they must be discarded within 30 days post-discharge (refer to the facility).

Section IV - Prescribing

1. Verbal orders for controlled substances will be used infrequently. All verbal orders/telephone orders are to be read back or repeated back in order to verify the accuracy of the order. Repeat back is only authorized for use during a code or when read back is not feasible (e.g., during the performance of an operative or other invasive procedure).
2. Only complete orders will be entered into the patient's medication profile. Printed orders must be physically signed by the prescriber and shall not be processed until the ordering practitioner is identified and the practitioner's authority to order controlled substances is verified. The ordering LIP or APP will be consulted for unclear orders.
3. Documentation must be legible and correlate to usage. Orders which are not clearly legible will not be accepted. When orders are handwritten, blank lines or spaces will not be left on forms that would allow for the insertion of an unauthorized order.
4. Multiple orders for duplicate indications must have clear administration criteria. (e.g. multiple medications ordered prn for sedation or pain)
5. Range orders (e.g. 1 to 2 tabs) without administration criteria are not permitted.
6. Defaulting attribution of the order to the attending or other practitioner is not permitted.
7. If the Health Information Management System (e.g. Meditech, Epic, etc.) pharmacy module flags an order as not being received from an authorized practitioner, then the chain of command policy will be implemented to notify the appropriate facility leaders. Controlled substances will not be dispensed based on that order until the flag is resolved.
8. Prescription pads and prescription paper will be stored in a secured location and controlled based on facility-specific policies and procedures in order to prevent unauthorized prescribing of prescription medications. Printers used for electronically printing prescriptions must be secured and inaccessible to unauthorized individuals.
9. Only authorized staff with prescribing privileges can prescribe controlled substances. The refilling of a prescription for a controlled substance listed in Schedule II is prohibited [per Title 21 U.S. Code §829(a)].

Section V - Preparing and Dispensing

1. Only authorized healthcare providers can prepare and/or dispense controlled substances.
2. Dispensing samples of controlled substances is prohibited.
3. Controlled substances must be removed by authorized staff at the time of administration.
4. The authorized staff member who is removing the controlled substance will document the amount removed from inventory via computerized system, or master log.
5. All items to be delivered to patient care areas will have a printout or form listing the delivery location, item description, and quantity to be delivered. The printout or form needs to be signed by both the person removing and delivering the controlled substances. The delivery person will count and verify all items prior to delivery. It is recommended that controlled substances be transported in a secure manner.
6. Verification of controlled substances upon delivery must be documented by both the person delivering and the person accepting the medication. This practice is recommended, but not required, for ADCs.
7. During verification, individual controlled substances will be inspected to ensure integrity.
8. For ADC or primary locked cabinets, the authorized staff member will stock the ADC/locked cabinet and verify the inventory count. The verification can occur electronically (e.g. Pyxis CII Safe Compare Report) or the authorized staff member will print a proof of delivery report. This must be reconciled and signed by the Pharmacist, Administrator or Practice Manager, filed and stored (see Appendix C for process of reconciling overridden medications).
9. Only in-date, intact unit dose controlled substances, which are returned to the controlled substance stock, can be entered back into the inventory.
10. Expired controlled substances removed from the inventory will be placed in a dedicated expired controlled substances drawer/bin in a locked area.
11. Facilities must maintain a log of expired controlled substances that is inventoried every 30 days.
12. For expired controlled substances, the total list will be reconciled by the person holding a DEA Power of Attorney (POA) with the DEA-222 form provided by the reverse distributor, who will send the expired controlled substances for destruction.

13. Partially used controlled substances must be sewered, where permitted by state and local water authorities, or disposed of via the Cactus Smart Sink system.

Section VI- Administration

1. The patient will only receive controlled substances that are procured by the facility in which the patient is being treated. Exception: Patients' own medications will only be used for cases where the medication is not available from the local wholesaler, non-formulary, or continuation is imperative for patient care.
2. Controlled substances administered via Patient-Controlled Analgesia (PCA) pumps and epidural pumps will be administered only in locked systems and will be stocked and removed using the ADC or a locked cabinet stored in a locked area. Facilities will evaluate other controlled substances on the floor and consider a locking mechanism such as an IV lock box.
3. The facility will take a systematic approach to reviewing and evaluating areas that have the highest potential for diversion.
4. Documentation of controlled substance administration based on patient need must be done in a timely manner, as monitored by the Dispensing Machine Audit Report.
5. Documentation of the transactions and volume of controlled substances infused per shift/per case must be readily available. The documentation process must be specifically addressed in hospital policy.
6. Inventory verification will be performed each time a controlled substance is removed for administration and when returned, if unused. If the count is incorrect, the user will create a discrepancy report or equivalent report to follow the steps in Section VIII - Discrepancies.
7. During verification, the individual controlled substance will be inspected to ensure integrity.
8. A physical inventory of all controlled substances and keys for controlled substances will be performed at a minimum of once monthly in the pharmacy, ASDs, and physician practices and once weekly on the nursing units, or for cause. The weekly nursing inventory must be completed by the unit's Nurse Manager/Supervisor or designee. The inventory must be completed for all controlled substances, including those that were not accessed via ADC during that time frame, and the inventory documented.
9. When taking controlled substance counts, staffing assignments must be taken into consideration. It is highly recommended to rotate staff members assigned to take controlled substance counts.
10. Chain-of-custody procedures and documentation will be utilized when controlled substances are removed by one person and administered by another (see Appendix D – Sample Controlled Substance Handoff Form).
11. Fractionating doses of unit use vials is prohibited. Exception: A medication that is transferred from its parent container to an appropriately labeled and secured syringe in order to be administered in fractionated doses during the course of anesthesia.

Section VII - Controlled Substance Wasting

1. Wastage must be physically witnessed and documented by two (2) licensed individuals (preferably one of whom is an employee of HCA).
2. Any remaining controlled substance packaged in an amount larger than the dose being administered must be wasted immediately; wastage documentation must occur simultaneously.
3. Wasting of a controlled substance (e.g., remaining PCA or syringe pump IV solution, used folded fentanyl patch, a controlled substance stored inappropriately) must occur at the end of the drug's use. This must be recorded in the ADC, BCMA, or manual documentation form, per facility policy.
4. For procedures not involving anesthesia, partially used controlled substances must be wasted immediately after administration or at the conclusion of the procedure.

Section VIII - Discrepancies

1. Inventory verification will be performed each time a controlled substance is removed for administration and when returned, if unused. If the count is incorrect, the user will create a discrepancy report or equivalent report.
2. Discrepancies must be addressed during the shift in which the discrepancy occurred. The manager or designated facility employee of the area is responsible for checking for discrepancies by the end of the shift. Any personnel involved in the discrepancy must be available as soon as feasible to assist in the resolution.
3. If the manager is unable to appropriately resolve a discrepancy, the Director of Pharmacy, Facility Administrator, or Division Director of Quality Management (for physician practices) must be notified.
4. If investigation does not result in a resolution, the count will be corrected by two licensed persons. An occurrence report/variance report will be completed if a discrepancy is not resolved.

5. If resolution does not occur within 24 hours, the notification of occurrence is presented to the Chief Executive Officer, Physician Services Group AVP of Quality, or Facility Administrator.

Section IX Medication Diversion Surveillance and Reporting

1. The CEO, Administrator, or Practice Manager, along with the Director of Pharmacy (Pharmacist in Charge), when applicable, is responsible for controlled substance oversight, including tracking and reporting of inappropriate controlled substance usage. A Controlled Substance Manager must be designated by the CEO, Administrator, or Practice Manager to oversee the controlled substance processes. All suspected or actual diversion must be reported immediately to the Director of Pharmacy or designee for hospitals.
2. Each facility must form a Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Team (MDT) that is charged with developing a coordinated and systematic approach to prevention and detection of medication diversion or potential tampering. The team members must include (where available): Pharmacy, Risk Management, Hospital Security, Administration, CNO or ACNO, nursing leadership, ECO, and Human Resources. Because controlled substance diversion can result in patient harm, the team must be able to assemble quickly. The multidisciplinary team must meet under the following scenarios:
 - a. The team must be notified immediately of a suspected diversion or diversion currently taking place, if there is suspicious behavior, or if the suspect is potentially under the influence of substances that could impair their performance or judgment. The team must confer and determine appropriate action within 24 hours.
 - b. The team must meet, at minimum, on a monthly basis in order to review audits and investigation results, and determine the need for further investigation. Minutes must be recorded and must include attendees, documentation of Appendix E – Controlled Substances Policy Algorithm requirements, and a recap of individual diversion issues since the last monthly meeting (see Appendix F – Sample Medication Diversion Committee Minutes for minimum agenda requirements. Other agenda items may be added as needed).
1. Diversion Monitoring and Investigation for Facilities without Diversion Software
 - a. Locations without medication diversion surveillance and reporting software and ADCs (e.g. physician practices) will develop a specific process for their facility to assist in prevention and detection of controlled substance diversion.
2. Proactive Diversion Reporting and Investigation for Facilities with Diversion Software
(see Appendix E – Controlled Substances Policy Algorithm and Appendix G – Rx Auditor Diversion Prevention Guide)
 - a. In Ambulatory Surgery Centers (ASCs) and physician practices, two (2) licensed individuals will reconcile controlled substances in the controlled substance log at the beginning and at the end of each day.
 - b. Medication overrides should be reviewed daily by a pharmacy staff member to ensure the existence of a valid corresponding order.
 - c. The facility shall identify all areas with controlled substance. In such areas, a concurrent audit and reconciliation process will be established to monitor controlled substance usage on a daily basis. For example, it is preferred that facilities establish standardized patient-specific "kits" of controlled substances be issued to each authorized LIP, APP for use during the case. Anesthesiologist-specific kits are acceptable but not preferred. Each LIP/APP is responsible for documenting controlled substances removed from the "kit" on a "kit" log, including doses administered and wasted on each patient. The controlled substance kit and the designated Controlled substance Record must be returned to the designated area. The LIP/APP must verify via signature, date, and time that the contents of the controlled substances kit have been verified and checked against the Controlled substance Record or Anesthesia Administration Form. Any discrepancy discovered must be resolved during the return process. Failure to do so may result in loss of privileges to sign out controlled substances. If a discrepancy cannot be resolved (e.g., cause of discrepancy cannot be determined), the nurse manager or designee must be notified and this must be reported immediately to the Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Prevention Committee Lead.
 - d. Monthly Review - for areas without ADC access or documented outside ADC (including ancillary patient treatment areas)
 - Daily Tracking: recorded on sequentially numbered forms issued by Pharmacy from the locked cabinet and returned to the pharmacy or designated area at the end of each work day. When variation in the number of doses of the medication administered is identified, further investigation must be initiated to determine why the variation occurred. These findings must be documented in the Controlled Substance Medication Audit document and reported at the Multidisciplinary Diversion Meeting.
- Each facility must perform a minimum of two (2) controlled substance audits per month in every area with no access to ADC. The medications may be selected randomly but must include one of high volume. The second audit may be for one of high or low volumes.
- Each audit will use at least a 48-hour period of retrospective review.
- Facilities may choose to conduct their audit simultaneously for all locations or may conduct the audits at different times for each.

- Nursing reviews will include the technique of "Velocity Audits" where the volumes of use of the medication under review are examined for each individual administering the medication to identify individuals with a high administering volume (see Appendix H – Velocity Audit Form).
- Audit results must be forwarded to the facility person retaining all audit records.

Section X – Anesthesia and Operational Medications (OR and other Anesthetizing Areas)

1. The facility-defined method for obtaining controlled substances and wasting controlled substances must be followed without exception.
2. The patient will only receive controlled substances that are procured by the facility in which the patient is being treated.
3. Controlled substances (patient-specific kits) must be dispensed for individual patient use. Anesthesiologist-specific kits are acceptable, but not preferred.
4. Wastage must be physically witnessed and documented by two (2) licensed individuals (one individual should be a hospital employee) in real time or no longer than conclusion of the case. Unused products prepared for a specific patient must be destroyed upon the cancellation or conclusion of the case.
5. For fractionated doses, medications can be transferred from their parent container to an appropriately labeled and secured syringe in order to be administered during the course of anesthesia.
6. All discrepancies will be resolved by the provider by the end of the provider's shift.
7. Documentation must be legible and correlate to medication usage.
8. All discrepancies must be tracked, using the QI/PI process, by provider, for trending and identification (as defined by the Medical Executive Committee) and reported to the Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Team.
9. No medication can be left unattended or without a licensed professional. All medications prepared in advance for the next patient must be locked and secured at all times.
10. When medications are drawn up and not administered immediately, medication syringes must be labeled to include: name of medication(s), strength, quantity, diluents and volume, date and time.
11. Staff, LIPs, and APPs are not allowed to bring items such as book bags, briefcases, duffel bags or any other type of item into OR/ invasive procedure settings. Other items must be stored in a locker. If items like a nerve stimulator or pocket reference book are needed they can be brought into the OR in a clear Ziploc bag and kept in plain view.
12. The Chief of Anesthesia/designee or ASC Medical Director will assume responsibility for informing all anesthesia staff of these rules and their enforcement prior to granting of clinical privileges.
13. Consideration for use of an anesthesia ADC in each operating room suite or, at minimum, a centralized operating room ADC is recommended.
14. Controlled substance kits will have two independent checks prior to dispensing.
15. Sign-out Process
 - a. Standard controlled substance kits are signed out from the ADC, pharmacy department, or controlled substance storage area.
 - b. When obtaining the controlled substance kit, anesthesia personnel must verify the contents of the kit. Once obtained, the anesthesia provider is responsible for controlled substances that they sign out.
16. The controlled substance kit will remain locked and secured when not in use.
17. Reconciliation of medications used during procedures is the responsibility of the practitioner ending the procedure.
18. All controlled substances used must be documented electronically or on the designated form (e.g. Anesthesia Record). Persons administering medications are responsible for reconciling all drug totals (i.e., total administered and amount returned, when applicable).
19. Hand-off of controlled substances must be documented in the Anesthesia Record or designated form, should an Anesthesia Record not be utilized. For hospitals, all hand off records must be sent to Pharmacy (see Appendix D – Sample Controlled Substance Handoff Form).
20. Anesthesia personnel are not permitted to dispense, loan, or exchange controlled substances to other anesthesia personnel from their kit, except in an emergency as defined by Medical Staff Rules and Regulations. Any additional controlled substances needed must be checked out from the pharmacy, ADC, or controlled substance storage area. If an ADC is not used, the controlled substance removed must be documented on the facility-designated form.
21. All unused, unopened controlled substances must be returned to the designated location.
22. Medication Return Process

- a. The controlled substance kit and the facility-designated form (e.g. Anesthesia Record) must be returned to the designated area.
 - b. Anesthesia personnel must verify via signature, date, and time that the contents of the controlled substance kit have been verified and checked against the facility-designated form (e.g. Anesthesia Record).
 - c. All discrepancies must be resolved during the medication return process. Failure to do so may result in loss of privileges to sign out controlled substances.
 - d. If a discrepancy cannot be resolved (i.e., cause of discrepancy cannot be determined), the OR Director, or designated hospital employee, must be notified and this must be reported immediately to the Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Prevention Committee Lead.
23. Tracking of frequent discrepancies for trending and identification of individuals will be ongoing and reported to the Department Head (e.g. Chief of Anesthesia, CMO or designee) and Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Prevention Committee.
24. Auditing
- a. Audits of the OR record compared to the facility-designated form or Anesthesia Administration Form will be conducted on ten percent of all cases, including a representative sample for each anesthesia practitioner. If tampering is suspected, qualitative and quantitative testing will be performed.
25. Testing of returned controlled substances
- a. When applicable the Department of Pharmacy or designated person will randomly test the contents of returned syringes from the invasive procedure areas.
 - b. The results will be recorded and compared against control values.
26. Review of results
- a. When applicable, the pharmacy department will review inconsistencies found in the auditing process or toxicology testing process with the Chief Medical Officer or a designee.

Section XI - Propofol

Facilities or entities using propofol will strictly apply all previously addressed and applicable sections of this policy and procedure to ensure:

- a. All propofol is to be stored in a locked location.
 - b. All propofol dispensed to anesthesiologists/CRNAs/anesthesia assistants/qualified anesthesia providers is to be counted and logged as is routine with all controlled substances.
 - c. All propofol administered is to be documented on the facility-designated form (e.g. Anesthesia Record).
 - d. All propofol wastage is to be observed and documented utilizing the routine method for wastage of controlled substances.
1. Ordering, wasting, administering, documenting, tracking, and reconciling of propofol will be addressed the same as other controlled substances.
 2. Propofol must be treated as a controlled substance but should not be included in the facility's biennial inventory of controlled substances (required by the DEA). A separate inventory should exist for non-DEA specified controlled substances.

Section XII – Policy Monitoring and Auditing

Monitoring of the HCA Medication Diversion Prevention Policy will occur bi-annually (with an increment of not less than 4 months between audits) by the Division Directors of Pharmacy or their designee. Auditing of policy compliance will occur through Compliance Process Reviews by the Corporate Ethics & Compliance Department, Quality Review System Surveys by the Clinical Services Group, and Internal Audit and Consulting Services.

1. All auditing requirements must be overseen and enforced by members of the Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Team and the facility administration designee.
2. The facility-defined QA/PI mechanism will be utilized for tracking occurrence reports, based upon staff member. Results will be reported to the Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Team.
3. The initial occurrence will result in coaching/counseling by the manager. Individuals with Professional Service Agreements (e.g. physicians, LIPs, APPs) are held to the conditions of the contract, which supersedes the Medical Staff Bylaws. A subsequent occurrence for these individuals will necessitate a referral to the Medical Executive Committee for quality/peer review subject to the individual's current term of appointment or reappointment. Initial occurrences for clinical (e.g. nursing or pharmacy) or non-clinical staff occurrences will be addressed through their supervisor using established facility policy and procedure; subsequent occurrences will result in progressive corrective action.
4. Each facility will identify the laws regarding APPs and controlled substance prescribing and ensure the state laws are being followed (defined in CSG.MM.001).

HCA Physician Services Group will develop a policy/addendum that specifically addresses medication diversion prevention in the unique clinical setting of Physician Practices after the publication of this policy. Physician Practices will be held to the standard of the policy specific to them upon its release.*

"If any member of the Multidisciplinary Medication Diversion Team does not feel that all parties in the facility are meeting their responsibility, this is to be escalated directly to the CEO, if the issue is not resolved the Division President needs to be notified."

- Mike Marks
CFO, National Group

pharmacy wanting to write a prescription for himself for 100 milliter of Hycodan syrup, a controlled substance. RP/Templeton's pharmacist then told Dr Fernandez that they were not licensed to dispense to outpatient, and that he would have to find somewhere else. RP/Templeton stated that later in the night, Dr Fernandez entered a Hycodan syrup order for a patient, and a unit employee later identified as "Bradley Mitchell" (a hospital unit clerk) came to the pharmacy to pick up the dose. The dose is not documented as given and was not returned to the pharmacy. The patient the dose was for was "intubated." "Bradley Mitchell" had picked up the medication and then handed it to Dr Fernandez. The patient's nurse was not aware that Dr Fernandez was writing the order. RP/Templeton then stated, "It is very unusual for a physician to take a dose of medication to give to a patient. It is highly unlikely that an intubated patient needed a cough syrup." RP/Templeton then stated the cost of this medication is approximately $1.

RP/Templeton then stated that at this current time, the hospital did not wish to pursue any charges and that they would be taking care of the matter through the hospital legal system. RP/Templeton further stated this was for reporting purposes only.

RP/Templeton stated that the hospital might have _____ of this incident and that she would call the hospital on a later date if any of this incident was _____

The voluntary statement completed by RP/Templeton will be turned in as evidence.

Total time spent: 1 hour 45 minutes.

AFFIDAVIT OF FEES AND COSTS EXPENDED

STATE OF FLORIDA
COUNTY OF LEON:

BEFORE ME, the undersigned authority, personally appeared SHANE WALTERS who was sworn and states as follows:

- 1) My name is Shane Walters.
- 2) I am over the age of 18, competent to testify, and make this affidavit upon my own personal knowledge and after review of the records at the Florida Department of Health (the Department).
- 3) I am a Senior Management Analyst II (SMAII) for the Consumer Services and Compliance Management Unit for the Department. The Consumer Services Unit is where all complaints against Florida health care licensees (e.g., medical doctors, dentists, nurses, respiratory therapists) are officially filed. I have been in my current job position for more than one year. My business address is 4052 Bald Cypress Way, Bin C-75 Tallahassee, Florida 32399-3275.
- 4) As SMAII of the Consumer Services and Compliance Management Unit, my job duties include reviewing data in the Time Tracking System and verifying that the amounts correspond to the amounts in this affidavit. The Time Tracking System is a computer program which records and tracks the Department's costs regarding the investigation and prosecution of cases against Florida health care licensees.
- 5) As of today, DOH's total costs for investigating and prosecuting DOH case number(s) 2019-39402 (Department of Health v. Ronald Shelley, D.O.) are seven hundred fifty-eight dollars and seventy-three cents ($758.73).
- 6) The costs for DOH case number 2019-39402 (Department of Health v. Ronald Shelley, D.O.) is summarized in Exhibit 1 (Cost Summary Report), which is attached hereto.
- 7) The itemized costs and expenses for DOH case number 2019-39402 (Department of Health v. Ronald Shelley, D.O.) is detailed in Exhibit 2 (Itemized Cost Report and Itemized Expense Report and receipts), which is attached to this document.
- 8) The itemized costs as reflected in Exhibit 2 are determined by the following method: DOH employees who work on cases daily are to keep track of their time in six-minute increments (e.g., investigators and lawyers). A designated DOH employee in the Consumer Services Unit, Legal Department, and in each area office, inputs the time worked and expenses spent into the Time Tracking System. Time and expenses are charged against a state health care Board (e.g., Florida Board of Medicine, Florida Board of Dentistry, Florida Board of Osteopathic Medicine), and/or a case. If no Board or case can be charged, then the time and expenses are charged as administrative time. The hourly rate of each employee is calculated by formulas established by the Department. (See the Itemized Cost Report)

- 9) Shane Walters, first being duly sworn, states that he has read the foregoing Affidavit and its attachments and the statements contained therein are true and correct to the best of his knowledge and belief.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.

STATE OF FLORIDA
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

In Re: The Order Compelling Examination of Ronald P. Shelley, D.O.
License Number DO 1648
Case Number 2018-02334

ORDER COMPELLING AN EXAMINATION

The Department of Health (Department) is the state agency charged with regulating the practice of osteopathic medicine pursuant to Section 20.43, Florida Statutes (2017); Chapter 456, Florida Statutes (2017); and Chapter 459, Florida Statutes (2017).

For probable cause shown and pursuant to the authority vested in the Department by Chapter 459, Florida Statutes (2017), you are hereby ordered to report and submit to a mental and physical examination to be conducted by the following named physician at the date, time and place indicated.

MENTAL/PHYSICAL EXAMINATION INCLUDING NEUROCOGNITIVE TESTING

Benjamin Phalin, Ph.D.
4001 SW 13th Street
Gainesville, FL 32608
352-265-5549

ON
Thursday, June 7, 2018 @ 8:00 a.m.

The above-directed mental and physical examination is for the purpose of obtaining examination reports and expert opinion testimony concerning your ability to practice as an osteopathic physician with reasonable skill and safety to patients pursuant to Section 459.015(1)(w), Florida Statutes (2017), and for introduction into evidence at any administrative hearing to be conducted on any administrative complaint filed against you which may allege a violation of Section 459.015(1)(w), Florida Statutes (2017). This Order is predicated upon the following Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. At all times material to this Order, Ronald P. Shelley, D.O., (Dr. Shelley) was licensed in the State of Florida to practice osteopathic medicine, license number DO 1648, pursuant to Chapter 459, Florida Statutes (2017).
2. At all times material to this Order, Dr. Shelley practiced osteopathic medicine at the Belleview Medical Center, located in Belleview, Florida.
3. On January 31, 2018, a sergeant for the Belleview Police Department contacted the Department of Health regarding Dr. Shelley's recent behavior.

4. The sergeant stated that he has known Dr. Shelley for many years and that recently, he noticed Dr. Shelley exhibiting symptoms indicative of neurological decline.

5. The sergeant indicated that over the past year, Dr. Shelley began repeatedly contacting the police department to report thefts from his office. When the police department responded to Dr. Shelley's office, they determined that the complaints were unfounded.

6. For example, on one occasion, Dr. Shelley accused his staff of stealing checks from him. However, after a brief investigation into the matter, it was revealed that Dr. Shelley's staff were writing checks for Dr. Shelley's personal expenses.

7. The sergeant additionally stated that near the end of January 2018, Dr. Shelley had a difficult time remembering who the President of the United States or what the date was.

8. Dr. Shelley's staff have also expressed concern over his recent increase in forgetfulness.

9. Dr. Shelley's apparent neurological decline and odd behavior indicates that he may be unable to practice osteopathic medicine with reasonable skill and safety to patients. Because of that potential risk, a thorough and complete mental and physical examination of Dr. Shelley is necessary to protect the public and to ensure that he is able to practice osteopathic medicine with reasonable skill and safety to patients.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Department of Health, by and through the State Surgeon General, has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to Chapters 456 and 459, Florida Statutes (2017).

2. Section 456.015(1)(w), Florida Statutes (2017), states, in pertinent part, upon a finding of the State Surgeon General or the State Surgeon General's designee that probable cause exists to believe that the licensee is unable to practice osteopathic medicine by reason of illness or use of alcohol, drugs, narcotics, chemicals, or any other type of material, or as a result of any mental or physical condition, the department shall have the authority to compel a licensee to submit to a mental or physical examination by a physician designated by the department.

3. Based on the foregoing Findings of Fact, the State Surgeon General, through her designee, concludes that probable cause exists to believe that Dr. Shelley is unable to practice osteopathic medicine with reasonable skill and safety to patients, pursuant to Section 456.015(1)(w), Florida Statutes (2017).

4. In accordance with the authority vested in the Department of Health under Chapters 456 and 459, Florida Statutes (2017), the State Surgeon General, through her designee, concludes that Section 456.015(1)(w), Florida Statutes (2017), should be enforced.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

On November 7, 2019, Administrative Law Judge Yolonda Y. Green of the Florida Division of Administrative Hearings ("Division"), conducted a final hearing pursuant to section 120.57(1), Florida Statutes, in Lady Lake, Florida.

APPEARANCES

For Petitioner: Virginia Edwards, Esquire
William Edward Walker, Esquire
Department of Health
Bin C-65

Tallahassee, Florida 32399

For Respondent: John Joseph Im, D.O., pro se

Lady Lake, Florida 32159

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES

Whether Respondent failed to meet the prevailing professional standard of care by failing to counsel J.K.

regarding the risks of, or alternatives to, taking Levaquin with Tikosyn in violation of section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes, as alleged in the Administrative Complaint; and, if so, what sanction is appropriate.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

On June 19, 2019, Petitioner, the Department of Health, Board of Osteopathic Medicine ("Petitioner" or the "Department"), filed an Administrative Complaint against Respondent, Dr. John Joseph Im, D.O. ("Respondent" or "Dr. Im"), alleging that he violated section 459.015(1)(x). On July 24, 2019, Respondent filed an Election of Rights seeking a final hearing pursuant to section 120.57(1), and on September 6, 2019, the case was referred to the Division for assignment of an administrative law judge.

The undersigned issued a Notice of Hearing scheduling the final hearing to take place on November 7, 2019, which commenced on the scheduled date. At hearing, Petitioner presented the testimony of patient J.K. (by deposition), K.K. (Patient J.K.'s wife), and Dr. Anthony Davis (Petitioner's expert). Petitioner's Exhibits 1 through 3, and 5 through 9 were admitted. Petitioner proffered Exhibit 4. Respondent testified on his own behalf. Respondent's Exhibit 7 was admitted over objection, and Exhibit 8 was admitted without objection.

At the hearing, the undersigned considered Respondent's Motion for Sanctions as it related to his assertions regarding the conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the deposition of K.K. After hearing argument from both parties, the undersigned denied Respondent's request for sanctions.<sup>1/</sup>

The one-volume Transcript of the hearing was filed with the Division on December 4, 2019. The Petitioner timely filed its Proposed Recommended Order in this matter, which has been carefully considered in the preparation of this Recommended Order. Respondent did not file a post-hearing submittal.

Unless otherwise indicated, all references to the Florida Statutes are to the 2017 codification, and all references to the Florida Administrative Code are to the 2016 version.<sup>2/</sup>

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following Findings of Fact are based upon the testimony and documentary evidence presented at hearing, the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses, and on the entire record of this proceeding.

1. Petitioner is the state agency charged with regulating the practice of osteopathic medicine pursuant to section 20.43, and chapters 456 and 459, Florida Statutes.

2. At all times material to these proceedings, Respondent was a licensed osteopathic physician within the State of Florida, having been issued license number OS 8729.

3. Respondent's address of record at the time of filing the Administrative Complaint was 11950 County Road 101, Suites 101, 102, and 103, The Villages, Florida 32162. Respondent's current address of record is 13767 U.S. Highway 441, Lady Lake, Florida 32159.

4. Respondent currently holds no board certification in any specialty area, and did not complete any residency other than in emergency medicine. Respondent attended Michigan State University, College of Osteopathic Medicine. In 2002, he began full-time practice as an emergency room physician at Munroe Regional Medical Center in Ocala, Florida. He worked as an emergency room physician until he opened Exceptional Urgent Care Center ("EUCC").

5. At all times material to this complaint, Respondent owned and operated EUCC.

Treatment Provided to Patient J.K.

6. On March 15, 2018, J.K., along with his wife, presented to EUCC with complaints of a sore throat and fever. This was the first of two visits to the clinic.

7. J.K. reported his medications as Amlodipine, Warfarin, Tamsulosin, and Dofetilide (unless otherwise indicated, hereinafter referred to by its trade name "Tikosyn").

8. J.K. was prescribed these medications by his cardiologist at the William S. Middleton Memorial Veterans Hospital ("V.A. Hospital") in Wisconsin, his home state.

9. Relevant to this matter, Tikosyn helps patients maintain a normal heartbeat rhythm. Tikosyn was prescribed to keep J.K.'s heart in rhythm as he had atrial fibrillation.

10. J.K. was treated by a nurse practitioner, who ordered a chest x-ray and a flu swab. The flu swab returned negative, and the chest x-ray showed no focal pneumonia. J.K. was prescribed Tamiflu and Naproxen. J.K. elected not to fill the Tamiflu due to the "expensive cost." Respondent was not involved in J.K.'s treatment on this date.

11. On March 16, 2018, J.K. and his wife K.K. returned to EUCC as J.K.'s symptoms had not improved. On this visit, J.K. saw Dr. Im. Dr. Im evaluated J.K. and ordered two tests. Dr. Im ordered a Prothrombin Time International Normalized Ration ("PT INR") test to determine J.K.'s coagulation and he ordered a CT scan of the chest. The PT INR results were within the therapeutic range. The CT scan showed shattered ground-glass opacification in the posterior right lower lobe and the medial left upper lobe. The CT scan findings were interpreted as "non-specific, may represent hypoventilatory change or an infectious inflammatory process (acute or chronic)."

12. Respondent advised J.K. and K.K. that the CT scan appeared to show the start of pneumonia, and he was going to prescribe three medications: Levaquin 750 mg, Prednisone 20 mg, and Zyrtec 10 mg.

13. K.K. testified that she asked Respondent if the Levaquin, Prednisone, or Zyrtec were contraindicated with any of J.K.'s current prescriptions, specifically Tikosyn. K.K. recalls that Respondent replied that he was not familiar with Dofetilide (Tikosyn), and advised them to check with the pharmacist to see if there were any contraindications.

14. Although Respondent initially advised J.K. and K.K. that he was not familiar with Tikosyn, Respondent testified that he advised J.K. and K.K. of the possible interactions between Levaquin and Tikosyn and told her that the interaction was very rare. He testified that he advised J.K. and K.K. that the pharmacist is a safety net, and the pharmacist would call him to discuss the prescriptions if he missed anything.

15. K.K. credibly testified that Respondent did not counsel J.K. or K.K. on any risks regarding the medications Dr. Im prescribed or provide them with any alternatives during the visit on March 16, 2018.

16. J.K. and K.K. left EUCC and went to Publix to fill the prescriptions. K.K. asked the pharmacist if any medications would interfere with any of J.K.'s prescribed medications. Upon advice of the pharmacist that Levaquin was contraindicated with Tikosyn, K.K. declined to fill the prescription for Levaquin.

17. On behalf of J.K., K.K. then called EUCC and asked for a different antibiotic that would not interact with Tikosyn. However, she was instructed to contact J.K.'s cardiologist.

18. K.K. then contacted the cardiology staff of the V.A. Hospital in Wisconsin, who instructed K.K. to follow the advice of the pharmacist and (tell J.K.) not to take the Levaquin.

19. K.K. called EUCC a second time to confirm whether J.K. had an infection and she was told that J.K. did not have an infection.

20. Respondent recalls that he had a personal conversation with K.K. during a courtesy telephone call placed the next day (March 17, 2018). Respondent testified that during that call, he explained Levaquin was the drug of choice, other medications would not cover J.K.'s pneumonia, the potential interactions were very rare, and J.K. needed to take the Levaquin. By his own admission and his medical records, Respondent did not provide J.K. or K.K. with any specific alternative antibiotics and insisted that J.K. needed to take the Levaquin.

21. K.K. disputes that Dr. Im spoke with her or J.K. at any point after the March 16, 2018, visit. She clearly recalled that she spoke with a woman each time she spoke with staff at Dr. Im's office. Overall, J.K. and K.K. clearly and convincingly testified that Respondent never advised them of the risks of using Levaquin with Tikosyn or provided any alternatives to the Levaquin.

Expert Testimony

22. Petitioner offered the testimony of Dr. Anthony Davis, who testified as an expert. Dr. Davis has been licensed as an osteopathic physician in Florida since 1995. Dr. Davis attended Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine and completed an internship in family practice. He has been board certified in family medicine by the American Board of Osteopathic Family Physicians since 2001, and board certified in emergency medicine by the American Association of Physician Specialists since July 2003. He is also affiliated with professional organizations including the American College of Family Practice and Florida Osteopathic Medical Association.

23. Dr. Davis was accepted as an expert in emergency and family medicine.

24. Dr. Davis relied upon his work experience, his training, and his review of the medical records for J.K. to render his opinion regarding the standard of care related to treating J.K.

25. The standard of care requires an osteopathic physician treating a patient similar to J.K. to: (1) provide and document their justification for why Levaquin was the appropriate drug of choice; (2) note the patient's acknowledgment that there are interactions with Tikosyn; (3) ensure the patient understands the risks and benefits of combining Tikosyn and Levaquin; (4) explain to the patient that there are limited alternatives to Levaquin; and (5) provide the reason for prescribing a potentially dangerous drug.

26. Levaquin is a medication that comes with a black box warning that requires physicians to counsel patients on the risks associated.

27. When a drug is designated as contraindicated and has a category X for interaction, the standard of care requires that the physician clearly explains to the patient why they are using the drug and defend how it is going to be safe. Tr., p. 70.

28. Dr. Davis opined there were multiple treatment options available for J.K., such as supportive care or an antibiotic with a lower risk of interaction with J.K.'s existing medication. Moreover, Dr. Davis testified that there were safer alternatives to Levaquin that would effectively treat pneumonia, such as doxycycline, if J.K. actually had pneumonia and an antibiotic was necessary.

29. Respondent provided literature from the Infectious Diseases Society of America related to community-acquired pneumonia in an attempt to prove that X-Ray or other imaging techniques are required for the diagnosis of pneumonia and to support his claim that Levaquin was the drug of choice for J.K. However, Dr. Davis credibly pointed out that the article, published in 2007, is no longer accurate.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

30. The Division has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties to this action pursuant to sections 120.569 and 120.57(1), Florida Statutes (2019).

31. This is a proceeding in which the Department seeks to revoke Respondent's license to practice medicine. The Department has the burden to prove the allegations in the Administrative Complaint by clear and convincing evidence.

Dep't of Banking & Fin. v. Osborne Stern and Co., 670 So. 2d 932 (Fla. 1996); Ferris v. Turlington, 595 So. 2d 292 (Fla. 1987). As stated by the Supreme Court of Florida,

Clear and convincing evidence requires that the evidence must be found to be credible; the facts to which the witnesses testify must be distinctly remembered; the testimony must be precise and lacking in confusion as to the facts at issue. The evidence must be of such a weight that it produces in the mind of the trier of fact a firm belief or conviction, without hesitancy, as to the truth of the allegations sought to be established.

In re Henson, 913 So. 2d 579, 590 (Fla. 2005) (quoting Slomowitz v. Walker, 429 So. 2d 797, 800 (Fla. 4th DCA 1983)). This burden of proof may be met where the evidence is in conflict; however, "it seems to preclude evidence that is ambiguous."

Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Shuler Bros., 590 So. 2d 986, 988 (Fla. 1st DCA 1991).

32. Disciplinary statutes and rules "must always be construed strictly in favor of the one against whom the penalty would be imposed and are never to be extended by construction." Griffis v. Fish & Wildlife Conser. Comm'n, 57 So. 3d 929, 931 (Fla. 1st DCA 2011); Munch v. Dep't of Prof'l Reg., Div. of Real Estate, 592 So. 2d 1136 (Fla. 1st DCA 1992).

33. Petitioner charged Respondent under section 459.015(1)(x), which provides in pertinent part: "Notwithstanding s. 456.072(2) but as specified in s. 456.50(2): 1. Committing medical malpractice as defined in s. 456.50. The board shall give great weight to the provisions of s. 766.102 when enforcing this paragraph. Medical malpractice shall not be construed to require more than one instance, event, or act."

34. The Administrative Complaint alleged that Respondent committed medical malpractice. Section 456.50(1)(g), Florida Statutes, defined "medical malpractice," in relevant part, as the failure to practice medicine in accordance with the level of care, skill, and treatment recognized in general law related to health care licensure.

35. Section 766.102(1), Florida Statutes, provided in part, that the prevailing professional standard of care for a given health care provider shall be that level of care, skill, and treatment which, in light of all relevant surrounding circumstances, is recognized as acceptable and appropriate by reasonably prudent similar healthcare providers.

36. Petitioner alleged that Respondent committed medical malpractice by failing to advise J.K. of the contraindication of Levaquin and Tikosyn. Dr. Davis testified that the applicable standard of care required that an osteopathic physician advise a patient of the interactions between Levaquin and Tikosyn and provide any alternatives to taking Levaquin. Dr. Davis' expert testimony was credited. Petitioner proved this allegation.

37. Even had Levaquin not been contraindicated with Tikosyn, the standard of care required that Respondent advise J.K. of the additional risks, including death, involved in taking the two drugs together. The more compelling evidence demonstrates that Respondent did not advise J.K. of these risks, and Respondent's testimony to the contrary is rejected as not credible.

38. Petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that Respondent committed medical malpractice in violation of section 459.015(1)(x), as charged in the Administrative Complaint.

Penalty

39. Petitioner imposes penalties upon licensees consistent with disciplinary guidelines prescribed by Florida

Administrative Code Rule 64B15-19.002. See Parrot Heads, Inc. v. Dep't of Bus. & Prof'l Reg., 741 So. 2d 1231, 1233-34 (Fla. 5th DCA 1999).

40. Penalties in a licensure discipline case may not exceed those in effect at the time the violation was committed. Willner v. Dep't of Prof. Reg., Bd. of Med., 563 So. 2d 805, 806 (Fla. 1st DCA 1990), rev. denied, 576 So. 2d 295 (Fla. 1991).

41. At the time of the incidents, rule 64B15-19.002(28) provided that for a first-time offender, committing medical malpractice, as described in section 459.015(1)(x), the prescribed penalty range was "letter of concern, up to one (1) year probation and $1,000 fine to denial or revocation and $10,000 fine."

42. Rule 64B15-19.003 provided that, in applying the penalty guidelines, Petitioner may deviate from the penalties recommended above when there is evidence of aggravating and mitigating factors present in the individual case. Petitioner shall consider aggravating or mitigating factors as follows:

- (1) The danger to the public;
- (2) The length of time since the violations;
- (3) The number of times the licensee has been previously disciplined by the Board;
- (4) The length of time the licensee has practiced;
- (5) The actual damage, physical or otherwise, caused by the violation;

- (6) The deterrent effect of the penalty imposed;
- (7) The effect of penalty upon the licensee's livelihood;
- (8) Any effort of rehabilitation by the licensee;
- (9) The actual knowledge of the licensee pertaining to the violation;
- (10) Attempts by the licensee to correct or stop violations or refusal by licensee to correct or stop violations;
- (11) Related violations against licensee in another state, including findings of guilt or innocence, penalties imposed and penalties served;
- (12) The actual negligence of the licensee pertaining to any violations;
- (13) The penalties imposed for related offenses; and
- (14) The pecuniary gain to the licensee;
- (15) Any other relevant mitigating or aggravating factors under the circumstances. Any penalties imposed by the board may not exceed the maximum penalties set forth in Section 459.015(2), F.S.

43. A significant aggravating factor was that Respondent's actions exposed J.K. to potential serious injury or death. While there was potential for harm, J.K. did not suffer harm as he did not fill the prescription or take the Levaquin.

44. On the other hand, Respondent was not under any legal restraints at the time of the incident. There was no evidence of any prior disciplinary history in any jurisdiction over a 15-year successful career. Respondent received no special pecuniary benefit or self-gain from his actions. While these factors do not serve as a legal defense to the proven charges, they are relevant in determining an appropriate penalty.

45. Taken as a whole, the evidence presented does not warrant deviation in penalty from the disciplinary guidelines contained within the rule.

RECOMMENDATION

Based on the foregoing Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, it is RECOMMENDED that the Board of Osteopathic Medicine enter a Final Order as follows:

a) Finding that John Joseph Im, D.O., violated section 459.015(1)(x), by committing medical malpractice, as defined in section 456.50, as alleged in the Administrative Complaint;

b) Issue a letter of concern against Respondent's license to practice osteopathic medicine;

c) Requiring completion of a prescribing practices course;
and

d) Imposing an administrative fine of $2,500.

CLERK: Angel Sanders
DATE: DEC 27 2019

Department of Health, Petitioner v. John Joseph Im, D.O., Respondent.

DOAH Case no.: 19-4724PL
DOH Case No. 2018-07389

Written Exceptions to the Recommended Order

1. On December 16, 2019, Judge Yolanda Green, the Administrative Judge, found that Dr. John Im violated section 459.015 (1) (x), by committing medical malpractice, as defined in section 456.50, as alleged in the Administrative Complaint and recommended that the Board of Osteopathic Medicine issue a letter of concern against Dr. Im's license to practice osteopathic medicine. The Judge also recommended completion of a prescribing practice course and imposing an administrative fine of $2,500.
2. The standard of care requires an osteopathic physician treating a patient similar to patient J.K. to: (1) provide and document their justification for why Levaquin was the appropriate drug of choice; (2) note the patient's acknowledgment that there are interactions with Tikosyn; (3) ensure the patient understands the risks and benefits of combining Tikosyn and Levaquin; (4) explain to the patient that there are limited alternatives to Levaquin; and (5) provide the reason for prescribing a potentially dangerous drug. Which were all satisfied in the care of patient J.K.
3. There are time in the practice of medicine, especially in the treatment of pneumonia (the number 6 killer of Americans today) that patients with comorbidity such as patient J.K., Levaquin was the drug of choice, which I thoroughly explained to both the patient and his wife. During the face to face encounter, I explained that the potential drug to drug interaction between Levaquin and Tikosyn is extremely rare. (Exhibit)
4. I strongly advised, both the patient and his wife, that the benefits far outweighs the risks and that not taking the antibiotic can lead to serious injury and even death.
5. I also assured the patient and his wife that the pharmacist is an additional safety net and that pharmacist would call the doctor if she came across an absolute contraindication.
6. The medication Levaquin was dispensed by the pharmacist but was refused by the patient's wife.
7. When the patient's wife called asking for a different antibiotic, I explained to her for the second time that the alternative antibiotics would not cover sufficiently her husband's presentation based on the CT findings. It was noted in the H&P (exhibit) that the patient's wife became irate and abruptly ended the call.
8. The patient's wife displayed reckless behavior by refusing the recommended antibiotic and put her husband in harm's way.

9. The Department has the burden to prove the allegations in the Administrative Complaint by clear and convincing evidence. Judge Yolanda Green solely based her decision on the testimony of the patient's wife when the patient himself admitted that he was counseled by me on the benefits and risks of the medication prescribed.
10. An expert witness is a person who is permitted to testify at a trial because of special knowledge or proficiency in a particular field that is relevant to the case. During the trial, the expert witness testified that he has not worked in an outpatient setting, in particular an urgent care center, since 2001.
11. Judge Green's decision was solely based on patient's wife testimony when in fact it was proven beyond any reasonable doubt that the patient and patient's wife contradicted themselves on numerous statements.

PETITIONER'S RESPONSE TO RESPONDENT'S EXCEPTIONS TO THE RECOMMENDED ORDER

Petitioner, Department of Health, by and through the undersigned counsel, pursuant to Rule 28-106.217(3), Florida Administrative Code, hereby files this Response to Respondent's Exceptions to the Recommended Order. In support thereof, Petitioner states the following:

I. BACKGROUND

1. Respondent, John Joseph Im, is a licensed osteopathic physician in the State of Florida, having been issued license number OS 8729. Recommended Order, para. 2.

2. A formal administrative hearing of the instant matter was held November 7, 2019 in Lady Lake, Florida.

3. The administrative hearing was held to determine whether Respondent violated Section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes (2017) by committing medical malpractice as alleged in the Administrative Complaint. Recommended Order, p. 1-2.

4. On December 16, 2019, the presiding Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") entered her Recommended Order. The ALJ found that there was clear and convincing evidence that Respondent violated Section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes (2017) by committing medical malpractice as defined in Section 456.50 Florida Statutes, as alleged in the administrative complaint.

5. The ALJ recommended that the Board of Osteopathic Medicine enter a final order finding that Respondent violated Section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes by committing medical malpractice as defined in Section 456.50 Florida Statutes, as alleged in the administrative complaint, and impose discipline including the issuance of a letter of concern against Respondent's license to practice osteopathic medicine; requiring Respondent to complete a prescribing practices course; and imposing an administrative fine of $2,500. Recommended Order, p. 15.

6. On December 27, 2019, Respondent filed exceptions to the Recommended Order with the Board of Osteopathic Medicine.

II. APPLICABLE STANDARD OF REVIEW

7. The ALJ and the Board of Osteopathic Medicine ("Board") have distinct roles in formal administrative hearings.

8. It is the function of the ALJ to consider all of the evidence presented, resolve conflicts in the evidence, assess the credibility of witnesses, draw permissible inferences from the evidence, and complete a recommended order consisting of findings of fact, conclusions of law, and a recommended penalty. See, Section 120.57(1)(k), Florida Statutes (2017); Heifetz v. Dep't. of Bus. Regulation, 475 So. 2d 1277, 1281 (Fla. 1st DCA 1985) (citing State Beverage Dep't v. Ernal, Inc., 115 So. 2d 566 (Fla. 3d DCA 1959)); Goss v. District Sch. Bd. of St. John's Cty., 601 So. 2d 1232, 1234 (Fla. 5th DCA 1992); and Bejarano v. Dep't of Educ., Div. of Vocational Rehab., 901 So. 2d 891, 892 (Fla. 4th DCA 2005). If the evidence presented supports two inconsistent findings, it is the ALJ's role to decide the issue one way or the other. Heifetz, 475 So. 2d at 1281.

9. Parties may file exceptions to findings of fact and conclusions of law contained within the ALJ's recommended order. Section 120.57(1)(k), Florida Statutes (2017). Exceptions shall identify the disputed portion of the recommended order by page number or paragraph, shall identify the legal basis for the exception, and shall include any appropriate and specific citations to the record. Fla. Admin. Code R. 28-106.217(1) (2017).

10. The Board cannot reject or modify the ALJ's findings of fact unless it first determines from a review of the entire record, and states with particularity in the order, that the findings of fact were not based on competent substantial evidence or that the proceedings on which the findings were based did not comply with essential requirements of law. Section 120.57(1)(l), Florida Statutes (2017).

11. Competent evidence is evidence that is sufficiently relevant and material to the ultimate determination "that a reasonable mind would accept it as adequate to support the conclusion reached." City of Hialeah Gardens v. Miami Dade Charter Found., 857 So. 2d 202, 204 (Fla. 3rd DCA 2003) (citing DeGroot v. Sheffield, 95 So. 2d 912, 916 (Fla. 1957)). Substantial evidence is evidence that provides a factual basis from which a fact at issue may reasonably be inferred. Id.

12. The Board may only reject or modify an ALJ's conclusions of law and interpretations of administrative rules if the Board has substantive jurisdiction. See, e.g., Section 120.57(1)(l), Florida Statutes (2017); Barfield v. Dep't of Health, 805 So. 2d 1008 (Fla. 1st DCA 2001); Deep Lagoon Boat Club, Ltd. v. Sheridan, 784 So. 2d 1140 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2001). "Jurisdiction" has been interpreted to mean "administrative authority" or "substantive expertise." See Deep Lagoon Boat Club, Ltd., 784 So. 2d at 1142.

13. While the ALJ recommends interpretations of law and/or administrative rules, the Board has ultimate discretion over matters of substantive jurisdiction. However, the Board may only reject or modify the ALJ's conclusions of law if the Board:

- a. states with particularity its reasons for rejecting or modifying such conclusions of law or interpretation of administrative rule; and
- b. makes a finding that the substituted conclusions of law or interpretation of administrative rule is as reasonable or more reasonable than that which was rejected.

Section 120.57(1)(l), Florida Statutes (2017); Barfield, 805 So. 2d at 1011.

14. If a finding of fact in an ALJ's Recommended Order is improperly labeled, the label should be disregarded and the item treated as though it were properly labeled as a conclusion of law. Battaglia Props. v. Fla. Land & Adjudicatory Comm'n, 629 So. 2d 161, 168 (Fla. 5th DCA 1994).

III. PETITIONER'S RESPONSE TO RESPONDENT'S EXCEPTIONS

15. Rule 28-106.217(1), Florida Administrative Code, provides:

Parties may file exceptions to findings of fact and conclusions of law contained in recommended orders with the agency responsible for rendering final agency action within 15 days of entry of the recommended order except in proceedings conducted pursuant to Section 120.57(3), Florida Statutes. Exceptions shall identify the disputed portion of the recommended order by page number or paragraph, shall identify the legal basis for the exception, and shall include any appropriate and specific citations to the record. (emphasis added).

16. Furthermore, section 120.57(1)(k), Florida Statutes, provides in pertinent part:

The final order shall include an explicit ruling on each exception, but an agency need not rule on an exception that does not clearly identify the disputed portion of the recommended order by page number or paragraph, that does not identify the legal basis for the exception, or that does not include appropriate and specific citations to the record.

17. Respondent's exceptions do not provide a sufficient, specified framework which would allow the Department or the Board to properly or adequately rule on the issues in dispute.

18. Petitioner submits that all of Respondent's exceptions fail to specify a legal basis for the exceptions, and none of them contain appropriate or specific citations to the record.

19. Should this Board disagree with Petitioner's position, and wish to consider all of the exceptions, Petitioner has responded to each "exception" specifically below.

Paragraph One

20. Respondent's paragraph one is not an exception, and serves only to summarize the recommendation of the ALJ.

21. Petitioner respectfully requests the Board not rule on paragraph one of Respondent's exceptions, as no specific exception is noted or provided.

Paragraph Two

22. Respondent's paragraph two restates the standard of care found by the ALJ, and simply asserts that Respondent met the standard of care in his treatment of J.K.

23. Respondent's paragraph two contains no cites to the record, nor does it provide any legal basis for the argument that Respondent met the standard of care in his treatment of J.K.

24. Conclusions of law are within the purview of the ALJ, and Respondent's exception in paragraph two should be denied for that reason as well. Respondent did not state with particularity any reason why the Board should reject the ALJ's conclusion that he failed to meet the standard of care.

25. Petitioner respectfully requests the Board deny Respondent's exception in paragraph two, as no specific exception is noted or provided.

Paragraphs Three through Nine

26. Respondent's paragraphs three through nine are nothing but an attempt to relitigate his case. Respondent refers generally to the facts of the case, but provides no citations to specific pages or paragraphs with which he takes issue.

27. The lack of specificity of Respondent's exceptions forces Petitioner to speculate as to the exact portions of the Recommended Order to which Respondent takes exception. Such speculation prejudices Petitioner's ability to respond appropriately.

28. Petitioner contends these paragraphs do not comply with Rule 28-106.217, Florida Administrative Code, or Section 120.57(1)(k), Florida Statutes, and that the Board is not required to rule on those exceptions to the extent such exceptions make no particular page or paragraph reference.

29. Further, as discussed above, issues of credibility are within the purview of the ALJ and not of the Board. The findings of fact in this case are based on competent substantial evidence, and Respondent has provided no argument to the contrary.

30. Petitioner respectfully requests the Board deny Respondent's exceptions in paragraphs three through nine, as no specific exceptions are noted or provided.

Paragraph Ten

31. In paragraph ten of his exceptions, Respondent takes issue with Petitioner's expert witness. Respondent has failed to provide any citation to the record or legal basis for his argument, and Petitioner is therefore unable to meaningfully respond.

32. Respondent moved to Strike Petitioner's expert witness at the final hearing, however, the ALJ denied his motion and accepted the expert's testimony. It would be inappropriate for the Board to find that Petitioner's expert witness was not qualified to testify at the final hearing, as such evidentiary rulings are the ALJ's responsibility.

33. Petitioner respectfully requests the Board deny Respondent's exception in paragraph ten, as no specific exception is noted or provided.

Paragraph Eleven

34. Respondent claims that the ALJ based her decision solely on the testimony of K.K. However, he again fails to provide any citation to the record or legal basis for this assertion.

35. Furthermore, Respondent's assertion is patently false. The ALJ's decision was based on "the testimony and documentary evidence presented at hearing, the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses, and on the entire record of this proceeding." Recommended Order, pg. 3.

36. Petitioner respectfully requests the Board deny Respondent's exception in paragraph eleven, as no specific exception is noted or provided.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Petitioner respectfully urges the Board of Osteopathic Medicine to deny each of Respondent's Exceptions, and accept the ALJ's Recommended Order in its entirety.

Respectfully submitted,

2 THE COURT: We can go on the record.

3 Today is November 7th, it is approximately 4 9:34 a.m., and pursuant to notice we are here in the 5 case of Department of Health versus Dr. John Im,
6 Dr. Im, D.O., Division of Administrative Hearings
7 case number 19-4724PL.

8 I am Yolanda Green, the Administrative Law
9 Judge presiding over this matter. Would the parties
10 please enter an appearance.

11 MS. EDWARDS: Virginia Edwards with Florida
12 Department of Health.

13 MR. WALKER: William Walker with Florida
14 Department of Health.

15 DR. IM: Dr. John Im.

16 THE COURT: Thank you.

17 Will either party be ordering a copy of the 18 transcript today?

19 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor, the Department
20 will be ordering a copy.

21 THE COURT: Thank you.

22 Dr. Im, am I correct in that you're still not 23 represented by counsel?

24 DR. IM: Correct.

25 THE COURT: So a couple of these comments

1 will be directed to you, and you may have heard
2 these before during a previous motion hearing. But
3 as it relates to this particular proceeding I wear
4 two different hats. So I serve as fact-finder and I
5 also serve as judge and rule on any objections. As 6 it relates to any admission of evidence, I will make 7 those ultimate decisions. I can answer any 8 questions regarding the procedure, how things will 9 work, how things will flow, how they will go
10 throughout the hearing. I cannot advise you
11 regarding the merits of the case. But, again, if 12 you have questions please just let me know and then 13 I'll answer those questions as we proceed through 14 the proceeding.

15 And ultimately what will happen is I will 16 enter a recommended order which will be my 17 recommendation of the facts, my recommendations
18 regarding the conclusions of law, as well as my 19 recommendations regarding the ultimate resolution of 20 this case. And then, of course, the case will go
21 back to the Department and then they will ultimately 22 enter through, of course, the Board of Osteopathic
23 Medicine, enter a final order. We'll talk a little 24 bit more about that as we go further into those and,
25 of course, those rights will be included in the

1 recommended order.

2 I know that the Department provided -- or 3 just provided a binder with all of their exhibits.
4 Do you have a copy of your exhibits?

5 DR. IM: Yes. Do I have extra copies? I
6 submitted it prior to coming here. I didn't know I
7 was supposed to bring extra copies today.

8 THE COURT: Let me ask the Department. Have
9 you received a copy of Dr. Im's exhibits?

10 MS. EDWARDS: We printed a copy because he 11 was pro se.

12 THE COURT: Thank you.

13 Dr. Im, during this case, of course, the 14 Department having the burden of proof they will 15 present their case first, they will present their 16 evidence. You'll have an opportunity to ask 17 questions regarding -- ask questions of your 18 witnesses, as well as ask questions regarding the 19 evidence, or even object to the evidence that's 20 being offered in the hearing today. Likewise, the 21 Department will have also the opportunity to --
22 whether it be cross-examine any witnesses that you
23 offer, you, if you do decide to testify, and also 24 regarding any exhibits that you intend to offer.
25 Okay?

1           Do you have any questions about anything that
2 I've explained thus far?

3           DR. IM: No, it's very clear.

4           THE COURT: Okay. So regarding the issue in 5 this case, pursuant to the notice we are here to 6 determine whether the respondent failed to meet the 7 prevailing professional standard of care by failing
8 to counsel J.K. -- Is it J.K.? -- requesting the 9 risk of or alternative to using Levaquin and Tikosyn
10 in violation of section 459.015(1)(x) of the Florida
11 statutes; and, if so, what sanction is appropriate.

12           Department, is that the issue as you see it?

13           MS. EDWARDS: Yes, your Honor.

14           THE COURT: And Dr. Im?

15           DR. IM: Yes.

16           THE COURT: Thank you.

17           And, again, the Department has the burden of 18 proof and as the burden of proof the allegations
19 that -- excuse me -- to prove this case by clear and 20 convincing evidence.

21           Department, you understand that as being your 22 burden?

23           MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

24           THE COURT: Dr. Im, do you have any questions
25 about the burden?

1 DR. IM: No, I do not.

2 THE COURT: Okay. So a couple things I'm
3 going to put on the record, so if you have any 4 questions feel free to let me know.

5 But regarding evidence, the procedural rules
6 will be governed by the Division of Administrative 7 Hearings Uniform Rules of Procedure, which are found
8 in Rule 28-106 of the Florida Administrative Code,
9 Chapter 120 and as modified by the Florida Rules of 10 Evidence as modified by those two different rules.
11 Any hearsay evidence may be used as a supplement or 12 to explain other evidence, but will not be 13 sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it
14 would be admissible over objection of the Court. If 15 you have any objections regarding hearsay you may 16 note it for the record and I will address those 17 objections before that evidence is admitted, or not,
18 given -- depending upon the case.

19 As far as any other evidence that is 20 relevant, I intend to admit evidence that's 21 relevant. However, any irrelevant or immaterial,
22 repetitious or cumulative evidence will not be
23 admitted.

24 Any questions from the Department?

25 MS. EDWARDS: No.

1 DR. IM: No.

2 THE COURT: So would the parties wish to
3 invoke the rule of sequestration at this time?
4 Dr. Im -- the Department likely knows what I am
5 referring to, but in general the rule of 6 sequestration is any witnesses who will be 7 testifying in the hearing will be asked to be
8 excluded from hearing testimony of other witnesses.
9 And so at this time either party, if they wish to 10 invoke the rule -- I don't see that you have any 11 other witnesses, Dr. Im, so this question is more
12 directed to you.

13 DR. IM: Directed to me?

14 THE COURT: Yes.

15 DR. IM: I don't need sequestration.

16 THE COURT: So you're fine with witnesses
17 remaining in the room during the entire proceedings?

18 DR. IM: I am, yes.

19 THE COURT: Perfect.

20 Are there any preliminary matters that we 21 need to address before we begin?

22 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: Okay. Ms. Edwards.

24 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you. Based on the order
25 that came out, I believe two days ago, regarding the

1 witnesses, we will still be attempting to enter that 2 into evidence. However, we did secure a room in the 3 hotel where they were with the prior engagement,
4 there's a court reporter and we have a phone number
5 that we can call into. The witnesses are not there
6 as evidence in their prior witness letters, which is 7 also Petitioner's Exhibit N, that they did have a
8 prior engagement. But that room is available and 9 they were advised to get in there -- that they would 10 be available for the hearing after that engagement,
11 if absolutely necessary. And so we wanted you to be 12 aware that the Court Reporter verified she is there
13 and we can call in a conference number if Your Honor
14 chooses to allow that.

15 THE COURT: Okay. What time is the 16 engagement?

17 MS. EDWARDS: I am not sure. They were 18 unable to provide me the exact time as it is an 19 awards ceremony in honor of her recently deceased
20 brother, and there wasn't a timeframe on it. I know
21 that it started this morning, and Wisconsin is one
22 hour behind. But we did have the room available
23 from 8:00 a.m. till 5:00 p.m., Wisconsin time, which 24 would be 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. our time.

25 THE COURT: Thank you. Is there a way for

1 you to contact the witnesses to determine what time
2 they would be available, so if they need to we can
3 schedule a specific time for that?

4 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, your Honor. She is
5 supposed to send me an email as soon as it's over.
6 She does not know -- as of this morning I received
7 an email before I came into court and she advised
8 she did not know the time, but she thought it would 9 be before lunch.

10 THE COURT: Great. And so are you referring 11 to potentially offering the depositions in lieu of 12 live testimony today?

13 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Let's go ahead and take that up
15 before we begin.

16 Dr. Im, I know that you filed a motion for 17 sanctions, and some of the argument that was 18 presented during the teleconference on that motion.
19 I am, of course, fully aware and I did take note of 20 those things.

21 But what I will do is give the parties
22 another opportunity to present argument on a motion
23 for sanctions and then, of course, make a ruling.
24 And specifically we're speaking to the depositions
25 in lieu of live testimony and any objections to

1 those needed.

2 So, Dr. Im, I will let you begin and then, of 3 course, Ms. Edwards, I'll let you follow up.

4 Dr. Im, go ahead.

5 DR. IM: So my first question on the record
6 is if I'm hearing it correctly, the case is, for me,
7 very dependent on my ability to cross-examine 8 Mrs. K.K., especially, because she was the one that 9 was doing the majority of the complaining, written
10 and verbal format. So if I'm hearing the Department
11 correctly, she may or she may not be able to 12 testify -- or give me an opportunity to 13 cross-examine. Are you saying that I will get an 14 opportunity to cross-examine?

15 THE COURT: Dr. Im, of course any questions
16 you have you can direct those to me and I'll answer
17 that question. The witness is currently under 18 subpoena, and so she is -- she's under subpoena,
19 she's required to attend, if she does not attend
20 we'll cross that bridge once we get there.

21 As of now, are there questions that you
22 desired to ask Ms. K.K. and were not able to ask
23 during the deposition?

24 DR. IM: Yes, absolutely.

25 THE COURT: Are those questions related to

1 the issue as I presented it today?

2 DR. IM: Absolutely. Yes.

3 THE COURT: Okay. Is there any particular
4 reason why you weren't able to ask those questions?

5 DR. IM: Well, for me, I think going into it
6 I had all the questions written down and then I
7 think -- Mr. J.K. was more straightforward, where 8 Mrs. K.K., for whatever reason, I guess it may be 9 personality conflict, even over the phone. And then
10 when Ms. Virginia Edwards objected, quite often it
11 kind of threw me off -- the procedure, I guess --
12 because I'm not used to that.

13 And so there were times -- after I got the 14 copy of the deposition I read it and I realized
15 there were a good number of questions that I would 16 like to have asked that was pertinent to the two 17 visits, March 15th of 2018 and March 16th, 2018 that 18 I feel that the deposition would not suffice without 19 the actual live testimony of the main plaintiffs 20 here, and without me being able to cross-examine 21 them with particulars.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Is that all you would like
23 to offer regarding --

24 DR. IM: For Mr. and Mrs. K.K.?

25 THE COURT: Yes.

1 DR. IM: Yes. The questions, I can't ask
2 right now, so... But I do have a question for the 3 witness when we get to that.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Ms. Edwards, would you
5 like to respond?

6 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor.

7 During the deposition respondent asked
8 several questions, we did object multiple times on 9 the record, but we do believe that our objections
10 were appropriate. There were several asked and 11 answered questions, the respondent did say he chose 12 not to continue asking those questions during the 13 deposition. A lot of critical issues did come out
14 in the questioning. And we feel that a lot of the 15 information on his cross-examination did come out.
16 We understand that he may have additional questions,
17 but at no time was he limited from not asking those 18 questions during deposition.

19 Our direct examination of both witnesses was 20 roughly 30 minutes per witness and his 21 cross-examination was over an hour, I believe, for 22 each one. So we did give him leeway and yes, Your 23 Honor, we did object appropriately as we intended to 24 offer these in lieu of live, but we do feel that he 25 had sufficient time to cross-examine each witness as

1 it related to those issues directly related to the 2 case.

3 Again, this is a very straightforward issue,
4 there's not a lot of facts in dispute. It's whether 5 or not they received risks -- counseling on risks or 6 alternatives to the medications prescribed, and 7 those issues were addressed during both depositions.

8 Further, it sounds based on what he's saying
9 today in the prior motions. There were issue with 10 J.K., it's more so K.K. So we would ask that J.K.'s
11 be accepted. If you are going to consider not 12 accepting both, we would ask that at least J.K.'s be 13 accepted, and that if we need to we can accept K.K.
14 and maybe limit questioning, if he feels like they
15 are absolutely relevant questions and Your Honor
16 believes he needs to ask a few more that we would 17 limit the question to a very limited number of 18 cross-examination questions.

19 THE COURT: Okay.

20 DR. IM: May I ask a question, or --

21 THE COURT: Well, first, let me ask you this
22 question: Do you have any objection to using J.K.'s
23 deposition being accepted in lieu of live testimony?

24 DR. IM: Procedure-wise, my question would 25 be: If it gets accepted I don't get to 1 cross-examine.

2 THE COURT: J.K.

3 DR. IM: Mr. J.K.

4 THE COURT: Right.

5 DR. IM: If I don't get to cross-examine
6 Mr. J.K., then whatever was in the deposition,
7 written form, would be submitted as evidence? I do
8 not have a problem with that, if that's the
9 question.

10 But my issue here would be she states that I 11 had an opportunity to ask most of my questions, but 12 she never got to see my questions or read my 13 questions ahead of time. And there were many times
14 where she was leading, in my opinion. The 15 leading -- leading of the plaintiff, of both J.K.
16 and K.K., I got the impression that not only through 17 the objections but through -- Mrs. K.K. especially 18 refused to answer a good number of questions, and 19 Ms. Edwards never intervened to try to ask her to 20 answer.

21 So there were questions that I was going to 22 ask her today in front of you, Your Honor, where I
23 thought maybe she would be able to -- or she would 24 be ordered or directed to answer those questions
25 that were pertinent to the case, which is her word

1 versus my word in many ways.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 So if I understand you correctly, you would 4 have no objection to the admission of
5 Patient J.K.'s testimony in lieu of live testimony.
6 Is that correct?

7 DR. IM: That's correct.

8 THE COURT: And I do understand your concerns
9 regarding Patient J.K.'s testimony. And based on 10 your concerns and my review of the transcript, it
11 would be most appropriate for Patient J.K. to 12 present testimony today, as live as possible due to,
13 of course, it's by phone, which I did permit --
14 excuse me -- I did permit Patient K.K. to appear by 15 telephone.

16 So with that said, Patient J.K.'s deposition 17 in lieu of live testimony will be admitted into
18 evidence.

19 And as it relates to Patient K.K., I do
20 understand that K.K. is in Wisconsin, that's a 21 distance over a hundred miles, and that's a hundred 22 miles -- over a hundred miles from the location of 23 this hearing. And that they will not be returning 24 to this location, this area in The Villages, until 25 January.

1           But one of the concerns that I saw in the --
2           rather with the motion, also with the arguments
3           presented by Dr. Im, and then from my review of the 4           transcript that it did appear that Dr. Im may have
5           had some questions that he would have wanted to ask
6           the witness, albeit this is not his chosen field.
7           And so we do understand that Dr. Im is proceeding
8           pro se. However, there are still some questions
9           that seemed to me, and based on his argument seems
10          to me specifically regarding the deposition
11          transcript, and based on his argument that there are 12          questions that he would have wanted to ask the 13          witness.

14                 So I'll point out specifically there are 15          areas where the witness declined to answer, there
16          were numerous questions on the basis of objection
17          raised by the Department's counsel, which appeared 18          based on the transcript impacted and had influence
19          on the witness' desire to answer certain questions, 20          and potentially influence her ability to --
21          influence the respondent's ability to obtain the 22          answers to those questions.

23                 Now, I don't believe that Department's 24          counsel had any intent to do such a thing, I don't
25          think that there was bad faith in the objections,

1 their objections were objections to form. While
2 some of those objections did get very close to the 3 line of causing some interference, it did not cross
4 that line of bad faith and rise to the level where 5 sanctions would be appropriate.

6 But with that said, based on the arguments
7 from the respondent, it is reasonable to have the 8 witnesses' live testimony so that the respondent is 9 able to ask questions that it deems necessary to 10 defend the allegations against him.

11 With that said, motion for sanctions is 12 denied. But the deposition in lieu of live
13 testimony will not be accepted today, we will hear
14 the live testimony of Patient K.K.

15 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor.

16 So to clarify, if K.K. is not going to come
17 in at all in deposition then we are able to question
18 her live today?

19 THE COURT: Correct.

20 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor.

21 And for the deposition of J.K., can we go
22 ahead and enter that into evidence as Petitioner's
23 Exhibit 1?

24 THE COURT: It's been admitted, but we'll
25 mark it as Petitioner's Exhibit 1.

1 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you. Just for
2 clarification on the record.

3 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 1 received in
4 evidence.)

5 MS. EDWARDS: One more question, are we
6 entering the transcript alone, or would you like the 7 associated video, as well?

8 THE COURT: If the video is a part of the 9 entire transcript, then both should be in. So both 10 should be in.

11 MS. EDWARDS: We have the videos as well.
12 Doctor, did you receive those in the mail?

13 DR. IM: Yes, I did.

14 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, if I may approach
15 and provide those.

16 THE COURT: Yes, that's fine. Thank you very 17 much.

18 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, if we may.

19 THE COURT: Yes.

20 MS. EDWARDS: I know that the deposition for 21 K.K. is not coming in based on your ruling. We 22 would like to proffer it just for the record.

23 THE COURT: Okay. The written transcript as 24 well as the video?

25 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

3 THE COURT: Now, if K.K. testifies -- are you
4 still asking for K.K. to testify? Or are you asking
5 that that not be the case and you just proffer?

6 MS. EDWARDS: Can I have one moment to think
7 about that?

8 THE COURT: Yes. You can go ahead.

9 While you're thinking about that, I'm just 10 going to quickly streamline the record. Regarding 11 Petitioner's Exhibit 1, that's the deposition
12 transcript and video of Patient J.K., and as it
13 relates to that particular exhibit it is admitted
14 with no objection. Is that correct?

15 DR. IM: No objection.

16 THE COURT: Thank you.

17 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor. At this 18 time we would not like to proffer. If for some 19 reason K.K. is not available to testify at that time 20 we'll address that issue, if that is okay with the 21 Court.

22 THE COURT: Perfect. Absolutely.

23 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you very much,
24 Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: No, thank you.

1           Dr. Im, I just want to make sure I clarify
2           how this will work as it relates to Patient K.K.
3           The reason the depositions are not being accepted at 4           this time is because there's a question as to 5           whether you were able to fully develop the testimony
6           of Patient K.K., which is important, of course,
7           through this proceeding as she is a named witness
8           and pretty much at the center of the interaction
9           between yourself and as it related to the treatment
10          provided to Patient J.K. So it is reasonable to 11          have her witness live, and -- so that you can 12          develop that testimony. But that is the only reason
13          that it's being -- that she will be testifying live, 14          to develop that testimony as it relates to the 15          treatment at issue today.

16                 So we have addressed the motion for sanctions
17                 and depositions in lieu -- as it relates to the 18                 deposition in lieu of live testimony.

19                 I know that there's a motion for official 20                 recognition pending. Dr. Im, do you have any 21                 objections to that motion for official recognition?

22                 DR. IM: No, I do not.

23                 THE COURT: Okay. I will point out that the 24                 motion for official recognition, of course, is 25                 pretty standard as it relates to the Uniform Rules

1 and Rules of Evidence. I'll point out that the 2 disciplinary guidelines that would apply in this
3 case would be the guidelines that were in existence
4 at the time in which the incident occurred, which 5 was March 16th of -- is it 2017 or 2018?

6 MS. EDWARDS: 2018.

7 THE COURT: With that said, it would be the 8 disciplinary guidelines that were in effect at that 9 time. The copy that was attached to the motion was 10 for August of 2018, and so the -- of course the 11 disciplinary guidelines that were in effect at the 12 time, those would be the ones that were officially 13 recognized, and I believe those are from a different 14 date. So the disciplinary guidelines that apply in 15 this case are officially recognized. But, of 16 course, the ones that were attached to the motion
17 were not the correct -- they weren't the most 18 updated guidelines.

19 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

20 THE COURT: So that motion is granted with a 21 modification that they would be the guidelines that 22 were in effect.

23 Are there any other preliminary matters that
24 we need to address before we begin?

25 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor, just one more.

1 If patient has allegations to maintain
2 confidentiality, we would like to refer to the 3 patient and the wife, because the wife is -- has the 4 same last name -- as their initials. And we would 5 ask that the Court's permission for the 6 court reporter to redact if anyone uses their name.

7 Further, there were some exhibits submitted
8 by the respondent that were not redacted, and we ask
9 that they either be maintained for confidentiality
10 or that redacted copies be provided after the trial
11 to be attached to a copy of the transcript.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you very much.

13 Madam Court Reporter, did you hear all that?

14 THE REPORTER: I did.

15 THE COURT: It's possible that the patient
16 will say her name, and we'll try to refrain from 17 using her name, and most of the time we'll refer to 18 K.K., so hopefully that won't get too confusing.

19 All right. Anything else that we need to 20 address, Dr. Im?

21 DR. IM: Not at this time.

22 THE COURT: All right. Would either party
23 wish to make an opening statement?

24 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor, just a brief
25 one.

1 THE COURT: You may go ahead.

2 OPENING

3 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor. May it
4 please the Court.

5 Your Honor, we are here today because the 6 Department filed a one-count administrative 7 complaint against Dr. Im. The complaint alleges
8 respondent violated section 459.015(1)(x) Florida
9 Statutes by committing medical malpractice, by 10 failing to meet the prevailing professional standard
11 of care in his care and treatment of Patient J.K.

12 Many of the facts alleged in the 13 administrative complaint are not in dispute today.

14 The respondent's facility provided treatment
15 to Patient J.K. over a two-day period. And 16 Patient J.K. was currently prescribed Tikosyn, also 17 known as dofetilide. Based on his diagnosis of 18 March 16th, 2018 respondent prescribed Patient J.K.
19 Levaquin.

20 The facts that are in dispute are whether 21 respondent failed to counsel Patient J.K. on the 22 risks of or alternatives to using Levaquin in 23 conjunction with Tikosyn, two medications that are 24 contraindicated, and; whether a reasonably prudent
25 osteopathic physician would have provided the risks

1 or alternative to Patient J.K.

2 The evidence will demonstrate that K.K.,
3 Patient J.K.'s wife attempted to get alternatives to 4 the Levaquin from respondent after she was advised
5 by both the Publix pharmacy and the Madison
6 Wisconsin VA not to take the medications as they 7 were contraindicated, but no alternatives were
8 provided.

9 The Department believes that it will prove 10 the allegations to the administrative complaint by 11 clear and convincing evidence.

12 Thank you very much.

13 THE COURT: Thank you.

14 Dr. Im, would you like to make an opening
15 statement at this time?

16 DR. IM: Sure, I didn't have one
17 prepared but -- mine won't sound as formal.

18 THE COURT: That's fine. Trust me, we're 19 pretty informal here.

20 DR. IM: I think the issue here is the 21 Department of Health has the burden of proof. There
22 are two main areas of contradictions between myself
23 and Mrs. K.K. I did -- clearly I have a protocol
24 that I follow -- I've been practicing medicine since 25 2002, post-residency emergency medicine from 1999 to 1 2002.

2 I was trained well and to follow the protocol
3 to document correctly when there are addendums after 4 official reports, et cetera, lab results, go over 5 everything with the patient, and never break the 6 protocol.

7 And when you have a difficult patient or a
8 patient's family member, especially -- especially 9 when I was doing pediatric emergency medicine in 10 St. Joseph's in the past in New Jersey, I was 11 trained very well to understand sometimes it's not 12 the patient but it's going to be the patient's
13 family.

14 When I realized that a patient's wife was 15 going to be challenging in the room on the 16th,
16 March 16th -- it was after the fact that me going
17 over everything with the patient, Mr. J.K. And her
18 final question when I said, are there any questions,
19 I usually turn to the significant other after I go
20 over everything with the patient, because my 21 relationship -- the doctor/patient relationship is 22 with the patient first and foremost. And I always 23 allow significant others, I always ask, how are you
24 related to the patient? If they're not within the 25 primary family sometimes I will ask them to step out

1 as I go over very -- sometimes very serious and very
2 lots of times bad news.

3 So during my resident training there was a
4 lot of medical/legal aspects that we were taught
5 during our training years. And so my opening
6 statement would be the Department of Health has two 7 things that they need to prove today, which is that
8 I did not go over the results -- I'm sorry. I did
9 not go over the benefits and risks of using Levaquin
10 with Tikosyn. And, two, that I fell below the 11 standard of care for other physicians in my 12 specialty, I think that's what Dr. Anthony Davis,
13 their expert witness. I think after today, I
14 hopefully get to cross-examine Mrs. K.K. After I
15 get to cross-examine the expert witness I think it
16 will be clear, Your Honor, that I not only met the 17 standard, but I went above and beyond the standard
18 of care in explaining both the risks.

19 And then when Mrs. K.K. was upset and asked 20 for an alternative, I explained to her why the 21 alternatives would not be safe. And that the 22 alternatives would not cover the bacteria -- the 23 bacterias that's in question based on the CT
24 findings.

25 So that would be my opening statement.

1 THE COURT: Thank you.

2 Department, are you ready to present your
3 first witness?

4 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, we would like to 5 enter some exhibits prior to calling the first
6 witness, if that's all right with the Court.

7 THE COURT: Okay. Are those exhibits in the 8 notebook that you provided?

9 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: And Dr. Im has a copy?

11 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: Okay. You can begin with the 13 exhibits you'd like to offer.

14 MS. EDWARDS: At this time the Department
15 would like to offer Petitioner's proposed Exhibit A,
16 the patient records for Patient J.K. for the two-day
17 treatment period at Exceptional Urgent Care into 18 evidence as Petitioner's Exhibit 1.

19 THE COURT: Okay.

20 MS. EDWARDS: Those are found at tab one.

21 THE COURT: Dr. Im, do you have any
22 objections?

23 DR. IM: Tab one, let me see... No
24 objections, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Thank you.

1 MS. EDWARDS: I apologize, would that be
2 Exhibit 2, as we already entered the depos as 3 Exhibit 1? It would be -- tab one in our Exhibit A,
4 but as we already entered the deposition as 5 Exhibit 1, would this be Exhibit 2, for the record?

6 THE COURT: So are you changing all of your 7 exhibit numbers, or just want to go back to the 8 number that you offered for J.K.? Or do we want to 9 just change the number for J.K. back to the 10 original?

11 MS. EDWARDS: We have J.K. as Exhibit E and F
12 in the notebook, and we entered those together as 13 Exhibit 1. So do we want to change the numbering 14 and change them numerically from this point on as 15 they're entered in? However Your Honor would 16 prefer, whatever is the easiest for you.

17 THE COURT: Okay. So before I accept
18 Exhibit 1, these records are hearsay, they -- are 19 you offering a witness with which these records will 20 come through?

21 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, we would like to --
22 excuse me. The deposition of the respondent, which 23 is Exhibit M, through his testimony, pages 20 and 23
24 of that, he verified that these are business records
25 that are kept in the ordinary conduct of the

1 business, therefore his testimony and admission on
2 there would authenticate those records.

3 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im?

4 DR. IM: Yes, I have no objection to that.

5 THE COURT: Okay. So the patient records
6 from the respondent -- that's pages one through 7 nine.

8 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor, of tab one.

9 THE COURT: -- are being offered as one
10 exhibit?

11 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: And then I also see directly
13 after that another set of records.

14 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor, that would be 15 a separate -- those were -- if you'd like me to 16 clarify. Those were records that were provided to 17 us from the patient, and some slight differences
18 between the two, that's why we have them as two 19 separate exhibits. But the first one is the one
20 that was authenticated in full by the respondent
21 during his deposition testimony.

22 DR. IM: I'm a little confused. Are you
23 saying --

24 THE COURT: Just a second, Dr. Im.

25 DR. IM: I'm sorry.

1           THE COURT:  If you could clarify why we're
2 offering two different sets of records and there's
3 not a fraud allegation.

4           MS. EDWARDS:  Based on the second set of 5 records there was some differences in the diagnosis
6 code listed between one and two, which may have an 7 effect on the medications prescribed.  But the 8 Department had that in there as the records that the 9 patient had seen and received, and those were the 10 records that they used to refer to as those are the 11 records they had seen, but the tab one of the 12 records that were provided from the respondent and 13 verified by the respondent during his deposition.
14 So those are the ones that we're entering at this
15 time.

16           We had the second ones, as well.  Again, very 17 minor differences.  Purely just the diagnosis code
18 and the signatures are the only differences between 19 the two sets of records.

20           So the Department would not be opposed to the 21 second set not coming in at this time.

22           THE COURT:  Okay.

23           MS. EDWARDS:  Just looking to enter the first 24 set.

25           THE COURT:  Okay.  So the patient records

1 from the respondent are Exceptional Urgent Care
2 Center, pages one through nine, are admitted as 3 Exhibit 2. That's Petitioner's Exhibit 2.

4 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

5 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 2 received in
6 evidence.)

7 THE COURT: And the next exhibit you would
8 like to offer, Department?

9 MS. EDWARDS: We would like to offer in 10 Exhibit G, Petitioner's proposed Exhibit G. That is 11 in tab six -- sorry, tab seven. This is a business
12 record from the Publix pharmacy. We would like to 13 enter this into evidence as Petitioner's Exhibit 3.

14 THE COURT: Dr. Im, do you have any
15 objections?

16 DR. IM: No, I've seen those. I have copies
17 of those. No objection.

18 THE COURT: Okay. The records from Publix
19 are admitted as Exhibit No. 3.

20 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 3 received in
21 evidence.)

22 DR. IM: Maybe I should bring to your
23 attention. The pharmacist that's in question, there
24 was a deposition set up for her -- she's not listed
25 as a witness today, but she did not show up to the

1 deposition. I don't know if you were aware of that,
2 since we're talking about Publix pharmacy. I was
3 able to trace down the name of the pharmacist,
4 Ms. Virginia Edwards set up a deposition for the 5 pharmacist and she was a no-show.

6 THE COURT: That's noted for the record and I
7 will take that into consideration when considering
8 this particular exhibit, and that is Exhibit No. 3.

9 Now, there are two sets of records for 10 Publix.

11 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. We would like
12 to go ahead and enter -- Petitioner's proposed 13 Exhibit H, which is a business record that came 14 separate from Publix certified as -- these are notes
15 from the pharmacy section. Again, it's a properly 16 authenticated business record under 90.803(6), into 17 evidence as Petitioner's Exhibit 4. That is tab
18 eight, Dr. Im.

19 DR. IM: Tab eight?

20 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, sir.

21 THE REPORTER: Eight or A?

22 MS. EDWARDS: Eight.

23 DR. IM: Eight. Sorry. No objections,
24 Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Exhibit 4 is admitted at

1 this time.

2 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 4 received in
3 evidence.)

4 THE COURT: Any other exhibits, Ms. Edwards?

5 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. The
6 Department would like to offer Petitioner's proposed
7 Exhibit I as a business record from the Wisconsin VA
8 into evidence as Petitioner's Exhibit 5. And this 9 is also authenticated under 90.803 as well as 10 90.802, which was noted in the notice of intent to 11 admit business records.

12 THE COURT: Just one moment.

13 Just very quickly, regarding the exhibits
14 that are being offered, specifically the records,
15 the patient's name is redacted which, of course, I
16 understand that relates to the record being -- or in 17 the event that there's a public records request.
18 However, I can't verify that this is indeed the 19 patient with regard to.

20 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor, I have 21 original copies, as well, if the Court would like to 22 review, we wanted to redact to maintain patient
23 confidentiality. If you would like, I have the 24 originals if you would like me to approach to 25 verify.

1 THE COURT: Yes, ma'am.

2 MS. EDWARDS: Just a moment. Let me get them
3 out.

4 Would you prefer I show Dr. Im and then
5 approach? Or would you like to see them?

6 THE COURT: The appropriate thing would be to 7 show Dr. Im before you show me.

8 DR. IM: No problem.

9 MS. EDWARDS: May I approach, Your Honor?

10 THE COURT: Yes.

11 MS. EDWARDS: These are all of them.

12 THE COURT: Thank you.

13 Ms. Edwards, on the screenshot of the 14 pharmacy notes, can you show me where it shows that 15 this relates to Patient J.K.?

16 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. May I
17 approach?

18 THE COURT: Yes.

19 MS. EDWARDS: It looks like it's cut off,
20 unfortunately. Unfortunately the second page
21 doesn't show it, only the first page shows it, and 22 this was the original document that I received from 23 Publix with the name on the front. The respondent
24 is -- has a copy of this, as well. It's not a clear
25 copy, but that copy is the same as this and it has a

1 name up here. It appears to have been cut off on
2 this copy that Publix sent to us.

3 THE COURT: When you say up here you're
4 referring to the top corner of the screenshot?

5 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: So for now, based on the fact
7 that I don't see anything on this, what you
8 provided, the screenshot that you provided that 9 shows that it relates to Patient J.K., I can't admit
10 it at this time because it's not clear that it's 11 related to this proceeding, or even the patient in 12 this case. However, you know, depending on what 13 Dr. Im offers, of course we can address that at this 14 time. But as it relates to this particular exhibit
15 that I have in front of me I'm going to -- I can't 16 admit it because it doesn't have anything related to 17 this witness, to that particular patient.

18 MS. EDWARDS: May I take a look one more
19 time, Your Honor?

20 THE COURT: And without that I wouldn't be 21 able to admit it because it wouldn't be relevant to 22 these proceedings.

23 MS. EDWARDS: I'm showing the judge a copy of 24 the redacted one. See up here where we have it
25 redacted. This is a copy that we mailed -- right

1 here (indicating), I can barely see it. If you look
2 right here, his name's half cut off, but that's
3 where his name is. I apologize, it's very difficult
4 to read.

5 THE COURT: I understand. And I know you
6 would like this to come in, but it's just not clear.
7 It's not a clear record of -- showing that it is for 8 Patient J.K., so I can't admit this at this time.
9 If you do have a better copy of it or something that 10 specifically states it is for the patient, that 11 would be different. But based on what I have before
12 me I can't admit it because, again, there's no
13 indication that it relates to Patient J.K., and as a 14 result there's no indication that it's relevant to 15 this case.

16 Of course, the potential that it is related
17 to a different patient would be, of course, a
18 concern, as well.

19 So I'm going to exclude the pharmacy notes.

20 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, if we may, may I
21 proffer that exhibit?

22 THE COURT: Yes, you may proffer the exhibit.

23 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Subject to all of the concerns
25 related to this particular exhibit and even the

1 potential that it's related to another patient that
2 is not at issue in this proceeding.

3 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

4 THE COURT: Going to give you the other
5 original copies that you gave me.

6 DR. IM: Your Honor, I have a procedural
7 question.

8 THE COURT: Yes.

9 DR. IM: She said proffer, can you explain
10 that in English?

11 THE COURT: It's not admitted into evidence,
12 but they can proffer it for potentially appellate 13 purposes. But as far as this proceeding I will not 14 consider it. It's as if it did not exist for my 15 consideration, if that helps.

16 DR. IM: Yes, it does.

17 THE COURT: Okay. Sorry, Ms. Edwards, I'll
18 give you this copy back, too.

19 Any other exhibits that you would like to 20 offer?

21 MS. EDWARDS: Was the Veterans Affairs, was 22 that accepted in, Your Honor?

23 THE COURT: No, it has not been. You're 24 showing me a copy with the unredacted?

25 MS. EDWARDS: Yes. Did you need to see it

1 again?

2 DR. IM: No, I don't.

3 THE COURT: Dr. Im, did I ask you if you
4 objected to that cardiology note as Petitioner's
5 Exhibit 5?

6 DR. IM: No objection, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Okay. Petitioner's Exhibit 5 is
8 admitted.

9 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 5 received in
10 evidence.)

11 THE COURT: Any other exhibits?

12 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. We would like
13 to offer proposed Exhibit K, which is tab 11. This 14 is the respondent's completed interrogatories, and 15 enter those as admission by party opponent as 16 Petitioner's Exhibit 6.

17 THE COURT: Dr. Im, any objection?

18 MS. EDWARDS: Tab 11.

19 DR. IM: No objection.

20 THE COURT: Okay. Petitioner's Exhibit 6 is
21 admitted.

22 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 6 received in
23 evidence.)

24 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, any other exhibits?

25 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. The

1 Department would like to offer Petitioner's proposed
2 Exhibit K, which is the respondent's completed
3 admissions, as admission by a party opponent into 4 evidence as Petitioner's Exhibit 7. Sorry, L. And 5 that is at tab 12.

6 THE COURT: Is there a reason that there are 7 exhibits marked with alphanumeric characters and 8 then there are tabs that are different?

9 MS. EDWARDS: Unfortunately, Your Honor,
10 there's -- in full disclosure, we ran out of 11 lettering tabs and I believe that's what happened
12 there.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 MS. EDWARDS: Just to be very forthright with 15 the Court.

16 THE COURT: That's fine. It probably would 17 be a little less confusing for everyone if it were 18 all consistent, but we can work with it. I just 19 wondered why.

20 MS. EDWARDS: I think it was printed prior to 21 the tabs, we ran out of the alphabet --

22 THE COURT: Understood. Any objections?

23 DR. IM: No objection.

24 THE COURT: Okay. So Petitioner's Exhibit
25 No. 7 is admitted.

1 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 7 received in
2 evidence.)

3 THE COURT: Any other exhibits, Ms. Edwards?

4 MS. EDWARDS: Yes. In tab 13, the Department
5 would like to offer Petitioner's proposed Exhibit M,
6 the respondent's deposition, as admission by party
7 opponent as Exhibit No. 8.

8 THE REPORTER: M or N?

9 MS. EDWARDS: It is proposed Exhibit M.
10 Thank you.

11 THE COURT: Let's do this, because I think 12 this record is going to -- we want to make it as 13 clear as possible.

14 MS. EDWARDS: Yes. I apologize.

15 THE COURT: Of course when everyone has to 16 review it, at least for the, you know, the PROs and 17 the like. So instead of referring to what the 18 Department has marked as the exhibit, you can just 19 indicate what you propose the exhibit to be. So if 20 this is proposed Exhibit 8, just refer to it
21 proposed Exhibit 8 at tab 13. Is that right?

22 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im?

24 DR. IM: No objection.

25 THE COURT: So Petitioner's Exhibit 8 is

1 admitted.

2 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 8 received in
3 evidence.)

4 THE COURT: All right. Any other exhibits?

5 MS. EDWARDS: That is all the exhibits we
6 have for now, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Thank you very much.

8 Dr. Im, we'll wait until your case in chief
9 to address your exhibits. Is that fair?

10 DR. IM: That's fair.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Ms. Edwards, would you
12 like to call your first witness?

13 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. We would like
14 to call Dr. Anthony Davis to the stand, please.

15 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Davis, if you can come 16 forward. There's a chair that way to the left of 17 the court reporter. There should be a microphone
18 there, so you can pull it down so she can hear you.

19 THE WITNESS: Okay.

20 THE COURT: Raise your right hand, please.

21 Whereupon,

22 ANTHONY J. DAVIS, D.O.,
23 a witness herein, having been first duly sworn,
24 was examined and testified as follows:

25 THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

1 THE COURT: Did you hear that?

2 THE REPORTER: Yes.

3 THE COURT: Thank you. Can you please state
4 your full name and spell it for the record.

5 THE WITNESS: Anthony Jerome Davis,
6 A-N-T-H-O-N-Y, middle initial J, D-A-V-I-S, D.O.

7 THE COURT: Thank you. Ms. Edwards?

10 DR. IM: No objection.

11 THE COURT: Petitioner's Exhibit 9 is 12 admitted.

13 (Petitioner's Exhibit No. 9 received in
14 evidence.)

24 Q. Now moving to your work experience.

3           Q.     How long were you there?

4           A.     Around 18 months.

5           Q.     What type of practice was that?

6           A.     Emergency medicine.

7           Q.     Where did you work next?

8           A.     Came back to Florida and went to Peninsula
9 Medical Center, which is where I trained. And worked -- 10 had an office which was primary care, urgent care and 11 worked the ER.

12          Q.     How long were you there?

13          A.     From '95 until 2013.

14          Q.     Did you work full time?

15          A.     Yes.

16          Q.     After the Peninsula Medical Center, where did

18          A.     Just like emergency medicine, we do bounce
19 around some. So that hospital went through six 20 cylinders.

21                   And then I did split time between -- that was 22 Peninsula, then Columbia, then Memorial System, all the 23 same -- two campuses. Then went to New Smyrna Beach,
24 Florida.

25          Q.     Where did you work in New Smyrna?

8 Memorial Florida Hospital, which was the Memorial 9 campus, and started part time over on the coast at 10 St. Pete, Edward White Hospital.

11 Q. What were your duties at the St. Pete Edward 12 White Hospital?

13 A. Emergency medicine.

14 Q. How long did you work there?

15 A. Until the hospital closed, November 2014.

16 Q. Okay. Where did you work after that?

17 A. I worked there in South Bay Hospital, actually 18 been at South Bay since 2010. So I split time between 19 those.

20 Q. What were your duties at South Bay Hospital?

21 A. Emergency medicine.

22 Q. How long did you work at South Bay?

23 A. From 2010 until 2019.

24 Q. At South Bay what kind of conditions did you
25 treat?

1           A.     It was emergency medicine.  And everything
2 from pediatrics to trauma.

3           Q.     Did you see walk-in patients?

4           A.     We saw walk-in patients, we see ambulance.
5 Regular emergency department.

6           Q.     During that time did you treat patients with 7 conditions such as the flu?

8           A.     Yes, ma'am.

9           Q.     How about bronchitis?

10          A.     Yes, ma'am.

11          Q.     And pneumonia?

12          A.     Correct.

13          Q.     Did you see patients during that time
14 prescribed Tikosyn, also known as dofetilide?

15          A.     Correct.

16          Q.     During that time did you ever prescribe
17 Levaquin, or levofloxacin?

18          A.     To any patient?  Clarification.

19          Q.     Levofloxacin.  Yes, any patient.

20          A.     Have I ever prescribed that medication?  Yes,
21 ma'am.

22          Q.     Do you prescribe any alternatives to that?

23          A.     I do.

24          Q.     Is that still your -- is that still your 25 current job at South Bay?

1           A.     I went -- I was part time at the VA, from 2011
2 till present. And last January I went full time at the 3 VA, of this year, and just resigned my privileges at 4 South Bay in September.

5           Q.     So at the VA, what type of conditions do you
6 treat there?

7           A.     It's a full-service ER, so all the things we 8 just talked about. There's more patients on Tikosyn at 9 the VA than at South Bay.

10          Q.     The VA, is that your current job?

11          A.     Yes, ma'am.

12          Q.     Do you hold any board certifications?

13          A.     I'm board certified in family practice through 14 the AOA, American Board of Osteopathic Family
15 Physicians. And I'm board certified in emergency
16 medicine through AAPS, which is their board
17 certification, emergency medicine.

18          Q.     And when did you first obtain board
19 certification in family practice?

20          A.     It should say right here. Family medicine
21 certified initially 2001.

22          Q.     What was required to become board certified in 23 family medicine or family practice?

24          A.     So many years of experience, and I don't 25 remember the exact details. But so many years of

1 experience and then I was able to sit for the boards.

2 Q. Are there any renewal requirements?

3 A. Yes. Mandatory CME and recertification every 4 eight years.

5 Q. Have you had to renew?

6 A. I renewed in 2009 and 2016.

7 Q. Are your certifications still current?

8 A. Correct.

9 Q. Were there any lapses in the certification?

10 A. No.

11 Q. For emergency medicine, what was required to 12 be board certified in that?

13 A. Since I missed the window for ABEM by a year,
14 since they closed that grandfather clause, I went to 15 board certification emergency medicine, and that 16 certification required over 7,000, I believe, hours of 17 ER experience, and case submissions, recommendations,
18 and then sit for oral and written boards. And that I
19 first certified July of 2003.

20 Q. Are there any renewal requirements?

21 A. Mandatory CME, as well. I renewed in that in 22 2011 and just retook that board last month.

23 Q. Is that certification still current?

24 A. It is.

25 Q. Any lapses in your emergency medicine?

1 A. No, ma'am.

2 Q. Is emergency medicine is a nationally
3 recognized specialty in the practice of --

4 A. Yes, it is.

5 Q. Is family practice a nationally recognized
6 profession and practice in osteopathic medicine?

7 A. Yes, ma'am.

8 Q. You stated you currently work at the VA. What 9 is your practice address?

10 A. 10000 Bay Pines Boulevard, St. Petersburg,
11 Florida.

12 Q. In your current practice, do you maintain 13 staff privileges at the hospital?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. Do you maintain courtesy or staff privileges
16 anywhere else at this point in time?

17 A. No.

18 Q. Did you maintain courtesy or staff privileges
19 anywhere else in 2018?

20 A. South Bay. Yes, I was on staff at South Bay.

21 MS. EDWARDS: At this time, Your Honor, I
22 would like to tender Dr. Davis as a medical expert
23 in the area of emergency medicine and family
24 medicine.

25 THE COURT: Dr. Im, any objections?

1 DR. IM: No objections.

2 THE COURT: So, Dr. Davis is accepted as an
3 expert in family medicine and emergency medicine.

4 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

5 BY MS. EDWARDS:

6 Q. Now, turning to the current case in this 7 matter.

8 Are you aware of who the respondent is in this
9 case?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. Do you know what his specialty is?

12 A. Emergency medicine.

13 Q. It's alleged that Patient J.K. presented to 14 the respondent at Exceptional Urgent Care with symptoms
15 associated with pneumonia.

16 Do you diagnose and treat patients with 17 similar conditions?

18 A. Yes, I do.

19 Q. Did you diagnose and treat patients with 20 similar conditions in 2018?

21 A. Yes, ma'am.

22 MS. EDWARDS: If I may approach. I would
23 like to show Petitioner's Exhibit 2, patient's 24 records from respondent.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 BY MS. EDWARDS:

2 Q. Dr. Davis, based on your review when was the
3 first day Patient J.K. reported to Exceptional
4 Urgent Care?

5 A. March 15th, 2018.

6 Q. What were Patient J.K.'s complaints up there?

7 A. Fever, sore throat.

8 Q. What medications was Patient J.K. prescribed
9 at the time he reported to Exceptional Urgent Care?

10 A. First visit he was prescribed naproxen and 11 Tamiflu.

12 Q. What was he prescribed prior to reporting to 13 Exceptional Urgent Care?

14 A. His home medications included Amlodipine,
15 dofetilide, Warfarin and Tamsulosin.

16 Q. Is dofetilide the same thing as Tikosyn?

17 A. Tikosyn. Correct.

18 Q. Based on your review of the records for 19 Patient J.K., did Dr. Im see Patient J.K. on March 15th?

20 A. No, he did not.

21 Q. What testing was ordered for Patient J.K. on
22 March 15th?

23 A. Patient had a flu swab and a strep screen and 24 a chest X-ray.

25 Q. What were the results of those tests?

1           A.     Strep screen was documented as negative.
2     Influenza screen was documented as negative.   Chest
3     X-ray was documented as Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary
4     Disease, and no focal pneumonia identified on X-ray.

5           Q.     Based on those testings when was the diagnosis
6     given on March 15th?

7           A.     Chart documented fever and other physiologic
8     disturbances of temperature regulation.

9           Q.     What was the treatment plan?

10          A.     On that first visit he was prescribed naproxen
11     and Tamiflu.

12          Q.     Did that alleviate Patient J.K.'s symptoms?

13          A.     No, because the patient as instructed did come
14     back the next day, but he did not fill the Tamiflu.

15          Q.     Okay.

16          A.     Because he said it was too expensive.

17          Q.     When the patient returned back the next day
18     what were his complaints?

19          A.     Documented chief complaint of fever recheck,
20     and that did not start the Tamiflu.   And he had a 21     presumptive diagnosis in the complaint written as 22     presumptive influenza.

23          Q.     Were there any changes to the home medications
24     Patient J.K. indicated as being prescribed?

25          A.     I did update the record and put dofetilide and

1 added naproxen.

2 Q. When a patient is prescribed two -- multiple
3 medications, does it affect the recommended treatment
4 plan?

5 A. Can you clarify? Multiple medications, does
6 it change the treatment plan?

7 Q. Yes. When you --

8 A. For drug interactions and potential
9 interactions, yes, it does change the treatment plan.

10 Q. How does it change?

11 A. We need to consider what the underlying 12 conditions are, the past medical history, existing 13 medications and what we prescribe, how it will have an 14 effect on the other medications the patient regularly 15 takes.

16 Q. What are potential complications if the 17 medications are not taken into consideration?

18 A. That's a huge list, so... Depending on the 19 medicine it can have bleeding, you can have heart rhythm
20 problems, you can have electrolyte issues. You can have 21 a multitude of problems. It's a long list of 22 potentials.

23 Q. And what is your basis for this opinion?

24 A. My common program I use is Epocrates and/or 25 UpToDate for drug interactions and reference.

1 Q. And is Epocrates a persuasive source in the 2 field of osteopathic medicine?

3 A. It's a standard prescription database with 4 drug interactions for all practices of medicine.

5 Q. Thank you.

6 Now, back to the records. What test did
7 Dr. Im order for Patient J.K. on March 16th?

8 A. The visit on the 16th, patient underwent a PT
9 INR, since he was on Warfarin. And underwent a CT scan
10 of the chest.

11 Q. And what were the results of those tests?

12 A. The INR was 2.1, which is within the 13 therapeutic range. And the CT of the chest was done and 14 showed scattered ground-glass opacification, posterior
15 right lower lobe, medial left upper lobe. These 16 findings are nonspecific, may represent hypoventilatory
17 change and/or infectious/inflammatory process, acute or 18 chronic.

19 Q. What does it mean when it says it's 20 nonspecific finding?

21 A. Just that. It does not clearly indicate a
22 single diagnosis.

23 Q. Based on, I believe you said, the ground-glass
24 opacity, what were the possible --

25 A. Ground-glass opacification on a CT can be

1 edema, poor ventilation, early infection, scar tissue,
2 early tumor. It can be a long list of multiple
3 conditions.

4 Q. So there's no conclusive result based on that 5 finding?

6 A. Correct. Ground-glass does not correlate to 7 acute infection.

8 Q. Okay. And in 2018, what were the treatment
9 options available to Patient J.K. based on Dr. Im's
10 findings?

11 A. What treatment options? It could range from 12 supportive care on that visit, his fever had broken, his 13 respirations were normal, his lungs were documented as 14 clear. It could have just been supportive care, or if 15 he felt antibiotics were indicated he could use an 16 antibiotic that had less interaction with his existing 17 medications.

18 Q. And when you say supportive care, what is 19 supportive care?

20 A. Tylenol. Guaifenesin, like Robitussin for 21 cough and mucous. See if he gets progressively worse,
22 or if he just spontaneously clears, because 24 hours
23 earlier it was thought to be influenza and then it was 24 deemed -- documented as bronchitis, and then in 25 subsequent notes said it was documented as pneumonia.

1 Q. And based on your review of Dr. Im's records,
2 what treatment plan did Dr. Im create for Patient J.K.?

3 A. The record I have in front of me listed
4 bacterial pneumonia, and he prescribed Levaquin
5 750 milligrams, Zyrtec and Prednisone.

6 Q. And in 2018 how does a doctor order these type
7 of prescribed medications?

8 A. They can be written or they can be
9 electronically sent to the pharmacy.

10 Q. How does an electronic ordering work?

11 A. If the physician's linked in with the pharmacy
12 then they electronically prescribe and sign and send for 13 the designated pharmacy of the patient's choice.

14 Q. When you enter a medication into an electronic 15 ordering system, do you receive any type of alert if 16 there are any contraindications?

17 A. As a rule I can't say, that's dependent on 18 each system and how the medical record works.

19 Q. Do some systems provide a notice, to your 20 knowledge?

21 A. A lot do.

22 Q. Were there any contraindications between the 23 medications Dr. Im prescribed Patient J.K. with his 24 already prescribed medications?

25 A. In my opinion, yes.

1 Q. And what were they?

2 A. The interaction between Levaquin and Tikosyn.
3 I was concerned about naproxen and Warfarin, but as a
4 short course that's reasonable and acceptable. It does
5 have a little bit of GI risk, but that's not a
6 contraindicated drug. When you look at Tikosyn and 7 Levaquin, it is a contraindicated drug due to risk of 8 interaction, and especially without a baseline QTc.

9 Q. And what is a baseline QTc?

10 A. In drugs that we're going to prescribe that 11 have risks, it's appropriate to get a baseline EKG so
12 that you know what your QTc interval is because the drug
13 that you're prescribing, the risk is that if it
14 increases it then they may have the risk. And it's a 15 question of whether they risk ventricular fibrillation
16 and torsades.

17 Q. And can you explain a little bit more what 18 that is.

19 A. Electrical disturbance of the heart where it
20 basically becomes erratic and heart stops.

21 Q. And what is the basis for your opinion?

22 A. Basis for that opinion is when you plug those 23 two drugs into Epocrates, UpToDate drug interaction
24 programs, it says contraindicated, find alternative.

25 Q. Do any of these medications have black box

1 warnings?

2 A. Levaquin has several black box warnings. And
3 the newest -- and I think that was 2008 or 2009 when it
4 came out for the tendon rupture. The interaction with 5 QTc has been around -- I could not find an exact date of 6 when that was published, but I think it was even before
7 2008.

8 Q. Before we get more specific, what is a black
9 box warning?

10 A. It's a warning that the FDA basically puts 11 into a medication which has either contraindications and 12 risks that you need to counsel patients on specific to 13 that drug.

14 Q. How are physicians put on alert of black box
15 warnings?

16 A. Usually by mail, now email. Updates through 17 prescribing programs. And/or when you put a -- write a 18 prescription, depending on the hospital system it will 19 pop up a flag. And one of the most common ways is the 20 pharmacist will call you with a concern.

21 Q. Is the pharmacist required to call?

22 A. I don't know statute on that.

23 Q. Going back, you said that Levaquin got a black 24 box warning around 2008 or 2009. What is your basis for 25 that?

1           A.     I know it was around the -- there was
2 black-boxed for tendon rupture.

3           Q.     And what does that mean?

4           A.     With the quinolone -- might have been later
5 than that -- when you take the quinolones it has a risk
6 of weakening the tendons and causing tendons to snap,
7 pop, tear. Which was, interestingly, found after the 8 Anthrax scare when so many people took quinolones. And 9 the surge of -- they had over a thousand percent surge
10 in tendon ruptures on insurance claims. So that's how.

11                   We had been using quinolones for years and 12 never known that, then they black-boxed it for that.

13                   But Levaquin and cardiac meds was a warning
14 before that, and I don't know if it's a black box, but 15 it is a significant interaction and listed as a clear
16 warning.

17           Q.     If a contraindicating combination is 18 prescribed, does the doctor owe any additional duties to 19 the patient?

20           A.     Comes down to documentation of risk/benefit.
21 And a clear explanation in the record that it was 22 acknowledged that there is a potential, and why you're 23 using that medication.

24           Q.     Based on your review of Dr. Im's medical
25 records, was he aware of the contraindications between

1       Levaquin and Tikosyn?

2             A.       In the note in this updated record, I do not
3       see any explanation or documentation --

4             DR. IM:   Objection, Your Honor.

5             THE COURT:  Just a second, Doctor.

6             What's the objection?

7             DR. IM:  The objection is that she asked for 8       an expert opinion.  And I think he's stating that 9       because it's not in the notes that Dr. Im was not 10      aware.  I think that's -- I don't know the legal 11      term, hearsay or -- so the objection is that what is 12      his expert opinion?  And so I think that he should 13      be directed with a more specific question.

14            THE COURT:  Ms. Edwards, any response?

15            MS. EDWARDS:  Your Honor, it was a specific 16      question regarding based on the review of the 17      medical records.

18            Further, he was tendered as an expert, so he 19      is able to render opinions.  But this question was 20      specifically related to the review of the medical 21      records.

22            DR. IM:  If I can clarify the objection.  The 23      objection is based on she's not asking him to read
24      the notes, she's asking -- the way I heard it was,
25      how do you know that Dr. Im was not aware of the 1 potential interactions?

2 THE COURT: Based on that objection I'm going
3 to overrule the objection.

4 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

5 THE COURT: Go ahead, Ms. Edwards.

6 BY MS. EDWARDS:

7 Q. Dr. Davis, based on your review of the medical 8 records, was he aware of the contraindications between
9 Levaquin and Tikosyn?

10 A. To clarify, whether he was aware or not, I do
11 not see in the record that it was documented that he 12 acknowledged that there was an interaction. Whether he 13 knew, I can't say. I can say it was not documented in 14 the record that the interaction was known.

15 Q. Based on your review of the records, did
16 Dr. Im explain the risks associated with taking Levaquin
17 to Patient J.K.?

18 A. Based on the review of the record, I do not
19 see anything to suggest that the patient was counseled
20 on the risks of Levaquin.

21 Q. Are there any alternatives to the medication
22 Levaquin prescribed to Patient J.K.?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. What are those alternatives?

25 A. Had the patient actually had pneumonia, were

1 there alternatives?

2 Q. Yes.

3 A. Yes. You could use doxycycline.

4 Q. And would that alternative be considered safer
5 than Levaquin?

6 A. In my opinion, it would be safer than
7 Levaquin.

8 Q. What is the basis for that opinion?

9 A. When you plug it into the drug indication
10 calculator and look at risks/benefits with Warfarin --
11 Levaquin also had significant interactions with 12 Warfarin. So doxycycline has less interaction with 13 Warfarin and with Tikosyn.

14 Q. Based on your review of Dr. Im's medical 15 records, did Dr. Im offer any alternative treatment
16 options to Patient J.K. other than Levaquin?

17 A. As far as antibiotics offered, the chart does
18 not reflect that any other alternatives were offered.

19 Q. And we will be using the phrase standard of 20 care. How do you define standard of care?

21 A. Standard of care is what a reasonable and 22 prudent physician would do in a similar situation.

23 Q. What types of testing would a reasonably 24 prudent osteopathic physician order to determine the 25 cause of the patient's complaints similar to that of

1 Patient J.K.?

2 A. A little bit of that depends if you're in 3 urgent care or an emergency department, I will 4 acknowledge that. I think history and exam are the 5 number one and key findings. Chest X-ray is 6 appropriate. I also think basic labs are appropriate,
7 including the complete blood count and chemistry. Then
8 you get into optional tests, such as sputum...

9 Q. And what considerations were taken into 10 account to decide which tests to order?

11 A. Basically how sick the patient is, how they 12 look in front of you based on your review of systems, 13 and how the physical exam seems.

14 Q. Why would it be important to get a basic lab
15 or, I think you said, blood count chemistry?

16 A. If the patient has a high fever, you're 17 wondering how elevated the white blood cell count is to 18 see if you think it is a bacterial infection.

19 Chemistry is -- with atypical pneumonia you
20 often get a low sodium.

21 Also with the patient's medications, you would 22 want to look at potassium, basic electrolytes and kidney 23 function because kidney function also affects which 24 antibiotics and the dosing.

25 Q. Were the standards the same during 2018?

1           A.     Yes, ma'am, I believe they would be.

2           Q.     Once a diagnosis is formed, how does a
3 reasonably prudent osteopathic physician decide which 4 treatment modality to use?

5           A.     Some of that is experience. You also have the 6 option of going through pathways, clinical pathways, and 7 that can range from using up to date -- there's a lot of 8 resources to say. If you think they have 9 community-acquired pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza and 10 pneumonia, a lot of experienced physicians just do what 11 they feel they've been trained in. But it's easy to 12 access resources to look at pathways that got antibiotic
13 therapy.

14                     You can also use -- if you truly do think they 15 have pneumonia, you can use the pneumonia severity index
16 scoring, and other things on M.D. Calculator to help
17 decide if this patient needs to be in the hospital, out
18 of the hospital. But it's not really direct basic 19 antibiotic therapy.

20           Q.     And you said that M.D. Calculator --

21           A.     M.D. Calculator is one of the most commonly 22 used.

23           Q.     Most commonly used?

24           A.     One of the most commonly used resources that 25 has pneumonia index and other guidance.

1 Q. In your opinion, what does the standard of
2 care require a reasonably prudent osteopathic physician
3 to do in the treatment of a patient similar to J.K.?

4 A. Can you restate that one more time, so I'm
5 clear.

6 Q. Sure. In your opinion, what does the standard
7 of care require an osteopathic physician to do in the 8 treatment of a patient similar to J.K.?

9 A. I'm kind of mixed because based on review of 10 both visits, one of my biggest issues was I don't see an 11 accurate diagnosis of pneumonia. So I thought the 12 Levaquin didn't seem quite appropriate. And if your 13 clinical suspicion is high enough, the chart -- standard
14 of care would say that despite the history, the exam, 15 these are the reasons why I think this patient has 16 pneumonia, and Levaquin is what I feel is appropriate.
17 Yes, it has drug interactions with Tikosyn and Warfarin,
18 and the way I'm going to handle that is baseline -- 19 well, he did a baseline INR. I think its standard would 20 be to document a QTc. And say that the patient 21 understands the risks/benefits, and there's limited to 22 no alternatives, and that's why I am prescribing a
23 potentially dangerous drug.

24 Q. Was there any change in that standard in 2018?

25 A. No.

1 Q. What's the basis for that opinion?

2 A. Basis for that opinion is when we have drugs
3 with a contraindicated -- when they come up as 4 contraindicated as an X category for interaction, the 5 standard is to clearly explain why you are using it and 6 to defend that it's going to be safe to use.

7 Q. How --

8 A. Such -- let me -- like yesterday, I had a case
9 where I was using five medications for nausea, vomiting,
10 all of which had QTc risks. And we did -- based on EKG
11 and not a normal level, we gave all the medicines, and 12 repeated an EKG before we admitted the patient to make 13 sure we hadn't caused harm. That's kind of a reasonable
14 approach when you're using potentially dangerous
15 medications.

16 Q. How does a reasonably prudent osteopathic
17 physician determine if there are any contraindications
18 with medications?

19 A. Where I work now it's computer-based in 20 pharmacy. The pharmacist often calls and says, hey,
21 this is a contraindication. Drug interaction programs
22 is how I typically -- often these patients are on so
23 many medicines it's hard to -- you can't reasonably plug
24 all their medicines in. But a pharmacist will catch and 25 flag -- their programs are often better, and it will

1 flag that, for example, Tikosyn and Levaquin has a high
2 risk interaction.

3 Q. Would it make a difference if the patient put
4 you on awareness that they have a drug that they know
5 might have contraindications?

6 A. One more time, please.

7 Q. Sure.

8 Would it make a difference if the patient let 9 you know at the appointment that they're on a medication
10 that they know can have potential contraindications with 11 other medications?

12 A. Absolutely.

13 Q. And why would that make a difference?

14 A. Because we treat the whole patient, and we 15 need to know what they're on. Even vitamins and other
16 prescription medicines all have potential interactions.

17 Q. Without discussing -- I think we've already 18 gone through -- have you formed opinions on whether 19 Dr. Im met the standard of care in his treatment of 20 Patient J.K.?

21 A. I did make the opinion that he did not with 22 prescribing Levaquin with its interaction with Tikosyn.
23 And little documentation to support its use, based on 24 looking at the record with the review of systems,
25 physical exam, the X-ray, what lab work was done and the

1 chest CT, in my opinion that did not justify Levaquin.
2 And there was no risk/benefit documentation and 3 counseling documented in the chart to say that he
4 clearly explained the risks/benefits to the patient.

5 And of interest, I started my whole report on 6 the case review to say the patient didn't fill it, and 7 no physical harm was done. However, the interaction was 8 very real and could be potentially fatal without 9 documented risk to the patient.

10 Q. And what specifically did you review to form
11 your opinion?

12 A. I reviewed the complaint sent to the State
13 from the patient's wife. And I reviewed the medical 14 records that were sent, which is the visit from the 15th
15 and 16th office visits. Along with chest X-ray and a
16 CT scan report.

17 Q. Did you review any pharmacy records?

18 A. I don't remember seeing Publix pharmacy
19 records. I know there was some records from the VA.

20 Q. Did you rely on any medical literature in 21 forming your opinion?

22 A. Medical literature, I relied on UpToDate.

23 Q. Is UpToDate considered persuasive in your 24 field?

25 A. Yes.

1           Q.     In your opinion, did Dr. Im meet the 2 prevailing standard of care in his treatment of Patient
3 J.K.?

4           A.     No.

5           Q.     Why not?

6           A.     The way that the record is documented, the 7 interaction between Levaquin and Tikosyn being category
8 X or contraindicated, there's no documentation to 9 justify its use without clear warning inpatient
10 education.

11          Q.     Have you had the opportunity to review
12 Dr. Im's deposition that was taken on October 3rd, along 13 with the supporting exhibits?

14          A.     Yes, ma'am.

15          Q.     Did Dr. Im's deposition testimony in any way
16 change the opinions that you formed since initially 17 reviewing the case?

18          A.     No.

19          Q.     Are all of the opinions that you've expressed
20 regarding Dr. Im's care and treatment of Patient J.K.
21 made within a reasonable degree of medical certainty?

22          A.     Yes, ma'am.

23                 MS. EDWARDS: That's all the questions I have
24 for now.

25                 THE COURT: Thank you. Dr. Im, would you

1           like to proceed with the cross-examination?

2           DR. IM: Yes. Thank you, Your Honor.

3           THE COURT: Okay.

4                                   CROSS EXAMINATION

5 BY DR. IM:

6           Q. Dr. Davis. Good morning. It's morning still.

7           A. Morning.

8           Q. First of all, I just want to, before I start,
9 the field the emergency medicine has a long history, and 10 it's a field that I'm very passionate about, it's a 11 field that I trained in. And although when I had an 12 opportunity in 2004 to open up my own urgent care
13 center, I still have great friends who are --

14           THE COURT: Dr. Im, this is your opportunity
15 to ask the witness questions.

16           DR. IM: I'm sorry.

17 BY DR. IM:

18           Q. So my first question is: After you graduated 19 medical school in 1993, where did you do your 20 internship?

21           A. Peninsula Medical Center in Ormond Beach,
22 Florida.

23           Q. After your internship in 1994, what did you do
24 your residency in?

25           A. I went to rural Missouri and did it the way

1 physicians used to do it there, which is baptism by fire
2 in the emergency department. So I didn't do a formal ER
3 residency.

4 Q. That was in --

5 A. '94.

6 Q. '94. Are you saying there was no residencies
7 in emergency medicine?

8 A. I did not attend a residency.

9 Q. Why not?

10 A. Because I went to work.

11 Q. I'll rephrase the question. Did you know
12 about emergency medicine residency programs?

13 A. Yes, I was actually offered a position through 14 Brooke Army Medical Center for triple board in emergency
15 medicine, internal medicine and master's in public
16 health. But that program didn't fully exist, so I
17 backed out of that and went to work.

18 Q. Did you try to apply anywhere else for 19 emergency medicine?

20 A. I never applied at any emergency medicine
21 residency.

22 Q. You said there was one that offered, or --

23 A. Verbal offer. So I knew about emergency
24 medicine residencies, I just went down the clinical 25 track and worked.

1           Q.     In the state of Missouri, are you allowed to
2 work without a residency?

3           A.     Absolutely.

4           Q.     How long did you work at Texas County Medical
5 Hospital?

6           A.     18 months.

7           Q.     Do you have any formal training in radiology?

8           A.     Through rotations in medical school and 9 through my --

10          Q.     I'll rephrase the question.

11                   Do you have any post graduate, post medical 12 school training in radiology?

13          A.     Yes. Formal documented, I trained with 14 radiology, I study regularly and do CMEs.

15          Q.     Dr. Davis, I will try to rephrase this 16 question, again.

17                   After internship or during internship did you
18 get any formal training in radiology?

19          A.     Yes, I had a month of training in internship,
20 as well.

21          Q.     And in what form was that?

22          A.     Same as most people in training programs, you
23 follow the radiologist and --

24          Q.     You said you went to work after your 25 internship. Is that not correct?

1 A. Correct.

2 Q. Okay. So where did you get your formal
3 training in radiology?

4 A. I did a month of rotations in medical school
5 and during internship.

6 Q. So do you have any formal training in 7 pharmacology outside of medical school?

8 A. I am not a pharmacist.

9 Q. I know you said that you were aware of 10 emergency medicine residency programs. For the Court,
11 can you educate us on what a resident program is.

12 A. No, I think that's inappropriate.

13 THE COURT: Doctor, if you can answer based 14 on what your understanding of a residency program
15 is.

16 THE WITNESS: Okay. Emergency medicine
17 residency is a subspecialty, which is a three-year
18 program, which helps solidify and train physicians
19 in the field of emergency medicine.

20 BY DR. IM:

21 Q. Thank you.

22 Are you familiar with the organization ABEM or 23 AOBEM?

24 A. Yes, sir, I am.

25 Q. Can you in plain English define what --

1           A.     That's another licensed -- that's another
2 certifying board that was the original boards, American
3 Board of Emergency Medicine and then American
4 Osteopathic Board of Emergency Medicine.

5           Q.     And you used the term grandfathering. I don't 6 know if the Court understands what that means. Could
7 you explain what grandfather -- you said you
8 grandfathered.

9           A.     No, I missed the grandfather window for ABEM.
10 A lot of peers did not do emergency medicine residency
11 and/or certified through American Board of Emergency
12 Medicine without doing an emergency medicine residency,
13 and that window had closed. So that's why
14 grandfathering in means you get into the board with 15 clinical experience. And ABEM and AOBEM both closed
16 their clinical tract first. So I am familiar with both 17 those organizations.

18          Q.     Are you familiar with the organizations
19 American Academy of Emergency Medicine and American 20 College of Emergency Physicians?

21          A.     I was a member of the American College of 22 Emergency Physicians for years.

23          Q.     Are you aware that they don't recognize your 24 board certification?

25          A.     I don't know that because I resigned from that

1 organization.

2 Q. Are you aware that ABEM or AOBEM does not
3 recognize your board certification?

4 A. The State of Florida recognizes my board
5 certification in emergency medicine. I did not know
6 about ABEM.

7 Q. Okay. Are you aware that many hospitals
8 nowadays will not accept your board certification?

9 A. I know where I work in the state of Florida
10 accepts my board certification.

11 Q. Is it fair to state that when you started your 12 position at the Texas County Memorial -- you refer to it
13 as baptism by fire. What does that mean?

14 A. Well, my first day out of training I dealt 15 with a guy who was crushed by a tree and I had to put a 16 chest tube in him and deal with a head injury and fly
17 him out to a trauma center.

18 Q. Where did you learn to do a chest tube?

19 A. In my internship and my medical school
20 training.

21 Q. I also did an internship --

22 THE COURT: Dr. Im.

23 DR. IM: I'm sorry. Yes, I'll move on with 24 the questions.

25 THE COURT: Thank you.

1 BY DR. IM:

2 Q. Is it fair to state that when you started
3 your -- sorry. Are you being compensated today,
4 financially?

5 A. I will be paid for my time coming in as a
6 witness, yes.

7 Q. Who pays you?

8 A. I should be paid by the State of Florida.

9 Q. Are you paid hourly?

10 A. Depends on how long I'm here, I'll be paid for 11 either a half day or a day.

12 Q. If I may, you mentioned the word chest tube,
13 so that kind of triggers my next two to three questions
14 about training years.

15 How is one trained do a chest tube, in your 16 opinion? When you were trained, how were you trained to 17 do a chest tube?

18 A. Hopefully the way that everybody is, with a
19 mentoring physician and practice and doing the skills.

20 Q. How many chest tubes did you do before working 21 at Texas Memorial?

22 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: Was there an objection? What's 24 your objection?

25 MS. EDWARDS: Relevance. They're not

1 related, chest tube isn't related to matters at hand
2 today or his emergency medicine testimony with 3 regards to certifications.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im, response?

5 DR. IM: If I could clarify. We're talking
6 about his CV still, and I have some questions on his 7 CV and training background. Unless 8 Ms. Virginia Edwards and everybody understands the 9 training in emergency medicine, I'm just asking
10 questions that I'm learning now that you're usually 11 not taught to do these types of high-risk
12 procedures.

13 And so I thought it was fair that I get to 14 probe his training background --

15 THE WITNESS: I'll be glad to --

16 THE COURT: Doctor -- just a second,
17 Dr. Davis. I'll let you know when it's time for you
18 to answer.

19 THE WITNESS: Yes, ma'am.

20 THE COURT: Based on Ms. Edwards' objection, 21 I'm going to sustain it. You can move on with your 22 next question.

23 DR. IM: I'll move on.

24 BY DR. IM:

25 Q. You stated in your Department of Health

1 interviews that you are familiar with the medications
2 involved in this case. Is that correct?

3 A. That I'm familiar with the medications
4 involved in this case, yes.

5 Q. How many times have you prescribed the
6 medication Tikosyn?

7 A. I haven't started patients on that. I may 8 have refilled that medication, but I feel with patients
9 who are on it and --

10 Q. So is it fair to say you never prescribed
11 Tikosyn?

12 A. I can honestly say I haven't initiated therapy
13 with Tikosyn.

14 Q. It was a yes or no. Yes or no, have you ever 15 prescribed Tikosyn medication? Initiated the --

16 A. There's a difference. Have I initiated
17 Tikosyn therapy on a cardiac patient? No. Have I
18 prescribed it? Probably as a refill.

19 Q. Okay. You said you're familiar with the term
20 QT prolongation torsades?

21 A. Yes, sir.

22 Q. In plain English, what is QT prolongation?

23 A. It's electrical conduction delay between the 24 cardiac complex as it widens out risks, development of 25 of --

1 Q. What does letter Q stand for?

2 THE COURT: Dr. Im, I don't know if he was 3 done.

4 DR. IM: I'm sorry.

5 THE WITNESS: So the QRS complex, the 6 beginning of the QRS complex with how the heart
7 polarizes, depolarizes, contracts...

8 DR. IM: Yeah, I don't want to get too
9 technical so I'll move on.

10 Ms. Edwards, when I have Exhibit No. 5 -- 11 these are the exhibits I faxed to you. Is it in 12 this folder here, or do I have to approach the 13 witness?

14 MS. EDWARDS: Sorry. Can you clarify?

15 THE COURT: So what is your question?

16 DR. IM: The exhibits that I want to 17 introduce, do I introduce it -- I want to introduce 18 it, but do I -- I faxed the copies to 19 Ms. Virginia Edwards, my exhibits that I need to 20 introduce as I cross-examine Dr. Davis.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 DR. IM: May I enter it?

23 THE COURT: Well, Ms. Edwards has indicated
24 that she has printed a copy of all your exhibits.

25 DR. IM: That's what I thought.

1           THE COURT:  So if you have a particular
2 exhibit, state the exhibit number and, of course,
3 Ms. Edwards can make sure she has a copy of it.

4           DR. IM:  Yes.

5           THE COURT:  Now, the question is:  Do you
6 have a copy for me to view, as well for the witness?

7           DR. IM:  An actual copy?  I can give you my
8 copy.

9           THE COURT:  Do you have a copy for the 10 witness to review?

11          DR. IM:  I thought when I -- I assumed -- my 12 fault.  I assumed that when I faxed it to 13 Ms. Edwards that she would make a copy for 14 Dr. Davis.  Wrongly assumed.  Sorry.

15          THE COURT:  So tell me what it is that you
16 would like Dr. Davis to review.

17          DR. IM:  Exhibit No. 5, page 1367.

18          THE COURT:  And what is that?

19          DR. IM:  It's an article on QT prolongation
20 that we're discussing and some of the medicines that 21 are contraindicated.

22          THE COURT:  Okay.  I, too, made copies of the 23 exhibit.  So if you want to take a look and confirm 24 that this is the complete exhibit then you can just 25 use yours for the witness.

1 DR. IM: Yes, that's the one. Thank you.

2 THE COURT: All right.

3 BY DR. IM:

4 Q. So, Dr. Davis, if you could look at Exhibit
5 No. 5, page 1367.

6 THE COURT: Do you have that in front of you?

7 THE WITNESS: No, ma'am.

8 DR. IM: Can I show him mine?

9 THE COURT: Do you have a clean copy of it
10 without --

11 DR. IM: No, I have my scribbles all over it.

12 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, would you like to 13 provide the witness your copy so that he can follow
14 along?

15 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. We're not
16 entering it at this time. Is that correct?

17 THE COURT: Well, he's about to testify
18 regarding it. So if you have a question or 19 objection about it before it gets admitted then you
20 can address it once Dr. Im -- once Dr. Im offers it,
21 then you can raise an objection. But I think right
22 now he's just testifying regarding it.

23 MS. EDWARDS: Okay.

24 BY DR. IM:

25 Q. So Exhibit No. 5, page 1367.

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. I underlined it, hopefully the underlining is 3 still there.

4 Do you see where it says, dofetilide also
5 exhibits -- or is dose dependent on QT prolongation?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. Do you see that table three where it lists
8 some medications that can cause QT prolongation interval
9 and torsades? That's the graph on the same page, table
10 three.

11 A. Drugs that can prolong QT interval and 12 torsades?

13 Q. Yes.

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. Do you see dofetilide on there?

16 A. Yes, I do.

17 Q. Do you also see the antihistamine
18 diphenhydramine, which is Benadryl?

19 A. Yes, I do.

20 Q. If I can direct you to the next page, please,
21 the next page, I've also underlined. On the next page
22 do you see levofloxacin, which is Levaquin, did not 23 alter the actual potential duration? Do you see that 24 sentence there that I underlined?

25 A. I do see that underlined on page 16 -- or

1 1368.

2 Q. I think I put an asterisk just below that. It
3 says, apart from the other fluoroquinolones, the 4 fluoroquinolones that are currently on the market, such 5 as -- I'll paraphrase, the newer fluoroquinolones, the 6 drugs that can affect QT prolongation and torsades with 7 the frequency average generally occurring at the rate of 8 one per one million prescriptions.

9 Do you see that?

10 A. I do see that on the right.

11 DR. IM: If I could enter that as Exhibit
12 No. 5.

13 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards?

14 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, I object to the entrance
15 of that article. There's a foundation or 16 authentication issue. It appears to have been 17 modified with his underlines and things like that.

18 Also it appears -- I believe, and I
19 apologize, I don't have a copy in front of me right
20 now -- that it's not a -- may I get it?

21 THE COURT: Yes.

22 MS. EDWARDS: -- that it's not a complete
23 copy of the article, as well.

24 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im, do you have the 25 remaining portion of this article?

1 DR. IM: All these articles are -- anyone can
2 get them. The reason why the -- I just brought the 3 shorter version so I could highlight some of the 4 things. I didn't want to bring in, like, a
5 30-page -- that was the only reason why I did that.
6 It's just to show that -- there's several ways to 7 look for drug interactions, you know, and how much
8 someone does research and how much someone looks 9 into it. But, no, in front of me I do not have the 10 whole -- it was a lot of pages.

11 THE COURT: Okay. So is your question to the 12 witness, you know, is that there are multiple ways
13 other than what he described to look at drug
14 interactions?

15 DR. IM: No. I'm sorry.

16 BY DR. IM:

17 Q. So my question would be: After we looked at 18 the medical article together, would you agree in your 19 expert opinion, Dr. Davis, that dofetilide in itself is 20 a risk factor for QT prolongation and torsades?

21 A. Would I agree that dofetilide is a risk alone?

22 Q. Yes. Yes-or-no question.

23 A. Yes.

24 THE COURT: Okay. Before you go on with your
25 next question, I'm going to exclude Exhibit No. 5

1 over objection of Ms. Edwards.

2 DR. IM: Am I still allowed to ask questions
3 on the topic?

4 THE COURT: Absolutely.

5 BY DR. IM:

6 Q. So if you were to read in a medical
7 literature, peer-reviewed journal/article that a
8 medication has a frequency of drug interaction one in 9 one million, would you consider that low risk?

10 A. I would consider it one in one million a low
11 probability, yes.

12 Q. And, again, I know we're both -- well, I was 13 trained in emergency medicine. So let me just move on 14 to the next question, I'll get to where it is, because 15 I'm not a lawyer, it could take longer and I apologize.

16 Do you know -- you said you see trauma. Have 17 you had any formal training in trauma, at a trauma
18 center?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. Which trauma center were you trained at?

21 A. I trained around two months at Brooke Army
22 Medical Center in the ER.

23 Q. What year was that?

24 A. That was in, I believe, '93, before my -- it
25 was in '93.

1 Q. When you were an intern?

2 A. I was in medical school.

3 Q. Oh, medical school. So what were your duties
4 as a medical student at the trauma center?

5 A. Part of the treatment, case by case. It
6 depended on what came in.

7 Q. So you didn't do a formal training in -- I'll 8 move on. That's not -- you already said you didn't do
9 formal training.

10 A. I did trauma life support several times.

11 Q. That's just multiple choice certification on 12 mannequins.

13 A. No, sir. That's not accurate.

14 Q. I'll move on.

15 My question is going to be: Do you see auto
16 accidents at your current ER where you work?

17 A. Yes, sir, I do.

18 Q. Do you know, just an estimate, how many auto
19 accidents or deaths per day there are in the 20 United States?

21 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

22 THE COURT: What's your objection?

23 MS. EDWARDS: Relevancy.

24 THE COURT: You can state your objection, but 25 in terms of arguing I'll ask whether there's

1 continuing argument.

2 So your objection's relevance?

3 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im, what's your 5 response?

6 DR. IM: I was just going to -- I can ask it
7 many ways. But I just want to bring up the odds of 8 somebody -- just the low risk, moderate risk,
9 whether it's an auto accident or airplane. So I
10 could ask him many ways. You would agree there's a 11 lot of deaths from auto accidents a day? That's all
12 I wanted to ask him.

13 THE COURT: Okay. Objection's overruled.
14 You can ask.

15 BY DR. IM:

16 Q. Are there a lot of auto accidents per day in 17 the United States?

18 A. Yes, there are.

19 Q. And we see quite a bit. Actually, there's 20 over 3,000 deaths per day.

21 THE COURT: Okay. I'm giving him some 22 leeway. Wherever you're going --

23 DR. IM: I'll get there quick.

24 BY DR. IM:

25 Q. Would you agree -- I already asked you that.

1                   Can you explain what a drug insert is, in
2 plain English?

3           A.     A drug insert is -- I believe I can describe
4 it. Would you like me to describe it?

5           Q.     Just in plain English, yeah. What is a drug
6 insert?

7           A.     The package insert is what is the printed
8 information probably mandated by the FDA that the drug
9 company puts with its medication to clarify the drug,
10 risks, side effects.

11          Q.     Do patients have access to that?

12          A.     Yes.

13          Q.     Just again, in plain English, can you define 14 or help explain, what is an EMR, an electronic medical 15 record? What is that?

16          A.     It's a software program used in medical and in 17 healthcare in general to document encounters.

18          Q.     In 2016 it was required that all physicians
19 transfer over to electronic medical records. Is that 20 correct?

21          A.     That sounds correct.

22          Q.     Okay. And what is e-prescribing?

23          A.     E-prescribing, as I understand, stands for 24 electronic prescribing.

25          Q.     And in plain English, when a doctor

1 participates and e-prescribes with a pharmacy, does he
2 or she gets alerts about possible drug-to-drug
3 interactions?

4 A. I can't --

5 Q. In your opinion.

6 A. I don't have an opinion because the last two
7 places I worked did not do e-prescribing.

8 Q. Does the VA have e-prescribing, electronic 9 prescribing? Yes or no?

10 A. Yes, we do.

11 Q. You get alerts?

12 A. Yes, we do.

13 Q. How quickly do you get those alerts?

14 A. They're in two phases. We get electronic 15 warning the minute we put the prescription in.

16 Q. The minute you put it in, you said?

17 A. Before we sign the order it will put up flags.
18 And then if there's a significant concern, the 19 pharmacist often calls.

20 Q. Have you ever had conversations with 21 pharmacists who have concerns about dosing or --

22 A. Daily.

23 Q. Daily. So do I. Okay. So I'll move on.

24 I think you just kind of helped define how a
25 pharmacist -- in healthcare, do you agree, yes or no,

1 that it requires a team?

2 A. Medicine is a team sport.

3 Q. Would you agree that communication's very 4 important?

5 A. Yes, I would.

6 Q. Whether it's verbal, face-to-face or 7 electronic, would you agree that the communications is 8 key in the practice of medicine today?

9 A. Communication is important.

10 Q. In your opinion, if a pharmacist gets a flag
11 or is worried about a medication that you prescribed,
12 let's say, Dr. Davis, in your experience, do you expect 13 that pharmacist to call you?

14 A. If they're worried, yes, I expect the 15 pharmacist to call me or flag it.

16 Q. In your experience, have you ever had a
17 pharmacist tell a patient, don't take this medication --
18 don't take this medication because it may kill you?

19 A. Not that I can recall.

20 DR. IM: Now I would like to go to Exhibit
21 No. 9. I think Ms. Virginia Edwards has that -- I
22 think she labeled it a little different. That is 23 the Publix -- it's No. 8, I have it as 8. That's 24 the Publix computer screenshot.

25 THE WITNESS: I have --

1 DR. IM: That's the one the Judge was looking
2 over whether it's going to be admitted. I have the 3 same, Publix pharmacy. This one here (indicating).
4 I think you have the second page.

5 Would you be able to show that to Dr. Davis?

6 MS. EDWARDS: Are you asking for it to be 7 entered right now, or --

8 DR. IM: For now we can just have him look at 9 it.

10 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, may I?

11 THE COURT: Yes.

12 BY DR. IM:

13 Q. The same exhibit, Doctor, that 14 Ms. Virginia Edwards submitted. Do you see in the 15 middle of that screenshot -- I know it's small print,
16 but can you read what the pharmacy tech wrote there.

17 A. On the (indicating) --

18 Q. Yes. Yes. That's the one. Very small print.

19 A. I see abbreviations, and it looks like 20 patient's wife spoke with Tiffany, interaction, doesn't 21 want this Rx.

22 Q. Correct. That's what I wanted to -- so in 23 your expert opinion, how do you interpret patient
24 doesn't want the Rx?

25 A. The way it's written, I would have to assume

1 that based on the interaction, she understands, she
2 doesn't want to pick up the prescription.

3 Q. Have you had patients refuse to take
4 medications that you prescribe?

5 A. I'm sure I have.

6 Q. Do you see the sentence right above that,
7 looks like the same pharmacy tech typed in, profile from 8 ready? Do you see that phrase there, right above --

9 A. Yes, sir, I do see that.

10 Q. Can you explain what that means?

11 A. I have no idea what that means.

12 Q. The profile from ready means that after the 13 patient refuses --

14 MS. EDWARDS: I have an objection.

15 THE COURT: What's the objection?

16 MS. EDWARDS: That he is testifying.

17 THE COURT: Okay. Are you getting to the 18 question, Dr. Im?

19 DR. IM: Yes.

20 BY DR. IM:

21 Q. The question is: So you do not know what that
22 means?

23 A. That is correct, I do not know what that
24 means.

25 Q. Do you know how long after a patient refuses a

1 prescription, can they change their mind and pick that
2 prescription up?

3 A. I couldn't tell you what pharmacy policy is.

4 Q. Do you have any formal training in pharmacy?

5 A. I did not go to pharmaceutical school.

6 Q. So is it safe to say you're not an expert in 7 the area of pharmacy?

8 A. I will say I'm not a pharmacist, but I think
9 I'm an expert in my field with prescribing.

10 Q. Okay. I'll move on to the next question.

11 THE COURT: Before you do that, Dr. Im, are 12 you offering --

13 DR. IM: Yes, I would like to --

14 THE COURT: -- Respondent's Exhibit 8?

15 DR. IM: Yes, please.

16 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, may I approach to 17 take a look at it?

18 THE COURT: Just a quick moment. You mean
19 approach the witness?

20 MS. EDWARDS: Yes.

21 THE COURT: Yes.

22 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

23 BY DR. IM:

24 Q. Dr. Davis --

25 THE COURT: Dr. Im, just a moment.

1 DR. IM: Sorry.

2 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, any response to
3 Exhibit 8?

4 MS. EDWARDS: I am not able to read the first
5 page of it, so I -- because that first page isn't
6 clear.

7 The second page, I mean, we have a clear copy
8 of it. I would not be opposed to the second page
9 coming in, that's something we saw as a business
10 record was valid and it appears to be correct and 11 not modified other than -- excuse me, underlining.

12 But the first page has the phone number, and 13 I really can't tell what the first page is.

14 So no objection to the second page, but I
15 would object to that first page, I just can't tell 16 what it is.

17 THE COURT: Okay. Respondent's Exhibit 8
18 will be admitted in part and deleted in part. We're 19 going to call the first page, the top page, page
20 number one. And then the second page is page number
21 two, that is the full screenshot with information
22 related to patient identification and the notes.

23 And before I admit this, this exhibit,
24 Dr. Im, do you want to take a look at --

25 DR. IM: Sure.

1 THE COURT: Do you have your copy?

2 DR. IM: I do.

3 THE COURT: Do you want to take a look at 4 that and determine whether you want to modify this
5 exhibit --

6 DR. IM: No, that's fine. I don't need page
7 one.

8 THE COURT: Okay. So then to make it a clean
9 record --

10 DR. IM: Yes.

11 THE COURT: -- then we'll say Exhibit 8 is a
12 screenshot from Publix pharmacy regarding the notes
13 for Patient J.K., and that would be marked as 14 Respondent's Exhibit No. 8.

15 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. Note for the 16 record that there is confidential information on 17 that exhibit.

18 THE COURT: Yes, that is noted for the
19 record.

20 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

21 THE COURT: Okay. So Respondent's
22 Exhibit No. 8 is admitted at this time subject to 23 modifications, noting that there's confidential
24 information on that record, which will be redacted.

25 (Respondent's Exhibit No. 8 received in

1 evidence.)

2 THE COURT: Okay, Dr. Im.

3 BY DR. IM:

4 Q. Dr. Davis, you said you see quite a bit of 5 Tikosyn at the VA hospitals.

6 A. I do see a good bit of patients on Tikosyn and 7 Sotalol.

8 Q. Have you ever admitted a patient to the 9 hospital in the VA system with pneumonia?

10 A. Have I --

11 Q. Ever admitted a patient?

12 A. With pneumonia?

13 Q. Yes.

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. Have you ever admitted a patient with 16 pneumonia to the hospital who was on Tikosyn?

17 A. I don't recall that.

18 Q. If you had a patient in your emergency
19 department that you diagnosed with pneumonia who happens
20 to be on Tikosyn, would you object to using Levaquin in 21 the emergency department?

22 A. Yes, I would.

23 Q. Have you used Levaquin in the emergency
24 department?

25 A. Yes.

1 Q. IV form or PO, or pills?

2 A. Both.

3 Q. Both. Can you explain just in plain English
4 what the difference is, IV form and --

5 A. There's very little difference. Both are very 6 bioavailable, whether you take a pill or IV, the 7 bioavailability is very similar.

8 However, if the patient has other issues
9 and/or is sicker and cannot take pills and you're 10 admitting them to the hospital, you may choose to give 11 it IV.

12 Q. So my follow-up question is: If you have to 13 order the Levaquin IV, antibiotic IV, do you always 14 counsel that patient before you order it?

15 A. A few years ago I did not. In this day and 16 age my prescribing of quinolones is so extremely low --

17 Q. I'm not talking about prescribing. Talking
18 about use in the emergency department.

19 A. Do I counsel every patient before I give a 20 dose of Levaquin?

21 Q. Yes or no?

22 A. Before a single dose -- before a single dose
23 IV, I would have to say no. Before I write a
24 prescription --

25 Q. That wasn't the question.

1 A. Okay.

2 Q. As far as Tikosyn, what class of
3 antiarrhythmia medication is Tikosyn?

4 A. Class III.

5 Q. Are you familiar with other classes, Class I,
6 Class II, Class IV?

7 A. Class I, II, III, IV.

8 Q. Yes.

9 A. Class III, potassium channel, yes, sir, I am.

10 Q. And in your opinion, are you familiar with the 11 other antiarrhythmia medications, other classes?

12 A. In general I'm familiar with them, absolutely.

13 Q. And in your opinion, in your expert opinion,
14 are there medicines safer than Tikosyn?

15 A. I leave that up to the card -- to replace it
16 or -- your statement -- your question is, are there
17 medicines safer than Tikosyn?

18 Q. Yes. I didn't want to get too technical,
19 there's Class I, II, III, IV, like you said, to treat
20 dysrhythmias?

21 A. Yes, there are several --

22 Q. Are there medications that are safer than
23 Tikosyn?

24 A. Yes, I believe there are.

25 Q. Can you give one example?

1           A.     Dronedarone.

2           Q.     That's one of my favorite medications,
3 actually.

4                     If a cardiologist who initiates Tikosyn does
5 not go over the benefits and risks of Tikosyn and the 6 potential risk for torsades, would you consider that 7 practice to be below the standard of care for that
8 cardiologist?

9           A.     I'm not a cardiologist. I would not -- I
10 don't know what their standard of care -- I don't -- I'm 11 not an expert on standard of care in cardiology.

12          Q.     Do you have any formal training in cardiology?

13          A.     Like most emergency medicine physicians.

14          Q.     Most? I didn't understand your answer. Yes
15 or no.

16          A.     I think it's a vague question.

17          Q.     Do you have any formal training in cardiology?
18 Yes or no?

19          A.     Define formal. I've done a whole lot of CME
20 on EKG, dysrhythmias. Do I do a subspecialty or 21 fellowship in cardiology? No.

22          Q.     Would you consider yourself an expert in 23 cardiology? Yes or no?

24          A.     I am not a cardiologist.

25          Q.     So, so far you're not a pharmacist, you're not

1 a cardiologist. Is that correct?

2 A. That's fair.

3 Q. Would you consider a cardiology with no
4 residency training in cardiology an expert in 5 cardiology?

6 A. If he's board certified and a quality
7 physician.

8 Q. Would you consider a neurosurgeon without 9 training in neurosurgery is expert in neurosurgery,
10 without any residency training in neurosurgery?

11 A. I don't think that's -- if he's certified.

12 Q. Okay. Just one last -- this may sound
13 redundant. Would you consider a radiologist with no
14 formal training in radiology an expert in radiology?

15 A. If he has the skill and training and is 16 certified -- doing three years of a program without 17 certification doesn't guarantee --

18 Q. So you're not sure?

19 A. -- any.

20 Q. I can repeat the question.

21 A. Feel free to repeat it.

22 Q. Do you know if there's a grandfathering system
23 in neurosurgeon, cardiology or radiology?

24 A. I don't know.

25 Q. There isn't, that's what makes emergency

1 medicine unique. I'll get to the next question.

2 THE COURT: Just a second. Is there an
3 objection?

4 MS. EDWARDS: Dr. Im is testifying.

5 THE COURT: Do you want that to be a standing
6 objection?

7 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. Thank you.

8 THE COURT: Thank you.

9 BY DR. IM:

10 Q. Have you had any formal training in reading CT
11 images?

12 A. It's back to that definition of formal 13 training. I've done several CMEs and do a lot of 14 continuing ed on it.

15 Q. All right. Maybe not everybody's aware of 16 what -- what's CME?

17 A. Continuing medical education.

18 Q. And what is that?

19 A. That's an accepted accrediting group that 20 provides educational material to physicians in different
21 specialties. So I have done and do regularly X-rays,
22 CT, work on MRI, ultrasound, procedural ultrasound --

23 Q. Would you consider yourself an expert in 24 radiology?

25 A. I consider myself an expert in radiology

1 related to emergency medicine.

2 Q. That wasn't -- it was a yes-or-no question.
3 Do you consider yourself an expert in radiology?

4 A. To my field, yes. Am I a radiologist? Once
5 again, no, I am not a radiologist.

6 Q. For the record, you're not a radiologist?

7 A. Correct.

8 Q. You're not a cardiologist and you're not a
9 pharmacist?

10 A. That is true.

11 Q. You used the term ground-glass opacity in CT
12 images. You stated that it can represent fluid, it
13 could represent tumors. Do you believe, in your best --
14 in your expert opinion that a ground-glass opacity can 15 represent tumors or fluid?

16 A. Absolutely. It is a non-specific finding, it
17 is not guaranteed to be infection, it can be any 18 hypoventilation --

19 Q. No, my question --

20 A. For --

21 Q. I'll rephrase the question.

22 Can ground-glass opacity be a tumor? Yes or 23 no?

24 A. It can be an early spot of a tumor, yes.

25 Q. Can a ground-glass opacity be pleural

1 effusion?

2 A. It can be edema, not pleural effusion,
3 typically.

4 Q. Edema is a clinical finding, right? Not a
5 radiologic terminology. Is that correct?

6 A. Peripheral edema is a physical finding --

7 Q. Not radiology terminology. Is that correct?

8 A. Edema?

9 Q. Yes.

10 A. Is a radiology finding.

11 Q. Edema is a radiology finding? In what format,
12 what radiology field, may I ask?

13 A. Commonly reported on chest X-rays, pulmonary
14 edema on CTs suggestive of fluid edema. Depends on if 15 it's in the pleural lining or intraparenchymal.

16 Q. As far as the ground-glass opacity, are you
17 aware that ground-glass opacity represents exudate?
18 Were you aware of that?

19 A. It could. It could represent an exudative.

20 Q. In plain English, can you define the word
21 exudate?

22 A. Exudate is an inflammatory fluid shift, 23 basically. Transudate versus exudate, depends on the 24 pH, the concentration of the fluid. So exudative fluid
25 is a little thicker than a transudate.

1 Q. Thicker? Are there other words -- what is the 2 main difference between exudate and transudate?

3 A. Specific gravity, probably protein load.

4 Q. The word exudate, can it represent infection?
5 Yes or no?

6 A. Can you ask that again?

7 Q. The word exudate, can it represent an 8 infection?

9 A. Could an infection present as an exudate?
10 Yes.

11 Q. Can ground-glass opacity represent an 12 infection?

13 A. It could.

14 Q. So if I heard you correctly, you don't have --
15 you're not a radiologist, but you gave your expert
16 opinion when you filled out the report to the Department
17 of Health on the CT results. Is that correct? You gave 18 your expert opinion on the CT images?

19 A. No, that's not --

20 Q. What --

21 A. I gave my opinion based on the radiologist's
22 interpretation.

23 Q. So for the record, you're saying that you
24 didn't give your expert opinion?

25 A. I gave my expert opinion on the case. In

1 reviewing the entire case --

2 Q. Talking about CT images of the CT chest.

3 A. My opinion related to the exam, history and 4 the CT --

5 Q. Just the CT.

6 A. -- report that the radiologist provided.

7 Q. So you're saying that the expert opinion is 8 upon the radiologist then and not the physician?

9 A. My expert opinion took into account the expert
10 radiologist reading of the CT.

11 Q. Do you have an expert opinion on the findings
12 on that CT of the chest?

13 A. I read the report of the radiologist and I had 14 my opinion on the case, taking that radiologist read
15 into account.

16 Q. So when the radiologist used the word, may be
17 infectious, would you say there's a possibility there
18 can be an infection? Yes or no?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And just in plain English, do you agree that a
21 CAT scan is a lot more sensitive and specific than a
22 plain chest X-ray?

23 A. In general, is a CT more detailed and specific 24 to the chest X-ray? Absolutely.

25 Q. Did you in any of your formal training years

1 own or operate a CT machine? Yes or no.

2 A. No.

3 Q. During your formal training years did you get
4 to -- during your internship year, I believe you said it
5 was -- what was your internship year, again?

6 A. '93 to '94.

7 Q. '93 to '94. During the years '93 to '94,
8 during your internship year, how many CT images did you
9 get to read?

10 A. Did I get to review or --

11 Q. Yourself, yes.

12 A. -- or did I get to interpret?

13 Q. No. Read yourself, interpret yourself.

14 A. Probably -- probably well over a hundred --
15 few hundred. I'd say a couple hundred.

16 Q. Couple hundred CT images that you gave the 17 radiological impression on?

18 A. That I looked at myself and correlated with 19 the radiologist finding. I don't provide formal final 20 CT reports.

21 Q. That was my question.

22 Have you ever provided a formal final CT
23 impression?

24 A. For the radiology department? A formal final,
25 no. Preliminary findings, I state my preliminary

1 suggested findings. I do not put the -- I do not
2 dictate the report for the radiologist.

3 Q. Do you -- do you get to read CT images today?

4 A. I look at CTs every day I'm at work.

5 Q. Okay. Images?

6 A. I look at CT images every day.

7 Q. And are you good at reading CT images?

8 A. Depends on which part of the body I'm looking 9 at.

10 Q. How about the CT chest.

11 A. I'm above average to good on chest.

12 Q. Okay. Who are you -- what is your standard of 13 care -- who are you comparing yourself to when you say
14 you're above average, let's say, when reading CT images?

15 A. Other emergency physicians.

16 Q. Is it fair to say that emergency physicians
17 are not radiologists?

18 A. Absolutely we're not.

19 Q. Were you aware that during emergency medicine
20 residencies the residents are trained in their many 21 subspecialties, like trauma surgery, general surgery,
22 internal medicine, pediatric emergency medicine and
23 radiology?

24 A. Yes.

25 Q. Okay. So my next question will be: Can you

1 explain the difference between the emergency
2 department -- or inpatient, practice of inpatient
3 medicine and outpatient medicine, in plain English?

4 A. Absolutely. Inpatient medicine is a patient
5 that is deemed sick enough to be in the hospital and 6 treated as an inpatient.

7 Outpatient care is provided with medical 8 recommendations and maintained at home with follow-up.

9 Q. Okay. Well, I'll try to put it in a question
10 format because you didn't understand my question: In 11 the emergency department is it fair to say you have 12 access to diagnostic testing that the outpatient setting
13 does not have access to?

14 A. The emergency department does have some tests
15 that outpatient and clinics do not have.

16 Q. Can you help differentiate the two, inpatient
17 versus outpatient? Can you give an example of a few
18 tests that you get to order and get the results of STAT
19 within the emergency department that you don't get 20 outside of the hospital? Can you give one or two 21 examples?

22 A. MRI.

23 Q. Okay. How about some other diagnostic test.

24 A. A lot of -- I did some work on the side in 25 urgent care and we had -- we did basic chemistry X-ray,

1 EKG, CBC, urines.

2 Q. What was the name of that urgent care center?

3 A. Medi-Quick.

4 Q. What year was that?

5 A. That was while I was still working ER on the 6 side. That was two years -- from 2000 to 2001.

7 Q. 2001. Is it fair --

8 A. I'm familiar with outpatient.

9 Q. Okay. Is it fair to say you have not 10 practiced in an urgent care setting since 2001?

11 A. I have not worked in an urgent care. I do
12 fast track --

13 Q. That wasn't the question.

14 A. I have not worked in an urgent care facility
15 since 2001.

16 Q. Thank you.

17 Are you familiar with the term CLIA? C-L-I-A.
18 CLIA.

19 A. Yes, I am.

20 Q. Just plain English, what is CLIA?

21 A. The supervising organization for laboratory
22 studies and what's required controls, and is CLIA waived
23 for some tests.

24 Q. You said that you would have ordered -- in 25 your report to the Department of Health that you would

1 have ordered a CBC. Correct?

2 A. I did say that.

3 Q. Okay.

4 A. I said it -- I believe in my report I said
5 that would have been reasonable.

6 Q. Okay. Do you know how much a CBC machine
7 costs?

8 A. No.

9 Q. Why is that?

10 A. Because I don't own an urgent care.

11 Q. Thank you. Have you ever owned a chemistry
12 panel machine?

13 A. No.

14 Q. Do you know the cost of a chemistry panel
15 machine?

16 A. No.

17 Q. Do you know how long it takes for you to get a
18 CBC result in the emergency department?

19 A. Depends on the emergency department.

20 Q. Okay. What is considered a fast result?

21 A. 15 minutes.

22 Q. 15 minutes.

23 When you worked in 2001 in outpatient setting,
24 how fast did you get the CBC results?

25 A. Probably 15 to 20 minutes.

1 Q. 15 to 20 minutes?

2 A. (Witness nodding head.)

3 Q. Okay. It sounds like you were working in a
4 setting that was attached to a hospital --

5 A. No. We had a CBC machine, a chemistry
6 machine, a troponin machine, EKG machine, X-ray, all --

7 Q. That's pretty -- is it fair to say most 8 outpatient clinics and primary care offices do not have 9 access to what you had access to in 2001?

10 A. I think the designation between walk-in versus 11 urgent care, most walk-in clinics do not. I thought the 12 majority of urgent cares had basic laboratory testing.

13 Q. Why did you assume that?

14 A. By its name, urgent care.

15 Q. By its name?

16 A. Most people -- urgent care -- the urgent cares
17 I've dealt with often send people to us with abnormal
18 lab work.

19 Q. Okay. Are you aware that a lot of times the 20 outpatient setting, they have to order labs through 21 other laboratories, like Quest?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. I know you've been in the hospital since 2001.
24 But do you know roughly how long the turnaround time is 25 for a CBC or chemistry panel through Quest?

1           A.     24 hours.

2           Q.     Thank you.  Sometimes longer than 24 hours.

3                     So is it fair to say that if you saw this 4 patient in an outpatient setting, you said you would
5 order a CBC and a panel that would have taken over --
6 maybe 24 hours or more.  Is that a fair assumption on my 7 part?

8           A.     If I had clinical suspicion of pneumonia and 9 illness, I think that's fair statement, yes, I would 10 have ordered a CBC.

11          Q.     When you worked in the emergency department
12 and through your training years, or baptism by fire,
13 like you said, when you initiate an antibiotic IV for a 14 person with pneumonia, do you rely on the CBC, always 15 rely on the CBC?

16          A.     No.

17          Q.     Have you initiated antibiotics without a CBC
18 or chemistry panel?

19          A.     Absolutely.

20          Q.     Is that prudent to assume on my part that when 21 you suspect pneumonia you can initiate the antibiotics
22 and we're actually encouraged, according to the 23 guidelines, that first dose is very crucial.  Is that
24 correct?

25          A.     If my review of systems and my physical exam

1 support it, and my patient is sick, I initiate
2 antibiotics before I get lab work back.

3 Q. When you say a patient is sick, can you
4 determine how sick a patient is by reading a chart?

5 A. Depends how good the documentation is.

6 Q. Would you say you're very good at 7 documentation?

8 A. I think like most of us, it depends on how 9 busy we are. Basically I'm good at documentation.

10 Q. You're good at documentation.

11 And are you -- I don't know if you made that 12 point before, but are you electronic or do you still use
13 paper charts?

14 A. Electronic.

15 Q. Is it all electronic?

16 A. Electronic and voice dictation.

17 Q. You use both?

18 A. I use voice dictation and templates.

19 Q. Okay. Currently you use both, templates and 20 voice dictation?

21 A. Correct. But it's all electronic.

22 Q. And how long does it take for you to fill out
23 a single patient chart?

24 A. Depends if it's level two or level five visit.
25 Anywhere from five to 15 minutes.

1 DR. IM: Your Honor, am I allowed to object
2 to my own question if he's answering away from what
3 I was trying to ask? Or --

4 THE COURT: Well, usually an objection is
5 raised by the opposing party. If you believe that 6 the witness is not answering a question, however you
7 redirect the witness is up to you.

8 DR. IM: Okay.

9 THE COURT: You may ask me to ask the witness
10 to answer the question.

11 DR. IM: Okay.

12 THE COURT: But I can't decide for you how 13 you choose to do that.

14 DR. IM: Okay.

15 BY DR. IM:

16 Q. You went over the charts and you mentioned
17 that you had a little issue with naproxen and Naprosyn
18 with the Warfarin, the blood thinner on Patient J.K. is 19 that correct?

20 A. It's a mild concern, yes. It was documented
21 as a concern.

22 Q. Do you take a patient's diet history?

23 A. I usually do not.

24 Q. You do not.

25 Are you aware of some of the food items that

1 can interfere with Warfarin, the blood thinner?

2 A. If they're on Warfarin, I'll correct that. I
3 do ask about vegetables, vitamin K-containing products,
4 yes.

5 Q. Just for the Court, why do you ask about
6 vitamin K in Warfarin, in plain English?

7 A. Because those foods and diet changes do
8 counteract and affect the medication.

9 Q. Foods such as grapefruit and other foods that 10 maybe get metabolized to the liver to a degree 11 can interfere with these medications -- medications, in 12 general, but Warfarin, in particular?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. In your opinion, have you seen
15 life-threatening bad outcomes from people on Warfarin,
16 either through unknowingly taking vitamin K supplements
17 or food items have bleeding episodes?

18 A. Usually the other way around, usually the 19 medicine -- the diet counteracts the Warfarin.

20 Q. Have you ever had a patient bleed from too
21 much Warfarin, either accidentally or --

22 A. Commonly.

23 Q. Commonly.

24 And what is the most serious outcome of the 25 Warfarin --

1 A. Death.

2 Q. Death.

3 When you were reviewing the chart on Mr. J.K.,
4 were you aware that the VA had him on several
5 medications such as amlodipine. I think you read that 6 before. Amlodipine.

7 A. I don't know about several, but it was 8 listed -- yes. Amlodipine.

9 Q. Diclofenac?

10 A. Diclofenac was not on --

11 Q. In the VA chart.

12 A. Not on your --

13 Q. It's in the VA chart. It's in exhibit --

14 DR. IM: Give me a second. Ms. Edwards, do
15 you have that VA -- the health summary from the VA?

16 MS. EDWARDS: Wasn't that in the exhibit that 17 you --

18 DR. IM: Pretty sure you submitted that.

19 MS. EDWARDS: The exhibit that --

20 DR. IM: I would like to introduce maybe 21 Exhibit No. 13, the health summary that you gave to 22 me, Ms. Edwards, from the VA, which was a list of 23 all the patient's medications.

24 Do you have that? I guess show it to the 25 Judge.

1 MS. EDWARDS: Exhibit 13 that you provided --

2 DR. IM: I labeled it 13. Yes. I faxed you
3 that copy.

4 MS. EDWARDS: Yes.

5 DR. IM: Would you be able to present that to
6 Dr. Davis?

7 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, may I --

8 THE COURT: Yes.

9 MS. EDWARDS: The exhibit that you're
10 requesting has several of your personal notes, so I
11 would not be comfortable with the review of this. I
12 did bring a clean copy of it. I know that you
13 marked this up, but I would not be comfortable with 14 him looking at --

15 DR. IM: That's okay. Do you have a clean
16 copy?

17 MS. EDWARDS: I do.

18 DR. IM: Would you be able to show that to 19 Dr. Davis?

20 MS. EDWARDS: I would. Your Honor, would you
21 like a clean copy, as well?

22 THE COURT: I would. Thank you.

23 DR. IM: Dr. Davis, I'll wait for you to 24 review, if you haven't seen it yet.

25 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, may we take a brief

1 bathroom break? I'm sorry to interrupt.

2 THE COURT: No, that's fine.

3 MS. EDWARDS: Do you have multiple questions
4 left, Dr. Im?

5 DR. IM: Yes.

6 MS. EDWARDS: May I take a bathroom break
7 since they're having to review records.

8 THE COURT: Madam Court Reporter, do you need
9 a break, as well?

10 THE REPORTER: I'm fine.

11 THE COURT: This would be a good time to 12 break.

13 Let me ask you this, Dr. Im: Do you know
14 about how much longer you'll be with this witness?

15 DR. IM: With this witness, I would guess
16 about another 30 minutes.

17 THE COURT: Okay. So let's go ahead and 18 take -- you said just a bathroom break?

19 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: So then we'll take a break for -- 21 it's 12:16 now. If you can be back at 12:21, kind
22 of a weird number. But let's just take five
23 minutes.

24 THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

25 (Recess taken at 12:16 p.m. Resumed at

1 12:23 p.m.)

2 THE COURT: Okay, Dr. Im.

3 BY DR. IM:

4 Q. Dr. Davis, you had a chance to look over that
5 exhibit?

6 A. Yes, I have.

7 Q. Do you see that the patient was on a good
8 number of medications? Like you said, a lot of VA
9 patients, do you see the Amlodipine?

10 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. Before we get 11 started on this, if I may.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MS. EDWARDS: I have an objection to the 14 relevancy of this line of questioning. This health
15 summary was not available to Dr. Im at the time of 16 treating Patient J.K., he received this information
17 after the investigation. So this information would 18 not have been something in his possession during the 19 time of treatment. So it's not relevant to the case
20 at hand or the issues that are before us today.

21 THE COURT: Okay. Did Dr. Davis review this
22 health summary in forming his opinion?

23 MS. EDWARDS: Not to my knowledge,
24 Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Your response, Dr. Im?

1 DR. IM: Actually, some of these medications
2 were on the notes that Ms. Virginia Edwards, during 3 her questioning of Dr. Davis.

4 BY DR. IM:

5 Q. Do you remember, Doctor --

6 DR. IM: Well, a lot of these medications,
7 Your Honor, was verbally given to my staff when they 8 saw Mr. J.K. on the 15th and the 16th, because we 9 always ask about prior medications.

10 So there's a lot of medications on there
11 that's pertinent to this case.

12 THE COURT: How so?

13 DR. IM: Because even when we ask a question
14 verbally to go off their memory, many times they're 15 not able to recall other medications. So there were 16 a few medications on the -- that was not recorded in 17 the notes that was submitted, but that's actually --
18 that the patient was currently taking. And it
19 happens quite a bit in medicine, with polypharmacy
20 with so many medications out there, including
21 over-the-counter supplements.

22 THE COURT: Okay. How does that -- how does
23 this list relate to that --

24 DR. IM: That was going to be my next
25 question I was going to ask Dr. Davis, but I can --

1 a lot of these medications that we did record,
2 including Amlodipine, has very similar interactions
3 with Tikosyn. The heart medicine that Mr. J.K. was 4 on.

5 THE COURT: Okay. Just a moment.

6 I'm going to give you some leeway here on 7 this question, on the questioning, if it gets too
8 far afield --

9 DR. IM: It won't.

10 THE COURT: If it gets far afield, I will 11 advise you to redirect your questioning. Okay?

12 BY DR. IM:

13 Q. Dr. Davis --

14 THE COURT: So that objection is overruled
15 for now.

16 BY DR. IM:

17 Q. Dr. Davis, do you recall when you stated if 18 you reviewed the notes from Exceptional Urgent Care 19 Center, when Ms. Edwards asked you one of the 20 medications you read was Amlodipine. Is that correct?

21 A. That is correct.

22 Q. Also dofetilide, the Warfarin and the 23 Tamsulosin. Is that correct? T-A-M-S-U-L-O-S-I-N.
24 Tamsulosin? Were you aware prior to today that 25 Amlodipine has very serious contraindications with

1 Tikosyn?

2 A. No, I'm not.

3 Q. Were you aware prior to today that the 4 patient, Mr. J.K., was on vitamins, supplements,
5 over-the-counter medication that had contraindications
6 with Tikosyn?

7 A. I didn't see that documented in your notes.

8 Q. No, I didn't ask about my notes. Were you
9 aware, did you get to review the Department's case?

10 A. Yes, I reviewed the case, and in your 11 deposition you mentioned vitamins and questioned the 12 relation of medicines and vitamins.

13 Q. So is it safe to say that you did not get to 14 review for this case as an expert witness the patient's
15 medications and medical history that the VA supplied,
16 the VA hospital supplied?

17 A. My review is based on your record.

18 Q. Just my record? Yes?

19 A. My case review was based on your record.

20 Correct.

21 Q. I'll just move on for time's sake.

22 Did you get to read, Dr. Davis, the actual 23 interview and the written complaint by Mrs. K.K. to the 24 Department of Health?

25 A. Yes, I did.

1 Q. Do you remember where she stated that for his
2 sore throat she gave him over-the-counter Cepacol?

3 A. I do not recall the details of that.

4 Q. Do you remember when she stated that she gave
5 Tylenol for fever to her husband, J.K.?

6 A. Yes, I do.

7 Q. Does Tylenol help reduce fever? Yes or no?

8 A. Yes, it does.

9 Q. So is it fair to assume a patient who's on 10 Tylenol and pneumonia may not have a fever?

11 A. Patient on Tylenol with pneumonia may not have 12 a fever. Is that your question?

13 Q. Yes or no. Is that a possibility?

14 A. Yes, it is a possibility.

15 Q. You stated in your expert opinion that the 16 oxygen level, 96 percent, is one of the criteria you
17 would use to diagnose pneumonia. Is that correct?

18 A. Oxygen saturation is one of the components
19 used in conjunction with many other things.

20 DR. IM: I realize that me introducing,
21 myself, when I introduce these exhibits it just 22 takes so long, I apologize.

23 I have Exhibit No. 7 that was used during the 24 deposition, it was labeled No. 7 during the 25 deposition. If I could show it to Ms. Edwards, she

1 probably has a clean copy -- because I didn't
2 realize I had to provide all the copies, so I marked
3 mine up. This one here (indicating). This is the 4 one during deposition.

5 MS. EDWARDS: Okay.

6 DR. IM: Do you have a clean copy? Would you
7 be able to show that to Dr. Davis?

8 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, may I approach the 9 witness?

10 THE COURT: Yes. Okay.

11 BY DR. IM:

12 Q. Dr. Davis, do you need a minute to look at 13 that over, or --

14 A. No, I've looked at this before. I'll be glad 15 to answer any specific questions.

16 Q. If you turn to the second page, do you see
17 what's underlined there? Would you be able to read
18 that?

19 A. What's underlined on page two of this
20 diagnostic testing?

21 Q. Sorry, the -- make sure you have the right
22 exhibit. The infectious disease society, says
23 guidelines, management --

24 A. Right. From 2007.

25 Q. Yeah. So I think -- it's a strange page

1 number, but I think it's S-28.

2 A. Correct.

3 Q. Okay. Can you read what's underlined there.

4 A. In addition to a constellation of suggestive
5 clinical features, demonstrable infiltrate by chest
6 X-ray or other imaging technique with or without
7 supplement, supporting microbacterial data, is required
8 for the diagnosis of pneumonia.

9 Q. Would you agree with that statement as an 10 expert witness?

11 A. Level three evidence, I don't fully agree with 12 that.

13 Q. Okay. If you turn to the very next page, I
14 think it's S -- one second here -- S-29. Do you see the 15 section where it says outpatient treatment?

16 A. I do.

17 Q. Okay. Once again, just to clarify, would you
18 agree, yes or no, that outpatient treatment and 19 inpatient treatment is very different?

20 A. I would agree.

21 Q. Okay. So in this guideline there, do you see
22 where it says, presence of comorbidities? Can you
23 define in plain English, what are comorbidities?

24 A. Chronic health issues, diabetes, heart
25 failure.

1 Q. Would you say Mr. J.K. had comorbidities when 2 you reviewed the chart?

3 A. I would, yes.

4 Q. Do you see on the same page where it says a
5 respiratory fluoroquinolone, I have underlined,
6 levofloxacin, which is Levaquin, strong recommendation
7 of level one evidence.

8 Do you see that?

9 A. I do see that.

10 Q. Do you agree with that statement as an expert
11 witness?

12 A. In this day and age, no. This is an article
13 from 2007.

14 Q. Are you familiar with the Infectious Disease
15 Society and the Thoracic Society?

16 A. Yes, I am familiar.

17 Q. Are you aware that it's the gold standard, and 18 even though when you're saying is the year, are you 19 stating that these guidelines are not current because of 20 the year of the article?

21 A. They have been updated since this point in 22 time.

23 Q. Would you share the update, if that's not an 24 accurate statement?

25 A. I don't -- I don't have a printout of it. But

1 it has been updated. And I think it was this year. I
2 don't use -- I don't use Infectious Disease Society
3 Guidelines for my typical care. I think it is an option
4 of care.

5 But this directly contraindicated -- this
6 contradicts several other sources, like UptoDate, from 7 this 2007.

8 Q. Are you familiar with the term gold standard
9 in the practice of medicine?

10 A. I am.

11 Q. There are many standards, you agree?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. In emergency are you familiar with the 14 guidelines for community-acquired pneumonia put out by 15 the American College of Physicians?

16 A. I look at ACP's policy statements and 17 guidelines. I can't quote their pneumonia guideline.

18 Q. So is it safe to say you do not know the 19 current guidelines from the American College of 20 Emergency Physicians as far as treating
21 community-acquired pneumonia?

22 A. Can I recite them right now? No I can't.

23 Q. So you can't refute or argue against the -- 24 that fluoroquinolones, Levaquin, in particular, is the 25 drug of choice with comorbidities?

1           A.     Actually, I did look at ACP's policies and I
2 do remember them referencing Intrathoracic Infectious
3 Disease Society.

4           Q.     Correct.

5           A.     And I don't know the date when that policy was 6 put out or when it was updated.

7                     I do know that my reference on UpToDate
8 differs from this.

9           Q.     Can we turn to S-45, page S-45. You'll see on 10 the top table two, outpatient treatment?

11          A.     Yes.

12          Q.     Do you see the underlined area, respiratory
13 fluoroquinolone -- the dosages is wrong. Do you see 14 that 750 milligram dosage?

15          A.     I do.

16          Q.     Are you familiar with the dosing of Levaquin?

17          A.     Yes, sir, I am.

18          Q.     Do you know if Levaquin is indicated for the 19 treatment of acute bronchitis? Yes or no.

20          A.     No.

21          Q.     Okay. So, no, as in it's not indicated for 22 bronchitis?

23          A.     In this day and age, standard would not be to 24 use Levaquin for bronchitis.

25          Q.     That wasn't the question. My question was not

1 what you prefer. Do you know in the insert of Levaquin
2 if acute bronchitis is an indication for treatment? Yes
3 or no?

4 A. I don't know what the package insert says.

5 Q. Do you look at the package insert for
6 Levaquin?

7 A. Have I ever?

8 Q. In the last two weeks.

9 A. No.

10 Q. The last year?

11 A. In the last year, yes.

12 Q. Do you recall if Levaquin was an indication
13 for acute bacterial bronchitis?

14 A. I know it used to be.

15 Q. And it still is.

16 All right. Probably repetitive, but we're on 17 the exhibit, the last page there. Look at S-47. It's 18 just repeating a respiratory fluoroquinolone level --
19 respiratory fluoroquinolone, levofloxacin,
20 750 milligrams, strong recommendation level one
21 evidence.

22 So I'm done with that exhibit. Yes, I'm done
23 with that exhibit there.

24 If I could just ask a couple more questions?

25 THE COURT: Are you offering this exhibit

1 into evidence?

2 DR. IM: Yes, please.

3 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, any objection?

4 MS. EDWARDS: May I approach the witness? I
5 don't have my copy.

6 THE COURT: Yes.

7 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

8 I object, Your Honor. Again, this is an 9 incomplete copy. If you look at the page numbers at 10 the bottom, also there's underlines and markings in 11 there. And I don't think that there's a proper 12 foundation or authentication to get this article in.
13 The expert testified that this is -- infectious 14 disease article itself is not something that he 15 reviewed based on his opinion. And I don't believe 16 that it should come in.

17 THE COURT: Dr. Im, do you have a complete
18 copy of this article?

19 DR. IM: This is available online. But, no,
20 not today I do not.

21 THE COURT: Okay. With Exhibit No. 7 --
22 Dr. Im, I'll explain this at the end of the hearing.
23 But you'll need to provide a complete copy of this
24 article.

25 DR. IM: Okay. I apologize, Your Honor, I

1 thought I was making it more simple for the Court
2 and the original one that I showed Ms. Edwards
3 during the deposition was literally, as you know, it
4 can be 30 pages, I thought I was just simplifying
5 it.

6 THE COURT: So you are to provide a complete
7 copy of the article and I'll let you know at the end
8 of the hearing how much time you have to do that.

9 DR. IM: That's fine. Thank you.

10 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, your objection's
11 noted. However, if I recall correctly the expert
12 indicated that the society that produced this 13 article is recognized as a -- I don't want to say --
14 let me see exactly what he said -- that it is 15 recognized as authoritative in the area of 16 infectious disease and as it relates to this case
17 there's a question whether there's pneumonia, and it
18 is cross-examination of the Department's expert. So 19 as it relates to the date of the article and what is 20 the most updated copy, since we don't have any other
21 copy or any other reference to review, which Dr. Im
22 has indicated is the most recent article, then my 23 review of that article and the testimony as it
24 relates to that article will be considered -- in 25 evidence will be considered as it relates to the

1 weight as opposed to whether it should be admitted.

2 So Exhibit No. 7 is admitted over the
3 petitioner's objection.

4 And Dr. Im, you will have a date certain to 5 provide a complete copy.

6 DR. IM: Absolutely.

7 THE COURT: Okay.

8 (Respondent's Exhibit No. 7 received in
9 evidence.)

10 BY DR. IM:

11 Q. Dr. Davis, just on Levaquin. Are you familiar
12 with the indications of Levaquin?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. Could you name a few indications for Levaquin.

15 A. Resistant UTI that's sensitive to Levaquin, 16 quinolone, pneumonia.

17 Q. Can you state the dosage?

18 A. It depends on the renal -- depends on their
19 GFR --

20 Q. Normal renal function.

21 A. Typically 750 milligrams.

22 Q. Can you, in plain English, define the 23 pathophysiology difference between bronchitis, acute
24 bacterial bronchitis and pneumonia, not in radiological
25 terms.

1           A.     Bronchitis is simple inflammation of the 2     airways. Can be from many causes.

3           Q.     I said acute bacterial bronchitis?

4           A.     Bronchitis versus bacterial bronchitis.
5     Bronchitis is the airways in a basic level, bronchitis
6     bacterial is inflammation of the airways with secondary
7     bacterial growth. Whereas pneumonia is consolidation,
8     intraparenchymal, in the deeper tissues. How about
9     that.

10          Q.     Right. The word consolidation is what I was 11     hoping you would say. What is consolidation?

12          A.     Consolidation is noted with respect to 13     pneumonia?

14          Q.     Yes.

15          A.     Consolidation with respect to pneumonia is a
16     fluid shift related to bacteria that causes visible
17     congestion in lung tissue and decreases airflow.

18          Q.     In plain English, is acute bacterial
19     bronchitis and pneumonia, is that a continuum?

20          A.     Can be.

21          Q.     You stated in your interview to the Department
22     of Health, and I quote, patient was not given inhalers.
23     Can you clarify that statement?

24          A.     Sure. If a patient has a viral bronchitis or 25     upper respiratory, I would prefer, even personally, an

1 inhaler over an antibiotic because opening the lung
2 tissue, the body can clear mucous and clear congestion.
3 So I think it's safer, number one. And more effective.
4 And literature supports that.

5 Q. Which inhaler are you talking about?

6 A. That comes to physician choice.
7 Bronchodilators are typical, like albuterol.

8 Q. Albuterol. Are you aware that albuterol has a
9 severe interaction with Tikosyn?

10 A. It may, depending on the dose. So then I may 11 go with ipratropium.

12 Q. That was my question. Are you aware yes or no
13 that albuterol, which you mentioned as an inhaler, has 14 serious, severe, as it says, possible interaction with
15 Tikosyn?

16 A. Yes, it's a beta stimulant.

17 Q. Would you still give Mr. J.K. albuterol?

18 A. I would consider it at low dose depending 19 on --

20 Q. Why would you still consider a medication that 21 has such a severe contraindication to Tikosyn?

22 A. I'd run it through the drug checker and see 23 the degree of risk. With patients on Tikosyn and 24 other --

25 Q. Just talking about Tikosyn.

1 A. Tikosyn.

2 Q. Would you, yes or no, use albuterol on
3 Mr. J.K. who was on Tikosyn?

4 A. I would consider it if it was short of breath
5 and wheezing.

6 Q. Would you counsel Mr. J.K. and Mrs. K.K.
7 before using albuterol?

8 A. If there's a warning, interaction warning,
9 yes, I would.

10 Q. You stated in your interview to the Department
11 of Health that Dr. Im did not counsel the patient. How 12 did you come to that conclusion?

13 A. In reviewing this record, even with the 14 addenda note --

15 Q. Which record?

16 A. Looking at your medical record from the 16th.

17 Q. Does it state on that record that I did not 18 counsel the patient? Yes or no?

19 A. Doesn't state that you did.

20 Q. That wasn't my question. Does it state in the 21 chart that I did not go over the results with the 22 patient in the room, the CT results and the INR results?
23 Does it state in the chart that I did not go over those 24 results with the patient, yes or no?

25 A. There is no statement in this chart that says

1 you did not talk to the patient.

2 Q. Did you get to read Mrs. K.K.'s deposition or 3 her letter of complaint to the Department of Health?

4 A. Yes, I did.

5 Q. Okay. Were you aware that she complained in 6 written form and during the deposition her main premise
7 was that I did not counsel the patient, Mr. J.K., her
8 husband?

9 A. I know that was one of the -- in her written
10 claim, yes.

11 Q. Can you define the word counsel?

12 A. Definition -- if I counsel the patient, I
13 would expect it to include procedure of medicine-wise, 14 risk of the medication with specifics, benefits and 15 options.

16 Q. In the ER when you go over CT chest results
17 with patients that you see with pneumonia, do you go
18 over the results with the patient verbally,
19 face-to-face?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. Do you always document in your chart that 22 you've reviewed the CT results with the patient in every 23 chart?

24 A. In every chart? No.

25 Q. So is it fair to assume that even if you don't

1 document in every chart, that you went over the CT
2 results with the patient, that you in -- in actuality
3 you may have gone over the CT results with the patient
4 verbally?

5 A. If I didn't document it I can't say I did it.

6 Q. That wasn't the question.

7 A. Then rephrase.

8 Q. So is it true for me to -- is it safe to 9 assume that even if you did not document in your notes
10 when you see patients with pneumonia in the ER, 11 emergency department, even without the documentation is 12 it safe to assume -- or is it correct to assume that you
13 may have gone over the results verbally, but not have 14 documented it in every chart?

15 A. No. If I say a patient has pneumonia, I've 16 counseled them on their diagnosis.

17 Q. So the question before was: Do you in every 18 chart, when you go over the results of the CT, chest
19 results, do you document in every chart that you see
20 that you counseled the patient on the CT results?

21 A. Specifically, I can't say I do in every chart.

22 Q. When you go over lab results, CBC, chemistry
23 panels, do you document in your chart that you've gone
24 over the results with the patient, every patient that 25 you come across in the emergency department?

1 A. Every patient?

2 Q. Yes.

3 A. I'll say no.

4 Q. Okay. So is it safe to assume that most 5 emergency department doctors, lots of things they say in 6 the room, not everything gets documented verbatim into
7 the chart. Is that correct?

8 A. I think important stuff is documented.

9 Q. Do you consider CT results important?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. Do you document all CT reports that you've 12 gone over with patients, do you document in every 13 patient chart?

14 A. I document the CT report. Did I counsel every 15 patient on that CT report? I can't say I did.

16 Q. Again, the -- when Dr. Im -- sorry, referring 17 to myself in third person, if that's okay, it's just 18 easier for me to present. Or should I just say me?

19 THE COURT: If you're asking me, you can 20 present however you choose. Usually if you refer to 21 yourself in third person, but it's up to you. But 22 you don't need to do that.

23 DR. IM: All right.

24 BY DR. IM:

25 Q. Is it safe to assume, Dr. Davis, that when I

1 entered the room with Mr. J.K., the patient, he was very
2 ill. In his deposition -- he's not here right now. In
3 his deposition he stated he was so ill he doesn't recall
4 my conversation with him?

5 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. Respondent's
6 testifying.

7 DR. IM: Okay.

8 THE COURT: Are you leading up to a question,
9 Dr. Im?

10 DR. IM: I was going to.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Overruled. Go ahead with 12 your question.

13 BY DR. IM:

14 Q. If, if I entered the room with Mr. J.K. and 15 went over the preliminary CT results, would you consider
16 that counseling?

17 A. Counseled as to the results? Counseling on 18 what, specifically?

19 Q. Would that be part of counseling the patient?

20 A. Going over CT report/results is a form of 21 counseling.

22 Q. Thank you.

23 If I spoke to Mrs. K.K. on the phone and went 24 over the importance of using Levaquin as a drug of 25 choice, and that the other antibiotics would not work in

1 this situation because of the seriousness of his
2 illness, would you consider that as an expert witness
3 part of counseling?

4 A. If it was done?

5 Q. Yeah. If.

6 A. If it was done and documented, I guess it was.
7 If it was done I would consider -- counseling can be
8 done in person, on the phone...

9 Q. If I spent -- let me rephrase it.

10 If I spoke to Mrs. K.K. on the phone the day
11 after she presented on March 16th, and tried to reassure
12 her that the risk of Levaquin and Tikosyn is very rare,
13 would you consider that part of counseling?

14 A. If you spoke with the patient on the phone or 15 the patient's spouse, that can be considered counseling.

16 Q. Again, I apologize the plaintiffs are not 17 here, so I think I'm down to my last question, actually.

18 The practice of medicine, would you agree,
19 especially nowadays, there are newer and newer
20 prescription medications, but specifically more what I
21 want -- what I want to ask is there's so many 22 over-the-counter medications. How do you stay up with 23 all these over-the-counter medications in your practice
24 of medicine today?

25 A. I use Epocrates and --

1 Q. I say over the counter.

2 A. Over the counter you can still pull up -- you
3 can't keep up with all of them.

4 Q. How about verbal supplements?

5 A. What about them?

6 Q. How do you stay up with all these different
7 herbal supplements that people are on nowadays?

8 A. Specific to whatever patients tell me they're 9 on.

10 Q. No. I said, how do you stay current, is my 11 question? How do you --

12 A. If a patient tells me they're on a specific 13 herb, I go online and look it up.

14 Q. Do you go look up every herb that the patient
15 brings up?

16 A. If it's in question related to their illness,
17 I do.

18 Q. So I'll rephrase the question: Do you always 19 look up, when you see a list on a patient's chart, do
20 you look up every single herbal supplement --

21 A. No, I do not.

22 DR. IM: Thank you. I don't think I need to 23 get specific with that. I'll skip that.

24 One more exhibit. Sorry. I have to 25 introduce my last exhibit. It's a drug insert from

1 the medication Tikosyn. I think mine is marked up.
2 I have it as Exhibit No. 10. And it is the drug
3 insert from the medication Tikosyn. Yes, that's the 4 one. Can you present it to Dr. Davis? That will be 5 my last exhibit.

6 MS. EDWARDS: Can I approach?

7 THE COURT: Yes.

8 DR. IM: Would you like a minute to look that 9 over? It's just the drug insert.

10 THE WITNESS: Okay.

11 BY DR. IM:

12 Q. Dr. Davis, is it -- well, let me show you the 13 insert here. Hopefully I have a complete -- if you turn
14 to page, I think it's page nine, do you see the warnings
15 under ventricular arrhythmias?

16 A. Third page on mine?

17 Q. Yes.

18 A. Yes.

19 Q. Could you read that.

20 A. Tikosyn can cause serious ventricular
21 arrhythmias, primarily torsades-type ventricular
22 tachycardia, polymorphic ventricular tachycardia
23 associated with QT interval prolongation. QT interval
24 prolongation is directly related to dofetilide plasma
25 concentration.

1 Q. Yeah. Very scientific. But we don't -- you
2 say you're very familiar with Tikosyn. Correct?

3 A. I am familiar with Tikosyn, yes.

4 Q. So we can go off this.

5 So with Tikosyn, do you know the incidence of 6 ventricular dysrhythmia while patients are on Tikosyn?

7 A. Do I know the incidence of being on Tikosyn
8 alone, without other --

9 Q. Yes, sir, Tikosyn alone, by itself, without 10 drug-to-drug interactions?

11 A. I can't tell you the incidence of that drug 12 causing more harm than good. What's your question
13 related to the --

14 Q. No, I said have you looked at the insert
15 before for the medication Tikosyn?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. So are you familiar with the medicine Tikosyn?

18 A. I'm familiar with the medicine.

19 Q. Okay. Do you know the incidence of fatal --
20 or high-risk dysrhythmias while on Tikosyn, roughly?

21 A. I can't quote it, know.

22 Q. We can go to page --

23 A. Like around three percent.

24 Q. Yeah. That's what -- so the -- I didn't want
25 to get too scientific. Yeah, roughly three percent. So

1 three percent in simple math, would you consider that in 2 the medical world, would you consider that low risk,
3 medium risk or high risk, in your expert opinion?

4 A. In general, three percent is low. When you
5 consider -- I'll just say in general terms, three 6 percent is low.

7 Q. How many cases of torsades have you seen in 8 your career?

9 A. In my career, including ambulance, probably 10 true torsades --

11 Q. True torsades.

12 A. Probably five.

13 Q. I saw two.

14 So is it safe to assume in your expert opinion
15 torsades is very rare?

16 A. It is rare.

17 Q. So if three out of a hundred patients are at 18 risk for developing torsades, do you consider that low
19 risk?

20 A. Three percent --

21 Q. Is low risk.

22 A. -- is low. Is it acceptable? Three percent
23 is low, and I'll leave it at that.

24 Q. So in your expert opinion, with somebody who 25 has chronic atrial fibrillation, would you prescribe

1 Tikosyn? In your single expert opinion.

2 A. Once again, I said I would like Tikosyn
3 prescribing to the cardiologist.

4 Q. If you could answer the question.

5 Would you --

6 A. No.

7 Q. Why not?

8 A. Because I leave -- I leave Class III
9 antidysrhythmic to cardiology to prescribe.

10 Q. Why is that?

11 A. Because it's a subspecialty drug.

12 Q. Correct.

13 Can you define that in plain English? What 14 does that mean?

15 A. It's a more specialized medicine for more 16 significant heart rhythm problems. And most --

17 Q. Used for atrial fibrillation. Correct?

18 A. Primarily.

19 Q. Do you know how common atrial fibrillation is 20 in the elderly?

21 A. Extremely.

22 Q. Extremely common. But yet Tikosyn is a rare
23 medication. Correct, used by subspecialists, you said?

24 A. Used by specialists. Used by cardiologists.

25 Q. Electrophysiology, specifically, correct?

1           A.     Can be used by EP docs, but it's used by
2 cardiologists, as well.

3           Q.     In your opinion, are you aware if an 4 outpatient, outpatient cardiologist can initiate
5 Tikosyn?

6           A.     Yes.

7           Q.     Are you sure?

8           A.     Uh-huh.

9           Q.     Were you aware that a patient on Tikosyn has 10 to be admitted to the hospital for observation for 11 minimum three days?

12          A.     They --

13          Q.     Were you aware? Yes-or-no question.

14          A.     I'll rephrase.

15          Q.     It's a yes-or-no question.

16                 Were you aware that a patient has to be 17 admitted to the hospital for three days minimum for 18 observation to initiate this medication, Tikosyn? Yes
19 or no?

20          A.     I will correct my statement and say, yes, I
21 will, on a dofetilide drip.

22          Q.     You were aware prior to today that -- okay.

23          A.     So I'm recanting my prior statement of 24 initiating outpatient Tikosyn is -- that's up to the 25 cardiologist.

1           Q.     Is there such thing as initiating Tikosyn in
2 an outpatient setting?

3           A.     No.

4           Q.     Thank you.

5                     So just along this same line. In order to 6 initiate Tikosyn, a patient has to be admitted to the 7 hospital for three days. Do you know why? In your 8 expert --

9           A.     Because they're going to be monitored.

10          Q.     Why?

11                    MS. EDWARDS: Objection to this line of 12 questioning. The issues at fact -- relevancy
13 objection. May I explain?

14                    THE COURT: Yes.

15                    MS. EDWARDS: The issues at fact are not 16 regarding whether or not Tikosyn was prescribed. I
17 believe we've allowed a lot of leeway on these 18 Tikosyn questions. But the Tikosyn was not 19 prescribed by Dr. Im, and that is not related to the 20 issue. The related issue is the prescribing of the 21 Levaquin, and I believe that we're going very far
22 into the Tikosyn prescription and the cardiologist,
23 which is not what Dr. Davis is an expert in.

24                    THE COURT: All right. Dr. Im?

25                    DR. IM: The practice of medicine, it is very

1 dangerous to just narrowly focus on one medication,
2 and that's what Ms. K.K. did, she focused on 3 Tikosyn. So what I am trying to get the expert
4 witness to share with the Court is why this
5 medication is so subspecialized.

6 THE COURT: Okay.

7 DR. IM: Neither Dr. Davis nor myself have 8 initiated it, so I just want to ask him -- because 9 Mrs. K.K.'s -- who's not here yet -- main premise is 10 because of her husband being on Tikosyn, and that's 11 all she focused on, not the other medication.

12 So I would like the expert witness to give 13 his opinion on Tikosyn. So if I can proceed.

14 THE COURT: I think you have asked -- looking 15 at my notes -- extensive questions regarding the 16 interaction between Tikosyn and Levaquin, which is 17 at issue in this case. So if you have any 18 additional questions related to those two drugs and 19 how they interact with each other then that would be 20 the appropriate line of questioning at this point.

21 And based on -- just looking here, again, at 22 my notes. Based on the doctor's testimony, he's 23 made it clear he's not a cardiologist, and he has no
24 training in that area --

25 DR. IM: Okay.

1           THE COURT:  -- because his background and
2           certifications are in family medicine and emergency
3           medicine.

4           So that objection is sustained.

5           DR. IM:  Okay.

6  BY DR. IM:

7           Q.    So my last question, then, would be:
8           Dr. Davis, you stated you're not an expert in 9           cardiology, you're not an expert in pharmacy, you're not 10          an expert in radiology.  But yet you gave expert
11          testimony to support the plaintiffs, who are not here
12          yet.

13          Would you consider yourself an expert in 14          urgent care medicine?  Yes or no?

15          A.    Yes.

16          Q.    How do you come to that conclusion that you
17          are an expert in urgent care medicine?

18          A.    With dual certification in family medicine and 19          emergency medicine, I think I clearly understand the 20          field of -- and I do fast-track in the emergency
21          department on days, so --

22          Q.    That's still inpatient.

23          A.    Outpatient setting, with testing options.

24          DR. IM:  Your Honor, maybe if you could 25          redirect the witness here.  I'll ask it again.

1 BY DR. IM:

2 Q. Yes or no. I just want you to answer yes or 3 no. Are you stating for the record that you are an 4 expert in urgent care medicine?

5 A. Yes.

6 Q. I'm confused, Dr. Davis. If you ask, let's
7 say the case at hand, to give you leeway because you're 8 not an expert in pharmacy, expert in cardiology and 9 expert in radiology, but yet you're using a criteria to 10 say you're an expert in urgent care medicine, that 11 criteria is based on what?

12 A. Because urgent care is split between primary
13 family medicine and emergency medicine.

14 Q. Whose definition is that?

15 A. There is no residency for urgent care, sir.

16 Q. Is there a fellowship in urgent care medicine?
17 Yes or no?

18 A. I don't know if there is.

19 Q. There is.

20 Are you aware of any -- I won't testify.

21 Are you aware of any fellowships --

22 THE COURT: Dr. Im -- do you have an
23 objection?

24 MS. EDWARDS: The objection was the 25 respondent is testifying, if I can have a standing

1 objection.

2 THE COURT: That still remains. Go ahead,
3 Doctor.

4 BY DR. IM:

5 Q. Are you aware that there are fellowships in
6 urgent care medicine today?

7 A. I wasn't aware.

8 Q. And are you aware there's certification in
9 urgent care medicine today?

10 A. I can't name any certifying boards, but I
11 believe there would be.

12 Q. So is it safe to say that you do not have a 13 certification, board certification in urgent care
14 medicine?

15 A. I am board certified in family medicine and 16 ER, not urgent care.

17 DR. IM: Your Honor, I would like to move or 18 motion the Court to strike Dr. Davis' expert
19 testimony. I think it's based -- I can't pronounce
20 the name, Daubert, D-A-U-B-E-R-T. Give me a second.
21 I Googled it. It's a Daubert versus Merrell Dow
22 Pharms.

23 Dr. Davis admitted that he has no formal 24 training or board certification in internal 25 medicine, therefore he is not an expert in urgent

1 care medicine. Mr. J.K. was seen in the urgent care
2 center. Therefore, the logical conclusion is that
3 he is not an expert in urgent care, therefore I ask
4 that you strike his expert testimony today.

5 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards?

6 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, he was tendered as 7 an expert in both family practice as well as the 8 urgent care -- I mean, excuse me, emergency
9 medicine, which are both related to things that are 10 seen at the urgent care center.

11 766.102 -- if I may take a moment to look at 12 the statute.

13 THE COURT: Yes.

14 MS. EDWARDS: 766.102(5) discusses the expert
15 testimony can be if they are offered as a specialist
16 in the same specialty area, but they have an active
17 clinical practice with regards to the same
18 specialty, having devoted professional time during 19 the three years immediately preceding. He has 20 through his testimony advised that he treats
21 patients with similar circumstances such as 22 pneumonia, the flu, bronchitis with the same
23 medications that were prescribed to Patient J.K.,
24 although it's a VA facility and not an urgent care
25 facility. He did also testify that he sees walk-in

1 patients and has said numerous times that he does
2 the fast-track, which is an outpatient setting as 3 well. We believe that he is qualified to render his 4 expert opinion today.

5 DR. IM: May I ask one last question,
6 Your Honor? Or not yet?

7 THE COURT: Just one second.

8 DR. IM: Okay.

9 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, in the response to 10 interrogatories, which has been marked as 11 Petitioner's Exhibit 6, there's a reference in 12 interrogatory eight that says, please see curriculum
13 vitae. Do you have that copy of that CV? That's 14 referring to Dr. Im's CV.

15 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor. He did not 16 provide that with the interrogatories, but it is in 17 part of his deposition. If you go to tab 13 you'll 18 see there's a divider in there that's unmarked, that 19 there were exhibits. The CV is going to be on page 20 76.

21 THE COURT: Thank you.

22 Okay. So, Dr. Im, as it relates to your 23 motion to strike Dr. Davis' testimony on the basis
24 that he is not qualified as an expert under the 25 Daubert standard, I'm going to overrule -- I'm going

1 to consider that as an objection and overrule that
2 objection. And point out that in your CV it
3 indicates that you are board certified in emergency
4 medicine, as well as urgent care medicine.

5 DR. IM: Your Honor, which CV?

6 THE COURT: Doctor, if you'll allow me to 7 finish it will be a much clearer record.

8 DR. IM: Sorry.

9 THE COURT: And so based on the fact that 10 Dr. Im is board certified in emergency medicine as 11 is Dr. Davis, and based on Dr. Davis' testimony
12 regarding his experience in urgent care matters, and 13 that those matters arise whether it be inpatient or 14 outpatient setting.

15 I'm going to overrule your objection as it
16 relates to Dr. Davis' testimony. His testimony will 17 not be stricken from the record.

18 And as it relates to Dr. Im's board
19 certification in urgent care medicine, as I weigh 20 the evidence that may be a consideration when making
21 the findings of fact and determining the credibility
22 of each witness and the weight I will give to each
23 witness' testimony.

24 Okay. Dr. Im, do you have any questions
25 about that?

1 DR. IM: Just one question, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: Yes.

3 DR. IM: I don't know if you spoke
4 incorrectly or if I heard you incorrectly, but I'm 5 not board certified in emergency medicine.

6 THE COURT: I don't know if you want to go on 7 record regarding your CV about that.

8 DR. IM: Yes, I would like to go on record.
9 That is one of the deposition questions --

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 DR. IM: I was going during my deposition,
12 she didn't get to -- I don't know if I'm -- she 13 asked me if I got to finish my part two and three of 14 emergency medicine board certification. I finished
15 my residency in 2002, in 2004 I opened up an urgent
16 care center. I never got to complete the process of 17 board certification in emergency medicine, so I'm 18 not board certified in medicine.

19 THE COURT: What's that page number, again?

20 MS. EDWARDS: 76. May I ask a question,
21 Your Honor?

22 THE COURT: Yes.

23 MS. EDWARDS: Just because we're talking
24 about board certification, please let me know if 25 it's appropriate, since he's speaking to it. I

1 don't see it in here, either. Are you board
2 certified in emergency care medicine? May I ask him
3 that?

4 THE COURT: I'm about to ask a few questions.

5 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: And since he insisted that I go
7 on the record I want to do it appropriately.

8 And since we are addressing it in a context
9 as to whether Dr. Davis is, indeed, qualified as an
10 expert in this matter according to Florida Statute
11 766.102, and as it relates to the Daubert standard.
12 I'm reviewing your CV, Dr. Im, which was provided to 13 the Department in connection with your deposition,
14 as Ms. Edwards has stated. I would like you to take 15 a look at it, if you want to step forward. I want 16 to make sure you're looking at what I'm looking at.

17 DR. IM: Yes. What tab is that?

18 MS. EDWARDS: Tab 13, page 76.

19 DR. IM: Tab 13, page 76?

20 MS. EDWARDS: Yes. After that, you'll see
21 after the yellow.

22 DR. IM: Oh, after the yellow?

23 MS. EDWARDS: Yes.

24 THE COURT: Do you have the CV in front of 25 you?

1 DR. IM: Yes, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: I am going to ask you a series of
3 questions.

4 DR. IM: Go right ahead.

5 THE COURT: So what is the American Academy
6 of Emergency Medicine?

7 DR. IM: That was professional society that I
8 belonged to while I was a resident.

9 THE COURT: What is the American Academy of 10 Emergency Care Medicine?

11 THE WITNESS: That is an association that I
12 belonged to while I practiced urgent care medicine.

13 THE COURT: You said while you were 14 practicing --

15 DR. IM: While I practiced urgent care
16 medicine.

17 THE COURT: Okay. And what is the American
18 Osteopathic Association.

19 DR. IM: That is a national society of 20 osteopathic physicians, a national society that 21 we're members of.

22 THE COURT: Okay. And what is the American
23 Medical Association?

24 DR. IM: That I am no longer currently active
25 with. That is another national society for

1 physicians, that is equivalent to the American
2 Osteopathic Association. Usually doctors can be a
3 member of both or one or the other. Sometimes, in 4 my case, cost-wise... So that is not current as far
5 as the American Medical Association.

6 THE COURT: Okay. So you're not certified by 7 any boards?

8 DR. IM: No, I never got it completed.

9 THE COURT: Okay. So definitely with that 10 said, then Dr. Davis is qualified to testify in this
11 case given his board certification in emergency
12 medicine as well as in family medicine, and his 13 experience as it relates to urgent care in the realm
14 of note two, board certifications. I do stand
15 corrected, and thank you very much for correcting me
16 on that.

17 I would state after this proceeding that you
18 correct your CV so it's up to date.

19 And then with that said, Dr. Davis' testimony
20 will be allowed and your objection's overruled.
21 Thank you.

22 DR. IM: I just have one last question, if I
23 may, to Dr. Davis.

24 THE COURT: You have gone well beyond the 30
25 minutes that you said that you would like to --

1 DR. IM: That's fine.

2 THE COURT: I'm just cautioning you on that
3 because right now it's at 1:30. And we are here
4 till 5:00 p.m. today. That is -- this case is
5 noticed for just today. Not saying it cannot go
6 beyond today, if we can't finish it today. But the 7 30 minutes you indicated you would be finished with 8 Dr. Davis was about 30 minutes ago.

9 So very, very, very briefly, if you have 10 additional questions for Dr. Davis, and then we'll 11 move on.

12 DR. IM: I just realized, it's a very crucial 13 question I missed.

14 BY DR. IM:

15 Q. Dr. Davis, when you're charting in the 16 emergency department, when you admit a patient, called 17 the admitting diagnosis, is that the final diagnosis on 18 a patient?

19 A. It's often different than the discharge
20 diagnosis.

21 Q. So would the patient, depending on after the 22 patient's admitted, your diagnosis in the emergency
23 department, is that considered a preliminary diagnosis?

24 A. Considered an admitting diagnosis.
25 Justification for why you're admitting the patient. May

1 be similar or have variations to when the patient is 2 discharged.

3 Q. And what is a final diagnosis?

4 A. In relation to what?

5 Q. The patient you admitted. The terminology,
6 final diagnosis.

7 A. I guess the only final diagnosis is really on 8 autopsy.

9 DR. IM: Okay. No further questions.

10 THE COURT: Thank you. Ms. Edwards, do you
11 have any redirect?

12 MS. EDWARDS: May I have one moment to 13 confer?

14 THE COURT: Yes.

15 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor. I don't 16 think we're going to ask any further redirect
17 questions. But we would, with time, ask that he be 18 able to remain as a rebuttal witness if Dr. Im is 19 going to be providing testimony.

20 THE COURT: Yes, that's fine.

21 MS. EDWARDS: Okay.

22 THE COURT: So, Dr. Davis, it looks like you
23 have to hang out with us a little while longer, but 24 you may leave the stand. And just remember you're 25 under oath, so no discussion of your testimony with

1 anyone.

2 (Witness excused from stand.)

3 THE COURT: Okay. It's 1:30, approximately 4 1:30, Ms. Edwards. Would you like to proceed with 5 your next witness?

6 MS. EDWARDS: K.K. is available, I believe
7 she's been there waiting for us. I'll have to call
8 the conference room and do that, or proceed with 9 that. If you need a break I can call -- however you
10 want to do. We have a room reserved for them and I
11 just want to make sure, unfortunately due to the 12 last minute getting it set up with the hotel, we are 13 trying to get their testimony today on the record.

15 a break?

16 THE REPORTER: No.

17 THE COURT: Dr. Im, do you need a break?

18 DR. IM: No.

19 THE COURT: Okay. I take the Department's 20 attorney as a package, but I'll still ask you, do
21 you need a break?

22 MR. WALKER: No.

23 THE COURT: Okay. Let's try to get her on
24 the phone.

25 MS. EDWARDS: Okay. We're just going to

1 do --

2 THE COURT: Ms. K.K., yes.

3 MS. EDWARDS: Okay.

4 (Calling witness on a conference phone.)

5 (Discussions off the record.)

6 THE COURT: Ms. Faye, this is Judge Green.

7 Can you hear me?

8 NOTARY: We've got the volume all the way up
9 now.

10 THE COURT: You can hear me just fine now?

11 NOTARY: Yeah.

12 THE COURT: So I have a couple of 13 questions -- and we can go on the record, Madam
14 Court Reporter. I have a couple questions before I
15 swear the witness.

16 Can you please state your name?

17 NOTARY: Faye Talatzko. First name is F as 18 in Frank, A-Y-E. Last name is T-A-L-A-T-Z-K-O. I'm 19 the Notary.

20 THE COURT: Thank you very much. Do you have 21 a notary number in the state of Wisconsin?

22 NOTARY: No, we don't.

23 THE COURT: Okay. Any certification that you
24 refer to when you're swearing witnesses?

25 NOTARY: Say that one more time.

1 THE COURT: I said, any particular
2 certification identifier that you use when swearing
3 witnesses?

4 NOTARY: No, there isn't.

5 THE COURT: Okay. So then what I'll ask you
6 to do, and you can also follow up with Ms. Edwards
7 with the Department, and she'll let you know how to 8 file the particular form confirming that the witness
9 was properly identified and, of course, sworn.
10 Okay?

11 NOTARY: That sounds good. I did look at her
12 driver's license when she came and I confirmed that.

13 THE COURT: Perfect.

14 If you could go ahead and swear the witness,
15 please.

16 Whereupon,

17 MS. K.K.,
18 a witness herein, having been first duly sworn,
19 was examined and testified as follows:

20 THE WITNESS: I do.

21 THE COURT: Thank you. Ms. Talatzko, right?

22 NOTARY: That's correct.

23 THE COURT: Thank you, Ms. Talatzko.

24 Ms. K.K., we're going to refer to you as K.K.
25 Of course, if there's any reference to your given

1 name we've asked the Court Reporter to only
2 reference you with your initials in the record.
3 Okay?

4 THE WITNESS: Okay.

5 THE COURT: So Ms. Edwards will begin with 6 her questions, then after Ms. Edwards completes her
7 questions then Dr. Im will have an opportunity to 8 ask you some questions, as well.

9 THE WITNESS: Okay.

10 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards.

11 MS. EDWARDS: Is Ms. Talatzko free to go?

12 THE COURT: Yes.

13 NOTARY: Thank you.

14 DIRECT EXAMINATION

15 BY MS. EDWARDS:

16 Q. Ms. K.K., can you hear me?

17 A. Yes, I can. It's a little echoey, though.
18 Sometimes I might need you to repeat. Okay?

19 Q. Yes, ma'am.

20 Ms. K.K., do you remember where you were on -- 21 in March of 2018?

22 A. Do I remember what?

23 Q. Do you remember where you were in March of 24 2018?

25 A. Yeah, we were in The Villages, Florida.

1 Q. Hold on just a moment.

2 Ms. K.K., is that better?

3 A. Oh, yeah. It is. Thank you very much.

4 Q. Perfect. Thank you.

5 Where were you in March of 2018?

6 A. We were in The Villages, Florida.

7 Q. Do you remember events that occurred on 8 March 15th and March 16th of 2018?

9 A. Yes, I do.

10 Q. Let's start with March 15th. What happened on 11 that day?

12 A. I don't have my documentation in front of me,
13 but I believe that was the day that my husband had 14 become ill and went to Dr. Im's clinic to have him seen.

15 Q. What were his symptoms?

16 A. He had a very sore throat, he had a lot of 17 congestion, he had a fever, quite a bit of a fever, I
18 believe.

19 Q. Where specifically did you go?

20 A. Trying to think of the name of his clinic. I
21 didn't bring any of my stuff with me and I have 22 forgotten the name of his clinic. Oh, something urge --
23 urgent care. Is it just an urgent care? I've forgotten
24 the name of it, sorry. But it was Dr. Im's clinic right
25 behind the Wedgewood shopping area.

1 Q. Was this your first time at that facility?

2 A. No, I had been there, I believe, several years
3 before we had gone there, both my husband and myself.

4 Q. Where do you normally go when you're ill?

5 A. Actually those are the only two times we've
6 had to go in for anything like that. My husband does go
7 to the VA for his regular care while we're in 8 The Villages, the VA clinic.

9 Q. Okay. Why did you go to the urgent care that 10 day instead of the VA?

11 A. I believe the VA was closed that day.

12 Q. Okay. If you know, what medications was your 13 husband taking at the time?

14 A. He has a couple of different medications.
15 I've got them in my phone. He's on Tamsulosin, he's on 16 Amlodipine and Tikosyn and Warfarin.

17 Q. Okay. If he had issue with any of these --
18 the currently prescribed medications, which provider
19 would you discuss those issues with?

20 A. His cardiologist.

21 Q. Where is his cardiologist located?

22 A. His cardiologist is in Wisconsin. In Madison,
23 Wisconsin.

24 Q. Thank you.

25 Let's go back to March 15th. Were you with

1 J.K. entire time you were at the urgent care?

2 A. Except when they took him out into the next
3 room to give him a chest X-ray, yes.

4 Q. Do you know who treated your husband that day?

5 A. It was a female doctor. I believe later
6 somebody said it was his sister, but I am not positive
7 of that.

8 Q. To your recollection was any testing performed
9 that day?

10 A. She did a chest X-ray, she did a swab on him,
11 she did, I think, a cheek or nasal swab on him, took his 12 temperature. Yeah.

13 Q. Where was the testing done?

14 A. Right in the clinic there in the room that 15 they had brought us into. And then the chest X-ray was 16 in another room.

17 Q. How long did the chest X-ray take?

18 A. Oh, minutes. I mean, if it was that long. He 19 was in and out of there in no time.

20 Q. Do you know who performed the chest X-ray?

21 A. I couldn't say. No, I didn't see it so I
22 couldn't actually say who actually did it.

23 Q. Okay. Was any other testing ordered or 24 performed?

25 A. No. Nothing that I can recall. No.

1           Q.     Did the treating practitioner that day advise
2 you both of the results of the testing?

3           A.     She -- yeah. She said his lungs were clear,
4 and so there was, you know, nothing going on there. And 5 also I believe she said that she didn't get anything on 6 the swab to indicate infection.

7           Q.     To your knowledge what was the diagnosis on
8 March 15th?

9           A.     She really didn't give us a diagnosis. She 10 really actually didn't give us a diagnosis. She 11 basically had said that if he wasn't feeling better the 12 next day to bring him back in by 10 a.m.

13          Q.     Okay. And what treatment was provided?

14          A.     I think she said to take Tylenol for keeping
15 his fever down. And she also said one other thing --
16 the one thing she brought up was if you want to go --
17 she must have prescribed something because we did go
18 over to the pharmacy. And one of the things she said
19 that she prescribed was Tamiflu, and she said if the 20 Tamiflu is real expensive and your insurance won't cover
21 it, don't bother because I don't think that's anything
22 that he has going on, you know, from what she was 23 looking at.

24                    So we did not get the Tamiflu. And I don't
25 remember the other prescription.

1 Q. Okay. To your knowledge, was J.K. seen by
2 anyone else from the urgent care center on March 15th?

3 A. No. Not that I recall.

4 Q. Okay. After you left the urgent care that day
5 where did you go next?

6 A. I got -- we went to the grocery store
7 pharmacy, to Publix. Got what they told us to pick up.
8 And I took him home.

9 Q. Did you pick up all the medications?

10 A. All but the Tamiflu.

11 Q. Did J.K. take any other medication that day,
12 including over the counter?

13 A. Just his regular medication.

14 Q. Okay. Did his --

15 A. And Tylenol.

16 Q. Tylenol. Thank you.

17 Did his symptoms improve?

18 A. No.

19 Q. Now let's move to March 16th. What happened
20 that day?

21 A. So I brought him back March 16th at 10 a.m.
22 because he wasn't feeling better.

23 Q. Were you with J.K. that entire time that day?

24 A. Yes.

25 Q. Who was J.K. seen by?

1 A. Dr. Im.

2 Q. What was discussed?

3 A. Basically he wasn't -- Dr. Im was not sure
4 what was going on. He determined there was no
5 infection. I told him that he was not on Tamiflu, so he 6 said that was good because it made it easier to 7 determine what was going on, nothing like that. And 8 then ultimately he decided it was allergies.

9 Q. Okay. What were J.K.'s symptoms that day?

10 A. Very similar with the exception that his 11 fever, I believe, was gone.

12 Q. Was any testing ordered?

13 A. Yes. He did another -- it wasn't a chest
14 X-ray, it was, I believe, an ultrasound that I actually 15 didn't realize he was going to do. But he did do an 16 ultrasound.

17 Q. Where was the ultrasound performed?

18 A. In the clinic. And, again, in another room.

19 Q. Did Dr. Im advise you both of the results of 20 the testing?

21 A. I don't remember if he said anything about the 22 ultrasound. But he advised that he prescribed some 23 drugs and advised that he take them because he thought
24 this was strictly allergies due to, you know, pollens
25 and things.

1 Q. Okay. To your knowledge, what was the
2 diagnosis on March 16th?

3 A. Allergies. Just allergic.

4 Q. Okay. What treatment was provided?

5 A. He wrote us some prescriptions.

6 Q. Do you know the name of those prescriptions?

7 A. Again, I didn't bring any kind of 8 documentation. I remember there was an antibiotic, and 9 I can't remember all of them. I'm sure it's in the 10 record, but -- yeah, I don't remember. An antibiotic
11 that started with a V, that's the one I actually
12 remember.

13 Q. Okay. Did you have any concerns with the 14 medications that were prescribed?

15 A. Yes. When I asked -- when he started writing
16 us prescriptions, I did ask him if any of these are 17 contraindicated with any of my husband's current 18 medications, which we had given them when we filled out
19 the paperwork. And I brought up in particular the drug,
20 Tikosyn. At that time he said he was not familiar with 21 Tikosyn, and that I should check with the pharmacist to 22 see if there was any contraindications on drugs.

23 Q. Okay. At that point in time did Dr. Im offer
24 any alternative medications?

25 A. No.

1 Q. Did he counsel you on any risks, you or
2 Patient J.K. on any risks regarding the medications
3 prescribed?

4 A. No.

5 Q. Okay. Did you see anyone else when you were 6 at the urgent care center?

7 A. I believe there was another medical assistant
8 there, I believe she had reddish hair. I remember her.
9 I can't remember if she actually -- I think she may have 10 come in the room at some time. Not clear on whether she 11 did or not.

12 Q. Did she discuss any of -- any issues with you
13 at all?

14 A. Not at that time. To my recollection, not at 15 that time.

16 Q. Okay. What happened next?

17 A. Went to Publix. He stayed in the car because 18 he was feeling rotten. Went to Publix, went to fill the 19 medications. Asked the pharmacist if she could let us
20 know if any of these would interfere with any of my 21 husband's medications. She came back and said that the 22 antibiotic was contraindicated with Tikosyn. So I told 23 her, okay, don't fill that.

24 I then called to the clinic, I spoke to -- I
25 believe she identified herself as his P.A., I believe it

1 was the same girl that had been in the room, one with 2 the red hair. And she said that -- I said, can he
3 prescribe another antibiotic? And she checked with him,
4 got back on the phone and said, no. Call his
5 cardiologist and see -- tell him to prescribe something.
6 I said, well, I didn't think that was going to be
7 possible, but I asked if he -- I said, he said does not
8 have an infection, correct? Again, she qualified that 9 he did not have an infection.

10 At that point we ended that phone call. I
11 said, well, I am just not going to get that antibiotic
12 because it's contraindicated. We hung up on that phone
13 call and I took my husband home.

14 Q. And which Publix pharmacy location did you go
15 to?

16 A. The Publix was in Wedgewood plaza. Directly 17 across from -- pretty much across from the clinic.

18 Q. Okay. Do you happen to remember the 19 pharmacist's name?

20 A. No.

21 Q. So you said you called Dr. Im's office. After 22 that what happened next?

23 A. That was it. I had the discussion with his --
24 what she identified herself as his P.A.

25 Filled whatever prescriptions, again, like I

1 said, I don't have the notes in front of me, filled
2 whatever prescriptions they had given him and at that
3 point took him home. And that was the end of that
4 until I got a phone call back from Dr. Im's office a
5 couple hours later.

6 Q. Okay. What was that conversation about?

7 A. It was his, again, the girl identifying
8 herself as his P.A. And she said, Dr. Im wants you --
9 told me to call you and you need to get that 10 prescription filled for your husband, and he needs to 11 take that prescription. At that point we had a 12 discussion, I said it was contraindicated, according to 13 the pharmacist, that Dr. Im had told me to check with 14 the pharmacist and go by her recommendation. And she 15 said, well, he insists, and she did use the word insist,
16 that he have that medication. I told her I didn't 17 understand why he would do that in view of the fact of 18 the contraindication.

19 They still insisted. We let it kind of hang.
20 I said, fine. I closed the conversation off. At that 21 point I got ahold of the VA in Wisconsin and they ended
22 up calling me back -- they said, let us check these 23 medications out. They called me back in 15 to 20
24 minutes and said under no -- for no reason should we 25 give him that medication. It was contraindicated with

1 Tikosyn. It could cause fatal heart arrhythmia. And 2 under no circumstances should I administer that
3 medication.

4 Q. When you were speaking to the P.A., at that
5 point were any alternative medications offered?

6 A. No.

7 Q. Were the risks associated with taking the 8 medications explained to you?

9 A. No.

10 Q. Do you know, to your knowledge were the risks
11 explained to your husband?

12 A. No. They felt there wasn't, I guess.

13 Q. Okay. Did you ever end up filling the 14 prescription for the antibiotic?

15 A. No.

16 Q. After March 16th did your husband seek any 17 other care for his illness?

18 A. No.

19 Q. Did he take any over-the-counter medications?

20 A. Probably just the Tylenol. I think I got him
21 some Cepacol for his throat. That's the only thing I 22 can really remember. He may have taken some kind of 23 decongestant. I don't know. I can't remember what 24 they told him at the clinic initially.

25 Q. Did those medications help your husband?

1           A.     Ultimately he started to feel better by the
2 following day, I would say.

3           MS. EDWARDS:   If I could have just one
4 moment?

5 BY MS. EDWARDS:

6           Q.     Ms. K.K., did you ever speak to Dr. Im over
7 the phone?

8           A.     No.

9           Q.     Did you ever speak to Dr. Im any time after 10 the visit on March 16th?

11          A.     Not him personally, no.

12          MS. EDWARDS:   That's all the questions I have
13 for right now, Your Honor.

14          THE COURT:    Okay.   Thank you.

15                 Okay.   Dr. Im, you'll have an opportunity now
16 to question K.K. on cross-examination.   This is 17 different from the deposition, the deposition is 18 usually used as a discovery tool and there's more
19 latitude regarding the questions that can be asked.
20 And at the time that the previous deposition was 21 taken it was not clear whether you were going to 22 list Ms. K.K. as one of your witnesses, and so in 23 those types of situations there would be more 24 latitude provided for questions.   But since you have 25 not listed any witnesses, to include K.K., your

1 questions are limited to the direct questions that
2 the Department asked.

3 So I'll let you go ahead and start with your
4 questions. Of course, if there are any objections
5 raised I'll address them at the appropriate time and 6 I'll let you know, you know, which area we're going
7 to allow some leeway versus limiting that scope
8 based on the direct.

9 Do you understand that part of it? Okay.

10 If you can come up here near the telephone,
11 that makes it easier for K.K. to hear.

12 Dr. Im, whenever you're ready for your
13 cross-examination.

14 DR. IM: Thank you.

15 CROSS EXAMINATION

16 BY DR. IM:

17 Q. Good afternoon, Ms. K.K.

18 A. Good afternoon.

19 Q. I guess I'm going to definitely limit the 20 questions. I'm going to try to refer to the deposition
21 that we had, and I am not sure at what point I can refer 22 to those pages, but I'll refer to the pages and see if 23 there's objections.

24 THE COURT: In the deposition -- the 25 deposition is not in the record, it is not at all --

1 it will not be offered. It is not being offered,
2 will not be accepted. Whatever questions you're
3 asking her are new questions.

4 DR. IM: So I can't refer to the deposition
5 at all?

6 THE COURT: No. Her specific deposition has
7 been excluded based on your argument that you wanted
8 to ask certain questions that you were unable to 9 ask. So now you have an opportunity to ask her all
10 the questions, of course, within the limited scope
11 of the direct examination that you would like to ask
12 her.

13 So if it helps you and you're referring back
14 to what you may have asked her before, you may do
15 that but, of course, she'll let you know one way or 16 the other if she's able to answer any questions.

17 Ms. K.K.?

18 THE WITNESS: Yes.

19 THE COURT: For you, if there is an
20 objection, please pause so I can rule on that 21 objection. Unless I instruct you not to answer, you
22 need to answer all the questions. Okay?

23 THE WITNESS: Okay.

24 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im.

25 BY DR. IM:

1 Q. Ms. K.K., on the 16th -- we'll go with
2 March 15th, when you were seen at the clinic. You were
3 told that the chest X-ray was normal. Is that correct?

4 A. Clear, I believe.

5 Q. Okay. And I think the word was no congestion.
6 Is that correct?

7 A. Okay.

8 Q. Okay.

9 A. I don't remember, but okay.

10 Q. Yep.

11 Do you remember me walking into the room to go
12 over the CT results with your husband?

13 A. That would be on the 16th. That would have 14 been on the 16th.

15 Q. Sorry. On the 16th.

16 A. Yeah.

17 Q. Okay.

18 A. I remember you came back into the room, yes.

19 Q. On the 16th the CAT scan was done to look for 20 findings that the chest X-ray may have missed. Do you
21 remember me going over those CT results with your 22 husband?

23 A. I remember you being in the room and talking
24 about that.

25 Q. Okay.

1           A.     I don't remember exactly what you said.

2           Q.     Okay.  You stated during the deposition that
3 upon return from the CT room that, in quotes, Dr. Im
4 advised your husband about the medication prescribed,
5 Levaquin, 750 milligram tablets, Zyrtec and prednisone.
6 Is that correct?

7                   MS. EDWARDS:  Objection.

8                   THE WITNESS:  Levaquin, Zyrtec and 9 Prednisone.  That sounds correct.

10                  THE COURT:  K.K., just one second.  You may 11 have to say those objections pretty loudly so she 12 can hear you.

13                   What's your objection, Ms. Edwards?

14                  MS. EDWARDS:  He is reading prior testimony
15 from the deposition into the record instead of 16 directly questioning the witness or leading the 17 witness.  But he's reading specific prior testimony
18 into the record rather than questioning the witness.

19                  THE COURT:  Okay.  Dr. Im, if you could 20 phrase your -- whatever that -- whatever you were 21 reading, if you could just phrase that as a
22 question.

23                   THE WITNESS:  Don't quote.  Okay.

24                  THE COURT:  Thank you.

25                  BY DR. IM:

1 Q. Do you remember Dr. Im going over the three
2 medications with you, Levaquin 750 milligrams, Zyrtec
3 and Prednisone?

4 A. Yeah.

5 Q. Okay. Were you worried about any of those 6 three medications?

7 A. I wanted information if any of those were 8 contraindicated with my husband's medications.

9 Q. Do you know if your husband was concerned
10 about any of those three medications?

11 A. I'm sure he was, but I asked.

12 Q. Okay. Now, one of the things that I think you
13 stated during the deposition, I won't quote it, but you
14 were worried that the medications may interfere with 15 Tikosyn and send him back to the hospital.

16 Does that sound right?

17 A. I didn't word it that way. But any time he's 18 prescribed any medication we want to make sure that it
19 isn't contraindicated with any medications he's 20 currently on.

21 Q. When you presented -- when you talked to the 22 pharmacist at Publix, was it you that had a conversation
23 with the pharmacist?

24 A. Yes.

25 Q. Okay. Do you remember the conversation with

1 the pharmacist?

2 A. Not verbatim, but yes. Overall, yes.

3 Q. Did she go over the interactions with the 4 three -- any of the three medications with Tikosyn?

5 A. No. Well, she didn't mention them. I asked
6 her to check if any of these interacted with Tikosyn,
7 and she -- her answer to that was that the only one of 8 the three was Levaquin.

9 Q. Are you --

10 A. And that it was a very high dose, as well.

11 Q. So are you stating that she said the only one
12 of the three that interacts with Tikosyn was Levaquin?

13 A. That's what she told me. Correct.

14 Q. Okay. Did you ever talk to the cardiologist
15 at the VA hospital?

16 A. No, he was not available.

17 Q. Okay. Did the pharmacist ever advise you to 18 consult the cardiologist at the VA hospital?

19 A. No.

20 Q. Did Dr. Im ever --

21 A. But she was -- she was not aware of the 22 dynamics of this, as far as that goes, of who -- you
23 know, that he had a cardiologist, or whatever.

24 Q. Do you recall Dr. Im asking you to talk to 25 your cardiologist and ask him call him so he could

1 discuss the case?

2 A. No.

3 Q. Do you remember Dr. Im in the room mentioning
4 your cardiologist?

5 A. No.

6 Q. Do you remember Dr. Im in the room talking
7 about to have the pharmacist call him if she had any 8 concerns?

9 A. No.

10 Q. In your written complaint to the Department of 11 Health you wrote that you spoke to J.K.'s cardiologist.
12 Was that a true statement?

13 A. Cardiology department.

14 Q. But in your written complaint you wrote
15 cardiologist?

16 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

17 THE WITNESS: Okay. I don't have my written
18 report in front of me.

19 DR. IM: That's not the deposition.

20 THE COURT: Dr. Im, I'll decide what -- I'll 21 rule on the objection.

22 Ms. Edwards, I'm going to overrule the
23 objection.

24 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, ma'am.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im.

1 BY DR. IM:

2 Q. In your complaint you stated that the 3 cardiologist told you under no circumstances do not give 4 him that drug, it causes fatal arrhythmias. Is that
5 correct?

6 A. I don't know, I don't have that in front of 7 me.

8 Q. Do you recall stating or complaining to the 9 Department that someone told you, do not give him that 10 drug, it causes fatal arrhythmias?

11 A. Correct.

12 Q. Do you remember who told you that?

13 A. I spoke with two of the medical personnel at 14 Madison VA, in turn they called me back because they 15 were going to consult with cardiology regarding that.

16 Q. Did the pharmacist ever tell you not to take
17 the medication because it may cause fatal arrhythmias?

18 A. The pharmacist told me it was contraindicated
19 with Tikosyn.

20 Q. And are you familiar with the terminology
21 contraindicated?

22 A. Pretty much. It goes together -- that they 23 are not to be taken together.

24 Q. Are you aware that a lot of the 25 over-the-counter prescriptions and herbal supplements

1 can have contraindications with Tikosyn?

2 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

3 THE WITNESS: Nothing I could tell you. So,
4 no, nothing I would know about.

5 THE COURT: Ms. K.K., just a second. Ms.
6 K.K., can you hear me? This is Judge Green.

7 THE WITNESS: Yes. It's a little bit hollow
8 but I can hear you.

9 THE COURT: Can you hear me better now?

10 THE WITNESS: A little bit.

11 THE COURT: Okay. Maybe this will help. If 12 you pause after each question, then that will give 13 us a chance to -- if there are any objections, I can 14 address those objections before you answer.

15 THE WITNESS: You'd like me to pause?

16 THE COURT: Yes, after the question. That 17 may help with the objections, because there was an 18 objection but you've already answered the question.
19 And that's okay, I -- we're working with what we 20 have right now with the telephone. So maybe that 21 will help.

22 THE WITNESS: Okay.

23 THE COURT: Dr. Im, go ahead with your next
24 question.

25 BY DR. IM:

1 Q. You stated to Ms. Edwards that an ultrasound
2 was performed on March 16th. Is that correct?

3 A. Yeah, whatever they did to examine his chest.

4 Q. You also stated today that Dr. Im wrote you
5 and handed you a written prescription. Is that correct?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. Was that a mistake when you stated you spoke 8 to the cardiologist when you complained to the 9 Department of Health?

10 A. I don't know that I said cardiologist. It
11 would have been cardiology department.

12 Q. So if it was written down as cardiologist,
13 would that be a mistake?

14 A. Yes. I did not speak to the cardiologist
15 personally.

16 Q. Were you aware that Publix pharmacy and 17 Dr. Im's office shared an electronic program called 18 E-prescription or electronic prescription?

19 A. No.

20 Q. Were you aware that the e-prescribing is 21 electronic and no paper prescription is given to you?

22 A. No.

23 Q. And were you aware on 3/16 that the computer
24 program alerts all contraindications instantaneously 25 because it communicates with the pharmacist?

1 A. No.

2 Q. And did Dr. Im say he's not familiar with
3 dofetilide or did he say he hasn't prescribed
4 dofetilide?

5 A. Dr. Im said he was not familiar with that 6 drug.

7 Q. And how do you interpret the word familiar?

8 A. Didn't really know of it.

9 Q. Do you know how doctors learn about new 10 prescriptions that are released every year?

11 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

12 THE WITNESS: No.

13 THE COURT: What's the objection? Just a
14 moment, K.K. What is the objection?

15 MS. EDWARDS: She is a lay witness and he's 16 asking for a question regarding doctors and the 17 medical field.

18 THE COURT: The objection's sustained. Go
19 ahead with your next question, Dr. Im.

20 BY DR. IM:

21 Q. Okay. Are you aware of the terminology drug
22 insert?

23 A. I believe my interpretation of that would be 24 what comes in with the drugs, that describes the drugs.

25 Q. And have you ever seen a drug insert in your

1 lifetime?

2 A. If that is what usually comes with your
3 prescriptions describing the drug, I would say yes.

4 Q. At any time in your lifetime when you looked 5 at an insert, have you ever seen warnings, like -- I'm 6 sorry, words, like, warning, drug interactions, or 7 anything of that nature in that drug insert?

8 A. Yes.

9 Q. And on that day when Dr. Im went over the 10 CAT scan results with your husband, did you have any 11 questions about the CAT scan results?

12 A. I don't recall.

13 Q. Do you remember how much time, guesstimate,
14 Dr. Im spent going over things with your husband in that 15 room?

16 A. After the CAT scan?

17 Q. After the CAT scan.

18 A. Maybe a few minutes, I'd say.

19 Q. Do you remember Dr. Im going into the CAT scan
20 room with your patient -- sorry, with your husband?

21 A. Say that again. Excuse me?

22 Q. Were you aware that Dr. Im went into the CT
23 room with your husband?

24 A. I didn't personally know if he was in the CT
25 room with my husband. He left the exam room with my

1 husband.

2 Q. Were you aware that Dr. Im owned the CT
3 machine and the X-ray machine?

4 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

5 THE COURT: What's the objection?

6 MS. EDWARDS: Relevance.

7 THE WITNESS: No.

8 THE COURT: Dr. Im, if you could rephrase
9 your question.

10 BY DR. IM:

11 Q. I think it was brought up in the deposition.
12 But my question to you is: Were you aware that Dr. Im
13 had additional training in radiology during his 14 residency training in emergency medicine?

15 A. No.

16 THE COURT: Just a second. That was a
17 different question. So the objection is sustained.
18 That's fine, because you came up with a new
19 question.

20 DR. IM: I understand.

21 BY DR. IM:

22 Q. And what did Dr. Im tell your husband about 23 the CT results?

24 A. I don't remember anything particularly 25 enlightening, anything much at all.

1 Q. Do you remember Dr. Im going over the CT
2 results with your husband?

3 A. I don't believe there was any great discussion
4 except that nothing was really found.

5 Q. So Dr. Im told you that nothing was really
6 found on the CT exam. Is that true?

7 A. From what my recollection is, yes.

8 Q. Could you be mistaking that with the prior 9 X-ray when it showed nothing?

10 A. No.

11 Q. Do you think there's a chance that you may be 12 confusing the 3/15 and the 3/16 visit?

13 A. No.

14 Q. Okay. On the 18th, March 18th -- you know
15 what, I'm going to scratch that question. It's not 16 going to be pertinent.

17 I'm going to really limit my questions here
18 because I didn't realize that the deposition -- I
19 misunderstood that.

20 Okay. Did Dr. Im tell you that there was no
21 congestion in the CT exam that was performed?

22 A. I believe so.

23 Q. Do you remember when the final report of the 24 CAT scan was received at the clinic, or --

25 A. I'm not sure I understand that question.

1 Q. I'm sorry about that.

2 Do you remember getting a copy of the CD of 3 the CT exam?

4 A. No, not that day.

5 Q. Do you remember getting the notes on that day?

6 A. I don't recall.

7 Q. Do you remember how you obtained those notes
8 on March 16th?

9 A. Excuse me. How I obtained what notes?

10 Q. The history and physical notes and the CT CD.

11 A. I don't -- I said I don't remember that I
12 received them on that day. I'm not sure.

13 Q. Do you remember the pharmacist telling you --
14 I'm sorry. Going to scratch that question.

15 Do you remember talking to the personnel at 16 the VA hospital, and do you know who you were talking
17 to?

18 A. They were both -- I called the cardiology
19 department, I believe one was a triage nurse.

20 Q. Do you know if they consulted the
21 cardiologist?

22 A. That was what I was told they were going to
23 do.

24 Q. Do you remember reading -- were you given the 25 exhibits that Ms. Edwards submitted today as far as the

1 progress notes from the VA hospital?

2 A. Not sure I know what you're talking about.

3 Q. Yeah.

4 A. I'm not really sure what you're asking.

5 Q. When you went to the Publix pharmacy, do you
6 know if the Levaquin was bottled and ready for you to 7 pick up?

8 A. No, it was not.

9 Q. Are you stating that the medicine wasn't ready
10 for you to pick up?

11 A. Not to my knowledge, no.

12 Q. Do you remember refusing to take the 13 medication Levaquin?

14 A. I said, don't fill it. Yes.

15 Q. Okay. Is it safe to assume that the 16 pharmacist or the triage nurse at the VA hospital did
17 not have the diagnosis of your husband?

18 A. Did not have the diagnosis... I don't believe
19 I asked her for a diagnosis on anything.

20 Q. Did the pharmacist or the VA triage nurse ever
21 ask you for the diagnosis of your husband?

22 A. No. Strictly asked them about the two drugs
23 concerned.

24 Q. Mrs. K.K., do you remember stating or 25 complaining -- or stating that Dr. Im stated that your

1 husband had a sinus infection?

2 A. Absolutely not.

3 Q. Did you get to look at the notes from the 3/15
4 visit or the 3/16 visit?

5 A. When? Now, or --

6 Q. Any time.

7 A. Sorry.

8 Q. Any time.

9 A. I probably did at some point.

10 Q. Do you remember the diagnosis on 3/15 or 3/16?

11 A. I know that on 3/15 I believe a nasal swab was 12 done, no infection was indicated. And on 3/16 I asked 13 several times if he had any sort of infection, and was 14 told, no, by your offices.

15 Q. Was that --

16 A. I qualified that because of the Levaquin
17 contraindication.

18 Q. Are you saying that Dr. Im told you there was 19 no infection, or his staff?

20 A. Staff.

21 Q. Did Dr. Im ever tell you in the room that your 22 husband did not have an infection?

23 A. I believe so.

24 Q. In your opinion would a doctor in modern era
25 prescribe an antibiotic if there's no infection?

1 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

2 THE WITNESS: I don't know that my opinion
3 counts here, but I would think more than likely not.

4 THE COURT: I'm going to overrule that
5 objection anyway. That's okay.

6 BY DR. IM:

7 Q. Okay. Do you recall -- I think I'm almost 8 done here, Ms. K.K. Do you recall on the 8th, 9 publishing on a format -- a public forum that Dr. Im was 10 arrogant and dangerous?

11 A. It sounds right.

12 Q. Do you feel Dr. Im is arrogant and dangerous?

13 A. I do.

14 Q. Why do you feel that Dr. Im is arrogant?

15 MS. EDWARDS: Objection; exceeds the scope of 16 direct.

17 THE COURT: I'm going to allow it. It goes
18 to bias.

19 Ms. K.K., you can answer that question.

20 THE WITNESS: I didn't hear what was said
21 just then. Sorry.

22 THE COURT: I overruled the objection, and 23 Dr. Im asked you a question.

24 THE WITNESS: Okay. So you want me to answer
25 the question?

1 THE COURT: Yes, ma'am.

2 THE WITNESS: I felt I -- I feel that Dr. Im
3 at the moment when I asked about the medications and 4 he responded to me that he was not familiar,
5 especially with Tikosyn, he was not familiar with 6 Tikosyn, actually. And when I asked him about 7 contraindications his response was, a pharmacist
8 will let you know that, so you should check with the 9 pharmacist when you go in.

10 Upon doing that and finding out that the 11 pharmacist was telling me that this drug should not 12 be taken with Tikosyn. I find it arrogant of him to 13 then fly in the face of exactly what he said I
14 should do, which is talk to the pharmacist who 15 basically are pretty much the Bible on medications,
16 and to insist that he take the drug. And after 17 qualifying, again with his staff regarding any sort
18 of infection, again solidified the fact that, no,
19 there was no infection, and still insisted that he 20 take that drug, I think that's arrogant in the event
21 that the pharmacist was telling us the exact
22 opposite. And that, in fact, we were told, again,
23 by more medical people to not take that drug. And 24 to continue to stick by that I believe is arrogant.

25 BY DR. IM:

1 Q. Did it ever cross your mind maybe Dr. Im was
2 correct and the pharmacist was incompetent?

3 A. No. However, I still qualified it with two
4 more medical people with the VA.

5 Q. Is it not true that the VA asked you to go
6 with the pharmacist's advice?

7 A. No. That's not true. The VA actually
8 questioned their own medical people, who may have been a 9 cardiologist. And at any rate, came back with the 10 answer that, no, they looked into it themselves. They 11 did not say on pharmacist's advice. They looked into it
12 themselves and called me back.

13 Q. Ms. K.K., when you published that Dr. Im is 14 arrogant and dangerous on the 8th -- sorry, on the 18th,
15 that's prior to your filing a complaint to the 16 Department of Health. Correct?

17 A. Prior to... I'm not sure. It might have 18 been -- it's within -- it may have been the same day. I
19 don't know.

20 Q. Is it fair to assume that you were upset with 21 Dr. Im enough for you to state that he's arrogant and 22 dangerous?

23 A. I wouldn't say upset would be the correct
24 words to use.

25 Q. Now this is more a hypothetical, I don't think

1 you need to answer if you don't want to. But if your 2 husband had a very large pneumonia and was very ill, and
3 the doctor wanted to give him Levaquin, would you refuse
4 that Levaquin?

5 A. I would certainly -- yeah, I -- I don't
6 believe that -- if that's contraindicated somebody
7 would -- there's other drugs. There's other drugs. I
8 don't know why you would give him one that's
9 contraindicated.

10 Q. Are you aware that all drugs are chemicals and 11 they all have contraindications? I'm sorry.

12 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

13 THE COURT: Just a second, Dr. Im. The 14 question is there, I need to rule on the objection.
15 What is the objection?

16 MS. EDWARDS: The objection is this is a lay
17 witness and it's asking for a medical conclusion.

18 THE COURT: Okay. Objection is sustained.

19 You can go on with your next question.

20 BY DR. IM:

21 Q. Are you aware that a physician practicing
22 medicine today under duress and stress has to consider 23 all over-the-counters, herbal supplements, all the 24 different options of antibiotics, and that a doctor is 25 always weighing the benefits and the risks, and a

1 doctor's job is to communicate that with the patient?
2 Would you agree with that?

3 A. I would hope so.

4 Q. You stated that you -- today, I believe, you
5 stated that you gave your husband Cepacol for a sore
6 throat.

7 A. I'm not sure if it was Cepacol. It was some 8 lozenge for his throat. He couldn't swallow.

9 Q. And I think you also stated that you gave him
10 some Tylenol for fever?

11 A. It was spray.

12 Q. You stated you also gave him Tylenol for 13 fever?

14 A. Yeah, I was told that I could give him
15 Tylenol. Yes.

16 Q. As far as if -- were you aware that you were 17 supposed to consult your physician who prescribed the 18 Tikosyn before you started any over-the-counter
19 medications?

20 A. Was I counseled by who? Say that again,
21 please.

22 Q. Were you aware that instructions in the 23 Tikosyn insert states that you should always consult the 24 prescribing physician before starting any 25 over-the-counter medications or supplements?

1           A.     Yeah. We know that he can take Tylenol,
2 that's in his repertoire of what he can take.

3           Q.     I think I'm going to wind this down. Did you
4 consult your cardiologist before starting him on 5 over-the-counter Tylenol or the Cepacol?

6           A.     The Tylenol, he's been able to take all along.
7 The Cepacol -- I may have mentioned it when I called,
8 but I don't know about that. Tylenol he's been able to 9 take all along, they know he takes Tylenol, that's the 10 one over-the-counter thing that he -- that's always been 11 okay for him for his doctors. Yeah, they have a 12 complete list of anything he takes.

13          Q.     Do you recall the clinic giving you a courtesy
14 call the following day after your visit to the 15 Exceptional Urgent Care Center?

16          A.     Yes.

17          Q.     Do you recall having a phone conversation with 18 Dr. Im?

19          A.     No.

20          Q.     Do you recall hanging up --

21          A.     I never spoke --

22          Q.     Do you recall hanging up on the phone
23 conversation?

24          A.     No.

25          Q.     Do you recall asking to speak with Dr. Im when

1 you called the staff at Exceptional Urgent Care Center?

2 A. I don't recall if I asked to speak to him.

3 Q. Were you aware that the staff at Exceptional
4 Urgent Care Center follow strict protocol that if 5 there's any question about medication that they are to 6 get me on phone and that I get on the phone. Were you
7 aware of that?

8 A. I wouldn't know what your protocol is for your
9 office.

10 Q. So is it safe to assume you didn't know that 11 the staff, whenever there's a significant other or 12 family member with concerns, that Dr. Im gets on the 13 phone and discusses that concern with that patient?

14 A. I called and asked initially about the drug,
15 Dr. Im never got on the phone then. So they obviously 16 did not follow the protocol.

17 Q. Do you agree there were multiple phone calls
18 to the clinic?

19 A. There was one phone call that I made to the 20 clinic, that was all.

21 Q. So --

22 A. There were multiple phone calls that they made
23 to me.

24 Q. So you're stating that there were multiple 25 phone calls made by the clinic to you. Do you remember

1 or recall how many phone calls?

2 A. I called them regarding the medication on the 3 day that we were getting that prescription -- or going
4 to get that prescription filled. I called them at that
5 point. And that was one phone call that I made to them.

6 And then I was called back that same day,
7 which was the 16th, several hours later by your office
8 stating and insisting that my husband take the drug.

9 And the following day I was called by your 10 office in the morning to inquire how my husband was 11 doing.

12 Q. So are you stating that you never spoke to 13 Dr. Im since the visit of March 16th?

14 A. I'm stating that, yes.

15 Q. The multiple phone calls to the clinic, were 16 you aware that the red-headed staff member handed the 17 phone over to Dr. Im?

18 A. No. Did not.

19 Q. Were you aware that when they have a -- sorry
20 if this insults you -- but a tough or a difficult
21 situation on the phone that they get me involved right
22 away? Were you aware of that?

23 A. I wasn't aware of that because you never got 24 on the phone.

25 Q. Were you aware that the medical assistants

1 that get on the phone have very little training, a lot
2 less than nurses and RNs, and they don't have the
3 ability to change medications? And whenever a patient
4 requests a different medication that the doctor has to 5 get on the phone?

6 A. I am not aware of your office's protocol. And 7 she did pause on the line, and then came back on the 8 line, but never put you on the line.

9 Q. Do you know if the pharmacist ever talked to 10 Dr. Im?

11 A. I do not know.

12 DR. IM: Okay. I think I'm done.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 DR. IM: No further questions.

15 THE COURT: Have you asked all the questions
16 that you would like to ask Ms. K.K.?

17 DR. IM: Yes.

18 THE COURT: All right. You can resume your 19 seat at counsel's table.

20 Ms. Edwards, do you have any redirect?

21 MS. EDWARDS: No, Your Honor, I don't think I
22 do.

23 THE COURT: No? Okay.

24 Just one moment. Ms. K.K.?

25 THE WITNESS: Yes.

1 THE COURT: Okay. You can hear me?

2 THE WITNESS: Yes, I can.

3 THE COURT: Okay. This is Judge Green.

4 Ms. Edwards indicated she has no additional 5 questions for you, so we would like to thank you for 6 taking the time out of your day. I understand this
7 can be quite challenging in coordinating because I
8 understand you did have an event today, and I do
9 hope that that went well. But, again, we want to 10 thank you for taking the time out and appearing 11 today and answering these questions.

12 THE WITNESS: Thank you, Judge Green.

13 THE COURT: Okay. And so we are going to 14 conclude the call so you can go about your day.

15 THE WITNESS: Okay. Thank you.

16 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you very much. Bye
17 now.

18 (Witness excused.)

19 THE COURT: Okay. Ms. Edwards, do you have 20 any other witnesses you would like to call?

21 MS. EDWARDS: At this time Your Honor, no, we 22 don't. We would like to reserve our expert for 23 rebuttal and we would like an opportunity to cross
24 if Dr. Im is going to give testimony.

25 THE COURT: Absolutely.

1           With that said do you want to take a look at 2 your exhibit list to make sure that all of the 3 exhibits that you wanted to offer have been offered?

4           MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor, for just a
5 moment.

6           THE COURT: Absolutely.

7           MS. EDWARDS: Would it be easier for the 8 record to go through them quickly since we had a
9 little confusion? Would that be appropriate?

10          THE COURT: Sure. I know that there were 11 quite a few in the exhibit book, so I wanted to make
12 sure that there weren't any other ones in that book
13 that you are planning --

14          DR. IM: I have no objections if that speeds
15 things up.

16          THE COURT: Well, I usually like to confirm 17 what we have in the record before we -- for a
18 particular case in chief.

19                So while you're looking at the rest of your
20 exhibits, the exhibits I have are: Petitioner's
21 1 -- 2, actually. I never say strike that, but I'll 22 say that at this time, even though it will be on the 23 record. I will describe what I have because that 24 will be the most helpful.

25                For Exhibit 1 I have the video and transcript

1 of Patient J.K.

2 Exhibit 2 are the patient records from
3 respondent's clinic Exceptional Urgent Care Center.

4 Exhibit 3, the business records from Publix.

5 Exhibit 5, the VA cardiology notes.

6 Exhibit 6, the interrogatories of the 7 respondent, signed and notarized.

8 Exhibit 7, the admissions from the 9 respondent.

10 Exhibit 8, respondent's deposition.

11 Exhibit 9, Dr. Davis' CV. Those exhibits
12 have all been admitted.

13 And then Exhibit No. 4, the Publix pharmacy
14 notes has been proffered but not admitted.

15 Is that what you have for your list?

16 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

17 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

18 MS. EDWARDS: Just to verify that one Publix
19 note from the respondent was entered into evidence
20 as respondent's exhibit. Correct?

21 THE COURT: It was, we'll address that during 22 respondent's case in chief during all of the 23 exhibits that have been admitted.

24 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor. I
25 believe that's everything that we have to enter.

1 Thank you for the time to go through it.

2 THE COURT: Absolutely. Thank you.

3 Dr. Im, are you prepared to proceed with your
4 case?

5 DR. IM: You mean to begin --

6 THE COURT: Yes, to present evidence or 7 present any testimony, whatever you intend to 8 present in your case.

9 DR. IM: Yeah. I guess what I have to get
10 straight is the -- is there a certain order -- I 11 mean, she can cross-examine me and I think that will 12 be a big part of the presentation.

13 THE COURT: Well, if you testify then
14 Ms. Edwards would have an opportunity to 15 cross-examine you. Of course, if you don't testify
16 then there's no cross-examination --

17 DR. IM: I would like to testify.

18 THE COURT: Okay. And you can provide a
19 narrative, you can sit there. I don't know if Madam
20 Court Reporter can hear you, if not, if it makes it
21 easier you can sit in the witness chair, whatever
22 makes you feel comfortable.

23 DR. IM: I don't mind sitting here if that's 24 okay.

25 THE COURT: Okay. I won't ask you any

1 questions, it's just whatever it is that you would
2 like me to consider when reviewing the evidence
3 that's been offered, the testimony that's been 4 offered, as well as the allegations in the 5 administrative complaint. And, of course,
6 Ms. Edwards will cross-examine you based on the 7 direct testimony that you provide today.

8 DR. IM: So my testimony is the way I recall
9 it --

10 THE COURT: Before you begin, one other 11 thing.

12 DR. IM: Sorry.

13 THE COURT: I need to swear you in. Raise
14 your right hand.

15 Whereupon,

16 JOHN JOSEPH IM., D.O.,
17 a witness herein, having been first duly sworn,
18 was examined and testified as follows:

19 THE WITNESS: I do.

20 THE COURT: Okay. I only note the time
21 throughout any proceeding just so that the parties
22 are aware how much time they have. You're not --
23 you don't have to rush, or anything, it's just a 24 matter of so that you're aware. It is currently 25 2:40. And I do want to at least extend the

1 opportunity for the parties to take a break, longer
2 than a five-minute restroom break if they'd like to
3 do so. So I do want to ask the parties that first.

4 So Ms. Edwards and Mr. Williams [sic], do you
5 need to take a break?

6 MS. EDWARDS: I need to take a 15-minute
7 break. I apologize. I'm a new mom, so I need that 8 15-minute break.

9 THE COURT: Thank you. Absolutely, you can
10 have that 15-minute break.

11 Let's go ahead and make it 20. Dr. Im, are 12 you okay with a 20-minute break?

13 DR. IM: Sure.

14 THE COURT: Okay. Madam Court Reporter, is 15 20 minutes good for you?

16 THE REPORTER: (Nodding head.)

17 THE COURT: Go with a 20-minute break and 18 return at 3:00.

19 Dr. Davis, I know you're hanging out, feel 20 free -- you don't have to sit the whole time, but 21 it's up to you. Remember you are under oath so
22 don't discuss your testimony with anyone. Thank 23 you. We'll take a break till 3:00 p.m.

24 (Recess taken at 2:40 p.m. Resumed at 25 3:00 p.m.)

1           THE COURT: Dr. Im, do you want to begin with
2 your case?

3           DR. IM: Thank you, Your Honor.

4           So I guess I'll start with on 3/15/2018
5 Mr. J.K. was seen at the clinic, seen by nurse
6 practitioner Kelly Reyes (phonetic), with a
7 presumptive diagnosis of fever, flu swab negative,
8 chest X-ray unremarkable. Discharged home on 9 Naprosyn and Tamiflu.

10           There's protocols at the clinic, maybe this 11 is a good time to at least go over that. The 12 protocol that I placed at the clinic -- and I'm 13 pretty strict as far as what I go through when I see 14 a patient or when a patient's seen. They're 15 instructed if they're not improving in 24 hours to 16 return or to go to the emergency department.

17           The patient returned on the 16th, and that's 18 where I got involved.

19           During my training or medicine years, it was 20 pretty much an opportunity for them to really go
21 over just getting rid of bad habits and developing 22 good habits and being a stickler for detail and not
23 breaking protocol. That's part of the reason why
24 I've probably never to this point been involved in a
25 malpractice lawsuit.

1           The protocol in place is that if somebody's a
2 bounce-back or if they come back as not feeling well
3 the rule of thumb at the clinic is I lecture all my 4 assistants that the same thing cannot be done that 5 was done on the day prior, that's always asking for 6 trouble. So I was suspicious for pneumonia, I knew
7 chest X-rays do not have the sensitivity or 8 specificity of a CT scanner. And since I had a
9 CT scanner at the clinic it was easier access than 10 sending somebody out to -- let's say an outside
11 center.

12           As far as the blood work -- anyway, the 13 protocol. So basically my thinking already is on 14 high-alert because this is somebody who returned.
15 And as a rule we like to think in the practice of 16 medicine, that if you treat somebody and diagnose it
17 as close to the correct diagnosis, like Dr. Davis
18 said, the final diagnosis is unfortunately tissue
19 diagnosis, autopsy. But that the presumptive
20 diagnosis is we do the best and take all the clues
21 into consideration, come up with the best
22 presumptive diagnosis and then try to do diagnostic 23 testing to prove differential diagnose and come to 24 the best conclusion, and then after going over the 25 different options for medications offering the best

1 medication for that particular patient.

2 In this case Mr. J.K. was a lot more ill than 3 the chart displayed. Long story short, the charting
4 the way we're trained -- unfortunately with this 5 computer system, the charting is a generic chart and 6 we have to override it and do a lot more typing. So
7 it's not like in the old days where we had to 8 handwrite. So 2016 it was mandatory from President
9 Obama that all clinics had to become electronic or 10 we face penalties. So one of the nice things
11 about -- the disadvantages in the EMR versus 12 advantage, part of the protocol is there's a chief
13 complaint, then there's the history taking, you ask
14 questions, and that's where I spent a lot more time.
15 That's part of the thing I enjoy outside of the ER,
16 in the ER you're constantly rushed. But in the 17 observation setting -- actually, I still enjoy it
18 like it was yesterday, I've been doing this since
19 2002 -- since 2004. Sorry.

20 So the chief complaint, history and physical
21 exam, the vitals goes before the physical exam.
22 After the physical exam there's diagnostic tests.
23 And like Dr. Davis said, you can order a CBC
24 compound, all kinds of blood tests if it's available
25 and if you can get it back quickly enough. The

1 outpatient setting is limited, there's things we can
2 do. But a CBC machine is too expensive to maintain.
3 Most outpatient clinics cannot afford unless they 4 have a volume of, like, 20, 30 physicians and they
5 can afford it. It's mainly the cleaning fluid for 6 the CBC machines are too expensive. Anyway, there's 7 limitations, but there's also an advantage of being 8 an outpatient, you don't rush. And that's one of 9 the things that I enjoy, and I've been practicing 10 here in The Villages since 2004, and a lot of the 11 Villagers are very similar to Mr. J.K., they're on 12 many, many medications, lots of times herbal
13 supplements and over-the-counter things. Even 14 though we try to get the history, it's very 15 difficult, especially if they live out of state,
16 trying to get all their records. Even though we are 17 electronic nowadays, it's a lot better than it was 18 when I was training, when I was training we had to 19 wait for the paper chart to come.

20           Anyways, the reason why I wanted, Your Honor,
21 I wanted to show you the thought process when you
22 see a patient and then the notetaking and the -- so
23 after the presumptive diagnosis you come to your 24 best diagnosis looking at all the diagnostic tests,
25 the clinical presentation, physical exam, and then

1 the part about whether it's prescription medications
2 or supportive care, and then the discharge
3 instructions. Okay? So that's pretty much the way
4 it's formatted.

5 And I was a little more unique for urgent
6 care center because of my training, I was able to 7 offer more, and because of my background in 8 cardiology. During training I did get extensive 9 training in cardiology, radiology, et cetera. And 10 so one of the things that I enjoyed when I did the 11 radiology rotation was that I was actually noted as 12 one of the residents that was really good at it. So
13 I really truly enjoyed it, because looking at a 14 CAT scan as soon as it's done is really -- you get 15 to see things before the radiologist -- you tell the 16 radiologist -- the image goes to virtual radiology.
17 They're in different states, Your Honor, so they're 18 not radiologists based here. If there's a problem
19 we could have phone conversations, et cetera.

20 But one of the things that I enjoy is what
21 the CT brings to the practice of medicine,
22 especially in The Villages because lots of times
23 they're misdiagnosed by their other doctors, and 24 when they get to me my reputation has become that 25 I'm able to pick up things that were missed quite

1 frequently because of my training, and especially
2 this CAT scan machine. I actually diagnosed my own
3 mother's cancer, but that's not pertinent here.

4 So anyway, on the 16th he looked pretty ill.
5 I knew I had to do more. Like Dr. Davis said, the 6 INR test to make sure his Coumadin and Warfarin were 7 therapeutic. I did the CAT scan. Went into the CAT
8 scan room and I saw what appeared, correctly, as the 9 ground-glass opacities in multiple lobes. Granted
10 they were small areas, but that usually symbolizes
11 the beginning of pneumonia. Ground-glass opacity
12 means exudative -- or on imaging it appears 13 different.

14 And when it's in multiple lobes, the way I
15 was trained during my radiology rotation as an ER
16 resident, is that it is pneumonia until proven
17 otherwise.

18 So then usually what I do is to go right
19 in -- it's called a preliminary report, I do not get 20 the official report usually until usually 24/48
21 hours later. But I'm real good at reading the CAT
22 scan machine, my speech has been the same, I have 23 not broken my speech in all the years. In all the 24 years I've been practicing I go over with the 25 patients -- in The Villages there's usually

1 95 percent a significant other, husband and wife,
2 et cetera. So usually I'll spend my first
3 95 percent of the time with the patient, at the very
4 end I'll turn to the significant other and say, do
5 you have any questions? So from the CAT scan room
6 patient gets back into room four. I go into room
7 four and I explain to Mr. J.K., I say, it looks like
8 there's what appears to me -- I am not a
9 radiologist -- usually I give that speech, I am not 10 a radiologist, but I have very good training, I'm 11 very good at looking at these images. And it looks 12 like you have the start of pneumonia, I'm going to 13 go ahead and start you on three medications because 14 I believe all your symptoms started upper 15 respiratory as allergies, but I believe you've 16 started to develop pneumonia. I'll go ahead and 17 prescribe three medications, Levaquin 750,
18 Prednisone and Zyrtec.

19 So Mr. J.K. said he understood. That's when 20 I turned to the wife and I said, are there any other 21 questions? And she -- that's when she chimed in and 22 said, do you know if any of those meds have 23 interactions with the -- sorry, Tikosyn? And so at 24 that point I said to her, you know, there's always 25 going to be interaction, but the interaction -- and

1 I didn't use the word QT prolongation because one of 2 the things I try to do is I try to -- I feel like
3 one of the things I do well, as part of my
4 testimony, is that I can take complex terminology
5 and put it into plain English. I used to joke with 6 the patients here that I went from New York to 7 Michigan State, that it was the beginning of me
8 trying to understand the language and 9 communications, everything, because in New York we 10 communicate a little differently.

11           Anyway, so Mrs. K.K. said, do you know if any 12 of those medicines have interactions? I said -- the 13 interaction in particular she asked about was the 14 antibiotic. And I said, there is -- the interaction
15 is very rare. Okay? And at that point I said, but 16 to reassure her, I said, the pharmacist, if she sees 17 an interaction or concern, she will call me and we 18 discuss the case. This pharmacy, Publix, they know
19 me by name, they are literally a hundred feet from 20 my clinic. I know the other pharmacists by name,
21 first-name basis. But this pharmacist, who I chased
22 the name down, I'm not familiar with her, looks like 23 she's a temporary pharmacist that kind of goes from 24 pharmacy to pharmacy.

25           Anyway, I assured her, I said, there's a

1 safety net, there is a safety net of the pharmacist
2 picking up interactions that I might have missed,
3 and that if she calls me I will discuss it. So I
4 assured her there is another safety net.

5 At that time she is discharged, the husband
6 gets discharged. Never got a call from the 7 pharmacist. And then I believe that day my medical 8 assistant -- and I am not sure if it was the 9 red-headed medical assistant, I had a much larger
10 staff at that time -- stated that there's a patient
11 that's inquiring about the medications. And so I
12 reviewed the chart again, and I looked everything
13 over, again. I said, instruct her, tell her that I
14 reviewed everything again, and that the interaction,
15 possible interaction is very rare. And that the 16 Levaquin is drug of choice. And that the other
17 medication will not cover for the pneumonia. And I
18 told her, the medical assistant, to go ahead and 19 relay that message.

20 I believe that she called back because she 21 was not happy. But where the -- where I recall most 22 of my information is the phone conversation, which 23 took place the next day. We do a courtesy call on 24 patients that have more sick or more serious
25 presentations, usually when a patient comes back

1 twice that patient's a lot more sick than somebody
2 with a simple cough or urinary tract infection.

3 And so the courtesy call was done. What was 4 relayed to me was there is a very upset wife of 5 patient, and she's very upset and she demands to 6 talk to the doctor. So I got on the phone, had a
7 phone conversation with Mrs. K.K., and the phone
8 conversation was not pleasant, it was -- I tried to 9 explain to her that the CT exam shows pneumonia,
10 that Levaquin is the drug of choice, other
11 medications will not cover it in this situation.
12 And she said, I need you to give me permission to 13 not give him that medication, Levaquin. I said, 14 ma'am, I can't do that. If I do that, that is 15 malpractice. Then she said, no, no, no, you need to 16 give me permission. You need to tell me not to give 17 him this medication. And so I said, ma'am, as I
18 explained to you before, because of the diagnosis of 19 pneumonia, Levaquin is the drug of choice. And 20 other antibiotics will not cover. I believe I
21 repeated that at least three times. She was raising 22 her voice on the phone, and then she hung up. And 23 that was the last I heard of her until the actual 24 complaint came up.

25 So to continue the testimony. So as far as

1 the actual complaint, I was not aware until I saw
2 the complaint. And so my testimony, Your Honor, is 3 that I like to think -- all doctors like to think
4 they're good at their craft or they're proud of what
5 they do, help patients, et cetera. But every doctor
6 has their strengths, and I feel that my strength is 7 in -- and I have to credit my training years -- to 8 go ahead and never break routines and protocols
9 because the day that I break my own protocol
10 something bad might happen. So that is something
11 that I still try to do on a daily basis when I work,
12 is no matter how tired I am, I will not break that 13 protocol. And I'm one of the few doctors in this 14 area that will get on the phone and talk to 15 patients. I always go over all lab results. And 16 not to throw other doctors under, but I've had many 17 patients come to me asking me to go over lab results
18 that their own doctor performed. But, to me, that's 19 a strong point that I carry. I go over and I spend 20 time with them, that's one of the things I enjoy.
21 And I remember this case very well because the wife
22 was so upset.

23 So that's my testimony.

24 THE COURT: All right. Let's see, I know
25 that Ms. Edwards may have some questions for you on

1 cross-examination.

2 MS. EDWARDS: Mr. Walker?

3 THE COURT: Or not.

4 MR. WALKER: Give us just a second.

5 MS. EDWARDS: I thought he was going to do
6 the cross. I apologize.

7 THE COURT: That's fine. Take a couple
8 minutes.

9 MR. WALKER: We don't have any questions.

10 THE COURT: Thank you.

11 Dr. Im, the Department doesn't have any 12 questions for you.

13 But I do see that there are two exhibits that 14 we addressed during the Department's case in chief,
15 and that is Respondent's Exhibit 7, which was the 16 infectious disease article from the Infectious
17 Disease Society of America, that I was admitted over
18 objection.

19 And Exhibit 8, which is the screenshot of the 20 Publix pharmacy notes, were admitted.

21 And then regarding Exhibit No. 5, that 22 exhibit was not admitted.

23 Are there any other exhibits that you would 24 like to offer at this time before you conclude your 25 case in chief?

1 DR. IM: I believe there's -- is it my turn?

2 THE COURT: Yes, this is your case.

3 DR. IM: Yeah, I have just one exhibit. I
4 think that was the exhibit that Ms. Edwards was 5 going to submit.

6 THE COURT: Which one was that?

7 DR. IM: Just the progress note from the VA
8 hospital.

9 MS. EDWARDS: That was --

10 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards?

11 MS. EDWARDS: That one was entered in,
12 Dr. Im. Just the progress note.

13 THE COURT: Was that Petitioner's Exhibit
14 No. 5, the VA cardiologist progress note?

15 DR. IM: No.

16 THE COURT: No? Something different? Okay.

17 MS. EDWARDS: That one was entered, tab nine.
18 If you just want to make sure in the exhibit book --

19 DR. IM: Tab nine? That was entered?

20 MS. EDWARDS: Yes.

21 THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, what is on tab nine?

22 MS. EDWARDS: Tab nine is Exhibit 5, and that
23 is the cardiology record from the VA.

24 THE COURT: Thank you. That's Petitioner's
25 Exhibit 5?

1 MS. EDWARDS: Yes.

2 THE COURT: Anything further, Dr. Im, that
3 you would like to offer in your case?

4 DR. IM: So. I'm so sorry.

5 Part of my testimony, if I can do a quick
6 addendum.

7 THE COURT: Well, your time for your
8 testimony -- you gave your testimony, the 9 Department's indicated that they didn't have any 10 cross-examination, so that would have been the 11 completion of your testimony.

12 I'll ask Ms. Edwards and Mr. Williams
13 [sic] -- Mr. Walker. I'm mixing all these names up
14 today -- if you have any objection to Dr. Im
15 offering additional testimony.

16 MR. WALKER: I do not.

17 THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im. Now, this is -- 18 maybe I didn't clarify it earlier. This is your 19 time to provide testimony. Whether the Department
20 asks you questions, or not, this is your time to 21 provide testimony. I won't ask you any questions,
22 and unless they have cross-examination they won't
23 ask you any questions, either.

24 So this is your time. Once you complete your 25 testimony this time, if the Department does not have

1 any objections that will be it. Okay? You want to
2 take a look at your notes and figure out what you
3 want to say?

4 DR. IM: Yes. What I want to --

5 THE COURT: Let me give you a few moments do
6 that, that way you can gather your thoughts, you
7 know where you're going, and that way you won't miss
8 anything and have to come back.

9 DR. IM: I know the sentence that I want to 10 headline into, this telephone conversation. So this 11 is a telephone conversation that took place between 12 Ms. K.K. and the VA dated March 16th. It says here,
13 patient's wife was calling with questions.
14 Patient's wife says here, patient's wife instructed
15 to listen to the pharmacist. And patient should not 16 take Levaquin as she was told by the pharmacist,
17 that is contraindicated. So I guess I left out that 18 part of the testimony, that the -- there were lots 19 of contradictions brought forth by Ms. K.K. during 20 the deposition of her husband and herself. So I
21 just want to note that -- I guess my testimony is 22 without any doubt I know that I went over the --
23 went over with the patient, Mr. J.K. in the room,
24 the alternatives, why this should not be used
25 because it will not cover. And then I had the

1 additional telephone conversation -- I guess I'm
2 just thinking out loud. And so because I didn't get
3 to -- so I'm done with the testimony.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Did you want to look at 5 any -- take a few moments to look at the rest of the 6 documents and tell me if you have anything that you
7 want to address before we close your case?

8 DR. IM: No, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: I'll give both parties about five 10 minutes to take a look at what you have -- because 11 the petitioner will have an opportunity for 12 rebuttal. So I'll give both parties a few minutes
13 to look over your notes.

14 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you, Your Honor. Would 15 you mind if we stepped outside?

16 THE COURT: Absolutely. We'll go off the 17 record until about 3:30.

18 MS. EDWARDS: Perfect. Thank you very much.

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 (Recess taken at 3:24 p.m. Resumed at 21 3:30 p.m.)

22 THE COURT: It's 3:30. I see that the 23 Department has returned.

24 Dr. Im, have you had a chance to look at your 25 notes and determine if you have additional testimony

1 you would like to offer at this time?

2 DR. IM: No extra. No additional testimony,
3 Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Okay. Are there any additional
5 exhibits that you would like to offer at this time?

6 DR. IM: No, I do not.

7 THE COURT: Okay. So are you now concluding
8 your case in chief?

9 DR. IM: Yes. I was going to summarize, I
10 don't know if that's allowed.

11 THE COURT: So you want to summarize --

12 DR. IM: I wasn't sure if there's like a 13 closing summary from the Department. I wasn't sure
14 of the procedure.

15 THE COURT: Oh, okay. We'll get to this a
16 little bit later. But generally a closing argument
17 is not necessary in an administrative proceeding.
18 If you choose to give a closing argument you can 19 choose to do so. But most closing arguments are 20 waived in lieu of proposed recommended order, which 21 is written. Would you probably consider a written 22 closing argument then, which would include your 23 proposed recommendation regarding the findings of 24 fact and the conclusions of law, and what you think
25 the recommendation should be. I'll explain that a

1 little bit further later.

2 If you choose to offer that that would be
3 something that we would offer after the Department
4 has had opportunity to offer any rebuttal evidence
5 if they choose to do so.

6 DR. IM: Okay.

7 THE COURT: So are you prepared to conclude
8 your case for today?

9 DR. IM: Yes.

10 THE COURT: Okay. The Department, do you
11 have any rebuttal?

12 MS. EDWARDS: Your Honor, no, we have no
13 rebuttal at this time. We wanted to keep Dr. Davis
14 in case additional articles were entered in. If his 15 case is closed we're done, as well.

16 THE COURT: Thank you, Dr. Davis, for 17 spending your day with us. We appreciate that and 18 your patience. Based on Ms. Edwards's statements
19 you are free to go. Again, we thank you.

20 (Dr. Davis excused.)

21 THE COURT: Okay. So, Ms. Edwards, do you
22 still maintain that the Department will be
23 requesting or ordering a copy of the transcript?

24 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Okay. So with that said

1 regarding the proposed recommended orders, those 2 proposed recommended orders will be filed with the 3 Division's clerk ten days after the filing of the 4 original transcript. So Madam Court Reporter, I
5 gave you one of my cards earlier. So you would mail
6 the -- even though the Department is ordering a
7 copy, you'd mail the official transcript to the 8 Division, the Division's clerk. And, of course,
9 Dr. Im, if you wish to order a copy of the 10 transcript you can touch base with the court
11 reporter or coordinate something with the Department
12 to obtain a copy of the transcript.

13 And so what generally happens is a notice of 14 filing of the transcript will be posted on the 15 electronic docket and sent to both parties to, of 16 course, make you aware that the official transcript
17 has been filed with the Division.

18 And then about 30 days, or so, after the 19 filing of the transcript and, of course, after the 20 proposed recommended orders I will issue my 21 recommended order regarding findings of fact,
22 conclusions of law and what my recommendation is as 23 it relates to the resolution of this case.

24 Does anyone have any questions regarding how 25 the proposed recommended orders will go? The

1 Department?

2 MS. EDWARDS: No, Your Honor.

3 THE COURT: No? Okay. Dr. Im?

4 DR. IM: No.

5 THE COURT: Okay. Of course, Dr. Im, I'll
6 speak directly to you. On the Division's website --
7 are you familiar with the website?

8 DR. IM: Yes.

9 THE COURT: Because you have it -- you
10 registered. Right?

11 DR. IM: Yes, I did.

12 THE COURT: All right. So on the Division's
13 website you should find on the left-hand side of 14 that screen some links to a template for proposed
15 recommended order, and you can use that if you
16 choose. You can also take a look at any other 17 previous recommended orders to give you some 18 guidance as to the format. But, quite frankly, the 19 format is not as important, to me, so long as you,
20 of course, communicate what you believe the findings
21 of fact should be and the conclusions of law and 22 recommendation, I can figure it out. Just make sure
23 that you -- whatever you choose to do, if you file a
24 proposed recommended order that you also provide a 25 copy to the Department. And the same for the

1 Department.

2 MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Okay. Any questions regarding
4 the proposed recommended orders, any questions
5 regarding what the next step will be after today?
6 Dr. Im?

7 DR. IM: If you could put that in plain
8 English what happens after today, I think I sort of 9 followed you on that.

10 THE COURT: So after today the 11 court reporter's going to type up everything into a 12 transcript and it will be written and filed on the 13 Division's website. After the court reporter files
14 that you'll have about ten -- you'll have ten days,
15 and that's ten calendar days, not business days.
16 So, of course, if you have any questions regarding 17 the timeline you can contact my assistant regarding 18 that, but it's ten days after the filing of the 19 transcript.

20 Then I'll take a look at it and review the 21 record, again, including all of the evidence that I
22 have, and I'll decide what I think actually 23 happened. And then I'll look at the law and 24 determine how that law applies to those facts.
25 Really the issue being whether you fell below the

1 standard of care in your interaction/exchange as it
2 relates to the treatment of Patient J.K. on
3 March 16th, 2018.

4 And then after that the case goes back to the 5 Department, they look at it, they say, you know, I
6 don't know, we agree, we don't agree, it may go that
7 way, it may not. But basically they'll review it,
8 again. The Board of Osteopathic Medicine will 9 review it and enter a final order.

10 And along the steps, even with the 11 recommended order, you'll have rights -- you'll see 12 those usually on the last page, you know, of those 13 particular orders, and they'll tell you what your 14 rights are. So read those, some of those are very 15 specific, especially the exceptions, those do not 16 get filed with the Division, they need to be filed
17 with the Department and the Board of Osteopathic
18 Medicine. So sometimes people don't know where they 19 should file. If I get them I do nothing with them,
20 they just sit on the docket because I no longer have 21 jurisdiction. But you'll see those rights usually 22 on the last page of the recommended order, and then 23 from there the Board of Osteopathic Medicine will 24 have jurisdiction to determine what the final order
25 should be and the final decision.

1                   Okay? Any other questions?

2                   DR. IM: No, that was very clear. Thank you.

3                   THE COURT: Ms. Edwards, it looked like you
4 were about to ask something.

5                   MS. EDWARDS: Do you want a Word copy of the 6 PRO as well as the filed copy?

7                   THE COURT: Sure. That's fine. That's fine.

8                   MS. EDWARDS: Okay. And we'll send that to 9 your assistant?

10                  THE COURT: Yes, you can do that. That's 11 fine. I've never had anyone ask me that, but that's 12 fine. Either way. As long as, of course, it's 13 filed on the docket, as well.

14                  MS. EDWARDS: Yes, Your Honor.

15                  THE COURT: Any other questions for the 16 Department? Anything else?

17                  MS. EDWARDS: No, Your Honor.

18                  THE COURT: Okay. Dr. Im?

19                  DR. IM: No.

20                  THE COURT: Okay. Great. So then with that 21 said we'll adjourn for the day. Thank you very 22 much, Madam Court Reporter.

EXAMINATION

BY MS. EDWARDS:

Q My name is Virginia Edwards, and I'm a prosecutor for the Florida Department of Health. We are here today for your deposition in Department of Health versus John Joseph Im, D.O., DOAH Case No.
19-4724PL, Department of Health Case No.
2018-07389.

Mr. J.K., have you been deposed before?

A I'm sorry, repeat that, please.

Q Have you had your deposition taken before?

A No, I have not.

Q Okay. So if I ask you a question that you do not understand, please let me know, and I can rephrase

1 the question. If you have any trouble
2 understanding any of my questions, please let me
3 know, and I will slow down. If I answer my 4 questions -- or excuse me, if you answer my
5 question, I will assume you understand it. Is that 6 fair?

7 A Yes, it is.

8 Q Okay. If you need a break at any time, please let 9 me know. And please make sure to answer aloud and 10 not with sounds or gestures so that the court
11 reporter can make an accurate transcript of your 12 testimony and so that I am able to hear you as 13 well. And as a courtesy to the court reporter,
14 please let me finish my question before you answer.

15 As previously stated, the allegations
16 involved here provided to you in communications
17 with your wife K.K., giving your names -- given
18 that we are trying to keep your names confidential,
19 we will be referring to you as initials.

20 MS. EDWARDS: And, court reporter, if we 21 inadvertently slip up, will you please redact any 22 misstatement that we may make.

23 BY MS. EDWARDS:

24 Q And, Mr. J.K., did you get a copy of the Notice for 25 today's deposition?

1 A Yes, I did.

2 MS. EDWARDS: And, court reporter, does
3 he have an exhibit notebook in the front of him?

4 COURT REPORTER: I'll give him one.

5 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

6 COURT REPORTER: He has the deposition
7 exhibit for K.-- for J.K.

8 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

9 BY MS. EDWARDS:

10 Q Mr. J.K., if you could turn to tab one, please.

11 COURT REPORTER: Sorry. Just a minute,
12 please. He may have K.K.'s.

13 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

14 COURT REPORTER: The witness now has the 15 J.K. exhibit packet.

16 THE WITNESS: Yes.

17 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you very much.

18 BY MS. EDWARDS:

19 Q Mr. J.K., if you could turn to tab one, please.

20 A Yes.

21 Q And is this a copy of the Notice you received?

22 A Yes.

23 MS. EDWARDS: And we would like to attach
24 this and mark this as Exhibit 1.

25 (EXHIBIT NO. 1 MARKED.)

1 BY MS. EDWARDS:

2 Q Mr. J.K., what is your current address?

3 A N4435 County Road HH, Mauston, Wisconsin 53948.

4 Q And how long have you lived there?

5 A Approximately 15 years.

6 Q Do you plan on moving within the next few months?

7 A Unfortunately not, no.

8 Q Do you have any other residences?

9 A Yes, we do.

10 Q And where is the other residence?

11 A It would be 3057 St. Michael Lane, The Villages,
12 Florida.

13 Q And how long have you had the residence in The 14 Villages?

15 A Approximately seven years.

16 Q And how often do you go to this residence?

17 A Once a year. Every --

18 Q When approximately during the year do you go?

19 A Normally we head there in January.

20 Q And how long do you stay?

21 A Approximately six months.

22 Q Will you be traveling to The Villages this year?

23 A Yes, we will.

24 Q And when do you plan on going?

25 A In January.

1 Q Now the hearing for this case is set for 2 November 7th, 2019, in Lady Lake, Florida. Would 3 you be available to testify in person at the 4 hearing?

5 A If we're not -- if an appearance is not required,
6 we could do it by phone or by video, yes.

7 Q Okay. But you would not be able to appear live, is
8 that correct?

9 A I don't believe so, no. Not at this time. I would 10 say no.

11 Q And where will you be on that date?

12 A Probably at our residence during the holidays.

13 Q And where is that residence?

14 A In Mauston, Wisconsin, at the N4435 address.

15 Q Thank you. Mr. K., what if anything did you do
16 today to prepare for your deposition?

17 A Get up this morning, to answer you. Other than 18 that, nothing.

19 Q Okay. Do you remember where you were in March of 20 2018?

21 A I was in The Villages. I don't remember what day,
22 but I was in The Villages at the time.

23 Q Okay. Do you remember the events of March 15th and 24 16th?

25 A Somewhat, yes.

1 Q Okay. So let's start with March 15th. What
2 happened that day?

3 A I wasn't feeling well, and my wife took me to an
4 immediate care center.

5 Q Okay. And you said you weren't feeling well. What 6 were your symptoms?

7 A I just had a fever and generally just feeling bad
8 all over.

9 Q When did you start -- first start feeling sick?

10 A Probably a day or two before.

11 Q Do you remember the name of the facility that you
12 went to?

13 A No, I don't. I cannot tell you the name of the 14 facility, no.

15 Q Okay. Was it your first time going to that 16 facility?

17 A Yes, it was.

18 Q Do you normally go to a different facility?

19 A I never -- usually, when I feel -- when I have a 20 problem, I go to the VA hospital.

21 Q Why didn't you go to the VA that day?

22 A I don't know why. I think it's just -- I don't
23 know if they were closed that day or it was easier
24 just to go someplace closer.

25 Q Okay. Now I'd like you to take a look at tab two,

1 please. Take a minute to review it and let me know
2 when you are done.

3 A (A pause.) Okay.

4 Q Thank you. And do you recognize these documents?

5 A No.

6 Q Okay. So back to March 15th. Do you remember what 7 medications you were taking at that time prior to 8 going into the clinic?

9 A Yes. I was taking my medications for heart,
10 amlodipine, dofetilide, warfarin, and tamsulosin.

11 Q Okay. And can you go through each one of those so
12 the types and who prescribed that for you?

13 A They were prescribed by my heart doctor from the 14 Veterans Administration.

15 Q And how long have you been taking that medication?

16 A Oh, approximately five, six years, maybe longer.

17 Q And do you know what it was prescribed for?

18 A The warfarin was prescribed as a blood thinner.
19 The tamsulosin is a prostate problem. The 20 amlodipine is for high blood pressure. And the -- 21 the dofetilide is to keep -- I'm in A fib, and the 22 dofetilide will keep my heart in rhythm.

23 Q If you had had an issue with any of these 24 medications, which provider would you discuss those 25 issues with?

1 A My heart doctor from the Veterans Administration.
2 Q And which Veterans Administration location-wise?
3 A In Tomah, Wisconsin.
4 Q Okay. Now let's move back to March 15th. Do you
5 remember who you were treated by at the Urgent Care
6 Center?
7 A I don't remember her name, but it was a -- the 8 first time I went in there, it was from a female
9 doctor.
10 Q Okay. And to your recollection was any testing
11 performed that day?
12 A Yes, there were.
13 Q What tests were performed?
14 A I'll try to remember because I wasn't in great 15 shape that date. My wife did most of the 16 proceedings. But I know -- I think she did a chest
17 X ray and took, you know, the standard tests, blood
18 pressure, things like that.
19 Q And you said "your wife," was your wife present
20 with you the entire time?
21 A I'm sorry, say that again.
22 Q Was your wife present with you the entire time
23 during this visit?
24 A Yes, she was.
25 Q Okay. And you said you had a chest X ray done.

1 Was that done on-site?

2 A Yes, it was.

3 Q And did the treating practitioner advise you of the 4 results of testing that day?

5 A Yes.

6 Q What were the results, if you recall?

7 A She said everything was -- looked good, there was 8 no -- no congestion or anything like that.

9 Q Do you know what your final diagnosis was on the 10 15th?

11 A She -- everything basically looked good and said if 12 you feel bad tomorrow, or within 24 hours, that we 13 should return to the clinic.

14 Q Were any medications prescribed?

15 A At that time, I don't believe so, no.

16 Q Were you seen by anyone else at the clinic on 17 March 15th?

18 A No.

19 Q Okay. And so after you left that day, what 20 happened next?

21 A The next day I was feeling -- still feeling bad, 22 congestion, headache, fever, so we went back to the 23 clinic.

24 Q Okay. And was anyone with you?

25 A My wife was with me.

1 Q And who were you seen by on that day on March 16th?

2 A That day we were seen by Dr. Im.

3 Q Okay. And you briefly discussed your symptoms.

4 What did you discuss with Dr. Im?

5 A Just told him how I was feeling. And then he -- I

6 believe he -- he gave me a -- oh, I can't remember.

7 I was -- took me in a room. I was -- again, I was

8 feeling really bad, so I wasn't thinking too well,

9 but he gave me another test. It wasn't an X ray,

10 but it was a -- I can't think of it right now, but

11 he gave me another test.

12 Q Okay. So you do not recall what type of test it

13 was?

14 A At this moment right now, no.

15 DR. IM: Well, just let me --

16 MS. EDWARDS: Dr. Im, can you hear me?

17 DR. IM: Yes.

18 MS. EDWARDS: Okay.

19 DR. IM: Thank you.

20 BY MS. EDWARDS:

21 Q All right. And so you said another test was

22 provided. Did Dr. Im give you the results of that

23 test that day?

24 A He probably talked to my wife, informed her.

25 Q Okay. So to your recollection you don't remember

1 any of the testing results?

2 A No.

3 Q Do you know what your diagnosis was on March 16th?

4 A He prescribed some medications on that day.

5 Q Do you know what the medications were?

6 A No, I don't.

7 Q Did he tell you what he thought was wrong?

8 A He probably spoke to my wife. I don't recall.

9 Q Okay. Did you have -- did you personally have any 10 concerns with the medications prescribed?

11 A My wife did, yes.

12 Q Okay. And were those addressed at that time?

13 A She addressed him and asked him -- I know she asked 14 him were the medications he prescribed, did they -- 15 would they have any affect on the medications that 16 I was already taking, particularly the dofetilide.

17 Q And do you remember -- do you personally recall
18 what Dr. Im said?

19 A At that time I heard him say that he was not 20 familiar with the drug, dofetilide.

21 Q Okay. And did he advise you to do anything?

22 A At that point he was talking mainly to my wife.
23 She took over from there.

24 Q Okay. At any time did Dr. Im offer any alternative
25 medication?

1 A Not that I recall.

2 Q Okay. After this conversation did you leave the
3 clinic?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And then did you go to get the prescriptions
6 filled?

7 A Yes. We went to I believe it was the Walgreen's.

8 Q And were you present at the pharmacy?

9 A No, I was not. I stayed in the car.

10 Q Okay. Who went into the pharmacy?

11 A My wife.

12 Q Did your wife tell you what interaction she had 13 with the pharmacy?

14 A She had said that she talked to the pharmacist, and 15 he indicated to her that the medication that was 16 prescribed by Dr. Im was contrary to the 17 dofetilide.

18 Q And what did you do after finding out this 19 information?

20 A I believe she called my heart doctor in Tomah, in 21 Wisconsin.

22 Q And did she get a hold of them?

23 A Yes, she did.

24 Q And were you present for that call?

25 A No, I was not.

1 Q Okay. Did she tell you what they said?

2 A Yes, she did.

3 Q And what did they say?

4 A She said that definitely do not take that -- the 5 medication that Dr. Im prescribed, that it could
6 produce a fatal arrhythmia.

7 Q After these two calls with the cardiologist and the 8 pharmacist, did you personally call Dr. Im's
9 office?

10 A I did not, no.

11 Q Did your wife?

12 A I believe she did.

13 Q Were you present for that call?

14 A No.

15 Q Other than the pharmacist and cardiologist, did you
16 get any other opinions regarding the medications
17 from any other medical providers?

18 A Other than those in the VA, no.

19 Q Did you ever end up filling the prescription that 20 was given to you by Dr. Im?

21 A No.

22 Q After March 16th did you seek any other care for 23 your illness?

24 A No.

25 Q Did you take any over-the-counter medications?

1 A I don't remember, don't recall if I did or not.

2 Q Okay. Do you happen to remember how long you were 3 ill?

4 A Probably just a couple days.

5 Q Okay.

6 MS. EDWARDS: And I need just a moment,
7 please. We're going to go off video for just a
8 second, okay?

9 THE WITNESS: Okay.

10 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Do you want me to go
11 off the record?

12 MS. EDWARDS: Yes. Off the record for 13 just a moment.

14 VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The
15 time is 10:34.

16 DR. IM: Do I have an -- do I have an
17 option not to go off record, to stay on record?

18 VIDEOGRAPHER: Okay.

19 MS. EDWARDS: Dr. Im, --

20 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're staying on the 21 record. The time is 10:34.

22 MS. EDWARDS: Dr. Im, I need a break for 23 a moment, and I'm going to finish questioning, and 24 then you'll have a chance to go right back on the 25 record for your questions, okay?

1 DR. IM: Okay. That's fine. My question
2 was -- my question was, do I have a right to say in 3 the future if you want a break or whenever you say
4 "off the record," do I have to recall the record?

5 MS. EDWARDS: No. That's not going to 6 work. I mean we're just taking a brief break, and 7 we're going to come right back.

8 DR. IM: Well, this is off the record?

9 MS. EDWARDS: Right now we're --

10 VIDEOGRAPHER: We're on until you both
11 agree to go off.

12 MS. EDWARDS: Yes. So we're going to go
13 off for just a moment. I'm just going to leave the 14 line and come right back.

15 VIDEOGRAPHER: Dr. Im, you're okay with
16 that?

17 DR. IM: Umm, may I ask how long the 18 break is?

19 MS. EDWARDS: Two minutes at the most.

20 DR. IM: Okay. Two minutes. That's 21 fine.

22 VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The
23 time is 10:35.

24 (DISCUSSION HAD OFF THE RECORD.)

25 VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record

1 at 10:37.

2 MS. EDWARDS: Thank you.

3 BY MS. EDWARDS:

4 Q Mr. K., you said that your wife called Dr. Im but 5 you weren't present. Did she tell you what Dr. Im
6 said?

7 A I don't recall.

8 Q You don't recall?

9 A No.

10 Q Okay. Did you -- after your appointment with 11 Dr. Im did you ever request a copy of your medical 12 record?

13 A I did not, no.

14 Q Do you know if your wife did?

15 A I believe she did.

16 MS. EDWARDS: I believe that's all the 17 questions I have for right now.

18 Dr. Im, you can proceed with your
19 questioning.

20 DR. IM: Okay. You thank you very much.

21 EXAMINATION

22 BY DR. IM:

23 Q Good morning, Mr. J.K.

24 A Good morning.

25 Q Before I start I'd like to thank you for giving me

1 an opportunity to interview you. I know this was a
2 long time ago, but I would like to begin the 3 deposition by asking, were you in any way coached 4 by your wife prior to this deposition today?

5 A Was I -- was I close? We came together.

6 Q I'm sorry. Can you repeat that?

7 A We came together.

8 Q My question was a yes or no. Prior to this
9 deposition today were you coached by your wife?

10 A Oh, coached. No.

11 Q No. Okay. Will you and your wife respect a 12 subpoena, a subpoena to appear November 7th for the 13 trial in Lady Lakes, Florida?

14 A I'm sure -- would we expect -- repeat your 15 question, please.

16 Q Okay. Will you and your wife respect a subpoena by 17 the court to appear November 7 in Lady Lakes,
18 Florida, for the trial?

19 A No.

20 Q Okay. My next questions will be, have you or your 21 spouse ever been involved in any criminal or civil 22 matter or proceedings?

23 A That's a real vague question. To what degree?

24 Q What degree? Okay. Let me rephrase that question.
25 Have you or your wife ever been involved in any

1 matters, whether civil or criminal?

2 A As a defendant or a -- or a --

3 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

4 THE WITNESS: I don't understand, I mean.

5 BY DR. IM:

6 Q Okay. I'll try to repeat the question a third
7 time. Have you or your wife, K.K., ever been 8 involved in any criminal or civil lawsuit?

9 A Civil, ah, hmmm. I'd have to think on that.

10 Q Yes or no.

11 A I'm thinking about it. Not that I can recall, no.

12 Q Okay. Have you yourself filed a formal complaint
13 against any other health care professional prior to 14 this deposition?

15 A No.

16 Q Okay. Have you or your wife ever engaged in a
17 verbal or written conversation about the care you
18 received at Exceptional Urgent Care Center on 19 3/15/18 and 3/16/18?

20 A Okay, repeat that again, please.

21 Q Okay. Have you or your wife ever engaged in verbal 22 or written conversation or conversations about the 23 care you received at Exceptional Urgent Care Center
24 on March 15th and March 16th of 2018?

25 A Other than the Department of Health, no.

1 Q Okay. So as far as your recollection, has your
2 wife ever participated in verbal or written
3 conversation about the care received at Exceptional
4 Urgent Care Center on March 15th and March 16th?

5 MS. EDWARDS: Object to the form.

6 You may answer the question.

7 THE WITNESS: Okay. Not -- not that I
8 know of.

9 BY DR. IM:

10 Q Okay. Is this -- you and your wife, is it your 11 first marriage or second marriage, may I ask?

12 A This is my -- I don't know what relevance that has,
13 but this is my second marriage.

14 Q Okay. And because you'll understand my next 15 question is, do you guys have children together?

16 A No.

17 Q Okay. Do you yourself have children?

18 A No.

19 Q Does your wife -- has your wife ever had children
20 of her own?

21 A No.

22 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, form, relevance.

23 BY DR. IM:

24 Q Okay. I can move on. Is this your wife's first 25 marriage?

1 A Yes.

2 Q As far as you know, you or your wife do not have
3 any children, adopted or biological children?

4 MS. EDWARDS: Object to the form,
5 relevance.

6 THE WITNESS: Not that I know of, no.

7 BY DR. IM:

8 Q Okay. And do you still have a residence in The 9 Villages?

10 A I'm sorry, what?

11 Q Do you still have a residence in The Villages of 12 Florida?

13 A Yes, we do.

14 Q Okay. Could you slowly repeat your address in The 15 Villages for me, please?

16 A 3057 St. Michael Lane.

17 Q Now can you slowly state your primary residence in 18 Wisconsin?

19 A N4435 County Road HH, Mauston, Wisconsin.

20 Q Okay. Now, Mr. J.K., have you in the last two 21 years ever been treated for a respiratory infection
22 other than Exceptional Urgent Care Center?

23 A For respiratory within the last two years. Within 24 the last two years, I do not believe so.

25 Q Okay. Have you ever in the last five years been

1 hospitalized for any condition?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Most recent being what state, approximately, if you
4 have to?

5 A What? In Wisconsin.

6 Q Okay. How long ago was that hospitalization?

7 A Oh, probably several years ago.

8 Q Do you remember the year?

9 A No, I don't.

10 Q Okay. Were you ever hospitalized in the state of 11 Florida for any illness of any type of illness?

12 A No.

13 Q Okay. So the next question is, are you still on 14 the medicines you mentioned, including warfarin?
15 Are you still on the blood thinner warfarin?

16 A Yes, I am.

17 Q Okay. Do you know what warfarin is?

18 A It's a blood thinner.

19 Q Okay. Do you know the mechanism of the blood
20 thinner warfarin?

21 A No, I do not.

22 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

23 DR. IM: What was that?

24 MS. EDWARDS: He answered it. I had an
25 objection to that one. It was calling for a --

1 he's just a lay witness.

2 DR. IM: Okay. So am I allowed to ask
3 any medical questions to a lay person?

4 MS. EDWARDS: If you're asking for a
5 medical opinion, I will continue with a standing
6 objection to any medical opinion. This is a lay
7 witness, not an expert.

8 DR. IM: Okay. I will rephrase the
9 question.

10 BY DR. IM:

11 Q Mr. J.K., do you know how your blood thinner works?

12 A No, I do not.

13 Q Are you familiar with any possible drug
14 interactions with this blood thinner?

15 A Am I? No, I'm not. No, I do not, no.

16 Q Mr. J.K., are you aware of any vitamins or 17 over-the-counter supplements that may interfere
18 with a blood thinner?

19 A Offhand, no.

20 Q Mr. J.K., are you aware of any contraindications of 21 other medications taken while this blood thinner,
22 warfarin?

23 A Repeat that, please.

24 Q Okay. Are you aware of any possible drug
25 interactions with warfarin and the other medicines

1           you're taking?

2    A       No.  I'm not a professional.  I do not know.

3    Q       Do you know the name of your cardiologist from the 4           VA hospital in Wisconsin?

5    A       Yes.

6    Q       What is his name for the record, please?

7    A       It's a PA.  Her name is -- I have to think about
8           it.  Notasha Hoffman.

9    Q       J.K., --

10   A       Notasha Hoffman.

11   Q       I appreciate that.  Okay.  Mr. J.K., that wasn't 12           the question.  My question is not do you know the 13           name of the assistant.  My question, is do you know
14           the name of your cardiologist, the heart
15           specialist, the heart doctor?

16   A       No, I don't.

17   Q       Have you ever been examined by the cardiologist,
18           the heart doctor?

19   A       Yes, I have.

20   Q       When is the last time he saw you face to face and 21           examined you in person?

22   A       It's been years.  I'd say a year.

23   Q       Okay.  For the record are you saying the last time
24           your cardiologist examined you was one year?

25   A       Approximately.  I don't recall exactly how long ago

1 it was.

2 Q Do you know if you saw your cardiologist in April
3 of 2018?

4 A No.

5 Q Is that no, you were not seen by the cardiologist,
6 or you don't recall?

7 A No, I wasn't seen by him.

8 Q Were you seen at the VA hospital in April, on 9 April 12, 2018?

10 A No.

11 Q Did a cardiologist, when you saw him approximately 12 one year ago, note a possible drug-to-drug
13 interaction with the blood thinner warfarin?

14 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. Respondent is
15 testifying.

16 DR. IM: I don't -- can you clarify your
17 objection?

18 MS. EDWARDS: Yes. You are testifying
19 and not asking a question.

20 DR. IM: Okay. I will rephrase the
21 question.

22 BY DR. IM:

23 Q Mr. J.K., did your cardiologist ever go over the 24 possible drug interactions to the blood thinner
25 warfarin?

1 A I don't recall.

2 Q Are you aware of the dangers of taking this blood
3 thinner warfarin?

4 A I'm more aware of the dangers of not taking it.

5 Q Okay. What are the dangers of not taking warfarin?

6 A Possible stroke.

7 Q Anything else?

8 A No.

9 Q Do you remember how long ago your cardiologist
10 prescribed the medication TIKOSYN?

11 A I'm sorry, the medication what?

12 Q The TIKOSYN, your heart medication for your atrial
13 fibrillation.

14 A Oh. The dofetilide, you mean?

15 Q Yes. That's the generic. Yes, that's it.

16 A Right. Okay.

17 Q The trade name would be TIKOSYN.

18 A Right.

19 Q Yes.

20 A Okay. Repeat the question then.

21 Q Yes. Do you remember what year your cardiologist
22 prescribed that medications?

23 A It was probably the -- when I saw him last, a year
24 or year and a half ago.

25 Q So in your opinion or recollection he prescribed

1 the TIKOSYN a year or a year -- a year or a year
2 and a half ago?

3 A Approximately. I'm not totally sure, but I'd say
4 at least a year and a half ago, yes.

5 Q Okay. Did he -- do you recall him going over the 6 possible dangers of taking this medicine, TIKOSYN?

7 A Again, no.

8 Q Your best recollection, do you remember if your 9 cardiologist went over the risks of your other
10 medications, such as amlodipine?

11 A No.

12 Q Mr. J.K., just -- hello?

13 A Hello.

14 Q Yes. My next question would be, have you ever had 15 diarrhea in the last two years?

16 A No.

17 Q So for the record, you've never had diarrhea in the 18 last two years?

19 A No.

20 MS. EDWARDS: Object to the form.

21 DR. IM: What is the objection?

22 MS. EDWARDS: Relevance.

23 DR. IM: Okay. Can you explain why it's 24 irrelevant?

25 MS. EDWARDS: You can proceed. We're

1 just putting the objection on the record.

2 DR. IM: Okay.

3 BY DR. IM:

4 Q Okay. Mr. J.K., have you ever had diarrhea in the 5 last five to six years?

6 A Not that I recall, no.

7 Q Have you ever been constipated the last five or six
8 years?

9 A Not that I recall.

10 Q Okay. Have you ever vomited in the last five to 11 six years?

12 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, form.

13 BY DR. IM:

14 Q Okay. Mr. J.K., have you ever been lightheaded or 15 dizzy in the last five or six years?

16 MS. EDWARDS: Object to the form.

17 DR. IM: Can you clarify what your 18 objection is?

19 MS. EDWARDS: Again, relevance.

20 If it's easier, I can do a standing
21 objection to this line of questioning if it's going
22 to continue to ask symptoms that were not relevant
23 to the days in question here and the treatment.

24 DR. IM: Yes, the symptoms I'm asking are 25 listed in the -- his drug insert for TIKOSYN, so is

1 that relevant? Can I ask these questions?

2 MS. EDWARDS: You can proceed, but our
3 objection stands.

4 DR. IM: Okay.

5 BY DR. IM:

6 Q Next question. Do you know if your cardiologist
7 ever asked you to consult a pharmacist before
8 taking the medicine TIKOSYN?

9 A No.

10 Q Do you know if you or your wife ever had a 11 conversation with any pharmacist about the 12 medication TIKOSYN?

13 A No.

14 Q Were you ever taking multivitamins at any time in 15 the last five to six years?

16 A No.

17 Q Had you ever used Tylenol for fever in the last
18 five to six years?

19 A Don't recall.

20 Q Are you aware if your wife ever gave you Tylenol
21 for fever in the last five or six years?

22 A No.

23 Q Is that a no, she never gave you Tylenol, or no,
24 you don't recall?

25 A No, I don't recall.

1 Q Okay. Have you ever eaten salad in the last five
2 or six years?

3 A I'm sorry, repeat that.

4 Q Have you ever eaten salad as part of a meal in the 5 last five or six years?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Are you familiar with the risk of eating salads
8 while on warfarin, --

9 A Yes.

10 Q -- J.K.?

11 A Yes.

12 Q How much salad is dangerous to eat while on this 13 medication, warfarin?

14 A I don't know, but I limit the amount of greens I do
15 eat.

16 Q May I ask how you limit the amount of greens you
17 eat?

18 A By not eating them.

19 Q Okay. So you're not eating greens, so what type of 20 salad are you eating?

21 A I mean -- I said I limit the amount I eat. I don't 22 eat them every day, maybe once a week.

23 Q Mr. J.K., have you ever eaten broccoli in the last
24 five to six years?

25 A Yes.

1 Q May I ask what is your favorite vegetable?

2 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, relevance.

3 DR. IM: I'd like to state to the court
4 reporter, if I can make a comment, the objection
5 does not hold here because food, whether it's 6 salads or other items, is relevant to potential
7 interactions with medications that the parent --
8 patient is currently on.

9 MS. EDWARDS: Did -- you specifically
10 asked a question regarding his favorite vegetable.
11 We have gone off of topic here, and I understand
12 your point. We can keep moving forward, but this 13 one is -- the objection stands as to relevance.

14 DR. IM: Virginia, are you limiting me to 15 how many questions I can?

16 MS. EDWARDS: No, I am not, Dr. Im. I am
17 putting my objections on the record.

18 DR. IM: Okay. So can I ask a few more
19 questions about his eating habits?

20 MS. EDWARDS: (No response.)

21 DR. IM: Virginia?

22 MS. EDWARDS: Doctor, you can ask the 23 questions, but I will continue to object if 24 necessary.

25 DR. IM: Okay. All right.

1 BY DR. IM:

2 Q Mr. J.K., have you eaten cheese in the last five to
3 six years?

4 A That's a funny question in Wisconsin. Yes, I have 5 eaten cheese.

6 Q So if you're in Wisconsin, I think you'll like this 7 question, have you eaten cheese in the last five to 8 six years?

9 A Yes.

10 Q Okay. And the last question about food, I
11 appreciate you hanging in there with me with these 12 silly food questions, have you ever eaten corn or 13 chicken in the last five to six years?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Okay. Mr. J.K., were you aware that these foods
16 contain significant amounts of vitamin K?

17 A No.

18 Q Are you familiar with the terminology vitamin K?

19 A Yes.

20 Q Will you explain to Virginia and Mr. William -- 21 William Walker what you know about vitamin K and 22 the possible interactions with warfarin?

23 A Vitamin K --

24 MS. EDWARDS: Objection.

25 DR. IM: Can the wit- -- plaintiff answer

1           that question? Or are you objecting to him
2           answering?

3                       MS. EDWARDS: I'm objecting to the 4           question, to the form.

5                       But the plaintiff can answer the 6           question. Or the witness.

7 BY DR. IM:

8 Q    Mr. J.K., I'll ask you again. Yah. Are you -- can 9       you explain what you know about vitamin K and the 10      potential interactions with warfarin?

11 A    No.

12 Q    Okay. Okay. So I won't get too medical with this 13      one. Are you -- do you still have the condition
14      atrial fibrillation?

15 A    My -- I still have the condition, yes.

16 Q    How long have you had the condition atrial
17      fibrillation?

18 A    For years.

19 Q    And do you know approximately how long?

20 A    No.

21 Q    Have you had ablation therapy ever before for your
22      atrial fibrillation?

23 A    Yes.

24 Q    Do you remember what year?

25 A    No.

1 Q Have you had it once or twice?

2 A Twice.

3 Q Was it successful?

4 A No.

5 Q Do you remember signing a consent form before the 6 ablation surgery?

7 A Well, I signed a lot of things. I'm assuming I
8 signed a consent form, yes.

9 Q Do you remember the risks of the procedure before
10 you signed the consent for the procedure?

11 A No.

12 Q Okay. Now were you aware that the risk of the 13 procedure included possible stroke or death?

14 A No.

15 MS. EDWARDS: I'd like to renew the 16 objection. I apologize. I renew the objection and 17 continue a standing objection based on relevance.

18 DR. IM: Virginia, I -- he has stated he 19 had surgery, he has stated he --

20 MS. EDWARDS: Dr. Im, please continue
21 with the question.

22 DR. IM: All right.

23 BY DR. IM:

24 Q Mr. J.K., did you know if there were any risks
25 involved with the ablation surgery?

1 A Well, there's always risks involved, yes.

2 Q Okay. And would you -- at that time that you had
3 the procedure, would you consider the risk low
4 risk, moderate risk or high risk?

5 A Moderate to high.

6 Q Moderate to high. Okay. Did you ever talk to your 7 cardiologist about the antibiotic Levaquin?

8 A Did I what?

9 Q Have you ever had a conversation about the -- with 10 a cardiologist or the cardiology department about 11 the antibiotic Levaquin?

12 A No.

13 Q Have you in the last five to six years been on any 14 antibiotics of any type?

15 A Not that I recall.

16 Q And you remember you were hospitalized in 17 Wisconsin; do you remember how long you were in the 18 hospital?

19 A Four days.

20 Q During those four days do you remember the 21 medications they administered while you were in the 22 hospital?

23 A That's when I was put on the dofetilide.

24 Q You were already on that medication, correct,
25 Mr. J.K.?

1 A I would -- the last time I was in the hospital, try
2 to clear things up, was when I went in to get the
3 dofetilide, and they had to keep me in the hospital
4 for that period of time to see if my body would 5 accept it.

6 Q You were in the hospital for four days. Why would 7 they keep you in the hospital for four days to 8 start a medication?

9 A Well, it was three days. They want you to start
10 the medication to see that it worked before they 11 gave it to me as a prescription.

12 Q Was that before or after your ablation?

13 A It was after the ablation.

14 Q This is a yes or no question, Mr. J.K. Could it be 15 that the medicine TIKOSYN is so dangerous they have 16 to observe you in the hospital in case something -- 17 something bad happened with -- to you while on that 18 medicine?

19 A You know, I don't know this. I'm not a doctor, and 20 you're getting very medical, and I don't -- I don't 21 understand some of the questions, and I can't 22 answer that.

23 Q That's okay, yes. Okay, I'll move on. And I can
24 ask your wife. So if I'm hearing you correctly,
25 the only hospitalization you have had in the last

1 five to six years was to get the medicine TIKOSYN
2 initiated by the cardiology department?

3 A To my recollection, yes.

4 Q Now I'm trying to put this in plain English, but 5 when you were in the hospital, do you remember them
6 putting six things on your chest and doing an EKG?

7 A No.

8 Q Do you know if they were monitoring your heart
9 rhythm while you were in the hospital?

10 A I'm sorry, I didn't hear that.

11 Q I'm sorry. I'll repeat it. While you were in the 12 hospital for those three to four days, did they 13 monitor your heart rhythm?

14 A I assume so, yes.

15 Q And at any point were you, let's say, -- let me
16 rephrase it. Did the medicine TIKOSYN work in 17 getting you out of atrial fibrillation?

18 A Yes.

19 Q Mr. J.K., you stated before that you still have 20 atrial fibrillation. Is that true or not, yes or 21 no?

22 A I have it, but I'm on medication for it, so no, my 23 heart is in rhythm.

24 Q So are you saying that you are no longer in atrial
25 fibrillation?

1 A That's what I am saying, yes.

2 Q Okay. Umm, I think Virginia Edwards, that you have
3 the insert that she gave you. One of the things
4 she gave you was a Health Summary Note from the VA
5 hospital on April 12, 2018, and it states in that
6 chart that you still have atrial fibrillation --

7 MS. EDWARDS: Dr. Im, you did not bring 8 that exhibit in.

9 DR. IM: Oh, okay. Okay, I'm sorry.

10 MS. EDWARDS: Object to this line of
11 questioning.

12 DR. IM: Okay, I'm sorry. Okay. I think
13 that's one of the ones I faxed to him. Does he 14 have that in front of him? Or it's okay. I'll 15 move on to my next question.

16 MS. EDWARDS: If you would like to use an 17 exhibit, let me know which exhibit number you're 18 referring to, or we can move on to the next
19 question, whichever you prefer.

20 DR. IM: Okay. Yah, Virginia, isn't the 21 health summary that the State Department gave me a
22 copy of, and I'm pretty sure that the patient has a
23 copy of, and --

24 MS. EDWARDS: Okay. You did not provide 25 that for today.

1 DR. IM: The exhibit?

2 MS. EDWARDS: No, sir. The --

3 (Unintelligible.)

4 DR. IM: It is an exhibit.

5 MS. EDWARDS: And if we didn't discuss 6 it, it's not in there. What, are you referring to 7 something in --

8 Can we go off the record for just a
9 moment, please?

10 DR. IM: (Unintelligible.)

11 MS. EDWARDS: Dr. Im, let's go off the 12 record for just a moment, please.

13 DR. IM: Okay. Sure. That's fine.

14 VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The
15 time is 11:06.

16 (DISCUSSION HAD OFF THE RECORD.)

17 VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record
18 at 11:07.

19 BY DR. IM:

20 Q Mr. J.K., are you still there?

21 A Yes.

22 Q Okay. On April 12, 2018, I have before me a note
23 that states that you visited the cardiology
24 department on April 12 of 2018. Do you remember
25 that?

1 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. The respondent
2 is testifying.

3 DR. IM: Can Mr. J.K. answer that?

4 THE WITNESS: I don't recall.

5 BY DR. IM:

6 Q Okay. All right, Mr. J.K., just about a couple
7 more questions. Actually, a couple pages. My next
8 question, do you or your husband drive a car?

9 A My --

10 Q Sorry.

11 A Me and my husband?

12 Q Do you and your wife drive a car?

13 A Do I drive a car? Yes.

14 Q Do you yourself drive a car?

15 A Yes.

16 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, relevance.

17 DR. IM: What is your objection to?

18 MS. EDWARDS: The relevance.

19 But he can answer the question.

20 DR. IM: All right.

21 BY DR. IM:

22 Q Okay. All right. Sir, Mr. J.K., do you own an 23 automobile?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Okay. Have you ever driven that automobile in the

1 last two years?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. Do you know what the odds are of -- let me
4 rephrase the question. Have you ever flown in a
5 plane, airplane the last two years?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Now how do you and your wife go back and forth from 8 Wisconsin to Florida, Villages, Florida?

9 A We drive.

10 Q Oh. Okay. So you're saying that's -- how long
11 does that take?

12 A Total hours or just how long it takes us per -- 13 total hours, --

14 Q Yeah.

15 A -- it's probably about 16 hours. We do it in two 16 days.

17 Q Okay. Have you ever flown in an airplane from 18 Wisconsin to Florida or Florida to Wisconsin?

19 A Yes.

20 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, relevance.

21 DR. IM: The patient already answered
22 yes. What are you objecting to?

23 MS. EDWARDS: I objected to the relevance
24 prior to answering the question.

25 We'll just go ahead and do a standing

1 objection to this line of questioning. He can
2 answer the question.

3 DR. IM: Which line of questioning are
4 you objecting to?

5 MS. EDWARDS: The questioning regarding
6 the traveling.

7 DR. IM: Oh, am I not allowed to ask
8 about -- okay, Virginia, I asked about traveling.

9 MS. EDWARDS: We are -- I am objecting to 10 the relevance of it in this matter, but you can go
11 ahead and proceed with your questioning.

12 DR. IM: Okay. I wish you would be a
13 little bit more clear so I would know how to ask
14 the question. Okay.

15 MS. EDWARDS: Sir, the -- Dr. Im, if you
16 want to know, the relevance is it's not relevant to 17 the issues today regarding two treatment dates, and 18 that's where the relevance objection is coming in.

19 DR. IM: Okay. All right.

20 MS. EDWARDS: But you can complete your 21 line of questioning.

22 BY DR. IM:

23 Q Mr. J.K., I think I know the answer to this one,
24 but do you know the number of deaths per day in the 25 United States from auto accidents?

1 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. Calls for a
2 conclusion.

3 DR. IM: Okay.

4 BY DR. IM:

5 Q On 3/16/2018 who drove you to the Exceptional
6 Urgent Care Center, you or your wife?

7 A I believe my wife.

8 Q Okay. On 3/15 and 3/16 is it true that you drove 9 to the clinic and from the clinic back to your 10 house; yes or no?

11 A Repeat the question.

12 Q Okay. Do you recall who drove from the clinic to 13 the pharmacy on 3/15 or 3/16 to the clinic; do you
14 recall?

15 A My wife.

16 Q Okay. Do you know what is more dangerous, to drive
17 a car or fly an airplane?

18 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. Objecting to 19 the form. This is calling for a conclusion and 20 it's irrelevant to the issues.

21 DR. IM: Okay.

22 BY DR. IM:

23 Q Mr. J.K., your wife stated that the pharmacist told 24 her that the antibiotic Levaquin, you should not 25 take it because it can kill you. Do you recall

1 that conversation with your wife?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Yes or no, are you familiar with the incidence of 4 Levaquin causing a fatal arrhythmia that she warned
5 you about, the pharmacist warned you about?

6 A Am I familiar -- repeat, that's my understanding.

7 Q Were you -- are you -- do you recall if the 8 pharmacist told your wife the incidence of the 9 fatal arrhythmia that can be caused by Levaquin
10 being used with TIKOSYN, your heart medicine?

11 A I recall her telling me that, yes.

12 Q Can you explain what your wife told you the 13 pharmacist told your wife?

14 A Exactly what we just stated, that it could cause a
15 fatal arrhythmia.

16 Q And do you recall your wife telling you that it
17 will kill you?

18 A I don't believe she used those words. I don't
19 remember.

20 Q Okay. So you were not present when your wife had a 21 conversation with the pharmacist?

22 A Not that I recall, no.

23 Q Do you recall the name of the pharmacist?

24 A No.

25 Q Did your wife ever tell you the name of the

1 pharmacist?

2 A I don't recall.

3 Q Okay. Do you remember what pharmacy you went to?

4 A I don't recall.

5 Q Okay. Did -- on 3/16 when you saw Dr. Im, you
6 know, I'm referring to myself in the third person
7 for the court reporter, when you saw Dr. Im, he 8 performed a CT of the chest, is that correct?

9 A I don't recall what the test was, but I know that 10 Dr. Im performed a test, yes.

11 Q Okay. Do you recalling laying on a CT table at the 12 clinic and having a chest scan done of your lungs?

13 A I believe, yes.

14 Q Do you recall Dr. Im coming into your patient room
15 No. 3 and going over the CT results with you?

16 A At that time I remember you coming in. I don't 17 recall the conversation.

18 Q Okay. Do you remember Dr. Im using the word
19 "pneumonia" at any time during that visit?

20 A No.

21 Q Okay. What was the result of the CT of the lungs?
22 What were the results?

23 A I believe that it showed everything was clear.

24 Q Okay. All right. Did Dr. Im assure you that the 25 antibiotic Levaquin is very safe?

1 A I don't recall.

2 Q Okay. Do you remember Dr. Im being in the room
3 with you, spending 15 minutes going over the 4 medicine Levaquin with you?

5 A No.

6 Q Do you remember how many medicines Dr. Im
7 prescribed for you on 3/16/2019?

8 A I don't know.

9 Q Okay. Did your wife pick up any of the three 10 medications from the pharmacist on 3/16/2018?

11 A I don't believe she filled any of them.

12 Q Okay. For the record, are you saying she did not 13 pick up the Levaquin or she didn't pick up all
14 three?

15 A I don't believe she picked up the Levaquin or 16 anything else. I'm not sure. You'll have to ask 17 her that.

18 Q Well, I will. I will. Do you remember your wife
19 telling you why she didn't take the three 20 medications?

21 A No.

22 Q Do you remember getting a courtesy call the next
23 day from Exceptional Urgent Care on 3/17/2018?

24 A No.

25 Q Do you know if your wife received a courtesy call

1 from Exceptional Urgent Care Center on 3/17/2018?

2 A No.

3 Q Okay. Do you recall your wife telling you that she
4 had a conversation with Dr. Im or any of his staff
5 on the phone; do you recall that?

6 A No.

7 Q Okay. Mr. J.K., if I'm -- okay, let me rephrase
8 the question. Did your wife discuss with you what 9 Dr. Im told her in the room or on the phone?

10 A I don't recall.

11 Q Okay. Now, Mr. J.K., I'm going to read verbatim
12 what you stated in your interview with the 13 Department of Health, is that okay?

14 A Okay.

15 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. Where are you
16 reading that from, Dr. Im?

17 DR. IM: I'm reading it from his 18 interview that he gave to the -- to the field
19 investigative reporter.

20 May I ask these questions, Virginia?

21 MS. EDWARDS: I would object to using
22 that. If you're referring to any kind of document
23 that everyone does not have in front of them that 24 was presented as an exhibit today, I'm going to 25 object to you reading that in.

1 DR. IM: Okay.

2 BY DR. IM:

3 Q Mr. J.K., do you remember filing a complaint
4 against Dr. Im through the Department of Health?

5 A My wife did, yes.

6 Q Your wife did?

7 A Yes.

8 Q Did you file a complaint to the Department of 9 Health?

10 A I believe we both did it together.

11 Q Okay. What was your complaint against Dr. Im?

12 A The prescription -- prescribing the medication that 13 was contradictory to the dofetilide.

14 Q How did you learn about the contradiction, or in 15 the correct term, the drug interaction, potential
16 drug interaction, Mr. J.K.? How did you find out
17 about the potential drug interaction?

18 A From the pharmacist and from the Veterans
19 Administration, my heart doctor.

20 Q But you said you spoke to the PA, the physicians
21 assistant?

22 A My wife did.

23 Q Not the cardiologist?

24 A Right.

25 Q Okay. And so you didn't speak to the pharmacist at 1 all?

2 A I did not.

3 Q So is it -- correct me if I'm wrong, all your
4 information is from your wife?

5 A Majority of it was, yes, because I wasn't -- I was
6 feeling too bad to comprehend anything.

7 Q Now when you say "feeling bad," you were -- is it
8 safe to say you were feeling so bad and you were 9 feeling so sick that you have trouble recalling 10 some of the incidents that occurred on 3/15 or 11 3/16?

12 A Yes.

13 Q Could it be possible that you were so ill on 3/16
14 is part of the reason why you don't recall the 15 conversations between Dr. Im and you?

16 A It's possible.

17 Q How did you feel on 3/17, the day after the visit
18 to the Exceptional Urgent Care Center on 3/16?

19 A I don't recall.

20 Q Okay. I'm probably going to get objection, but are 21 you familiar with what type of fatal arrhythmia
22 that the cardiologist or the pharmacist was warning
23 you about?

24 A No.

25 Q Are you familiar with the term EMR or electronic

1 medical records?

2 A No.

3 Q Okay. Are you familiar that doctors are required
4 to send prescriptions electronically for the last
5 five years?

6 A No.

7 Q Okay. Do you remember getting a paper prescription
8 from Dr. Im on 3/16 of 2018?

9 A No.

10 Q So my next question is, I know you were feeling
11 very ill on that day, do you remember any 12 conversation that Dr. Im had with you in that room?

13 A No.

14 Q Okay. All right. Just a few more, Mr. J.K. I
15 know you're busy and I thank you for your patience.
16 All right. Are you aware that without the CT chest
17 that was performed, that pneumonia would have been 18 missed?

19 MS. EDWARDS: Object to the form.

20 BY DR. IM:

21 Q Mr. J.K., do you remember on 3/15 you stated that 22 you were seen by an assistant female who performed
23 a chest X ray and you, according to you in your own
24 words, you said it was normal?

25 A As far as I know, yes.

1 Q Okay. Maybe you were too ill on 3/16 when Dr. Im
2 performed a CT chest which takes a much closer look
3 at your lungs, are you aware that a CT test was
4 performed?

5 A Yes.

6 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, form.

7 DR. IM: What is your objection?

8 MS. EDWARDS: Objecting to the form of 9 the question. There was testifying with the 10 question before the question was asked.

11 DR. IM: Oh, okay. I'll rephrase the
12 question.

13 BY DR. IM:

14 Q Mr. J.K., do you have the note that Virginia
15 presented to you on -- regarding the visit on that 16 date that we're discussing?

17 A No.

18 Q Oh, okay.

19 DR. IM: Virginia, did he get a copy of 20 those notes of his visit?

21 MS. EDWARDS: He did not recall or 22 remember what those were, so we felt there wasn't 23 sufficient authentication to ask him about those 24 records.

25 DR. IM: Okay.

1 MS. EDWARDS: But he answered he doesn't
2 have those in front of him.

3 BY DR. IM:

4 Q Mr. J.K., who requested copies of your notes from 5 your visit to Exceptional Urgent Care Center?

6 A I believe it was my wife.

7 Q Okay. All right. So I will ask your wife that,
8 so -- excuse me. Now you stated that you did not 9 go to any other clinic or hospital subsequent to 10 your visit to Exceptional Urgent Care Center on 11 3/16/2018, is that correct?

12 A Yes.

13 Q You stated that you did not go to the VA because 14 you thought that maybe it was closed, is that 15 correct?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Umm, why didn't you go to the VA hospital on the 18 18th, the 17th, or the 16th, the following three 19 days after your visit to Exceptional Urgent Care
20 Center?

21 A I was feeling better, I presume.

22 Q So you felt -- when did you start feeling better?

23 A I don't recall.

24 Q Umm, you don't recall, but -- okay. All right.
25 Mr. J.K., I'd like to ask you a little bit more

1 about your medical condition. How is your health
2 today?

3 A As far as I know, good.

4 MS. EDWARDS: Object.

5 BY DR. IM:

6 Q Just the same. Okay. Mr. J.K., do you have the 7 condition, medical condition called sleep apnea?

8 A Yes.

9 MS. EDWARDS: Objection, form.

10 DR. IM: Okay, what is the objection,
11 Virginia?

12 MS. EDWARDS: Again, looking for the 13 relevance in the current health conditions and how 14 they compare with these prior issues -- the issues
15 for the two treatment dates.

16 DR. IM: Okay. I am asking the 17 plaintiff, Mr. J.K., if he's aware of any medical 18 conditions that he had that is pertinent to his 19 health that is exactly what we're trying to 20 discuss, because the Complaint is that there are 21 medicines that would potentially hurt him, so if I
22 can't ask about his current health, what am I
23 supposed to do? Can I ask about his current 24 health?

25 MS. EDWARDS: You can ask about it, but

1 we are going to have objection to anything
2 regarding to current health. We'll have a standing
3 objection on the record.

4 DR. IM: Okay. All right.

5 BY DR. IM:

6 Q Mr. J.K., do you think you have any lung problem
7 that you should be aware of?

8 A Are you asking me if I have any lung problems?

9 Q Yes, that is the question, yes or no?

10 A I have -- no, I do not have a lung problem that I
11 am aware of.

12 Q Who -- which doctor prescribed your C Pap machine
13 for your sleep apnea?

14 A The VA.

15 Q Do you know what the C Pap machine is used for,
16 Mr. J.K.?

17 A For sleep apnea.

18 Q Who diagnosed you with sleep apnea?

19 A The Veterans Administration.

20 Q Okay. Was it a doctor or a physician's assistant?

21 A I don't recall.

22 Q Well, was your cardiologist at the VA aware of your 23 sleep apnea?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Was your cardiologist aware of all the medicines

1 you were on when you visited him on April 12, 2018?

2 A Repeat the question, please.

3 Q Yes. Mr. J.K., are you aware to the best of your
4 knowledge if your cardiologist is aware of all of 5 your supplements, vitamins and prescription
6 medicines you were taking when you visited the VA
7 on April 12, 2018?

8 A The medications. Again, I have not taken any 9 vitamins.

10 Q Okay. I think you said before you were taking 11 vitamins. You're not taking vitamins?

12 A I said I wasn't taking vitamins.

13 Q Are you currently taking vitamins?

14 A No, I am not.

15 MS. EDWARDS: I'm objecting again on this
16 -- I'm going to do a form objection and irrelevant.
17 And, Dr. Im, I understand that you are trying to 18 get the current health, but if you're going to 19 continue to ask questions regarding the current 20 health that has nothing to do with the case at 21 issue, we may need to consider terminating the 22 deposition and to move for a protective order from 23 the judge. We're trying to get information that's 24 relevant to the case at hand.

25

1 BY DR. IM:

2 Q Okay. Mr. J.K., all right, were you at any point
3 familiar with the training or qualifications of 4 Dr. Im?

5 A No.

6 Q So is it safe to assume that you are not aware that
7 Dr. Im was residency trained in emergency medicine?

8 A No.

9 Q Okay. So you think you were not aware that Dr. Im
10 was trained to diagnose pneumonia?

11 A No.

12 Q Hopefully one more question before I get objected
13 to. Were you still -- I'm assuming, Mr. J.K., that 14 you are not aware that Dr. Im was in residency
15 training in Emergency Medicine, that Dr. Im trained
16 with lots of medications, including antibiotic
17 Levaquin, and also heart medications that are used
18 for atrial fibrillation?

19 MS. EDWARDS: Objection. Respondent
20 testifying.

21 DR. IM: Okay. All right.

22 BY DR. IM:

23 Q Is it safe to assume, Mr. J.K., that you are --
24 that Dr. -- okay, I'll move on. Okay. Do you
25 remember -- I don't have many more questions, but

1 I'll give you -- I only have four more questions,
2 Mr. J.K., is that okay? Four more.

3 A (No response.

4 Q Hello?

5 A Hello. I'm here.

6 Q Okay. All right. Were you aware that the 7 prescription required nowadays be sent
8 electronically to pharmacists?

9 A No.

10 Q And are you aware that the pharmacist and the 11 physicians' offices, including Exceptional Urgent 12 Care Center, share programs that are designed to 13 pick up drug-to-drug interactions?

14 A No.

15 Q Were you aware that Dr. Im on 3/16 on his computer
16 saw potential drug-to-drug interactions with 17 TIKOSYN and Levaquin?

18 MS. EDWARDS: Objection to form.

19 Respondent testifying.

20 DR. IM: Okay.

21 BY DR. IM:

22 Q Were you -- did you or your wife remember Dr. Im
23 asking you to consult with the pharmacist about the 24 potential drug interaction between Levaquin and
25 TIKOSYN?

1 A No.

2 Q Do you recall if the pharmacist called Dr. Im to 3 discuss the potential drug-to-drug interactions
4 between TIKOSYN and Levaquin?

5 A No.

6 Q Okay. Were you aware that by law standard of care
7 for pharmacists is, if there's a potential
8 dangerous drug interaction, he or she is supposed
9 to call the physician?

10 MS. EDWARDS: Objection to the form.
11 Calls for a legal conclusion.

12 BY DR. IM:

13 Q All right, Mr. J.K., just bear with me. I just 14 have two more questions. To the best of your 15 knowledge do you remember your wife telling you if 16 the pharmacist refused to give her the medicine or 17 she refused to take the medicine Levaquin?

18 A I don't recall.

19 DR. IM: Okay. I think I have no other
20 questions. Thank you. I know that was long.
21 Thank you very much.

22 THE WITNESS: You're welcome.

23 MS. EDWARDS: And we do not have any more
24 questions at this time.

25 Umm, Mr. J.K., you will have an

1 opposition to read through the transcript to make
2 any corrections if needed, or you can waive that
3 requirement and the court reporter will just type
4 up what we're -- what was said today.

5 THE WITNESS: Yah. I don't need to.

6 MS. EDWARDS: Do you want to read --
7 you'll read? Okay. And reporter, we can go ahead
8 and --

9 COURT REPORTER: Miss Edwards, you
10 misinterpreted his answer. Please ask him again.

11 MS. EDWARDS: I'm sorry. Did you want to 12 read or waive?

13 THE WITNESS: I'll waive.

14 MS. EDWARDS: Waive. Okay. Thank you
15 very much.

16 VIDEOGRAPHER: We are off the record.
17 The time is 11:32.

NOTE: Spoke to wife on the phone. I explained the importance of compliance with therapy and that not taking the medications prescribed can result in serious injury and even death. Patient was adamant about not taking the antibiotic due to possible interactions with cardiac medications.

Follow up with your PCP as needed. If your symptoms do not improve or they worsen, return here for a follow-up or go to the emergency room. Use medications as directed. Continue current meds unless otherwise directed.

Pt's wife calling and states pt is taking Dofetilide and was diagnosed as having "bad allergies" at an outside hospital in Florida and prescribed prednisone and Levaquin; pt/wife were specifically told pt didn't have an infection. She informed the physician that the pt was on Dofetilide and asked if any of the medications he was being given was contraindicated w/Dofetilide and he instructed her to ask the pharmacist. The pharmacist told the pt's wife Levaquin is contraindicated for pt's on Dofetilide and instructed pt's wife to call for a different antibiotic.

Pt's wife called the physician who prescribed the antibiotic and states she was told by the PA working w/the physician that he still wanted pt to take Levaquin. She's calling Cardiology Department for an opinion re: whether he should take this antibiotic.

Pt's wife instructed to listen to the pharmacist; pt should not take Levaquin if she was told by the pharmacist that it's contraindicated for pts taking Dofetilide. She was also instructed to take pt to the nearest VA and pt's wife states if pt is doing worse tomorrow, she would take him in to the nearest hospital or take him to be seen at the nearest VA Clinic on Monday. Pt's wife also instructed to call Telephone Triage if she needs assistance or an opinion after hours this weekend and pt's wife verbalized understanding.

5 DIRECT EXAMINATION

6 BY MS. EDWARDS:

7 Q My name is Virginia Edwards, and I am a prosecutor
8 with the Florida Department of Health. We are here today for 9 your deposition in Department of Health versus John Joseph Im,
10 D.O., Department of Health Case Number 2018-07389, DOAH Case
11 Number 19-4724PL.

12 Would you please state your name for the record.

13 A John Im.

14 Q And, Dr. Im, have you ever been deposed before?

15 A Deposed, yes, during bankruptcy.

16 Q Okay. So this may be a little repetitive. If I ask 17 a question that you don't understand, please ask me to 18 rephrase it.

19 A Okay.

20 Q If you answer, I'm going to assume that you
21 understood the question.

22 A Uh-huh.

23 Q And if you need to take any breaks, please let me
24 know.

25 Please answer aloud and not with sounds our hand

1 gestures so that the court reporter can get an accurate
2 transcript.

3 And as a courtesy to the court reporter, please let 4 me finish my question before you answer.

5 As we are all aware, this case involves allegations
6 regarded to the patient J.K. and communications with his wife,
7 K.K. Given their names are confidential, we are going to 8 request that they use initials.

9 A Okay.

10 MS. EDWARDS: And, Madam Court Reporter, I ask that 11 you redact it, if either one of us makes a mistake.

12 BY MS. EDWARDS:

13 Q Dr. Im, what did you do to prepare for your 14 deposition today?

15 A Obviously, I reviewed everything in front of me,
16 which is all the copies you have, I think.

17 Q And just specifically, what is that, if you don't 18 mind --

19 A The administrative complaint, the notes from the 20 patient's visit, cardiology notes from the VA hospital, and 21 then I think it's just the mailing that --

22 Q The investigative report?

23 A Yes. So I just kept it in one folder, and a few
24 articles that I reviewed that I thought would be pertinent.

25 Q Articles. Okay. And did you receive a copy of the 1 notice for today's deposition?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. And if you will take a look in this, under 4 Tab One. Is that a copy of the notice you received?

5 A Yes.

6 MS. EDWARDS: Okay. And we're going to mark that as
7 Exhibit One.

8 THE RESPONDENT: Yes, that's what I've got here.

9 (The last-above-referred-to item was attached to the 10 deposition as Exhibit One.)

11 BY MS. EDWARDS:

12 Q I would like to go into a little background now.
13 What is your current profession?

14 A I am a physician.

15 Q And do you have a specialty?

16 A I was trained in emergency medicine and I own an 17 urgent care center.

18 Q And any subspecialties?

19 A Subspecialty is emergency medicine.

20 Q When were you originally licensed as an osteopathic
21 physician?

22 A That was -- I was in New Jersey. Give me one
23 second. Oh, it's in my resume. It would be 1998.

24 Q Okay. And what jurisdictions do you currently hold
25 osteopathic medical licenses?

1 A Define "jurisdiction." Scope of practice?

2 Q Which states?

3 A Oh, right now, active, Florida.

4 Q And has your license ever been disciplined in any
5 jurisdiction?

6 A No.

7 Q Other than Florida, have you had licenses anywhere
8 else?

9 A Yes; New York and New Jersey. That was during my 10 training years. That's very standard.

11 Q If you know it, what is your osteopathic license
12 number?

13 A OS8729.

14 Q Do you maintain any board certifications?

15 A The -- I am board eligible in emergency medicine,
16 Part One and Part Two passed. But when I opened up the urgent
17 care center, I did not complete that, because I'm no longer in 18 the emergency department.

19 Q So just to clarify, you took Part One, and that was 20 passed, but you didn't take Part Two?

21 A Part One and Part Two. There was a Part Three. But 22 when I opened the urgent care center -- there was a change in 23 my career path, so I left the emergency department to open up
24 the urgent care center in 2004.

25 Q Okay. Other than that time, did you ever attain to 1 get any other board certifications?

2 A No.

3 Q Have you ever published any articles that were
4 peer-reviewed?

5 A As a resident, yes.

6 Q And what topics?

7 A It was a research article in a residents, national 8 residents competition. I don't have the specifics of that 9 article, but that was my publication.

10 Q Okay. And that was during your residency?

11 A Yes.

12 Q And where was that?

13 A That was in -- physically, I was in Newark, New 14 Jersey, and that in was my final year of my residency. So
15 that would be 2001, 2001 or 2002.

16 Q Other than your osteopathic license, do you
17 currently hold any other licenses or certificates?

18 A In the medical field?

19 Q In general?

20 A In general? I'm going to say "no."

21 Q Okay. Have you ever had a lapse of employment since 22 becoming an osteopathic physician?

23 A Lapse in employment?

24 Q Yes.

25 A The answer is "no." It's all continuous.

1 Q Have you ever been a party to any lawsuits alleging
2 that you committed medical malpractice?

3 A No. This one.

4 Q Other than being a physician, do you have any other
5 type of employment?

6 A No. I have lots of hobbies, but no. Employment,
7 yeah, just physician.

8 Q Okay. Have you ever been convicted of a crime?

9 A No.

10 Q Okay. And where did you go to medical school?

11 A Michigan State University.

12 Q And when did you graduate?

13 A 1998.

14 Q What training did you do after your medical school?

15 A Did my one year of osteopathic rotating internship,
16 Wyckoff Heights Medical Center. That's in Brooklyn, New York.
17 And then after the completion of that, subsequently matched
18 and finished my residency in emergency medicine at Seton Hall
19 University. That's in South Orange, New Jersey.

20 Q And how long was the residency?

21 A Three years.

22 Q So after your residency, what did you do next?

23 A Right. So the recruiter brought me to Munroe
24 Regional Medical Center in Ocala, 2002, and that was my first
25 full-time employment.

1 Q And what was your position there?

2 A ER physician, I guess, would be the term.

3 Q Was that full- or part-time?

4 A Full-.

5 Q And what type of care were you providing to 6 patients?

7 A If you have been to the emergency department, it's 8 emergency -- you know, we're staffed by usually a third-party
9 company, but emergency medicine.

10 Q So it would be fair to say that you dealt with all
11 kinds of patients in the emergency room?

12 A Yeah. I mean, if you want to ask me more about my 13 training, I can explain. So during the residency training,
14 you know -- I can get very specific or, overall, just three 15 months of general surgery; three months of trauma surgery;
16 three months of OB/GYN; one month of psychiatry; one month of 17 pediatric emergency medicine -- I'm sorry -- three months of 18 pediatric emergency medicine; one month of urology; one month
19 of plastic surgery; one month of research; one month of 20 toxicology.

21 I don't know if I went too fast. And the rest of 22 the months were spent in the emergency department.

23 Q Okay. And that was all during your residency?

24 A The three years, yes.

25 Q Okay. And so then you moved to Munroe, and

1 specifically --

2 A Recruited to work at Munroe.

3 Q Recruited to work emergency medicine?

4 A As soon as I finished my residency, yes.

5 Q Okay. And after Munroe, what was next?

6 A So 2004, I think it was before 2005, opened up
7 Exceptional Urgent Care Center in Summerfield.

8 Q Summerfield. Okay. And is Exceptional Urgent Care
9 still your current profession?

10 A Yes.

11 Q And what is the address of the practice?

12 A The current address is 13767 U.S. Highway 441, Lady
13 Lake, Florida, 32159.

14 Q And is this the only location where you practice?

15 A Yes. Just currently moved into the location four 16 weeks ago.

17 Q Okay. Is this a solo or group practice?

18 A Solo.

19 Q Are there any physician assistants or ARNPs?

20 A I have an independent contractor nurse practitioner.

21 Q And just one?

22 A One.

23 Q How many -- excuse me. How many hours per week do
24 you practice?

25 A Open six days a week. So 9:00 to 5:00, Monday

1 through Friday, 9:00 to 3:00 on Saturdays. So, on average,
2 about 40, 50 hours a week.

3 Q How many patients would you say you see in a week?

4 A In The Villages, there's two seasons. We call it
5 busy season, slow season or snowbird season. The snowbirds
6 come down starting of October.

7 Your question was how many patients do I see per day
8 or per --

9 Q In a week. If it's easier to do per day, that's 10 fine too. I would say separate by busy and slow, if that's 11 all right.

12 A Yeah. So anywhere from, during slow season, five 13 patients a day, to 30 patients a day. Quite a range because 14 of the seasons here.

15 Q Okay. And so would busy be the 30 per day?

16 A Can be. Can be more, but --

17 Q What type of patients do you see?

18 A The majority of them are over -- I would say
19 probably about 90 percent of the patients are over the age of 20 65 that lives in The Villages. And then the rest, 10 percent,
21 less than 65.

22 Q What type of treatment do you currently provide to 23 the patients?

24 A A wide range, wide range in the scope of everything
25 that I was trained to do. So pretty much a wide range.

1 Q Okay. So in a "wide range," do you provide primary
2 care?

3 A The -- no, not primary care. There are patients
4 that don't have primary care doctors, so -- but the 5 terminology "primary care," I would say "no."

6 But there are patients who don't have primary care
7 doctors who will come in, due to lack of insurance, may see me
8 on a non-urgent basis to do preventive medicine.

9 Q Okay. And going back to the wide range then, can 10 you be a little more specific?

11 A Anything from chest pain, heart attack, pneumonias,
12 congestive heart failure. I mean, it could -- it's endless.
13 Suturing, fractures, diagnosis of cancers, all kinds of 14 cancers, so -- and that's just a scratch on the surface.

15 Q Okay. So you do a little bit of everything. What 16 other services are offered at the facility, like lab testing
17 or diagnostic?

18 A Basic lab testing. Currently, don't have an x-ray
19 installed yet because of the move, so just basic lab testing, 20 EKG, spirometry.

21 Q And before the move?

22 A Before the move, it was CAT scan, x-ray, on top of 23 everything I just said.

24 Q And who handles the CAT scans and x-rays, when you
25 do have those?

1           A     The -- at that time, it was several radiology
2 technicians.

3           Q     Okay. And were those staffed or independent
4 contractors?

5           A     They were independent contractors.

6                     So about -- to give you a little -- about October of 7 last year, I found out that I was being embezzled by my
8 manager. That was part of the reason why I had to move so
9 suddenly. That's why. So for me, there's a demarcation, you
10 know, October of last year. So, oh, one year ago pretty much,
11 yeah.

12          Q     I'm sorry to hear about that.

13          A     One year, yeah.

14          Q     All right. Do you hold any privileges at any other 15 facilities?

16          A     No, I don't have any admitting privileges.

17          Q     Okay. Past or present, have you ever had any 18 privileges revoked, suspended or canceled for any reason?

19          A     No.

20          Q     Okay. And if you can turn to Tab Two in the exhibit 21 notebook. And is this an accurate and up-to-date copy of your 22 c.v.?

23          A     The answer is the professional associations aren't 24 up-to-date because I'm no longer active member -- the -- no,
25 outside of that, everything else is going to be accurate,

1 except the professional associations. Because that was more
2 than when I was practicing emergent medicine.

3 Q Okay. And which ones, specifically, in professional
4 associations?

5 A So right now I'm just an active member of the 6 Florida Osteopathic Medical Association.

7 Q Okay. And the other ones, you're a past member?

8 A Yes, past member.

9 MS. EDWARDS: Okay. And we would like to go ahead
10 and mark that as Exhibit Two.

11 (The last-above-referred-to item was attached to the 12 deposition as Exhibit Two.)

13 BY MS. EDWARDS:

14 Q Okay. So as an urgent care, you see many types of 15 patients and a wide range.

16 A Yes.

17 Q Have you ever experienced a time where you were 18 unfamiliar with a patient's ailment?

19 A Unfamiliar, that's when we consult specialists. As 20 a trained emergency medicine -- residency training in 21 emergency medicine physician, I am very well trained in 22 getting consults when needed, including pharmacists.

23 Q Okay. So when you consult with specialists, do you
24 have specific specialists you reach out to?

25 A Most commonly, probably top three would be

1 cardiology, orthopedic surgery, pulmonology, those three. But
2 that's just part; psychiatry, gastroenterology. So quite a
3 bit of -- a number of -- and, like I said, communicate quite 4 often with the pharmacists in the area.

5 Q Okay. So do you -- if a patient comes in and they 6 have an issue, do you immediately consult or do you try to --

7 A If it's a stat consult, yes, if it's a stat consult 8 versus an elective consult.

9 So if somebody was having active chest pain that I
10 feel the cardiologist needs to see within the next couple of 11 hours, that's called a stat consult. I would get on the 12 phone, have a conversation with the cardiologist.

13 Otherwise, elective referrals, consults, usually 14 within a day or two.

15 Q Okay.

16 A Now, am I allowed to at any point ask you questions?
17 Or do I wait until everything is done?

18 Q We will wait until the end, and then --

19 A Okay.

20 Q Now, what do you do if you're unfamiliar with a
21 medication that a patient is currently prescribed?

22 A There's three things. The computers have a
23 communication system where it alerts us to all the possible
24 interactions. That's one.

25 Two, we have references, whether it's an app on the

1 phone, PDR, or speaking with the pharmacist.

2 Q Now, generally, are you familiar with Tikosyn also?

3 A I am very familiar with the class of medication.

4 Q Okay. Have you ever prescribed it?

5 A I have never prescribed Tikosyn, but I have 6 prescribed medicines in that class. It's a class III atrial
7 fibrillation medication. It's an antiarrhythmic medication.
8 The name brand is Tikosyn, but sotalol is another medicine in 9 the same class. I'm very familiar with that, the class I,
10 class II, class III and class IV medications.

11 Q And what specific -- I know you said it briefly.
12 What is this medication prescribed for?

13 A The class III medication -- okay class I, class II,
14 class III, class IV are in the realm of cardiac medications,
15 cardiology medications.

16 The -- it ranges from anything from we can do the 17 umbrella of dysrhythmia or you could say atrial dysrhythmia, 18 ventricular dysrhythmia. So we can say electricity of the 19 heart. These medications are --

20 Actually, I use that -- I give that explanation to 21 patients. I'll use it now. The heart has three components.
22 Most people think that there's two. There's the muscular 23 component. Everybody knows a coronary artery component. The 24 artery gets blocked, heard attack.

25 A lot of people are not familiar with the

1 electricity of the heart, and that's the way I try to explain
2 to people who have atrial fibrillation, which is a pretty
3 common condition, especially in The Villages because of the 4 age group here.

5 Q And that's what that would be, what the class III
6 medication is going to be?

7 A No. So class I, class II -- class I medication --
8 they're defined by the mechanism. So all class III medication
9 is going to work through the potassium channels. Class I is 10 going to work through the sodium channels. Class IV is going 11 to work through the calcium channels.

12 So they're all going to block the -- or interfere
13 with the electricity of the heart.

14 Q Okay. And what contraindications are there with 15 this medication that you are aware of?

16 A Sotalol, which I prescribed several times and I was 17 trained under -- again, my training years were in the 18 nineties, so newer medicines will come out. But once they're 19 classified, they're going to have similar properties.

20 So your question was what is it used for?

21 Q What are the contraindications?

22 A Contraindications. Well, medications in class III
23 are very dangerous medications because they can cause a fatal
24 arrhythmia they call ventricular dysrhythmia. So some people
25 call it, you know, call it sudden cardiac collapse, but

1 ventricular dysrhythmia, that's the most dangerous side effect
2 of the class III medication, because it works through the 3 potassium channels.

4 And for those who don't know what potassium is,
5 potassium is -- potassium chloride is actually injected in 6 lethal -- when the State executes. That's one of the last
7 medicines given, is potassium.

8 Potassium is -- let's just say, as far as the heart
9 is concerned, potassium is probably the most important cation
10 and the most dangerous cation, because it's so -- the 11 electricity is so sensitive to potassium.

12 So those medicines, all class II medications will 13 interfere with that potassium, so -- the electrical component.
14 So the -- I guess I'm trying to explain it in more simple 15 terms, is that's where the effectiveness lies, but that's also 16 where the danger lies.

17 Q Okay. So you have to be careful with the potassium?

18 A Uh-huh.

19 Q Anything --

20 A And there's many treatments for atrial fibrillation,
21 so the cardiologist has the choices from class I, class II,
22 class III, class IV medications. It's really up to the 23 practicing cardiologist or physician to prescribe medication
24 within those four classes that's appropriate for that patient,
25 depending on their medical history, comorbidities and so

1 forth, age group, male, female, et cetera.

2 Q So talking about the contraindications, the 3 potassium seems to be the largest thing. Is it because there
4 are several medications, prescription medications that contain
5 potassium or are there other --

6 A It's not so much -- our human bodies are sensitive
7 or the heart is so sensitive to potassium. So, in theory, if 8 your potassium was too low, your heart will be in -- the 9 electrical part of your heart will be in big trouble. If your 10 potassium is too high, you would die.

11 Hyperkalemia is one of the most dangerous things
12 that emergent medicine physicians face, whether it's due to 13 kidney failure or other -- unknowingly taking too much of 14 potassium supplements, for example, can be lethal.

15 Q Okay.

16 A And, unfortunately, I have had several cases during 17 my training years where potassium was so high that it is a
18 true emergency when the potassium is high or low.

19 Q And so I would like to move on specifically to 20 Patient J.K.

21 A J.K.

22 Q Yes. Do you have independent recollection of 23 conversations with Patient J.K.?

24 A I remember this patient and wife very well. I have 25 been practicing for a long time in The Villages, and there's

1 three conversations that I'll never forget. And part of the 2 reason was I pride myself in having the ability to take
3 complicated medical terms and put it in plain English. But I
4 remember this case like it was yesterday, even though, when I
5 looked at the notes, I was surprised it was March of last
6 year, 2018.

7 But, yes, I remember this conversation, especially
8 the wife. I remember it very well.

9 Q Okay. If you want to turn to Tab Three, I believe I
10 know --

11 A Excuse me. That's the pollen.

12 Q Take as much time as you need. If we need to take a
13 break for more water, please let me know.

14 So in Tab Three, if you'll take a second to review
15 those, and let me know if --

16 A Yeah. I actually have my own copy, so I'm very 17 familiar with these notes, yes.

18 Q I just want to make sure that those specifically --
19 do those appear to be the medical records regarding treatment?

20 A Yes. Yes. Yes.

21 Q And were those made at or near the time you provided
22 the treatment?

23 A Yes. These are definitely the notes, yes.

24 Q Were those kept in the course of regularly conducted
25 business?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And do those accurately document the treatment you
3 provided to Patient J.K.?

4 A Yes. These are computerized notes. So in the 5 practice of medicine, as you know, since Obamacare was passed,
6 physicians have to -- all physicians have to go electronic or 7 face penalties.

8 So the electronic medical records have certain
9 advantages. It's very comprehensive. But the disadvantages
10 is that it is a computer program, so it doesn't fully 11 display -- like, I can read all the charts that I want, but it
12 doesn't display the actual -- how do I say it? It doesn't 13 describe the actual patient encounter.

14 You know, it's sort of, like, trying to look at a 15 map of a country you may want to visit. And looking at the 16 map, the map will be accurate, but will it give you an actual 17 feel for that city?

18 Q Okay. Do you have any reason to believe that the 19 statements contained in those records are not accurate?

20 A No.

21 Q Okay. And other than that, are you in possession of 22 any other records for Patient J.K.?

23 A No, these are actually the same. I just realized
24 these are the same ones, so no.

25 Oh, I have the one that was given by your department

1 from the VA hospital.

2 Q Correct. And that was -- is that independent of 3 your visit?

4 A Yes. These are not my notes. These are -- yes.

5 Q That was something that wasn't in the file?

6 A These are from the VA.

7 Q Okay. We just wanted -- so what's contained in Tab
8 Three are your records?

9 A My records, yes; not the VA hospital records, yes.

10 MS. EDWARDS: And so we would like to go ahead and 11 mark those as Exhibit Three.

12 THE RESPONDENT: I just want to make sure that the 13 VA hospital notes are -- yes, this is my notes.

14 MS. EDWARDS: And then Four will be a separate one.

15 (The last-above-referred-to item was attached to the 16 deposition as Exhibit Three.)

17 BY MS. EDWARDS:

18 Q Okay. And feel free to refer to your notes as 19 needed.

20 When did you first start treating Patient J.K.?

21 A I saw the patient on the return visit that was 22 March 15th. I'm sorry; March 16th. March 16th.

23 Q Did you have any interaction with Patient J.K. on 24 March 15th?

25 A No. The patient was seen by the nurse practitioner.

1 I reviewed the charts. And I saw the patient the next day
2 for -- patient returns because did not get better, a return
3 visit.

4 Q So we'll get to the 16th in just a second. So you
5 said you saw the charts. Was that while Patient J.K. was in 6 the office on the 15th?

7 A No, I was not physically there. The patient was 8 seen by the nurse practitioner.

9 Q And who was the nurse practitioner?

10 A Kelly Reyes.

11 Q And you said you reviewed the chart. What were his 12 complaints on the 15th?

13 A Patient came in complaining of sudden onset of 14 fever, sore throat. And that was the main reason the patient
15 presented.

16 Q Okay. And what medications was he taking at that 17 time?

18 A It looks like the patient was on amlodipine,
19 Tykasin, Warfarin, and tamsulosin.

20 Q And were you familiar with all of those medications
21 at that time?

22 A Yes; the class of medications, yes.

23 Q And did any of those medications have high-risk
24 concerns?

25 A They all do.

1 Q And why?

2 A You want me to go over each one?

3 Q Yes, please, if you don't mind.

4 A Oh, sure, sure. Okay. So the amlodipine that the 5 patient is on is a calcium channel blocker. Calcium channel
6 blockers have strong interactions with the class III
7 medications.

8 So calcium channel blockers are class IV
9 medications. So it looks like somebody, prior to the patient
10 presenting on the 15th -- it could have been the VA primary
11 care doctor or the cardiologist -- had him on a calcium 12 channel blocker, a potassium channel blocker.

13 And Warfarin is -- most people call it a blood
14 thinner, but it's a -- I guess, for now, we'll call it blood
15 thinner. And then tamsulosin is a prostate medication, but 16 some of the side effects can be sudden drop in blood pressure.

17 So all four of the medicines there can have very 18 serious side effects.

19 Q Okay.

20 A As a rule, I tell -- when I teach my staff and teach
21 patients, that all medications, including over-the-counter
22 medications, have side effects. And that's the nature of the 23 chemical structure.

24 And chemical structures will affect chemical 25 structure. We are a group of chemical structures, whether

1 it's hydrogen, carbon, potassium, sodium. And all these
2 medicals (sic) are chemicals, so they're always going to 3 create side effects.

4 A doctor's job is to assess the probability and look
5 at the pros and cons of using medication. Does the benefit
6 outweigh the risks? And that is something, during my training
7 years, that the -- over and over.

8 And that's the whole idea of residency training. It
9 is to -- an opportunity where a resident goes from first-year
10 resident, second-year resident, third-year resident, sometimes 11 beyond, depending on the specialty, to be supervised and 12 taught not -- the facets of medicine, and how to quickly go
13 through a differential diagnosis, and looking at the pros and 14 cons of every decision.

15 And, obviously, prescribing medication is just a
16 small part of practicing medicine when you look at the patient
17 as a whole; the age, the sex, the medication they are on, the 18 allergies that they have, the allergies they may not know
19 about.

20 But it is all about possibility or I should say
21 probability, and looking at the risks and pros and cons of 22 using any chemical. And that's why all these medicines have 23 side effects.

24 Q Okay. And if you can take a look at page four. I'm 25 not sure if those page numbers are going to be the same, but

1 it's Tab Three, page four of the -- that will be helpful.
2 It's the radiology report.

3 A Oh, yes, yes, yes. Go ahead.

4 Q And I just want to know if you can let me know what
5 that radiology report --

6 A Okay. Yes. You're talking about the chest x-ray
7 report, right?

8 Q Chest, yes.

9 A So the radiologist, Michael O Neill. I know that 10 radiologist very well, actually. This was a two-view chest
11 x-ray, and he read it as:

12 "The lung fields appear well-aerated. No alveolar
13 consolidation or pneumonia noted. There is mild
14 hyperinflation of the lung fields, consistent with chronic
15 obstructive pulmonary disease. The central pulmonary
16 vasculature appears normal. No vascular calcifications are 17 noted.

18 "Impression Number 1, chronic obstructive pulmonary
19 disease. Impression Number Two, no focal pneumonitis
20 identified." I'm sorry. "No focal pneumonia identified."

21 Q Okay. So -- and this was on the 15th?

22 A Fifteenth. And this was a two-view chest x-ray.

23 Q And what is that?

24 A A two-view chest x-ray is -- I explain to patients
25 as it's really like a black-and-white film, a two-dimensional

1 black-and-white film. And a CAT scan is more of a
2 three-dimensional, three-dimensional colored, much finer
3 detail version of the x-ray. That's what a CAT scan is.

4 Q Okay. So on the 15th, he only had the chest x-ray?

5 A Correct.

6 Q Also on the 15th, was any other lab testing done?

7 A I know there was an influenza -- tested for 8 influenza, which came back negative.

9 And the sensitivity of that test is about 70 percent
10 and the specificity is about 90 percent. But the influenza
11 test came back negative.

12 Q Okay. And when you say the sensitivity being 13 70 percent, what does that mean?

14 A That means, percentage-wise -- "sensitivity" means,
15 if you did 100 tests, only 70 of them would actually be 16 positive for real positives. Okay. "Specificity" means does 17 that positive equal what you were looking for, in plain
18 English.

19 So it doesn't have -- the higher the specificity,
20 the higher the sensitivity is the best.

21 Q Okay. So what diagnosis was given to Patient J.K.
22 on the 15th?

23 A The presumptive diagnosis was fever and other
24 physiologic disturbances of temperature regulation.

25 Q And what was done to treat that diagnosis?

1 A Prescription for Naprosyn and Tamiflu was given.

2 Q Okay. And what is Naprosyn?

3 A Naprosyn is a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory, and 4 Tamiflu is an antiviral medication to treat influenza.

5 Q Why would Tamiflu be prescribed if the flu test came
6 back negative?

7 A Because if there is a 70 percent sensitivity,
8 30 percent of the people will still test negative, even though
9 they have influenza.

10 Q So as a precaution, you would --

11 A The word is not "precaution." You have to weigh the 12 pros and cons. And so the -- if the -- we're always trying to 13 treat the person, not the numbers.

14 So, again, this is looking at the chart, but the 15 person in front of the nurse practitioner, she felt that this 16 could have been the 30 percent that may have tested negative,
17 still have influenza.

18 Q And she did not consult with you on this one until 19 after treating the patient; is that correct?

20 A Correct.

21 Q Okay.

22 A She did not consult me on this patient.

23 Q Okay. And so just to clarify again, you did not 24 have any interaction with the patients at all on the 15th of 25 March?

1 A No.

2 Q And that was 2018?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Okay. When was the next time that you saw --

5 A So the patient returns the next day. The wife
6 states that she treated the fever with Tylenol, but the 7 patient is not better. And so that patient returns to 8 Exceptional Urgent Care Center. And that's when I was there
9 and that's when I saw that patient, J.K.

10 Q And were any changes in the prescription history
11 provided?

12 A Repeat your question.

13 Q Were there any changes in the prescription history
14 provided? Did he notify you if there was anything else he 15 might have forgotten the day before?

16 A She mentioned that she did not get the medication
17 because it was too expensive.

18 Q But his prior prescription history remained the 19 same; is that correct?

20 A Yes. It usually does not change within a 24-hour
21 period.

22 Q And I know that, sometimes dealing with older
23 patients, sometimes: "Oh, I forgot a medication," or 24 something like that. I just wanted to verify.

25 So what was -- the reason for the visit was because

1 he wasn't getting better, after treating with Tylenol?

2 A Correct, because she was treating the fever with 3 Tylenol, but she felt that the patient was not any better and 4 getting worse.

5 Q Okay. What testing was ordered?

6 A So the big test is -- the way I'm trained is if --
7 the big test is the CAT scan. CAT scan is used if there's 8 enough suspicion for, for example, pneumonia that an x-ray
9 would miss because it's a two-dimensional black-and-white
10 film.

11 The CAT scan sensitivity is very high and 12 specificity is very high. So we're talking almost 95 percent
13 sensitivity and 98 percent specificity. It's an extremely 14 fine-detailed test that actually I trained under because of 15 my -- during my residency, I did do a month of radiology.
16 Most doctors do not get trained in radiology.

17 Q But you did have a month?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And so other than a CAT scan, did he have any other
20 testing ordered?

21 A Oh, there was an INR test, PT/INR. That is to make 22 sure that his -- we'll use the word "blood thinner," Warfarin, 23 was at the correct level. And his INR was 2.1, and most 24 cardiologists like that level between 2 and 3, and so that was 25 a good value within the range that the Warfarin was

1 therapeutic at.

2 Q Therapeutic. Okay. So we had INR testing and the 3 CAT scan. And you discussed the results of the INR testing.
4 What were the results of the CAT scan?

5 A The CAT scan results. Okay. I think, instead of 6 reading the whole thing this time, because it's more detailed,
7 I'm going to get right to the impression.

8 Q That's fine. And that's on -- for the court
9 reporter, that's on page eight.

10 A Yeah, because you have the exhibit here, so --

11 Q Exactly.

12 A Okay. So I'm going to kind of point you to under 13 findings under lungs: "Scattered small foci of groundglass
14 opacity in the posterior right lower lobe and the medial left
15 lower lobe. No focal airspace consolidation or mass. Five 16 millimeter nodular opacity in the right middle lobe, Image 36,
17 Series 2."

18 And then, if you go under impression, the 19 radiologist is supposed to repeat the findings, and he does.
20 And the radiologist states: "Scattered small foci of 21 groundglass opacity in the posterior right lower lobe and the 22 medial left lower lobe. These findings are nonspecific and 23 may represent hypoventilatory change or an 24 infectious/inflammatory process, acute or chronic."

25 Q And what is, if you don't mind, "small foci of 1 groundglass opacity"? What does that reflect?

2 A Radiologists are trained not to use terminology such
3 as "pneumonia," such as "congestive heart failure." They have 4 their own language.

5 But in simple terms, "groundglass opacity" is a
6 radiological term for what appears on their images. Because 7 the job of a radiologist is not to diagnose the medical 8 condition, but describe what's visualized, "groundglass
9 opacity."

10 Then he notes, specifically, not just the right
11 lower lobe, but he says the "posterior right lower lobe." And 12 not just the left upper lobe. He says the "medial left upper 13 lobe." So he's being very specific here.

14 "Groundglass opacity," some -- the old terminology
15 on x-ray would be infiltrate, and the clinician -- in this
16 case, me -- I'm supposed to take that information and draw
17 conclusions from it. But 99 out of 100 times, groundglass
18 opacity is pneumonia.

19 Q And if it's not pneumonia, what else could it be?

20 A Not much. It's pneumonia. They just won't use the 21 word "pneumonia."

22 So the radiologists are trained to use defensive 23 language, not to put themselves medically, because of 24 malpractice and so forth. So he will not say: "Scattered
25 small foci," et cetera, et cetera. "These findings represent

1 pneumonia." They're not supposed to. The good radiologists,
2 the ones that are trained well will not use that terminology.

3 And then "acute or chronic," once again, this is 4 defensive language, saying that it could be developed within 5 24 hours or it could be from two weeks ago. That's what --
6 acute or chronic.

7 So once again, the clinician is supposed to take
8 that report, like all test results, including blood test
9 results, and come to the conclusion, the best conclusion, and 10 treat that best diagnosis after we go through the differential
11 diagnosis of the possibilities.

12 Q And so --

13 A Excuse me.

14 Q Sorry. Take your time. So what diagnosis -- after 15 getting this test result back, what diagnosis did you give the 16 patient?

17 A I explained to the patient that the patient -- the 18 CT demonstrates that the patient has pneumonia, early 19 developing pneumonia, and that the -- that probably would 20 explain some of his symptoms.

21 Q And what specific symptoms?

22 A It would be malaise, fever, shortness of breath.

23 Q And what medications were prescribed?

24 A Levaquin, prednisone and Zyrtec.

25 Q And what dosage was prescribed for each one?

1           A     Levaquin, 750 milligrams; Zyrtec, 10 milligrams;
2     prednisone, 20-milligram tablets.

3           Q     And were these standard dosage amounts for each one?

4           A     Yes.

5           Q     Okay. And what -- I know we talked about before
6     that there's risks associated with all prescriptions.

7     Specifically, what are the risks associated with taking
8     Levaquin?

9           A     Repeat your question.

10          Q     What specifically are the risks with taking
11     Levaquin?

12          A     Levaquin.

13          Q     I'm sorry. Levaquin.

14          A     Yeah. So the -- it could range anywhere from a mild 15     reaction to allergic reaction, a rash, to something as severe
16     as death.

17          Q     Did you counsel the patient on the risks associated 18     with taking the prescribed medications?

19          A     Yes, I did.

20          Q     And how did you do that?

21          A     I explained to the patient that the class of 22     medication that the cardiologist has J.K. on can interact with 23     Levaquin, called QT prolongation, but it's rare as can be.
24     And because of the presumptive diagnosis of pneumonia, the 25     patient needs the antibiotic.

1 Q So to your knowledge, at that time, were there any
2 other -- you said the QT prolongation. Were there any other
3 contraindications between the previously prescribed
4 medications and the medications you prescribed?

5 A There's always -- with every medication prescribed,
6 there is contraindications. So it is up to the job of the 7 physician to take the contraindications, with the pharmacist,
8 and work together with the pharmacist, so if there is a
9 dangerous contraindication, the pharmacist will call the 10 doctor immediately.

11 Q So it's your opinion that if they go to fill the 12 prescription, the pharmacist sees there's a contraindication,
13 they're going to contact the doctor?

14 A Oh, absolutely.

15 Q And have you had that happen before?

16 A Oh, many times with many patients, yes.

17 Q Did Patient J.K. or K.K., Patient J.K.'s wife, show
18 any concern over the prescriptions that you prescribed?

19 A Yeah. Her concern and only concern was with her
20 medication -- her husband's medication Tikosyn, and that she 21 was worried about the potential interactions with the
22 medication Tikosyn.

23 Q Okay. And what did you advise her about that,
24 specifically?

25 A I assured her that I am very aware of the potential

1 risks of the QT prolongation, I'm very familiar with this
2 antibiotic, I'm actually the number one prescriber of this
3 antibiotic, I know this antibiotic better than any physician
4 in the area, and that the benefit far outweighs the risks.

5 Q And other than --

6 A Oh, and I said to her: "If it --" and this is the 7 speech that I give to everybody: "But as a blanket, a safety
8 blanket, the pharmacist, our computers -- because we're all 9 electronic nowadays -- will communicate with each other, and 10 you can talk to the pharmacist. If the pharmacist sees 11 something that's a very dangerous contraindication, the 12 pharmacist will give me a call."

13 And for the record, the pharmacy never gave me a 14 call.

15 Q Okay. Are there any other risks in taking those two 16 medications together, other than --

17 A Any other risks?

18 Q Yes.

19 A Oh, many, many risks. It's just not with Tikosyn.
20 The Warfarin is a blood thinner. So the medication Tikosyn
21 and amlodipine and Tylenol will all interfere with Warfarin,
22 and a patient could bleed to death.

23 Q And those were all prior prescribed medications?

24 A Correct.

25 Can I bring your attention to -- the QT

1 prolongation, obviously, I'm not going to get too technical,
2 but it is dependent on the potassium channel, and that's what
3 these class III medications are all about. I trained under 4 sotalol. Tikosyn is a newer version of sotalol.

5 This is an article, Exhibit C, titled: "Drug
6 Induced QT Prolongation and Torsades de Pointes." Torsades is 7 just simply fatal ventricular dysrhythmia. People can die
8 from Torsades. That is the name of that article.

9 And I'm going to go ahead and submit it, but I'm 10 going to bring your attention to a page here, 1367, and I
11 would like to -- I should have my reading glasses, but -- it's 12 kind of small, but I would like to -- I want to go ahead --
13 and you can have this, because, obviously --

14 What's highlighted there are medications, and you're 15 going to sotalol I highlighted for you and Tikosyn.

16 For the record, do you see that?

17 Q Yes.

18 A Okay. And also I highlighted right underneath the 19 phrase, if I can read it and then I'll show it to you. It
20 says here: "Similar to sotalol, Tikosyn (sic) also exhibits a 21 dose dependent effect on QT prolongation and Torsades."

22 And the very next page, I kind of highlighted it --
23 I will give this to you, okay? If I can read it, it says: In 24 the case of fluoroquinolones, sparfloxacin --" it's an older
25 fluoroquinolone, it's in the same family as Levaquin --

1 "lengthen the duration of the action potential in a
2 concentration dependent manner, whereas ofloxacin," which is
3 more of an eardrop, more superficial, "and Levaquin (sic),
4 levofloxacin did not alter the action potential duration at a
5 variety of concentrations. Thus, sparfloxacin exerts a pure
6 class III electrophysiological --" I told you that was 7 potassium channel "-- effect, whereas levofloxacin does not."

8           And then the next one I highlighted, which I'll give 9 it to you, if I can read it: "As a whole, apart from the -- 10 possibly sparfloxacin --" it's the older medicine "-- the 11 fluoroquinolones that are currently on the market are safe
12 from the point of view of QT prolongation, with the frequency
13 of this adverse event generally occurring at a rate of one per 14 million." One per one million. I highlighted it in red for 15 you, if you can look at that for me.

16           Q     Okay.

17           A     So that is the Exhibit C that I want to --

18                     So the point of this exhibit is just simply, once
19 again, I'm very familiar, but to explain to the patient, I can 20 use medical lingo. Even now, I'm trying my best to use plain
21 English.

22           Q     And I try appreciate that.

23           A     And this is not me being -- I have to speak from my 24 heart. This is not me trying to be -- what's the right word?
25 -- "I know more than you." It's just my field. I'm very 1 proud of the field that I chose, emergency medicine.

2 But once I relate to a patient -- I've seen 100,000
3 patients in the last 12 years plus. Out of those patients,
4 I've had three encounters that I memorize like it happened
5 yesterday. One was J.K. and his wife, K.K.

6 She was very upset when I explained to her there are 7 going to be possible potential interactions, but the pros of 8 using this medicine far outweighs the risks. She was upset
9 from that point on.

10 So then I assured her, as I said before: "If it
11 makes you feel better, the pharmacist will call me if she 12 feels that there is a dangerous reaction or potential 13 reaction, and we can go from there."And so then that's --
14 that's what happened.

15 And so the point I'm trying to bring is that the 16 Levaquin is an antibiotic that's commonly used. It's in the 17 group of fluoroquinolone in structure. But the newer ones,
18 especially Levaquin for five-day therapy --

19 Which the correct dosage is 750 milligrams for five 20 days. The older dosage was 500 milligrams for 10 to 14 days.
21 The shorter duration was shown to be superior to the 500
22 milligrams, with the 750 milligrams, with safety profile being 23 identical. Five-day once-a-day treatment versus 10 to 14 days 24 of 500 milligrams. Equivalency, the side effect profile is 25 the same.

1           So the newer correct dosage of Levaquin for the last
2 ten years is 750 milligrams.

3           Q     Okay. And based on that -- you're very 4 knowledgeable in all this -- what is your basis for following
5 that? Is there specific articles, I know, up-to-date or 6 things like that? How do you keep --

7           A     Oh, yeah. The -- again, during residency training,
8 one month of research, we are hammered on how to constantly
9 read articles, peer-reviewed journals, and really understand
10 the difference between observational study versus a
11 perspective study, single-blended, double-blended, et cetera.

12                 So I do credit my three years of residency to being 13 able to always stay current in the field that I fell in love
14 with, which is emergency medicine.

15                 And it happens that where I practice, pneumonia --
16 oh, by the way, pneumonia is the number six killer of 17 Americans today. Sometimes it will rank number seven or 18 eighth, but it's usually at -- it ranks top ten every year.

19                 Pneumonia is -- can be fatal. Pneumonia is one of 20 the most costly conditions diagnosed today, especially age
21 dependent, senior citizens above age 65. Which, once again, I
22 explained that 90 percent or more of my patients are above age
23 65. And Patient J.K. was no different.

24           Q     Okay. This article, specifically, where did you
25 obtain that article?

1           A     Yes, I highlighted that for you so you can have
2 that. This is the -- oh, goodness, I wish I had my reading
3 glasses, but --

4                     This is -- I always see it at the bottom here.
5 Excuse me. It's from The Journal of Electrophysiology. "The 6 Journal of Electrophysiology," electrophysiology is a
7 subspecialty in cardiology. There is cardiology, general
8 cardiologists, there's interventional cardiologists, and 9 there's another subspecialty of cardiologists that are known
10 as electrophysiologists. And so this is from their journal,
11 electrophysiology.

12                    They're the ones that deal with dysrhythmias and 13 irregular heart rhythms.

14           Q     Now, were you aware of this article during the time
15 of treatment?

16           A     I am aware of articles, textbooks and articles with 17 QT prolongation and Torsades. This article, itself, I
18 researched it after the filing just to give an exhibit, so
19 this way, you would have something to see that --

20                    You know, as we -- all physicians are supposed to 21 stay current. It's not that this one article has or guideline
22 has superiority over another. It is peer-reviewed. It is in 23 the field of cardiology, electrophysiology. So it's to 24 demonstrate that it's not -- and this was published -- give me
25 one second.

1 Q Sure.

2 A Goodness gracious. This was published in -- oh,
3 2003. I'm sorry.

4 Q And we can have this copy of the article?

5 A Yes, please. Take it.

6 Q What I'm going to do is put it with the court
7 reporter materials, and that way it's all together with the 8 deposition.

9 A There's a -- just one more. Exhibit B is -- again,
10 once again, this here is another -- I'm going to be entering 11 Exhibit B. It's just another example of medications that we 12 are discussing. Sotalol I highlighted for you, being in the 13 same class as Tikosyn.

14 What I want to bring your attention is under the 15 Torsadogenic, which means the possibility of causing Torsades,
16 which is the fatal arrhythmia that we're -- okay. I couldn't 17 -- you know, for me, I pride myself in trying to explain
18 everything more than most doctors, but yet still not using 19 complicated medical terms, like Torsades de Pointes, what it
20 means, et cetera.

21 But if you notice under Torsadogenic, which means
22 the possibility of causing Torsades, it's listed as high.

23 And then same in the same Exhibit B, I bring your 24 attention to Levaquin, levofloxacin. And under Torsadogenic,
25 "none;" and under association, "proposed." And then under

1 comments: "Lower risk than that of similar agents."

2 Okay. So I'm going to give you this here.

3 And one more medicine I highlighted is
4 diphenhydramine, which is just simple over-the-counter
5 Benadryl, just to give you an idea. Benadryl, itself, is 6 proposed to cause the QT prolongation and possible Torsades.

7 So this is Exhibit B.

8 Q Okay. So just to clarify. So this is high risk --

9 THE RESPONDENT: Can I get more water, if that's 10 okay?

11 MS. EDWARDS: Absolutely. We'll take a break real 12 quick.

13 (A short recess was taken at 3:34 p.m., and the 14 deposition continued as follows at 3:38 p.m.):

15 A (Continuing.) So if I can, just one last, Exhibit
16 Number Six --

17 MS. EDWARDS: And yes. And before, doctor, just so
18 we can clarify on the record, we're going to change
19 Exhibit C to Exhibit Five and we are going to change
20 Exhibit B to Exhibit Six.

21 (The last-above-referred-to items were attached to 22 the deposition as Exhibits Five and Six.)

23 A (Continuing.) Okay. So just one more. As, you
24 know, I'm trying to answer questions, the diagnosis of 25 pneumonia, because it is a number six killer of Americans, in

1 other words, it's a common medical condition that we come
2 across, especially in senior citizens.

3 So the last exhibit that I have today is Exhibit
4 Number Seven, and it's titled "Infectious Diseases of 5 America/American Thoracic Society Consensus Guidelines on the 6 Management of Community-Acquired Pneumonia." So this is the 7 gold standard of treating pneumonia.

8 So whether you're in emergent medicine, family
9 medicine, pediatrics, you know, this is the gold standard of 10 diagnosing CAP, which is community-acquired pneumonia.

11 If I could bring your attention to page -- I forgot
12 my reading glasses. I think that's page number 529. I am 13 going to bring your attention to "Outpatient Treatment," and 14 you're going to see it says there -- if I can read it and then 15 I'll give it to you.

16 Q Absolutely.

17 A For outpatient treatment of pneumonia, it says, if 18 there's presence of comorbidities -- "comorbidities" means --
19 usually, the older the patient, the more comorbidities. In 20 this case, Mr. J.K. had a serious heart condition. Okay.
21 That's a comorbidity, whether it's diabetes, hypertension, et 22 cetera.

23 In the presence of comorbidities: "A respiratory
24 fluoroquinolone, such as Levaquin, 750 milligrams, strong
25 recommendation; level I evidence."

1           And so what that means is this committee, when they
2 give recommendations, Levaquin is the drug of choice for
3 community-acquired pneumonia. I just wanted to bring that --

4           Q     And if you don't mind, since you're more familiar,
5 you're talking about a level I. Is level I -- how does the 6 ranking --

7           A     Yeah. So the committees will categorize -- so if 8 you have a committee of experts, we'll just kind of say a 9 dozen experts, they will all vote on the hundreds and hundreds
10 of literature that they've read.

11                   And when they come to a consensus, they'll say:
12 Does the evidence -- that's what we call it, evidence-based 13 medicine, that term "evidence-based medicine" or "standard of 14 care." They will use the level I, level II. Level III is 15 unsure. Level II is probable. Level I means strongly
16 recommended, the highest level.

17                   And so this Exhibit Seven is to show that Levaquin,
18 750 milligrams, is the drug of choice for community-acquired
19 pneumonia.

20           Q     And the same question. I know you said that -- is 21 this an article that you were aware of during the time of 22 treatment?

23           A     Yes. This is -- this here, this society, anybody
24 who treats pneumonia will be very familiar with their 25 guidelines.

1 Q Okay. And it looks like this article is from 2007;
2 is that correct?

3 A Yes.

4 (The last-above-referred-to item was attached to the 5 deposition as Exhibit Seven.)

6 BY MS. EDWARDS:

7 Q Okay. And you keep up-to-date with this?

8 A Oh, yes, yes. I'm obsessed. I love the field of 9 emergency medicine. I was very proud of the residency 10 program, my training years. And so, yes, I enjoy -- I love my 11 specialty.

12 And even though I'm not physically working in the ER
13 or ED, as correctly should be phrased, I love the fact that I
14 get to see a lot of pathology on an outpatient basis versus 15 inpatient, "inpatient" meaning inside the hospital.

16 Q Right. Okay. And thank you very much for providing 17 all that information.

18 I want to go back, specifically, to Patient J.K. and 19 K.K. So you gave them diagnosis, you gave them medication, 20 you explained everything, and so then they left. After they 21 left, did you have any contact with them?

22 A Yes. So the patient called and first spoke to my 23 medical assistant. And so usually the medical assistant will 24 take a message. And so I relate to the medical assistant to 25 give her the message. Patient stated that she did not want to

1 take the antibiotic because she was told that it could kill
2 her husband, something to that effect.

3 So then I explained to the medical assistant to give 4 the patient a call and explain why it's important to take the 5 medication as instructed, the sooner the better.

6 Because in the same Exhibit Number Seven, if I can 7 bring your attention to -- almost there. I just want to make
8 sure I have the right page.

9 Q Take your time.

10 A It's the -- it's on page -- it says -- I guess
11 that's 553, time to the first antibiotic dose. The first 12 antibiotic dose should be administered, basically, as soon as 13 possible. And that's what this guideline is going to show.

14 Okay. So if I -- and this is on -- and then the 15 following page, 554, it looks like: "Data from the Medicare
16 database," which is usually in patients above age 65. There
17 are exceptions.

18 "Data from the Medicare database indicated that 19 antibiotic treatment before hospital admission was also 20 associated with lower mortality. Conversely, a delay in 21 antibiotic therapy has adverse consequences in many 22 infections."

23 So the reason I bring that to your attention is it
24 is very difficult to relay to the public, especially patients,
25 especially an upset patient, that the timing of that first

1 dose of antibiotic is critical from preventing an early onset
2 pneumonia from getting worse or increasing the morbidity and
3 sometimes mortality, which is death.

4 So then the patient was adamant that she speak to 5 me, so I got on the phone, spent about ten minutes on the 6 phone with her. And I remember the conversation very well.

7 She said: "I refuse to give my husband this
8 medication because I was told that it could kill him." So I
9 assure the patient, again, that there are potential
10 interactions with the cardiac medication, but it is very rare;
11 and the pneumonia has to be treated with the correct
12 antibiotic, so please have him take the medicine as soon as 13 possible, as instructed.

14 She was upset, clearly upset over the phone, and she 15 said: "I'm not doing that and I need your permission to tell
16 him not to take it." And I said: "Ma'am, I cannot tell you
17 that because, if I tell you that, that is malpractice,
18 malpractice."

19 And she said: "No, no, no. You need to tell me --
20 you need to give me permission to not take this medicine." I 21 said: "Ma'am, I'm going to repeat. If I tell you to not take 22 this antibiotic, that is malpractice. Your husband has early 23 pneumonia and he needs to start the antibiotic as soon as 24 possible."

25 And then she hung up on me, very upset. I thought

1 that was the last I was going to hear from her.

2 Q Okay. And not related to the case at all, did you
3 hear from her again at all in close proximity in time?

4 A No. No, it wasn't until I found out that there was
5 a complaint through the Department of Health.

6 Q Okay. And you said, to go back, when she spoke to 7 you, she said she was told not to take it. Did she tell you
8 who told her that?

9 A She said the cardiologist told her that -- well, you
10 know what, instead of paraphrasing, if I can read exactly what 11 she said. Give me one minute.

12 Yeah's, it's in the folder here. Okay. Unless you 13 know where I'm going to be alluding to, I want to quote what 14 she stated --

15 Q I think you're talking about, I think, it's Tab
16 Three, page seven?

17 A No, not from my notes.

18 Q Not from your notes?

19 A It's from the -- from what she -- from her
20 complaint.

21 Here we go. This is your -- so this is your
22 Department of Health --

23 Q The file investigative report, page one. Okay.

24 A Okay. So it says: K.K. and J.K. consulted with the 25 local pharmacist and the cardiologist, who both advised J.K.

1 not to take the Levaquin as it could cause fatal arrhythmia.

2 So -- and then -- because I remember at one point,
3 she said: "Oh, that I was told not to give him the medicine
4 because it would kill him." And I quote, she says: "I
5 contacted the cardiology department in Wisconsin. I was told
6 that under no circumstances should I give this drug to my 7 husband as it could cause fatal arrhythmias."

8 Q And that's specifically what she told you as well?

9 A Well, she used the word: "I will not give my 10 husband this medication because I was told not to give it to 11 him and it can kill him."

12 Q Okay. And so she told you that because she had 13 spoken to the cardiologist, as well as the pharmacist?

14 A That's what she told me on the phone.

15 Q And I know you said at that time --

16 A My job at that point is to assure the patient or a 17 patient's wife, in this case, that there are always going to 18 be risks to all medications, including over-the-counters. But 19 it would have took me, literally, hours and hours for me to 20 explain to her the Thoracic Society of Infectious Diseases,
21 the electrophysiology recommendations, and the American
22 College of Emergent Medicine and the American Academy all
23 recommend Levaquin as a first line of therapy for documented,
24 image-documented, in this case CT-documented pneumonia.

25 My talent, I feel, is usually I can take it and

1 explain it in plain English. And that's what I did. I
2 assured her -- until she hung up. Up to that point, I assured
3 her that I am well aware of the potential possible drug 4 interaction, but it is rare, and pneumonia can be very
5 dangerous, and he needs to start the medicine.

6 And after about ten minutes of going back and forth,
7 she was upset and she hung up.

8 Q Okay. Are there any alternative medications that 9 would have been an option?

10 A The alternatives that I considered were even more 11 dangerous, and the -- I knew at that point, because of his 12 comorbidity, the drug of choice would be Levaquin.

13 And looking at the risks, pros and cons, risk
14 benefits, I felt very confident that the antibiotic was the 15 correct choice, the safe choice, the right choice, but I could 16 not convince the wife of that.

17 And that is part of the art of medicine, is -- and 18 as I -- I did say this to her on the phone. I said: "Ma'am,
19 ultimately, it is your right to not take any medicine, but it
20 is up to me to educate you on the importance of these 21 medicines."

22 And I did my best to make her feel comfortable, but 23 she was upset, and so --

24 Q And so you noted on here that the medication can 25 result in serious injury -- or not taking the medication,

1 serious injury or death, all based on the pneumonia?

2 A Absolutely. Absolutely.

3 Q And to your knowledge --

4 A Once again, it's probability. Pneumonia is the 5 number -- once again, number six, number eight, number six to 6 eight per year on mortality, deaths in the United States of 7 America. The possible interaction of Levaquin with Tikosyn is
8 one per one million prescriptions.

9 Q To your knowledge, did Patient J.K. ever fill the 10 medication, the Levaquin?

11 A I -- at that point, when she hung up, as I do with 12 all patients, is I hope that I convinced her to do the right
13 thing and give him the medicine.

14 But I was not aware at that time whether she gave 15 the Patient J.K. the medicine, antibiotic, the one we're 16 talking about, whether she gave it to him or not. I was not 17 aware after she hung up on me.

18 Q Okay. I apologize. We covered some of the stuff in 19 my notes already.

20 Okay. So and after that -- just to verify, after 21 she hung up, you didn't have any further interaction with 22 either one?

23 A No.

24 Q Did Patient J.K. request a copy of medical records
25 from you?

1           A     Usually, if the records are requested, it goes
2 through the protocol, which is it goes to the staff. So all
3 patients can request. They will get the permission, the slip
4 signed.

5           A     And it doesn't have to reach the doctor. All
6 patients have access. Sometimes they can use portal system in 7 the computer, EMRs. Or if they want it faxed, mailed, it
8 usually goes through the staff.

9           Q     Okay. So to your knowledge, did they request a copy
10 of the medical records?

11          A     I would say I'm not aware. I don't recall.

12          Q     Okay. Who would have been the staff member at that 13 time?

14          A     Oh, at that time, I had a big staff. I had a big 15 staff, big clinic.

16          Q     Would you have -- if not now, but would you have 17 somewhere documented? If someone requests records, do you
18 write down who fulfills the records request?

19          A     The electronic medical, EMR is supposed to keep 20 track of all that, but the -- through the -- unfortunately,
21 the embezzlement and so forth, I no longer have access to that 22 computer system, and, as of October of last year, I'm with a
23 new EMR company. So those records are no longer accessible.

24          Q     Well, if you will turn to Tab Four, please.

25          A     Yes.

1 Q Okay. Do you recognize these?

2 A It looks like the same notice the other -- it's the
3 3/15 visit notes. Yes, I recognize it.

4 Q All right. And would you agree that these are a
5 copy of the medical records?

6 A Yes.

7 MS. EDWARDS: Okay. And we're going to mark that as
8 Exhibit Four.

9 (The last-above-referred-to item was attached to the 10 deposition as Exhibit Four.)

11 BY MS. EDWARDS:

12 Q If you can turn to page six.

13 A Page six.

14 Q And the impression diagnosis listed there, what is
15 that?

16 A Yes. So I'm going to explain what "impression"
17 means. It is simply impression. Impressions mean you can 18 write down 15 impressions or you can write down two or you can 19 write down six, and they are impressions.

20 So "impression diagnosis" means after a physician
21 goes through the probability of different diagnoses, what are 22 the top two, top three, top one, top 12. So some patients --
23 I'm sorry. Some physicians will go and write 15 differentials
24 and some --

25 So in this case, that's what impression diagnosis of

1 bronchitis and allergy unspecified, not elsewhere classified.

2           And by the way, these codes, the numbers next to it,
3 the 466.0 next to acute bronchitis, and 995.3, these are all
4 codes for billing. And it's clear -- it's important for you
5 to understand that, in the world of electronic medical 6 records, the diagnosis codes are created by the insurance
7 companies, including Medicare.

8           And so these codes, for example, no longer exist
9 because these were the ICD 9 codes. Now there are ICD 10
10 codes. So it is more billing language, okay?

11           So the impressions, whether it's -- for example, the 12 CAT scan report that we went over together, if you notice,
13 there is findings, comparison, technique, clinical history,
14 and then, if you notice, there's impression. So the 15 radiologist has an impression based on the clinical findings,
16 but it's not a final diagnosis.

17           The final diagnosis sometimes can never be proven
18 in. A lot of cases, you don't get final diagnosis because 19 whether -- and I'm not trying to be facetious here, but 20 sometimes it's through autopsy you get a final diagnosis; a
21 pathology report; from, let's say, a biopsy for skin cancer.
22 That's the final diagnosis.

23           So the presumptive diagnosis may have been, I'll 24 say, presumptive squamous cell carcinoma, but the biopsy
25 result shows melanoma. So the melanoma becomes the final

1 diagnosis. But in clinical practice, most diagnoses, you do
2 not get the final.

3 So even with something as sensitive and specific as
4 a CAT scan, roughly 97, 98 percent sensitivity/specificity,
5 you do not have a final diagnosis. It's still presumptive
6 diagnosis.

7 Q Okay. And so in this case, the original presumption
8 of just -- was bronchitis?

9 A Yes. Bronchitis is a pathophysiology process.
10 Bronchitis can lead to bronchial pneumonia. There's chronic 11 bronchitis, acute bronchitis, there's COPD bronchitis. So the 12 word "bronchitis" means inflammation of the airways in the 13 lungs.

14 Q And would Levaquin be used for bronchitis?

15 A Levaquin does cover bronchitis, yes.

16 Q Do you know when the diagnosis or the impression --

17 A The impression.

18 Q -- got changed to pneumonia?

19 A Oh, it's not changed, because there's no definitive.
20 So I will explain it again. So when you look at the whole of 21 a chart or whole of a patient, the CAT scan, because it has 22 high sensitivity/specificity, it's going to carry a lot of 23 weight.

24 If there was a blood culture and the blood culture
25 showed, let's say, strep pneumoniae, that would be a final

1 organism that identified the cause of the bronchitis. But
2 blood culture is only done inside the hospital, inpatient.

3 Outpatient -- so each one gets a different weight.
4 So when I'm trying to diagnose or when a physician is
5 diagnosing, like your expert witness, Dr. Anthony Davis,
6 alluded to, you can order blood tests, you can order sputum
7 tests, you can order a chest x-ray, imaging and studies, et
8 cetera. They're all --

9 But the ultimate, there is no final diagnosis. The 10 impression is made by the clinician. And the way I was 11 trained is you treat the person, not a number, but you use all
12 the diagnostics to help you come up with your best impression.

13 But none of it, including CAT scan, is 100 percent
14 definitive, because it's not tissue-final diagnosis.

15 Q Okay. And so -- and I know that's not final. So
16 would the bronchitis have been entered -- just so I'm 17 understanding, would that might have been entered prior to 18 getting the CAT scan results? Is that what you're --

19 A So the -- it's not -- the actual chart, itself, just 20 like when you -- I don't know if you've ever had an EKG done
21 or --

22 Q I have not.

23 A Are you familiar with EKG?

24 Q The basics. I've never had one.

25 A So electrocardiogram. So it's a snapshot of what

1 your heart electricity looks like. So even though it's a
2 snapshot, it's a snapshot of something that's continuous, even
3 though it's a snapshot.

4 So the idea is that the impressions could be in the 5 body of the notes or could be the end of the notes. It could 6 be within the body of the CAT scan. It could be as part of 7 the blood tests, if there was blood tests done, which, in this
8 case, was not done. I felt there was no need for it. The --

9 So the impressions comes from all the different
10 diagnostic tests that you do. And so once again, Physician A,
11 on the same patient, could list 12 impressions. Physician B
12 might just list one impression. But that's not a final 13 diagnosis. It's a snapshot of the person, the patient.

14 And the whole idea of chart review, which, as chief
15 resident, I did plenty of chart reviews, is the person in 16 charge of doing the chart review has to understand that charts
17 is literally a snapshot of what was evolving in the moment,
18 and you try to keep it in context.

19 It does not show you, when you read a note, was 20 there panic amongst the nurse or the nurse's assistant; was a 21 patient upset over -- arguing with his wife about: "I need to 22 that medicine." So, unfortunately, a chart review cannot 23 capture the full extent of the actual interaction.

24 But the final diagnosis comes from either tissue
25 diagnosis or, unfortunately, pathology, which is after the

1 patient dies.

2 Q Okay. And you said that you felt there was no need
3 for blood work. Why is that?

4 A Absolutely not. In Exhibit Number Seven, which --
5 since you asked it, it's in Exhibit Number Seven. The 6 imaging -- the diagnostic test of choice to diagnose
7 pneumonia, which I was suspicious for, would be chest x-ray
8 first, followed by a more sensitive and more specific test,
9 which would be a CAT scan.

10 I believe -- it's just my opinion that your expert
11 witness, Dr. Anthony Davis, when I read his comments, that he 12 did not have the radiology training. But when I trained in 13 emergent medicine for three years, that's when the helio CT
14 scan became part of diagnosing a patient.

15 Prior to the 1980s, we can go back in the history
16 of -- into medical history. Diagnostic tests are improving as 17 we speak, whether it's in the diagnosis or certain types of 18 cancers, pneumonias. So a physician that was trained, let's
19 say, prior to 1990-- we'll say trained mostly in the 1980s
20 will not have the knowledge base of a CT. They may not even 21 know the full extent of what a CT does, the difference between 22 a four slice, 12 slice, 32 slice.

23 Because I have the one month of training in 24 radiology, this lingo that I'm trying to explain is this CAT
25 scan supersedes any blood test. Because with blood tests,

1 there's risk of infection, risk of air embolism at the site,
2 risk of infection at the site, and the blood tests are very
3 low sensitivity and very low specificity.

4 So, hypothetically, if I would have stuck you for 5 blood in this situation, it would be, number one, according to 6 Exhibit Seven -- the thoracic society and infectious disease
7 society -- not recommended.

8 But if I did order the blood test and the CBC or we 9 say a complete blood count, it comes back elevated, it's 10 nonspecific and low sensitivity. What that means is -- excuse
11 me.

12 The art of medicine is practiced through --
13 unfortunately, this will directly contradict Dr. Anthony 14 Davis. If I was to ask myself, yes or no, can you have 15 pneumonia without fever, the answer is "yes." Can you have 16 pneumonia with a normal CBC or white blood cell count? The 17 answer is "yes." Can you have what we call atypical
18 pneumonia, which is not your typical organism? The answer is 19 "yes." Can you have pneumonia with an oxygen saturation of 96
20 percent? The answer is "yes," because a normal oxygen
21 saturation should be closer to 100. Excuse me.

22 And especially one has to consider the context of a
23 patient. A lot of senior citizens, The Villagers -- because 24 I've been practicing for a long time -- assume 25 over-the-counters are all safe. So they will take Tylenol for

1 fever, Excedrin for fever, Motrin for fever, and not realize
2 how dangerous that is. And then they'll use Tylenol with 3 Benadryl, or they call it Tylenol Sleep medications,
4 over-the-counters.

5 And so what I see is -- and this case fits -- the 6 wife stated: "Oh, you know, we treated the fever with 7 Tylenol." And so that has to be taken into context. The 8 patient without a documented fever does not mean no pneumonia.

9 And going back specifically to the blood tests, not 10 only is it not recommended, but, because of the low
11 sensitivity, low specificity, it's not warranted in this 12 patient.

13 Q Okay.

14 A That's more of an inpatient, in-hospital testing.

15 MS. WALKER: All right. If you don't mind, do you
16 want us to step out or --

17 We'll step out for just a second.

18 (A short recess was taken at 4:04 p.m., and the 19 deposition continued as follows at 4:06 p.m.):

20 BY MS. WALKER:

21 Q All right. We just have a couple more. And this is 22 general. Do you think you have had a fair opportunity to 23 answer the questions?

24 A Yes. I was actually -- you know, Edwards, when I
25 spoke to you on the phone, I have to apologize, because I

1 remember saying --

2 I just want to share a little bit of the heart here.
3 As you know, you can't please all clients -- and this is for 4 the record -- but I am one of those that takes -- maybe gives
5 a little too much heart. I take pride in explaining things,
6 and I feel, not in a pompous way or -- but the practice of 7 medicine is very complicated, very difficult.

8 The newer -- the medications, the over-the-counter
9 medications -- "over-the-counter medications" just means -- it
10 doesn't mean safe. And then the supplements and herbal 11 medications, and now CBD oil, et cetera, et cetera, the 12 practice of medicine --

13 But I think, when I spoke to you on the phone, I
14 shared with you I cannot believe that a patient was upset,
15 complained, and then so-called expert witness with no
16 residency training, who is very clumsy, in my opinion, when I
17 looked over his c.v. resume, because of that, it came this 18 far.

19 But at the same time I realized that today is the 20 day that not only do you get to be heard, but I get to be 21 heard.

22 Q Yes, sir.

23 A And so speaking from my heart, physician stress and 24 burnout is pretty significant. In America, statistics show
25 400 physicians commit suicide per year. Practicing physicians

1 may have their licensed suspended for various reasons, afraid
2 to ask for help because they are feeling overwhelmed or
3 depressed or have a broken marriage. I'm just -- give me 30
4 seconds and I will explain.

5           So I think, for me, if I could, I would want to 6 please every patient and their family. I get very sick
7 patients. My reputation is -- because I am trained in 8 emergency medicine, I feel that's part of the reason for that.
9 Word of mouth has spread that Dr. Im can save your life.

10           Because of that, I get very complicated cases. You
11 can work into it that, yes, in urgent care, we do runny noses.
12 This is not what I practice. Part of it is -- 90 percent of 13 the patients I see are above age 65, on medications. And some 14 of those medications are incorrectly given to them by a
15 cardiologist.

16           You know, I will stick to the facts. There are 17 safer alternatives, as I showed you through the exhibit, than 18 Tikosyn.

19           And these medications are called chemical conversion
20 medications. And in plain English, it means, when the heart's
21 electricity is fibrillating or irregular, there's two ways
22 right now, the current standard of care, to try to put it back
23 in rhythm.

24           Okay. Which during my, during my residency, I had 25 great exposure putting in emergency pacemakers. Those are

1 situations that -- that's what residency training is all
2 about. Okay. So during those years and leading to
3 specifically in this case, not only am I well trained, I did
4 the best that I could to explain the pros and cons of the 5 medication.

6 But what I didn't get a chance to explain, which I
7 get to be heard today, which is back to the cardiologist, is 8 this should be a temporary medication. Because if you look at 9 the patient's history, the patient had an ablation therapy or 10 ablation twice in the past. I believe it was in 2011. It
11 failed.

12 I will explain this. Ablation is done by an 13 electrophysiologist. When I showed you one of the first 14 exhibits, electrophysiologist cardiologists practice in the 15 electrical aspect of the heart. So ablation is a procedure
16 where -- you can think of it as if the wire is faulty at this
17 point. They try to pinpoint where it is faulty and try to fix
18 that point, hoping that the heart will go back into normal
19 sinus rhythm for now.

20 When that fails, they can try what we call
21 cardioversion, which I have done many times during residency
22 training. That is when you shock somebody's heart. You shock
23 them with electricity to temporarily stun or stop the heart,
24 which sounds scary and it is.

25 And that's what residency training is to do. It is

1 training in these things under supervision and through
2 repetition. In my training and experience, I did plenty. And 3 during that process, you are hoping that the heart will --
4 what we call the SA node takes over the electrical system and 5 starts to beat normal again.

6 Unfortunately, these class I, class II, class III,
7 class IV medications, hoping for chemical conversion, where 8 the chemicals are potent enough where it interferes with the 9 electricity, hoping it goes back to sinus rhythm. But the 10 patients should never be on these medications long-term
11 because of the dangerous side effects.

12 As I showed you in the exhibit, one of the more
13 common causes of ventricular dysrhythmias, specifically QT
14 prolongation and Torsades, is Tikosyn and other medicines in 15 this class, such as sotalol, which I trained under.

16 If I had two hours, and if the patient's wife would 17 have given me that opportunity, I would have asked some simple
18 questions -- which I am going to actually do next week -- is I
19 don't point fingers at other specialists. There are too many 20 cooks in the kitchen is the phrase that The Villagers like to 21 use here.

22 Okay. I'm one of the cooks. I have pneumonia in 23 front of me. But any cardiologist or any pharmacist who will 24 override the doctor who has a patient in front of them, in 25 front of him or her, and say: "Don't use that antibiotic for

1 any reason," that would be substandard care, borderline
2 malpractice.

3           It is not up to me to determine whether the 4 cardiologist actually spoke to the patient or it was an
5 assistant or a staff member. But during my residency
6 training, I remember getting -- excuse my -- chewed out by 7 senior residents: "You don't talk too much, because, if you
8 talk too much to the patients, they're going to get confused."
9 So we're almost trained --

10           But the point I'm trying to bring up is other 11 specialist and the pharmacists, same thing. The pharmacist,
12 did the pharmacist tell J.K. or his wife: "Under no situation 13 do you take this medicine because it will kill you"? That 14 pharmacist now has potential to lose her license or his 15 license, if that comment is true.

16           So what I'm trying to say to you today, for the 17 record, is there were multiple caregivers in this situation.
18 And next week, I'm hoping to ask and bring to your attention
19 and your client's attention that there were other medications
20 that he was already on, prior to seeing me, that were so much 21 more dangerous, astronomically more dangerous than the 22 antibiotic that is the drug of choice for community-acquired
23 pneumonia with people above 65 with comorbidities.

24           And even something as simple as saw palmetto, a
25 supplement that's used a lot by The Villagers here, they use

1 -- some Villagers here average 15 bottles of supplements. Now
2 I'm running into a lot of CBD oil, for example.

3 The possible interactions of something as simple as 4 melatonin, which is an over-the-counter sleep aid, or saw
5 palmetto, which is an herbal supplement is -- can be lethal to 6 somebody who is on a blood thinner, Warfarin.

7 The stress of practicing good medicine -- and to 8 this day I enjoy it like a kid, okay? I love going to work.
9 I can't please all patients.

10 Q So I know we've covered a lot. Do you have any 11 other opinions that you believe are important that you want to 12 get off --

13 A No, I just want -- when I get a chance, what I will 14 say is this. I always -- to every patient, I am one of the 15 few doctors that still get on the phone and go over CT
16 reports, x-ray reports.

17 I'm one of the few -- and I'm not putting down any 18 of my colleagues -- that enjoy the talking aspect, as you
19 might be able to tell. I enjoy that interaction.

20 But once a patient is upset, whether it's a mother
21 of a child -- I have just a couple of examples, but I won't 22 share them because it's not as pertinent -- that is the most 23 difficult form of communication.

24 And I'm looking forward to deposing the Patient J.K.
25 and his wife, and I think I have sufficient evidence that I

1 didn't present today, which I will present next week, that
2 will prove beyond any reasonable doubt that the pharmacist did
3 not say what the patient said and the cardiologist did not say
4 what the patient said the cardiologist said.

5           Because if that is true, both the pharmacist and the 6 cardiologist should be the one reported to Department of 7 Health.

8           Q     Okay. All right. And so, while we're still on the 9 record, your discovery responses that were e-mailed to you,
10 the admissions and -- the e-mail from Will, okay, those are 11 due by October 10th.

12          A     Which one is this?

13           MS. EDWARDS: Will, do you know when you e-mailed it
14 to him?

15           MR. WALKER: It would have been around the 20th, if 16 they're due the 10th, but I'll check.

17 BY MS. WALKER:

18          Q     It was on September 20th, Will, so William Walker, 19 sent you an e-mail with attachments.

20          A     Could you send that to me again, so I can --

21           MR. WALKER: Absolutely.

22 BY MS. WALKER:

23          Q     We can re- --

24          A     Was that to the Exceptional Urgent Care gmail or was 25 that johnimdo@yahoo.com?

1 Q It's whatever e-mail we were corresponding with.

2 A Yeah, my personal e-mail is better. My personal
3 e-mail is better. And then what am I looking for?

4 Q So you're looking for an e-mail that will say
5 "discovery."

6 A Discovery. Okay.

7 MR. WALKER: And I'm not -- I can't connect to the 8 Internet, so --

9 A (Continuing.) But September 20-ish?

10 Q Yes. But what we'll do is we'll get that resent.
11 And those --

12 A Yeah. And then you want me to answer all of those?

13 Q Those are due by October 10th.

14 A Oh, okay.

15 Q And, basically, that's the admissions, the discovery
16 with it, and production. So things that you're going to need
17 for the final trial.

18 So in the event -- this is just, like, something 19 comes up in that that you've sent to us, and we may need to 20 reconvene the deposition, if new information comes to light.
21 I just wanted you aware that.

22 A Okay.

23 MS. EDWARDS: Okay. So I have no further questions.

24 We can go ahead and go off the record now.

25 (And the deposition was concluded at 4:18 p.m.)

DRUG INDUCED QT PROLONGATION AND TORSADES DE POINTES

Yee Guan Yap, A John Camm

Heart 2003;89:1363-1372

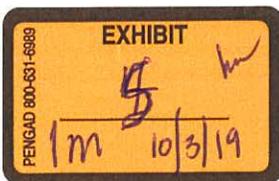

In 1966, Francois Dessertenne described a specific electrocardiographic form of polymorphic ventricular tachycardia, which he termed "torsades de pointes" (TdP).<sup>w1 w2</sup> The word "torsades" refers to an ornamental motif imitating twisted hairs or threads as seen on classical architectural columns, and "pointes" referred to points or peaks.<sup>w1 w2</sup> In the seminal article, Dessertenne made no attempt to suggest the mechanism of TdP and, until recently, there has been considerable conjecture as to the pathophysiology of this arrhythmia.

CAUSES OF TORSADES DE POINTES

Since the original work by Dessertenne, it has been well recognised that many conditions may cause prolonged or abnormal repolarisation (that is, QT interval prolongation and/or abnormal T or T/U wave morphology), which is associated with TdP. If TdP is rapid or prolonged, it can lead to ventricular fibrillation and sudden cardiac death (fig 1). Essentially, TdP may be caused by either congenital or acquired long QT syndrome (LQTS). In recent years, there has been considerable renewed interest in the assessment and understanding of ventricular repolarisation and TdP. There are several reasons for this. Firstly, the cloning of cardiac ion channels has improved the understanding of the role of ionic channels in mediating cardiac repolarisation, the pathophysiological mechanism of LQTS (congenital and acquired forms), and the pathogenesis of TdP. Secondly, modern molecular techniques have unravelled the mutations in genes encoding cardiac ion channels that cause long QT syndrome, although the genetic defects in about 50% of patients are still unknown. Thirdly, there has been considerable enthusiasm for the development and use of class III antiarrhythmic drugs, which prolong repolarisation and cardiac refractoriness. Unfortunately, drugs that alter repolarisation have now been recognised to increase the propensity for TdP. Finally, an increasing number of drugs, especially non-cardiac drugs, have been recognised to delay cardiac repolarisation and to share the ability with class III antiarrhythmics to cause TdP occasionally.

Many of the drugs that were initially known to prolong the QT interval were antiarrhythmics, and quinidine was the most commonly implicated agent. Surprisingly, many non-cardiac drugs have also been reported to cause QT prolongation and/or TdP recently. In a survey in both the UK and Italy, non-cardiac drugs that have pro-arrhythmic potential (that is, have an official warning on QT prolongation or TdP, or with published data on QT prolongation, ventricular tachycardia, or class III effect) alone represented 3% and 2% of total prescriptions in both countries, respectively.<sup>1</sup> The danger of drug induced pro-arrhythmia is therefore serious. This issue has been identified as a considerable public health problem and has attracted attention from the drug regulatory authorities.

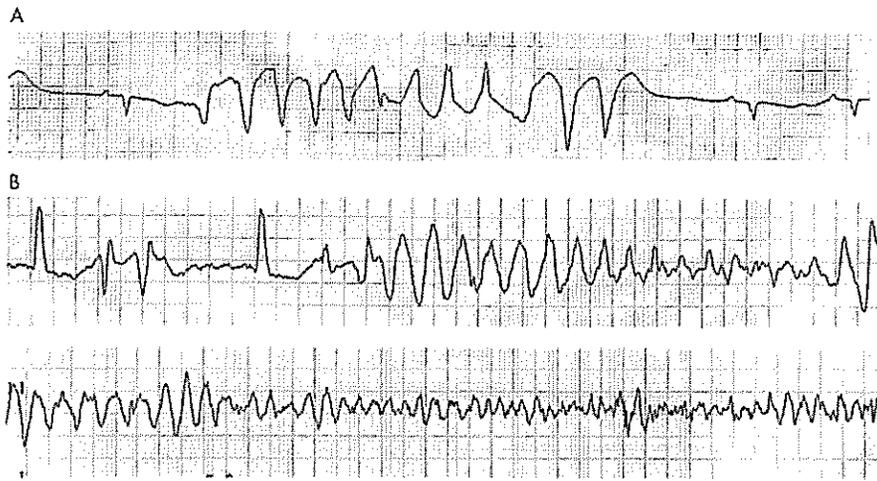

The exact incidence of drug induced TdP in the general population is largely unknown. Most of our understandings of the incidence, risk factors, and drug interaction of pro-arrhythmic drugs are derived from epidemiological studies, anecdotal case reports, clinical studies during drug development, and post-marketing surveillance. The awareness of drug induced TdP in the last few years has resulted in an increase in the number of spontaneous reports. Nevertheless, the absolute total number remains very low, although it has been suggested that the system of spontaneous reporting under-reports the true incidence of serious adverse reactions by a factor of at least 10.<sup>2</sup> Between 1983 and December 1999, 761 cases of TdP, of which 34 were fatal, were reported to the World Health Organization Drug Monitoring Centre by the member states.<sup>3</sup> The WHO data provide an insight into the incidence of TdP on the most commonly reported pro-arrhythmic drugs<sup>3</sup> (table 1). However, such a reporting system is undermined by the widely variable content and clinical information between different countries and sources. It is also compounded by various factors such as the patient's underlying disease, whether the adverse drug reaction is well known or has not been previously described, and the amount of attention paid by the medical community on a specific adverse drug reaction. In this article, we will review the risk of drug induced QT prolongation and/or TdP.

MECHANISM OF DRUG INDUCED QT PROLONGATION AND TORSADES DE POINTES

At the cellular level, the repolarisation phase of the myocytes is driven predominantly by outward movement of potassium ions. A variety of different K+ channel subtypes are present in the heart. Two important K+ currents participating in ventricular repolarisation are the subtypes of the delayed rectifier current, I<sub>Kr</sub> ("rapid") and I<sub>Ks</sub> ("slow"). Blockade of either of these outward potassium currents may prolong the action potential. I<sub>Kr</sub> is the most susceptible to pharmacological influence. It is now understood that virtually without exception, the blockade of I<sub>Kr</sub> current by these drugs is at least in part responsible for their pro-arrhythmic effect. Blockade of the I<sub>Kr</sub> current manifests clinically as a prolonged QT interval and the emergence of other T or U wave abnormalities on the surface ECG. The prolongation of repolarisation may result in subsequent activation of an inward depolarisation current, known as an early after-depolarisation, which may promote triggered activity. When accompanied by the presence of a notably increased dispersion of repolarisation, this may induce re-entry and provoke

TdP, which is then sustained by further re-entry or spiral wave activity (fig 2). Such phenomena are more readily induced in the His-Purkinje network and also from a subset of myocardial cells from the mid ventricular myocardium, known as M cells.<sup>4</sup> Compared to subendocardial or subepicardial cells, M cells show much more pronounced action potential prolongation in response to I<sub>Kr</sub> blockade.<sup>4</sup> This property results in a pronounced dispersion of repolarisation (that is, heterogeneous recovery of excitability), creating a zone of functional refractoriness in the mid myocardial layer, which is probably the basis of the re-entry that is sustaining the TdP.

There is a characteristic initiating sequence before the onset of TdP, particularly in the acquired form. The first ventricular complex of the sequence is usually a ventricular ectopic beat or the last beat of a salvo of ventricular premature beats (fig 3). This is then followed by a compensatory pause terminated by a sinus beat. The sinus beat frequently has a very prolonged QT interval and an exaggerated U wave. A ventricular extrasystole then falls on the exaggerated U wave of the sinus beat and precipitates the

METHOD FOR MEASUREMENT OF QT INTERVAL

When measuring the QT interval, the ECG is best recorded at a paper speed of 50 mm/s and at an amplitude of 0.5 mV/cm using a multichannel recorder capable of simultaneously recording all 12 leads. A tangent line to the steepest part of the descending portion of the T wave is then drawn. The intercept between the tangent line and the isoelectric line is defined as the end of the T wave.<sup>w3</sup> The QT interval is measured from the beginning of the QRS complex to the end of the T wave on a standard ECG. There are no available data on which lead or leads to use for QT interval measurement. Traditionally, lead II has been used for QT interval measurement because in this lead, the vectors of repolarisation usually result in a long single wave rather than discrete T and U waves.<sup>6</sup>

Generally, QT prolongation is considered when the QTc interval is greater than 440 ms (men) and 460 ms (women), although arrhythmias are most often associated with values of 500 ms or more (table 2). The severity of pro-arrhythmia at a given QT interval varies from drug to drug and from patient to patient. Unfortunately, the extent of QT prolongation and risk of TdP with a given drug may not be linearly related to the dose or plasma concentration of the drug because patient and metabolic factors are also important (for example, sex, electrolyte concentrations, etc). Furthermore, there is not a simple relation between the degree of drug induced QT prolongation and the likelihood of the development of TdP, which can occasionally occur without any substantial prolongation of the QT interval.

The QT interval is influenced by heart rate. The RR interval preceding the QT interval should be measured for rate correction. Several formulae may be used to correct the QT interval for the biophysical effect of heart rate (QTc), but none is perfect. The most commonly used formulae are Fridericia's cube root formula ( $QTc = QT/RR^{1/3}$ ) and Bazett's square root formula ( $QTc = QT/RR^{1/2}$ ). Of the two, Bazett's formula is the more popular, but Fridericia's correction is preferred because it is more accurate at the extremes of physiological heart rate.<sup>w4 w5</sup> Apart from heart rate, the duration of the QT interval is also subject to the techniques of recording and measurement error of the QT interval, sympathovagal activity, drugs, genetic abnormalities, electrolyte disorders, cardiac or metabolic diseases, changes of cardiac afterload, and diurnal variation which can be up to 75–100 ms. It is important to remember that for every individual there is a different relation between the QT interval and the heart rate. Although the rate-correction formulae are useful clinically, they may not be accurate enough, especially when assessing the minor changes of the QT interval induced by drugs. The suggested QTc values using the Bazett's formula for diagnosing QT prolongation are outlined in table 1.<sup>7</sup>

Newer repolarisation parameters such as QT dispersion (maximum – minimum QT intervals) on the 12 lead surface ECG, which is considered to be an indirect measure of spatial heterogeneity of repolarisation, may be useful in assessing drug efficacy and safety. In one important study, patients who received class 1a antiarrhythmic drugs and developed TdP had significantly increased precordial QT interval dispersion.<sup>w6</sup> In contrast, patients receiving amiodarone or class 1a antiarrhythmics without TdP did not have increased QT dispersion, although the QT interval was noticeably prolonged.<sup>w6</sup> Thus, spatial heterogeneity/dispersion of the ventricular repolarisation process may be required in addition to QT prolongation for the genesis of TdP. Although the use of QT dispersion in the assessment of drugs that prolong the QT interval needs further confirmation, it may provide information about the clinical significance of QT prolongation.

DRUGS THAT CAUSE QT PROLONGATION AND/OR TORSADES DE POINTES

The list of drugs that can prolong QT interval and/or cause TdP is extensive (table 3).

Antiarrhythmics

The early landmark report by Selzer and Wray observed that quinidine use was associated with syncope and ventricular fibrillation or flutter.<sup>w7</sup> In their report, the risk of TdP with quinidine was not necessarily a consequence of excessive doses of the drug. Others have confirmed that TdP with class Ia drugs can occur at low therapeutic or subtherapeutic concentrations.<sup>w8</sup> Indeed most of the class Ia drugs, including quinidine, disopyramide, and procainamide, are similar in this regard.<sup>w9</sup> On the other hand, antiarrhythmic agents such as sotalol are associated with a greater incidence of TdP as the dose increases.<sup>w10</sup> One possible explanation for such discrepancy is that the blockade of sodium channels by class Ia drugs suppresses the QT prolonging effect at higher concentrations. Pure I<sub>Kr</sub> potassium blocking antiarrhythmic drugs such as d,l-sotalol prolong the QT interval and induces TdP at an incidence directly proportionate to their concentration until the potassium currents are completely blocked.<sup>w9</sup> The mean effect on QTc prolongation by d,l-sotalol varies from 10–40 ms at doses from 160–640 mg/day.

It is noteworthy that while class Ia drugs are strongly concordant in their production of TdP, concordance with class III antiarrhythmic agents is less clear. For example, while both sotalol and amiodarone have the same potent effects on QT prolongation, the incidence of TdP is very low with amiodarone compared with sotalol. A literature review revealed that the incidence of TdP with amiodarone was only 0.7% in 17 uncontrolled studies (2878 patients) between 1982 and 1993, and that no pro-arrhythmia was reported in seven controlled studies (1464 patients) between 1987 and 1992.<sup>8</sup> Indeed, the evidence from a recent meta-analysis of amiodarone trials showed that amiodarone actually reduced the risk of arrhythmic death and resuscitated cardiac arrest in patients after myocardial infarction or with heart failure.<sup>w11</sup> The risk of TdP with amiodarone mainly occurs in patients with other co-existing risk factors such as hypokalaemia or bradycardia. In contrast, d,l-sotalol has a 0.3% incidence rate of TdP for a daily dose of 80 mg, which rises to 3.8% for a daily dose of > 680 mg.<sup>w9</sup> The risk is greater in female patients, and patients with reduced creatinine clearance, congestive heart failure, or sustained ventricular tachycardia. In the USA, patients initiated or re-initiated on d,l-sotalol are required to be admitted to hospital for a minimum of three days (on their maintenance dose) in a facility that can provide cardiac resuscitation, continuous electrocardiographic monitoring, and calculations of creatinine clearance (that must precede administration of the first dose of d,l-sotalol), and in the presence of personnel trained in the management of serious ventricular arrhythmias in order to minimise the risk of TdP.<sup>w12</sup> The risk of TdP can be reduced by adjustment of the d,l-sotalol dose according to creatinine clearance and by monitoring the ECG for excessive increases in the QT interval. d,l-Sotalol is contraindicated in patients with creatinine clearance < 40 ml/min or QTc interval > 450 ms.<sup>w12</sup>

Similar to d,l-sotalol, dofetilide also exhibits a dose dependent effect on QTc prolongation and TdP. The mean QTc prolongation with dofetilide varies from 5–20 ms at doses of 125–500 µg twice daily, and the incidence of TdP ranges from 0–10.5% at doses < 250 µg to > 500 µg.<sup>w13</sup> Other new class III intravenous antiarrhythmics, such as ibutilide, are equally toxic in inducing TdP. In the ibutilide repeat dose study, 8.3% of the patients developed TdP during or soon after the start of two, 10 minute infusions, separated by 10 minutes of ibutilide (1.0 and 0.5 mg or 1.0 and 1.0 mg).<sup>w14</sup> Similarly, in patients with atrial fibrillation, intravenous almokalant induced TdP in 6% of the patients.<sup>w15</sup>

Oral azimilide at doses up to 200 mg/day prolongs the QTc interval by 4–42%.<sup>w16</sup> Several cases of TdP have been reported in association with azimilide use, usually when bradycardia, pauses, or hypokalaemia are present, but the preliminary results from the ALIVE (azimilide post-infarction survival evaluation) study showed that azimilide prescribed at 100 mg has a low incidence of TdP even in high risk post-myocardial infarction patients with reduced heart rate variability.<sup>w17</sup>

Antihistamines

Since 1986, certain non-sedating antihistamines, the so called second generation antihistamines (mainly terfenadine and astemizole), have been reported to cause QT prolongation and, in some cases, TdP.<sup>9 w18</sup> These incidents have occurred when the recommended dose has been exceeded, at normal doses with concurrent use of drugs that inhibit hepatic cytochrome P450 enzymes (for example, imidazole, antifungals, and macrolide antibiotics), impaired liver function, or in patients with congenital long QT syndrome.<sup>9</sup> Like class III antiarrhythmics, terfenadine and astemizole were found to prolong the monophasic action potential and QT interval, which led to the development of early after-depolarisation and TdP through inhibition of the  $I_{Kr}$  channel.<sup>w19</sup> As almost all of the non-sedating antihistamines were metabolised via the hepatic cytochrome P450 CYP3A4 system, concomitant administration of drugs or food (grapefruit juice) that inhibit the hepatic cytochrome P450 or severely compromise liver function may result in the accumulation of the parent drug and cardiotoxicity.<sup>w19</sup> Furthermore, co-administration of non-sedating antihistamines with other drugs that prolong the QT interval by the same or other mechanism (for example, antiarrhythmics, antipsychotics, tricyclic antidepressants) also increases their adverse effect on cardiac repolarisation.<sup>w19</sup> Other drug related factors such as the physicochemical properties of the antihistamines (for example, diarylalkylamine moiety, quaternisation of diphenhydramine, lipophilicity of the side chain), their metabolic profile, and tissue distribution may also contribute to the cardiac response of antihistamines.

Newer non-sedating antihistamines (loratadine, cetirizine, acrivastine, mizolastine, ebastine, and fexofenadine) continue to be introduced into the market. The cardiac safety profile of these newer non-sedating antihistamines will require confirmation. Antihistamines with low or no potential to block the  $K^+$  rectification channel (for example,  $I_{Kr}$  channels are likely to possess cardiac safety advantages. The overall evidence so far indicates that the potential to cause TdP is not a class effect of non-sedating antihistamines; certain non-sedating antihistamines such as terfenadine and astemizole have potent pro-arrhythmic risk, whereas others have low risk of (for example, azelastine, mizolastine) or are probably not associated with (for example, loratadine, cetirizine, ebastine and fexofenadine) QT prolongation, TdP or other ventricular arrhythmias. It should be emphasised that apart from the specific contraindications described, the incidence of cardiotoxicity with antihistamines is very low in view of the widespread use of the drugs.<sup>10</sup> Nevertheless, as they are widely prescribed for a self limiting, non-fatal disease, the risk attributable must be assessed very carefully.

Antimicrobials

Macrolides (erythromycin, clarithromycin), fluoroquinolones, antifungals, and antimalarials have been implicated in predisposing to TdP as a result of QT prolongation.<sup>11 w20–23</sup> These reports are few and anecdotal. Similar to class III antiarrhythmics and antihistamines, macrolides prolong the QT interval and cause dispersion of repolarisation across the ventricular wall, resulting in the induction of TdP. In the case of fluoroquinolones, sparfloxacin lengthened the duration of the action potential in a concentration dependent manner,<sup>12</sup> whereas ofloxacin and levofloxacin did not alter the action potential duration at a variety of concentrations (1–100 µM).<sup>w24</sup> Thus, sparfloxacin exerts a pure class III electrophysiological effect whereas levofloxacin and ofloxacin do not. Clinically, it is not yet known whether sparfloxacin will cause any spontaneous TdP, particularly in low risk patients. Since the drug was marketed in 1994, there were very few cases of ventricular arrhythmia (three reversible ventricular tachycardias) reported during the European post-marketing surveillance of sparfloxacin, all of which occurred in patients with underlying cardiac conditions.<sup>12</sup> Grepafloxacin, a new fluoroquinolone available in the UK since 1998, has recently been withdrawn voluntarily by its distributor because of its effect on QT prolongation and some reported cases of TdP. The available evidence from preclinical and clinical studies suggested that there are significant differences in the potency to prolong QT interval among the fluoroquinolones, and the risk of arrhythmias varies between drugs<sup>13</sup> (fig 4). Sporadic cases of TdP have been reported in association with most, but not all, fluoroquinolones. As a whole, apart from grepafloxacin and possibly sparfloxacin, the fluoroquinolones that are currently on the market or soon to be launched are safe from the point of view of QT prolongation and TdP, with a frequency of this adverse event generally occurring at a rate of about one per million prescriptions.

Antimalarials deserve some attention as they are commonly prescribed worldwide. Quinine, quinidine, and halofantrine are capable of prolonging the QT interval.<sup>w25–28</sup> Quinine prolongs the QT interval at standard doses, as does halofantrine (60%). Halofantrine induces a dose related prolongation of the QT interval whereas mefloquine has no effect on QT interval.<sup>w25</sup> However, the risk of significant QT prolongation (> 25% or QTc  $\geq$  0.55 s<sup>1/2</sup>) was greater if halofantrine was given as a re-treatment following mefloquine failure than as primary treatment.<sup>w25</sup> The Committee of Safety of Medicines in the UK recommends that halofantrine should not be given with other drugs that prolong QT interval or to patients with any form of cardiac condition associated with QT prolongation. Cardiotoxicity of antimalarials is increased in patients with acute renal failure, especially after three days of treatment.<sup>w26</sup> Hence, it has been recommended that ECG monitoring should be carried out during quinidine infusion.<sup>w26</sup> However, it is interesting to note that pre-treatment ECGs were poorly predictive of QT prolongation during oral treatment of halofantrine, although it may be useful for evaluating patients with pre-existing cardiac conditions.<sup>w27</sup> This is partly because the degree of QT prolongation is dependent on the plasma concentration of halofantrine.<sup>w28</sup>

The antifungal agents ketoconazole and itraconazole prolong the QT interval by blocking the I<sub>Kr</sub> channels.<sup>w29 w30</sup> Similar to macrolide antibiotics, ketoconazole and itraconazole also inhibit the hepatic cytochrome P450 CYP3A4 isoenzyme.<sup>w29 w30</sup> Therefore, co-administration of ketoconazole or itraconazole with another QT prolonging drug that is metabolised by the cytochrome P450 CYP3A4 isoenzyme, such as terfenadine, will result in a notably prolonged QT interval and increase the risk of TdP.<sup>w29-31</sup>

Tricyclic antidepressants

The use of tricyclic antidepressants (TCAs) has raised some concern about their cardiotoxicity. The effect of TCAs on the QT interval have been investigated, but with mixed results.<sup>w32-34</sup> Amitriptyline, doxepin, desipramine, imipramine, and clomipramine have been associated with a prolonged QT interval, whereas dothiepin has no effect on QT interval. In children, concerns about possible TCA associated adverse effects were raised after a few cases of sudden death in children treated with TCAs.<sup>w35 w36</sup> The TCAs implicated were desipramine, clomipramine, and imipramine. These cases of sudden death occurred without acute overdose. A possible mechanism is the "fast" or "slow" metabolism of TCA by hepatic cytochromes.<sup>14 w37</sup> For example, impaired metabolism caused by a genetically determined "slow metaboliser" phenotype of cytochrome CYP2D6 is suggested as a possible mechanism for the apparent toxicity of these tricyclic antidepressants.<sup>w37</sup> Co-administration of drugs that can alter the concentrations of both parent drug and metabolites will therefore affect the QTc interval. It has been recommended that children and adolescents on TCA have an ECG at baseline and after each dose increase.<sup>w38</sup>

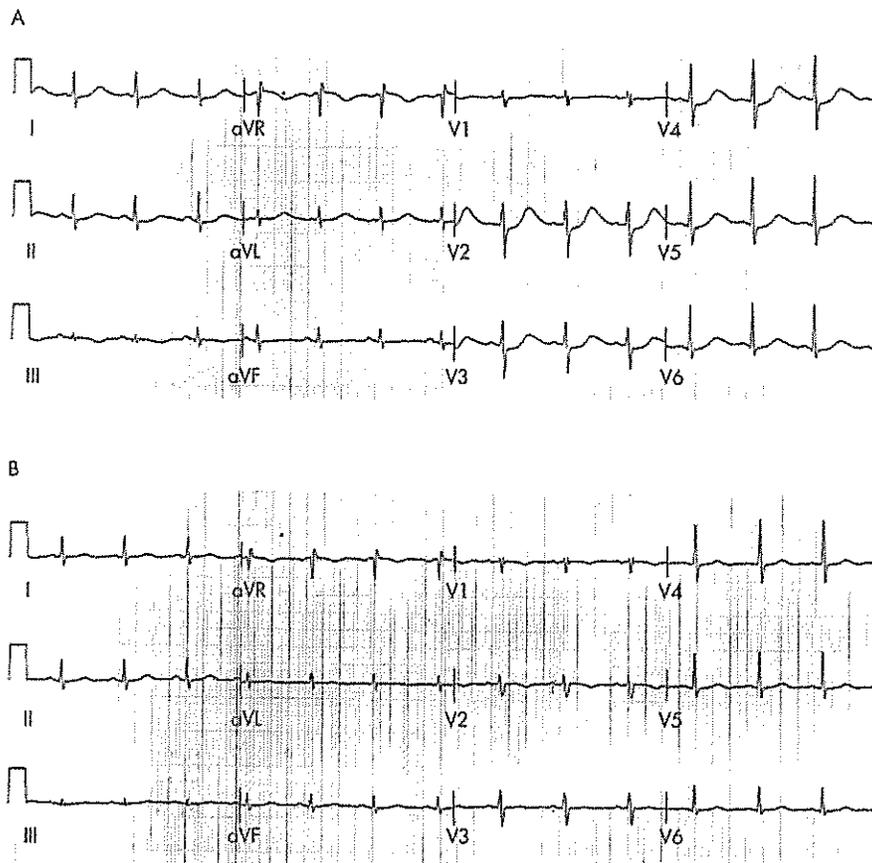

Recently, there have been case reports of abnormal ECG changes, akin to that observed in patients with Brugada's syndrome, following overdoses of antidepressants and neuroleptics (namely, phenothiazine, amitriptyline, fluoxetine), and therapeutic doses of trifluoperazine and loxapine,<sup>w39 w40</sup> with tricyclic antidepressants being the most frequently implicated. The ECGs in these patients showed right bundle branch block and ST segment elevation on the precordial leads, similar to that seen in patients with Brugada's syndrome, following the ingestion of these drugs. These changes, however, disappeared after the withdrawal of the drugs and could not be reproduced with the subsequent flecainide tests on these patients. Evidence from cellular studies suggest that, similar to class Ic drugs, amitriptyline, phenothiazine, and fluoxetine induce cardiac sodium channel blockade and reduce I<sub>o</sub> activation, which may shorten the action potential durations and induce an intramyocardial electrical gradient that produces the typical ECG changes described above. However, such ECG changes will probably only occur upon massive overdose of these drugs as in the case of these patients, which may explain why the ECG changes could not be reproduced with subsequent flecainide challenge. Furthermore, it is also possible that these patients may have subclinical dysfunctional sodium channels that were unmasked by these drugs. Thus, it has been postulated that this could be another mechanism for drug induced sudden death in patients receiving chronic treatment with tricyclic antidepressants and neuroleptics. Nevertheless, further studies are required to investigate this phenomenon.

Neuroleptics

Neuroleptics have long been associated with sudden death and are reported to cause QT prolongation and TdP at therapeutic doses or in overdose (phenothiazines, thioridazine, haloperidol, chlorpromazine, trifluoperazine, pericycline, prochlorperazine, and fluphenazine).<sup>15 w41-45</sup> Among them, thioridazine was the most potent in causing QT prolongation and arrhythmia<sup>15</sup> (fig 5). In addition, the clinical use of thioridazine has also been known to cause a decrease in T wave amplitude, and a prominent U wave in approximately 50% of patients receiving 100-400 mg/day of the drug, albeit seldom with clinical consequences. At toxic

Figure 5 (A) The ECG of a middle aged woman who was otherwise healthy but suffered a ventricular fibrillation cardiac arrest while receiving 20 mg daily of thioridazine. This ECG was recorded immediately after the cardiac arrest. Note the prolonged T wave offset resulting in a prolonged QTc interval of 619 ms. concentrations, thioridazine can cause sinus bradycardia, atrioventricular block, pronounced QT prolongation, and recurrent ventricular tachycardia and fibrillation.<sup>w46</sup> At both therapeutic and toxic doses, thioridazine can induce TdP.<sup>w42 w46</sup> In the presence of hypokalaemia, TdP can develop even with a low dose (50 mg daily) of thioridazine.<sup>w43</sup>

Sertindole is a relatively new atypical antipsychotic for the treatment of schizophrenia. Its safety and efficacy were assessed in three double blind randomised studies in the USA, North America, and Europe.<sup>w47</sup> Slight QT prolongation was seen with sertindole in early clinical trials although TdP was not reported in these studies. However, 12 unexplained sudden deaths and 23 cases of syncope occurred among 1446 patients during the pre-marketing trials of sertindole.<sup>w48</sup> A total of 27 deaths associated with its use had been reported to the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) by 1996. Although an independent review panel then did not find a causal relationship between sertindole and these deaths,<sup>w49</sup> in 1996 the drug was not approved for marketing in the USA.

Nevertheless, sertindole was marketed in Europe. However, in the UK the Committee of Safety of Medicines was notified of 36 suspected adverse drug reactions with a fatal outcome by the end of November 1998.<sup>w50</sup> Not all of these reports were related to sudden cardiac death. In addition, 13 reports of serious but non-fatal cardiac arrhythmia were also reported in the UK during the same period. Because of the number of adverse drug events, fatal and non-fatal, reported since the marketing of sertindole in the UK, it was considered that the risks of treatment with this drug outweighed its benefits. The manufacturers of sertindole voluntarily suspended its marketing and use from December 1998 in the UK, pending further safety evaluations. It is now known that sertindole is a high affinity antagonist of the human cardiac  $I_{Kr}$  potassium channel, and this blockade underlies, at least in part, the prolongation of the QT interval observed with this drug.<sup>16</sup>

Pimozide is a diphenylpiperidine neuroleptic agent with known cardiovascular side effects including QT prolongation.<sup>w51</sup> TdP has been described after acute poisoning.<sup>w52</sup> The risk of pimozide cardiotoxicity may be increased with the concomitant use of drugs that inhibit the cytochrome P450 CYP3A4 isoenzyme—for example, clarithromycin, ketoconazole, etc.<sup>w53</sup> Forty reports (16 fatal) of serious cardiac reactions (predominantly arrhythmias) with pimozide use were reported to Committee of Safety of Medicines between 1971 and 1995,<sup>17</sup> and restricted labelling has now been introduced for pimozide in the UK.

Prokinetics

Cisapride is gastrointestinal prokinetic agent used to treat gastro-oesophageal reflux, gastroparesis, and childhood chronic intestinal pseudo-obstruction; it is structurally similar to procainamide. In the USA, while cisapride was being marketed from 1993 to 1999, the FDA received reports on a total of 341 individual patients who had serious adverse cardiac effects following the use of cisapride: 117 developed QT prolongation; 107 TdP; 16 polymorphic ventricular tachycardia; 27 ventricular tachycardia; 18 ventricular fibrillation; 25 cardiac arrest; 16 serious (unspecified) arrhythmia; and 15 sudden death.<sup>18</sup> Eighty (23%) of the 341 patients died.

Deaths were directly or indirectly associated with an arrhythmic event. Many of the patients (56%) were also taking an imidazole compound or a macrolide antibiotic, which could inhibit the P450 CYP3A4 isoenzyme that metabolises cisapride and results in increased serum concentrations.

In the UK, since cisapride was first marketed in 1988 the Medicines Control Agency has received reports of 60 serious cardiac adverse drug reactions, five of which were fatal. These included 24 reactions comprising ventricular arrhythmias, sudden unexplained death, cardiac arrest, and QT prolongation.<sup>w54</sup> Worldwide, there have been 386 reports of serious ventricular arrhythmias associated with cisapride treatment, 125 of which were fatal, and 50 reports of sudden unexplained death. In the UK, several relabellings of cisapride were required following these incidences, which had a limited effect in reducing co-prescription of cisapride with contraindicated medication. Serious cardiovascular reactions, including fatalities, continued to be reported. As a result, the Medicines Control Agency suspended the product licences for cisapride in the UK in July 2000 as the risks versus benefits balance was no longer considered favourable. Similarly, in the USA, the risk of fatal arrhythmia with cisapride was believed to outweigh the benefit for the approved indication, treatment of nocturnal heartburn, leading to the drug's discontinuation there. Cisapride inhibited the  $I_{Kr}$  current in isolated guinea pig ventricular myocytes in a concentration dependent manner with an IC50 of 15 nmol/l (therapeutic levels, 50–200 nmol/l).<sup>w55</sup> This explained the lengthening of cardiac repolarisation observed in patients receiving clinical doses of cisapride.

Other QT prolonging drugs that have been withdrawn

Early reports of TdP associated with cardiac drugs incriminated not only antiarrhythmics, but antianginal agents such as bepridil and prenylamine, both of which have been well documented to cause TdP.<sup>w56 w57</sup> These antianginal agents have now been withdrawn from the market in most regulatory jurisdictions. Terodiline, an antispasmodic agent used to treat urinary incontinence, was withdrawn in the UK following 69 reported cases of serious arrhythmias. Fourteen of these patients had sudden death and the remaining 55 patients had non-fatal arrhythmias, including 37 with ventricular tachyarrhythmia of which 24 were caused by TdP.<sup>w58</sup> It is now clear that the pro-arrhythmic effect of terodiline is a consequence of the blockade of  $I_{Kr}$  current,<sup>w59</sup> which occurs in a concentration dependent manner.

OTHER FACTORS THAT MAY INCREASE THE PROLONGATION OF VENTRICULAR REPOLARISATION OR PREDICT TORSADES DE POINTES

Apart from drugs, other conditions that are likely to cause QT prolongation include:

- ▶ organic heart disease (for example, congenital long QT syndrome, ischaemic heart disease, congestive heart failure, dilated cardiomyopathy, hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, myocarditis, and Kawasaki syndrome)<sup>w60–64</sup>
- ▶ metabolic abnormalities (for example, hypokalaemia (by far the most common), hypocalcaemia, hypomagnesaemia)<sup>w65–67</sup>
- ▶ bradycardia, atrioventricular and sinoatrial blocks<sup>w68 w69</sup>
- ▶ drug related factors (for example, narrow therapeutic window, a multiplicity of pharmacological actions and inhibition and induction of cytochrome P450 enzymes, polypharmacy)<sup>w70</sup>

- ▶ female preponderance, which may be caused by sex differences in specific cardiac ion densities<sup>w71 w72</sup>
- ▶ hepatic impairment.

PREVENTION OF DRUG INDUCED QT PROLONGATION

In clinical practice, adverse effects of QT prolonging drugs can be prevented by not exceeding the recommended dose, avoiding their use in patients with pre-existing heart disease or risk factors as mentioned above, previous ventricular arrhythmias, and/or electrolyte imbalance such as hypokalaemia. Concomitant administration of drugs that inhibit the cytochrome P450 (for example, imidazole antifungals, macrolide antibiotics) or those that can prolong the QT interval or drugs that cause electrolyte disturbance should be avoided. The serum potassium concentration should be checked regularly as a matter of routine care when the patient is on potassium wasting diuretics. Furthermore, it may be sound clinical practice to perform ECGs routinely before and after an initiation or increment of dosage of a drug that may prolong the QT interval. If the patient develops TdP, the offending drug should be stopped and electrolyte abnormalities corrected. Drugs that can prolong the QT interval should ideally be listed and regularly updated in a national drug formulary, which is not the case at present. Any adverse event suggestive of cardiac arrhythmias should be reported urgently to drug safety authorities and/or drug manufacturers.

The management of patients with drug induced TdP includes identifying and withdrawing the offending drug(s), replenishing the potassium concentration to 4.5–5 mmol/l, and infusing intravenous magnesium (1–2 g). In resistant cases, temporary cardiac pacing may be needed to increase the heart rate and shorten the QT interval.

REGULATORY PERSPECTIVE IN DRUG DEVELOPMENT

Apart from antiarrhythmics, many drugs capable of inducing TdP are non-cardiac and are used for relatively benign conditions. Regulatory authorities in the European Union (EU) are now concerned that the risk should be identified and if possible quantified during the preclinical and clinical development of a drug. Currently there are no contemporary guidelines from other regulatory authorities to address this issue. In 1997, the UK Committee for Proprietary Medicinal Products (CPMP) adopted a document entitled Points to consider: the assessment of the potential for QT interval prolongation by non-cardiovascular medicinal products.<sup>20</sup> The CPMP guideline document should be viewed as a strong signal from the public health authorities that the problem of QT prolongation, especially by non-cardiac drugs, is significant and requires careful scrutiny. Additional research and development are needed for any compound with the potential to prolong the QT interval. The CPMP document details the necessary preclinical and clinical stages required for testing the safety of new active substances.

CONCLUSION

It has been well recognised that a prolonged QT interval (congenital or acquired) on the surface ECG is associated with an increased risk of TdP and/or sudden death. By far the most common cause of acquired long QT syndrome is drug induced, with antiarrhythmics being the group of drugs most

Drug induced QT prolongation and torsades de pointes: key points

- ▶ Drug induced QT prolongation and torsades de pointes are an increasing public health problem
- ▶ The blockade of  $I_{K_r}$  potassium current by these drugs is responsible for their pro-arrhythmic effect
- ▶ Measurement of QT interval should be corrected for heart rate
- ▶ Antiarrhythmic drugs, non-sedating antihistamines, macrolides antibiotics, antifungals, antimalarials, tricyclic antidepressants, neuroleptics, and prokinetics have all been implicated in causing QT prolongation and/or torsades de pointes
- ▶ Co-administration of multiple drugs, especially with other QT prolonging drug(s) and/or hepatic cytochrome P450 CYP3A4 isoenzyme inhibitors, must be avoided
- ▶ The risk of QT prolongation is increased in females, patients with organic heart disease (for example, congenital long QT syndrome, myocardial infarction, congestive heart failure, dilated cardiomyopathy, hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, bradycardia), hypokalaemia, and hepatic impairment
- ▶ The treatment of drug induced torsades de pointes includes identifying and withdrawing the offending drug(s), replenishing the potassium concentration to 4.5–5 mmol/l, and infusing intravenous magnesium (1–2 g). In resistant cases, temporary cardiac pacing may be needed commonly implicated. Since the 1990s, seven non-cardiac drugs marketed in the UK—namely, terfenadine, astemizole, cisapride, terodiline, halofantrine, sertindole, and pimozone—have attracted regulatory attention because of their propensity to produce QT prolongation, TdP, and/or sudden death. The list of drugs, especially non-cardiac drugs, which can cause some degree of QT prolongation may continue to grow. The risk of TdP is therefore likely to remain a significant problem in the future. All physicians and pharmacists, and patients who receive these drugs, should be made aware of this risk and educated accordingly, and take precautions to minimise pro-arrhythmia. Preclinical and clinical evaluations remain the cornerstone for assessing the arrhythmogenic potential of any new drug before approval. Finally, post-marketing surveillance is also important for monitoring spontaneous adverse cardiac effects.

<sup>a</sup> Associations are based on the strength of evidence that supports whether QT prolongation can occur. This categorization does not delineate an individual patient's risk of QT prolongation.

<sup>b</sup> Torsadogenic potential is divided into four categories as characterized in a previous publication<sup>1</sup>: high = drugs that are potent blockers of currents prolonging myocardial repolarization; medium high = drugs that prolong myocardial repolarization at higher doses, or at normal doses with concurrent administration of drugs that inhibit drug metabolism; low = drugs that prolong action potential duration and QT interval at high doses or concentrations that are clearly above the therapeutic range; and not clear = drugs that block repolarizing ion currents in vitro but that have so far not been shown to prolong repolarization in other in vitro models.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Improving the care of adult patients with community-acquired pneumonia (CAP) has been the focus of many different organizations, and several have developed guidelines for management of CAP. Two of the most widely referenced are those of the Infectious Diseases Society of America (IDSA) and the American Thoracic Society (ATS). In response to confusion regarding differences between their respective guidelines, the IDSA and the ATS convened a joint committee to develop a unified CAP guideline document.

The guidelines are intended primarily for use by emergency medicine physicians, hospitalists, and primary care practitioners; however, the extensive literature evaluation suggests that they are also an appropriate starting point for consultation by specialists.

Substantial overlap exists among the patients whom these guidelines address and those discussed in the recently published guidelines for health care-associated pneumonia (HCAP). Pneumonia in nonambulatory residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities epidemiologically mirrors hospital-acquired pneumonia and should be treated according to the HCAP guidelines. However, certain other patients whose conditions are included in the designation of HCAP are better served by management in accordance with CAP guidelines with concern for specific pathogens.

Implementation of Guideline Recommendations

1. Locally adapted guidelines should be implemented to improve process of care variables and relevant clinical outcomes. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

It is important to realize that guidelines cannot always account for individual variation among patients. They are not intended to supplant physician judgment with respect to particular patients or special clinical situations. The IDSA considers adherence to these guidelines to be voluntary, with the ultimate determination regarding their application to be made by the physician in the light of each patient's individual circumstances.

Enthusiasm for developing these guidelines derives, in large part, from evidence that previous CAP guidelines have led to improvement in clinically relevant outcomes. Consistently beneficial effects in clinically relevant parameters (listed in table 3) followed the introduction of a comprehensive protocol (including a combination of components from table 2) that increased compliance with published guidelines. The first recommendation, therefore, is that CAP management guidelines be locally adapted and implemented.

Documented benefits.

2. CAP guidelines should address a comprehensive set of elements in the process of care rather than a single element in isolation. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)
3. Development of local CAP guidelines should be directed toward improvement in specific and clinically relevant outcomes. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Site-of-Care Decisions

Almost all of the major decisions regarding management of CAP, including diagnostic and treatment issues, revolve around the initial assessment of severity. Site-of-care decisions (e.g., hospital vs. outpatient, intensive care unit [ICU] vs. general ward) are important areas for improvement in CAP management.

Hospital admission decision.

4. Severity-of-illness scores, such as the CURB-65 criteria (confusion, uremia, respiratory rate, low blood pressure, age  $\geq 65$  years or greater), or prognostic models, such as the Pneumonia Severity Index (PSI), can be used to identify patients with CAP who may be candidates for outpatient treatment. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
5. Objective criteria or scores should always be supplemented with physician determination of subjective factors, including the ability to safely and reliably take oral medication and the availability of outpatient support resources. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
6. For patients with CURB-65 scores  $\geq 2$ , more-intensive treatment—that is, hospitalization or, where appropriate and available, intensive in-home health care services—is usually warranted. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Physicians often admit patients to the hospital who could be well managed as outpatients and who would generally prefer to be treated as outpatients. Objective scores, such as the CURB-65 score or the PSI, can assist in identifying patients who may be appropriate for outpatient care, but the use of such scores must be tempered by the physician's determination of additional critical factors, including the ability to safely and reliably take oral medication and the availability of outpatient support resources.

ICU admission decision.

7. Direct admission to an ICU is required for patients with septic shock requiring vasopressors or with acute respiratory failure requiring intubation and mechanical ventilation. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
8. Direct admission to an ICU or high-level monitoring unit is recommended for patients with 3 of the minor criteria for severe CAP listed in table 4. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

In some studies, a significant percentage of patients with CAP are transferred to the ICU in the first 24–48 h after hospitalization. Mortality and morbidity among these patients appears to be greater than those among patients admitted directly to the ICU. Conversely, ICU resources are often overstretched in many institutions, and the admission of patients with CAP who would not directly benefit from ICU care is also problematic. Unfortunately, none of the published criteria for severe CAP adequately distinguishes these patients from those for whom ICU admission is necessary. In the present set of guidelines, a new set of criteria has been developed on the basis of data on individual risks, although the previous ATS criteria format is retained. In addition to the 2 major criteria (need for mechanical ventilation and septic shock), an expanded set of minor criteria (respiratory rate,  $>30$  breaths/min; arterial oxygen pressure/fraction of inspired oxygen ( $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$ ) ratio,  $<250$ ; multilobar infiltrates; confusion; blood urea nitrogen level,  $>20$  mg/dL; leukopenia resulting from infection; thrombocytopenia; hypothermia; or hypotension requiring aggressive fluid resuscitation) is proposed (table 4). The presence of at least 3 of these criteria suggests the need for ICU care but will require prospective validation.

Diagnostic Testing

9. In addition to a constellation of suggestive clinical features, a demonstrable infiltrate by chest radiograph or other imaging technique, with or without supporting microbiological data, is required for the diagnosis of pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Recommended diagnostic tests for etiology.

10. Patients with CAP should be investigated for specific pathogens that would significantly alter standard (empirical) management decisions, when the presence of such pathogens is suspected on the basis of clinical and epidemiologic clues. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

Recommendations for diagnostic testing remain controversial. The overall low yield and infrequent positive impact on clinical care argue against the routine use of common tests, such as blood and sputum cultures. Conversely, these cultures may have a major impact on the care of an individual patient and are important for epidemiologic reasons, including the antibiotic susceptibility patterns used to develop treatment guidelines. A list of clinical indications for more extensive diagnostic testing (table 5) was, therefore, developed, primarily on the basis of 2 criteria: (1) when the result is likely to change individual antibiotic management and (2) when the test is likely to have the highest yield.

11. Routine diagnostic tests to identify an etiologic diagnosis are optional for outpatients with CAP. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
12. Pretreatment blood samples for culture and an expectorated sputum sample for stain and culture (in patients with a productive cough) should be obtained from hospitalized patients with the clinical indications listed in table 5 but are optional for patients without these conditions. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)
13. Pretreatment Gram stain and culture of expectorated sputum should be performed only if a good-quality specimen can be obtained and quality performance measures for collection, transport, and processing of samples can be met. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)
14. Patients with severe CAP, as defined above, should at least have blood samples drawn for culture, urinary antigen tests for Legionella pneumophila and Streptococcus pneumoniae performed, and expectorated sputum samples collected for culture. For intubated patients, an endotracheal aspirate sample should be obtained. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The most clear-cut indication for extensive diagnostic testing is in the critically ill CAP patient. Such patients should at least have blood drawn for culture and an endotracheal aspirate obtained if they are intubated; consideration should be given to more extensive testing, including urinary antigen tests for L. pneumophila and S. pneumoniae and Gram stain and culture of expectorated sputum in nonintubated patients. For inpatients without the clinical indications listed in table 5, diagnostic testing is optional (but should not be considered wrong).

Antibiotic Treatment

Empirical antimicrobial therapy. Empirical antibiotic recommendations (table 7) have not changed significantly from those in previous guidelines. Increasing evidence has strengthened the recommendation for combination empirical therapy for severe CAP. Only 1 recently released antibiotic has been added to the recommendations: ertapenem, as an acceptable  $\beta$ -lactam alternative for hospitalized patients with risk factors for infection with gram-negative pathogens other than Pseudomonas aeruginosa. At present, the committee is awaiting further evaluation of the safety of telithromycin by the US Food and Drug Administration before making its final recommendation regarding this drug. Recommendations are generally for a class of antibiotics rather than for a specific drug, unless outcome data clearly favor one drug. Because overall efficacy remains good for many classes of agents, the more potent drugs are given preference because of their benefit in decreasing the risk of selection for antibiotic resistance.

Outpatient treatment

15. Previously healthy and no risk factors for drug-resistant S. pneumoniae (DRSP) infection:
  - A. A macrolide (azithromycin, clarithromycin, or erythromycin) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. Doxycycline (weak recommendation; level III evidence)
16. Presence of comorbidities, such as chronic heart, lung, liver, or renal disease; diabetes mellitus; alcoholism; malignancies; asplenia; immunosuppressing conditions or use of immunosuppressing drugs; use of antimicrobials within the previous 3 months (in which case an alternative from a different class should be selected); or other risks for DRSP infection:
  - A. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (moxifloxacin, gemifloxacin, or levofloxacin [750 mg]) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (High-dose amoxicillin [e.g., 1 g 3 times daily] or amoxicillin-clavulanate [2 g 2 times daily] is preferred; alternatives include ceftriaxone, cefpodoxime, and cefuroxime [500 mg 2 times daily]; doxycycline [level II evidence] is an alternative to the macrolide.)
17. In regions with a high rate (>25%) of infection with high-level (MIC,  $\geq 16$   $\mu\text{g}/\text{mL}$ ) macrolide-resistant S. pneumoniae, consider the use of alternative agents listed above in recommendation 16 for any patient, including those without comorbidities. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Inpatient, non-ICU treatment

18. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
19. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (Preferred  $\beta$ -lactam agents include cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, and ampicillin; ertapenem for selected patients; with doxycycline [level III evidence] as an alternative to the macrolide. A respiratory fluoroquinolone should be used for penicillin-allergic patients.)

Increasing resistance rates have suggested that empirical therapy with a macrolide alone can be used only for the treatment of carefully selected hospitalized patients with nonsevere disease and without risk factors for infection with drug-resistant pathogens. However, such monotherapy cannot be routinely recommended.

Inpatient, ICU treatment

20. A  $\beta$ -lactam (cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, or ampicillin-sulbactam) plus either azithromycin (level II evidence) or a fluoroquinolone (level I evidence) (strong recommendation) (For penicillin-allergic patients, a respiratory fluoroquinolone and aztreonam are recommended.)
21. For Pseudomonas infection, use an antipneumococcal, antipseudomonal  $\beta$ -lactam (piperacillin-tazobactam, ceftepime, imipenem, or meropenem) plus either ciprofloxacin or levofloxacin (750-mg dose)
or
the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and azithromycin
or
the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and an antipneumococcal fluoroquinolone (for penicillin-allergic patients, substitute aztreonam for the above  $\beta$ -lactam). (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
22. For community-acquired methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus infection, add vancomycin or linezolid. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Infections with the overwhelming majority of CAP pathogens will be adequately treated by use of the recommended empirical regimens. The emergence of methicillin-resistant S. aureus as a CAP pathogen and the small but significant incidence of CAP due to P. aeruginosa are the exceptions. These pathogens occur in specific epidemiologic patterns and/or with certain clinical presentations, for which empirical antibiotic coverage may be warranted. However, diagnostic tests are likely to be of high yield for these pathogens, allowing early discontinuation of empirical treatment if results are negative. The risk factors are included in the table 5 recommendations for indications for increased diagnostic testing.

Pathogens suspected on the basis of epidemiologic considerations.

Risk factors for other uncommon etiologies of CAP are listed in table 8, and recommendations for treatment are included in table 9.

Pathogen-directed therapy.

23. Once the etiology of CAP has been identified on the basis of reliable microbiological methods, antimicrobial therapy should be directed at that pathogen. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
24. Early treatment (within 48 h of the onset of symptoms)

with oseltamivir or zanamivir is recommended for influenza A. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

25. Use of oseltamivir and zanamivir is not recommended for patients with uncomplicated influenza with symptoms for >48 h (level I evidence), but these drugs may be used to reduce viral shedding in hospitalized patients or for influenza pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Pandemic influenza

26. Patients with an illness compatible with influenza and with known exposure to poultry in areas with previous H5N1 infection should be tested for H5N1 infection. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
27. In patients with suspected H5N1 infection, droplet precautions and careful routine infection control measures should be used until an H5N1 infection is ruled out. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
28. Patients with suspected H5N1 infection should be treated with oseltamivir (level II evidence) and antibacterial agents targeting S. pneumoniae and S. aureus, the most common causes of secondary bacterial pneumonia in patients with influenza (level III evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)

Time to first antibiotic dose.

29. For patients admitted through the emergency department (ED), the first antibiotic dose should be administered while still in the ED. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Rather than designating a specific window in which to initiate treatment, the committee felt that hospitalized patients with CAP should receive the first antibiotic dose in the ED.

Switch from intravenous to oral therapy.

30. Patients should be switched from intravenous to oral therapy when they are hemodynamically stable and improving clinically, are able to ingest medications, and have a normally functioning gastrointestinal tract. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
31. Patients should be discharged as soon as they are clinically stable, have no other active medical problems, and have a safe environment for continued care. Inpatient observation while receiving oral therapy is not necessary. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

Duration of antibiotic therapy.

32. Patients with CAP should be treated for a minimum of 5 days (level I evidence), should be afebrile for 48–72 h, and should have no more than 1 CAP-associated sign of clinical instability (table 10) before discontinuation of therapy (level II evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)

33. A longer duration of therapy may be needed if initial therapy was not active against the identified pathogen or if it was complicated by extrapulmonary infection, such as meningitis or endocarditis. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)

Other Treatment Considerations

34. Patients with CAP who have persistent septic shock despite adequate fluid resuscitation should be considered for treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated within 24 h of admission. (Weak recommendation; level II evidence.)

35. Hypotensive, fluid-resuscitated patients with severe CAP should be screened for occult adrenal insufficiency. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

36. Patients with hypoxemia or respiratory distress should receive a cautious trial of noninvasive ventilation unless they require immediate intubation because of severe hypoxemia ( $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$  ratio,  $<150$ ) and bilateral alveolar infiltrates. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)

37. Low-tidal-volume ventilation ( $6 \text{ cm}^3/\text{kg}$  of ideal body weight) should be used for patients undergoing ventilation who have diffuse bilateral pneumonia or acute respiratory distress syndrome. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Management of Nonresponding Pneumonia

Definitions and classification.

38. The use of a systematic classification of possible causes of failure to respond, based on time of onset and type of failure (table 11), is recommended. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

As many as 15% of patients with CAP may not respond appropriately to initial antibiotic therapy. A systematic approach to these patients (table 11) will help to determine the cause. Because determination of the cause of failure is more accurate if the original microbiological etiology is known, risk factors for nonresponse or deterioration (table 12) figure prominently in the list of situations in which more aggressive and/or extensive initial diagnostic testing is warranted (table 5).

Prevention (see table 13)

39. All persons  $\geq 50$  years of age, others at risk for influenza complications, household contacts of high-risk persons, and health care workers should receive inactivated influenza vaccine as recommended by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

40. The intranasally administered live attenuated vaccine is an alternative vaccine formulation for some persons 5–49 years of age without chronic underlying diseases, including immunodeficiency, asthma, or chronic medical conditions. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

41. Health care workers in inpatient and outpatient settings and long-term care facilities should receive annual influenza immunization. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

42. Pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine is recommended for persons  $\geq 65$  years of age and for those with selected high-risk concurrent diseases, according to current Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices guidelines. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

43. Vaccination status should be assessed at the time of hospital admission for all patients, especially those with medical illnesses. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

44. Vaccination may be performed either at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

45. Influenza vaccine should be offered to persons at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment during the fall and winter. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

46. Smoking cessation should be a goal for persons hospitalized with CAP who smoke. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

47. Smokers who will not quit should also be vaccinated for both pneumococcus and influenza. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)

48. Cases of pneumonia that are of public health concern should be reported immediately to the state or local health department. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

49. Respiratory hygiene measures, including the use of hand hygiene and masks or tissues for patients with cough, should be used in outpatient settings and EDs as a means to reduce the spread of respiratory infections. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

INTRODUCTION

Improving the care of patients with community-acquired pneumonia (CAP) has been the focus of many different organizations. Such efforts at improvement in care are warranted, because CAP, together with influenza, remains the seventh leading cause of death in the United States [1]. According to one estimate, 915,900 episodes of CAP occur in adults  $\geq 65$  years of age each year in the United States [2]. Despite advances in antimicrobial therapy, rates of mortality due to pneumonia have not decreased significantly since penicillin became routinely available [3].

Groups interested in approaches to the management of CAP include professional societies, such as the American Thoracic Society (ATS) and the Infectious Diseases Society of America (IDSA); government agencies or their contract agents, such as the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services and the Department of Veterans Affairs; and voluntary accrediting agencies, such as the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. In addition, external review groups and consumer groups have chosen CAP outcomes as major quality indicators. Such interest has resulted in numerous guidelines for the management of CAP [4]. Some of these guidelines represent truly different perspectives, including differences in health care systems, in the availability of diagnostic tools or therapeutic agents, or in either the etiology or the antibiotic susceptibility of common causative microorganisms. The most widely referenced guidelines in the United States have been those published by the ATS [5, 6] and the IDSA [7–9].

Differences, both real and imagined, between the ATS and IDSA guidelines have led to confusion for individual physicians, as well as for other groups who use these published guidelines rather than promulgating their own. In response to this concern, the IDSA and the ATS convened a joint committee to develop a unified CAP guideline document. This document represents a consensus of members of both societies, and both governing councils have approved the statement.

Purpose and scope. The purpose of this document is to update clinicians with regard to important advances and controversies in the management of patients with CAP. The committee chose not to address CAP occurring in immunocompromised patients, including solid organ, bone marrow, or stem cell transplant recipients; patients receiving cancer chemotherapy or long-term (>30 days) high-dose corticosteroid treatment; and patients with congenital or acquired immunodeficiency or those infected with HIV who have CD4 cell counts <350 cells/mm<sup>3</sup>, although many of these patients may be infected with the same microorganisms. Pneumonia in children (≤18 years of age) is also not addressed.

Substantial overlap exists among the patients these guidelines address and those discussed in the recently published guidelines for health care–associated pneumonia (HCAP) [10]. Two issues are pertinent: (1) an increased risk of infection with drug-resistant isolates of usual CAP pathogens, such as Streptococcus pneumoniae, and (2) an increased risk of infection with less common, usually hospital-associated pathogens, such as Pseudomonas and Acinetobacter species and methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA). Pneumonia in nonambulatory residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities epidemiologically mirrors hospital-acquired pneumonia and should be treated according to the HCAP guidelines. However, certain other patients whose conditions are included under the designation of HCAP are better served by management in accordance with CAP guidelines with concern for specific pathogens. For example, long-term dialysis alone is a risk for MRSA infection but does not necessarily predispose patients to infection with other HCAP pathogens, such as Pseudomonas aeruginosa or Acinetobacter species. On the other hand, certain patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) are at greater risk for infection with Pseudomonas species but not MRSA. These issues will be discussed in specific sections below.

The committee started with the premise that mortality due to CAP can be decreased. We, therefore, have placed the greatest emphasis on aspects of the guidelines that have been associated with decreases in mortality. For this reason, the document focuses mainly on management and minimizes discussions of such factors as pathophysiology, pathogenesis, mechanisms of antibiotic resistance, and virulence factors.

The committee recognizes that the majority of patients with CAP are cared for by primary care, hospitalist, and emergency medicine physicians [11], and these guidelines are, therefore, directed primarily at them. The committee consisted of infectious diseases, pulmonary, and critical care physicians with interest and expertise in pulmonary infections. The expertise of the committee and the extensive literature evaluation suggest that these guidelines are also an appropriate starting point for consultation by these types of physicians.

Although much of the literature cited originates in Europe, these guidelines are oriented toward the United States and Canada. Although the guidelines are generally applicable to other parts of the world, local antibiotic resistance patterns, drug availability, and variations in health care systems suggest that modification of these guidelines is prudent for local use.

Methodology. The process of guideline development started with the selection of committee cochairs by the presidents of the IDSA [12] and ATS [13], in consultation with other leaders in the respective societies. The committee cochairs were charged with selection of the rest of the committee. The IDSA members were those involved in the development of previous IDSA CAP guidelines [9], whereas ATS members were chosen in consultation with the leadership of the Mycobacteria Tuberculosis and Pulmonary Infection Assembly, with input from the chairs of the Clinical Pulmonary and Critical Care assemblies. Committee members were chosen to represent differing expertise and viewpoints on the various topics. One acknowledged weakness of this document is the lack of representation by primary care, hospitalist, and emergency medicine physicians.

The cochairs generated a general outline of the topics to be covered that was then circulated to committee members for input. A conference phone call was used to review topics and to discuss evidence grading and the general aims and expectations of the document. The topics were divided, and committee members were assigned by the cochairs and charged with presentation of their topic at an initial face-to-face meeting, as well as with development of a preliminary document dealing with their topic. Controversial topics were assigned to 2 committee members, 1 from each society.

An initial face-to-face meeting of a majority of committee members involved presentations of the most controversial topics, including admission decisions, diagnostic strategies, and antibiotic therapy. Prolonged discussions followed each presentation, with consensus regarding the major issues achieved before moving to the next topic. With input from the rest of the committee, each presenter and committee member assigned to the less controversial topics prepared an initial draft of their section, including grading of the evidence. Iterative drafts of the statement were developed and distributed by e-mail for critique, followed by multiple revisions by the primary authors. A second face-to-face meeting was also held for discussion of the less controversial areas and further critique of the initial drafts. Once general agreement on the separate topics was obtained, the cochairs incorporated the separate documents into a single statement, with substantial editing for style and consistency. The document was then redistributed to committee members to review and update with new information from the literature up to June 2006. Recommended changes were reviewed by all committee members by e-mail and/or conference phone call and were incorporated into the final document by the cochairs.

This document was then submitted to the societies for approval. Each society independently selected reviewers, and changes recommended by the reviewers were discussed by the committee and incorporated into the final document. The guideline was then submitted to the IDSA Governing Council and the ATS Board of Directors for final approval.

Grading of guideline recommendations. Initially, the committee decided to grade only the strength of the evidence, using a 3-tier scale (table 1) used in a recent guideline from both societies [10]. In response to reviewers' comments and the maturation of the field of guideline development [14], a separate grading of the strength of the recommendations was added to the final draft. More extensive and validated criteria, such as GRADE [14], were impractical for use at this stage. The 3-tier scale similar to that used in other IDSA guideline documents [12] and familiar to many of the committee members was therefore chosen.

The strength of each recommendation was graded as "strong," "moderate," or "weak." Each committee member independently graded each recommendation on the basis of not only the evidence but also expert interpretation and clinical applicability. The final grading of each recommendation was a composite of the individual committee members' grades. For the final document, a strong recommendation required  $\geq 6$  (of

| Level III (low)     | Evidence from case studies and expert opinion. In some instances, therapy recommendations come from antibiotic susceptibility data without clinical observations.                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

12) of the members to consider it to be strong and the majority of the others to grade it as moderate.

The implication of a strong recommendation is that most patients should receive that intervention. Significant variability in the management of patients with CAP is well documented. Some who use guidelines suggest that this variability itself is undesirable. Industrial models suggesting that variability per se is undesirable may not always be relevant to medicine [15]. Such models do not account for substantial variability among patients, nor do they account for variable end points, such as limitation of care in patients with end-stage underlying diseases who present with CAP. For this reason, the committee members feel strongly that 100% compliance with guidelines is not the desired goal. However, the rationale for variation from a strongly recommended guideline should be apparent from the medical record.

Conversely, moderate or weak recommendations suggest that, even if a majority would follow the recommended management, many practitioners may not. Deviation from guidelines may occur for a variety of reasons [16, 17]. One document cannot cover all of the variable settings, unique hosts, or epidemiologic patterns that may dictate alternative management strategies, and physician judgment should always supersede guidelines. This is borne out by the finding that deviation from guidelines is greatest in the treatment of patients with CAP admitted to the ICU [18]. In addition, few of the recommendations have level I evidence to support them, and most are, therefore, legitimate topics for future research. Subsequent publication of studies documenting that care that deviates from guidelines results in better outcomes will stimulate revision of the guidelines. The committee anticipates that this will occur, and, for this reason, both the ATS and IDSA leaderships have committed to the revision of these guidelines on a regular basis.

We recognize that these guidelines may be used as a measure of quality of care for hospitals and individual practitioners. Although these guidelines are evidence based, the committee strongly urges that deviations from them not necessarily be considered substandard care, unless they are accompanied by evidence for worse outcomes in a studied population.

IMPLEMENTATION OF GUIDELINE RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Locally adapted guidelines should be implemented to improve process of care variables and relevant clinical outcomes. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Enthusiasm for developing this set of CAP guidelines derives, in large part, from evidence that previous CAP guidelines have led to improvement in clinically relevant outcomes [17, 19–21]. Protocol design varies among studies, and the preferable randomized, parallel group design has been used in only a small minority. Confirmatory studies that use randomized, parallel groups with precisely defined treatments are still needed, but a consistent pattern of benefit is found in the other types of level I studies.

Documented benefits. Published protocols have varied in primary focus and comprehensiveness, and the corresponding benefits vary from one study to another. However, the most impressive aspect of this literature is the consistently beneficial effect seen in some clinically relevant parameter after the introduction of a protocol that increases compliance with published guidelines.

A decrease in mortality with the introduction of guideline-based protocols was found in several studies [19, 21]. A 5-year study of 28,700 patients with pneumonia who were admitted during implementation of a pneumonia guideline demonstrated that the crude 30-day mortality rate was 3.2% lower with the guideline (adjusted OR, 0.69; 95% CI, 0.49–0.97) [19], compared with that among patients treated concurrently by nonaffiliated physicians. After implementation of a practice guideline at one Spanish hospital [21], the survival rate at 30 days was higher (OR, 2.14; 95% CI, 1.23–3.72) than at baseline and in comparison with 4 other hospitals without overt protocols. Lower mortality was seen in other studies, although the differences were not statistically significant [22, 23]. Studies that documented lower mortality emphasized increasing the number of patients receiving guideline-recommended antibiotics, confirming results of the multivariate analysis of a retrospective review [24].

When the focus of a guideline was hospitalization, the number of less ill patients admitted to the hospital was consistently found to be lower. Using admission decision support, a prospective study of >1700 emergency department (ED) visits in 19 hospitals randomized between pathway and “conventional” management found that admission rates among low-risk patients at pathway hospitals decreased (from 49% to 31% of patients in Pneumonia Severity Index [PSI] classes I–III;  $P < .01$ ) without differences in patient satisfaction scores or rate of readmission [20]. Calculating the PSI score and assigning the risk class, providing oral clarithromycin, and home nursing follow-up significantly ( $P = .01$ ) decreased the number of low-mortality-risk admissions [25]. However, patient satisfaction among outpatients was lower after implementation of this guideline, despite survey data that suggested most patients would prefer outpatient treatment [26]. Of patients discharged from the ED, 9% required hospitalization within 30 days, although another study showed lower readmission rates with the use of a protocol [23]. Admission decision support derived from the 1993 ATS guideline [5] recommendations, combined with outpatient antibiotic recommendations, reduced the CAP hospitalization rate from 13.6% to 6.4% [23], and admission rates for other diagnoses were unchanged. Not surprisingly, the resultant overall cost of care decreased by half ( $P = .01$ ).

Protocols using guidelines to decrease the duration of hospitalization have also been successful. Guideline implementation in 31 Connecticut hospitals decreased the mean length of hospital stay (LOS) from 7 to 5 days ( $P < .001$ ) [27]. An ED-based protocol decreased the mean LOS from 9.7 to 6.4 days ( $P < .0001$ ), with the benefits of guideline implementation maintained 3 years after the initial study [22]. A 7-site trial, randomized by physician group, of guideline alone versus the same guideline with a multifaceted implementation strategy found that addition of an implementation strategy was associated with decreased duration of intravenous antibiotic therapy and LOS, although neither decrease was statistically significant [28]. Several other studies used guidelines to significantly shorten the LOS, by an average of >1.5 days [20, 21].

Markers of process of care can also change with the use of a protocol. The time to first antibiotic dose has been effectively decreased with CAP protocols [22, 27, 29]. A randomized, parallel group study introduced a pneumonia guideline in 20 of 36 small Oklahoma hospitals [29], with the identical protocol implemented in the remaining hospitals in a second phase. Serial measurement of key process measures showed significant improvement in time to first antibiotic dose and other variables, first in the initial 20 hospitals and later in the remaining 16 hospitals. Implementing a guideline in the ED halved the time to initial antibiotic dose [22].

2. CAP guidelines should address a comprehensive set of elements in the process of care rather than a single element in isolation. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

Common to all of the studies documented above, a comprehensive protocol was developed and implemented, rather than one addressing a single aspect of CAP care. No study has documented that simply changing 1 metric, such as time to first antibiotic dose, is associated with a decrease in mortality. Elements important in CAP guidelines are listed in table 2. Of these, rapid and appropriate empirical antibiotic therapy is consistently associated with improved outcome. We have also included elements of good care for general medical inpatients, such as early mobilization [30] and prophylaxis against thromboembolic disease [31]. Although local guidelines need not include all elements, a logical constellation of elements should be addressed.

3. Development of local CAP guidelines should be directed toward improvement in specific and clinically relevant outcomes. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

In instituting CAP protocol guidelines, the outcomes most relevant to the individual center or medical system should be addressed first. Unless a desire to change clinically relevant outcomes exists, adherence to guidelines will be low, and institutional resources committed to implement the guideline are likely to be insufficient. Guidelines for the treatment of pneumonia must use approaches that differ from current practice and must be successfully implemented before process of care and outcomes can change. For example, Rhew et al. [32] designed a guideline to decrease LOS that was unlikely to change care, because the recommended median LOS was longer than the existing LOS for CAP at the study hospitals. The difficulty in implementing guidelines and changing physician behavior has also been documented [28, 33].

Clinically relevant outcome parameters should be evaluated to measure the effect of the local guideline. Outcome parameters that can be used to measure the effect of implementation of a CAP guideline within an organization are listed in table 3. Just as it is important not to focus on one aspect of care, studying more than one outcome is also important. Improvements in one area may be offset by worsening in a related area; for example, decreasing admission of low-acuity patients might increase the number of return visits to the ED or hospital readmissions [25].

SITE-OF-CARE DECISIONS

Almost all of the major decisions regarding management of CAP, including diagnostic and treatment issues, revolve around the initial assessment of severity. We have, therefore, organized the guidelines to address this issue first.

Hospital admission decision. The initial management decision after diagnosis is to determine the site of care—outpatient, hospitalization in a medical ward, or admission to an ICU. The decision to admit the patient is the most costly issue in the management of CAP, because the cost of inpatient care for pneumonia is up to 25 times greater than that of outpatient care [34] and consumes the majority of the estimated $8.4–$10 billion spent yearly on treatment.

Other reasons for avoiding unnecessary admissions are that patients at low risk for death who are treated in the outpatient setting are able to resume normal activity sooner than those who are hospitalized, and 80% are reported to prefer outpatient therapy [26, 35]. Hospitalization also increases the risk of thromboembolic events and superinfection by more-virulent or resistant hospital bacteria [36].

4. Severity-of-illness scores, such as the CURB-65 criteria (confusion, uremia, respiratory rate, low blood pressure, age  $\geq 65$  years or greater), or prognostic models, such as the PSI, can be used to identify patients with CAP who may be candidates for outpatient treatment. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Significant variation in admission rates among hospitals and among individual physicians is well documented. Physicians often overestimate severity and hospitalize a significant number of patients at low risk for death [20, 37, 38]. Because of these issues, interest in objective site-of-care criteria has led to attempts by a number of groups to develop such criteria [39–48]. The relative merits and limitations of various proposed criteria have been carefully evaluated [49]. The 2 most interesting are the PSI [42] and the British Thoracic Society (BTS) criteria [39, 45].

The PSI is based on derivation and validation cohorts of 14,199 and 38,039 hospitalized patients with CAP, respectively, plus an additional 2287 combined inpatients and outpatients [42]. The PSI stratifies patients into 5 mortality risk classes, and its ability to predict mortality has been confirmed in multiple subsequent studies. On the basis of associated mortality rates, it has been suggested that risk class I and II patients should be treated as outpatients, risk class III patients should be treated in an observation unit or with a short hospitalization, and risk class IV and V patients should be treated as inpatients [42].

Yealy et al. [50] conducted a cluster-randomized trial of low-, moderate-, and high-intensity processes of guideline implementation in 32 EDs in the United States. Their guideline used the PSI for admission decision support and included recommendations for antibiotic therapy, timing of first antibiotic dose, measurement of oxygen saturation, and blood cultures for admitted patients. EDs with moderate- to high-intensity guideline implementation demonstrated more outpatient treatment of low-risk patients and higher compliance with antibiotic recommendations. No differences were found in mortality rate, rate of hospitalization, median time to return to work or usual activities, or patient satisfaction. This study differs from those reporting a mortality rate difference [19, 21] in that many hospitalized patients with pneumonia were not included. In addition, EDs with low-intensity guideline implementation formed the comparison group, rather than EDs practicing non-guideline, usual pneumonia care.

The BTS original criteria of 1987 have subsequently been modified [39, 51]. In the initial study, risk of death was increased 21-fold if a patient, at the time of admission, had at least 2 of the following 3 conditions: tachypnea, diastolic hypotension, and an elevated blood urea nitrogen (BUN) level. These criteria appear to function well except among patients with underlying renal insufficiency and among elderly patients [52, 53].

The most recent modification of the BTS criteria includes 5 easily measurable factors [45]. Multivariate analysis of 1068 patients identified the following factors as indicators of increased mortality: confusion (based on a specific mental test or disorientation to person, place, or time), BUN level  $>7$  mmol/L (20 mg/dL), respiratory rate  $\geq 30$  breaths/min, low blood pressure (systolic,  $<90$  mm Hg; or diastolic,  $\leq 60$  mm Hg), and age  $\geq 65$  years; this gave rise to the acronym CURB-65. In the derivation and validation cohorts, the 30-day mortality among patients with 0, 1, or 2 factors was 0.7%, 2.1%, and 9.2%, respectively. Mortality was higher when 3, 4, or 5 factors were present and was reported as 14.5%, 40%, and 57%, respectively. The authors suggested that patients with a CURB-65 score of 0–1 be treated as outpatients, that those with a score of 2 be admitted to the wards, and that patients with a score of  $\geq 3$  often required ICU care. A simplified version (CRB-65), which does not require testing for BUN level, may be appropriate for decision making in a primary care practitioner's office [54].

The use of objective admission criteria clearly can decrease the number of patients hospitalized with CAP [20, 23, 25, 55]. Whether the PSI or the CURB-65 score is superior is unclear, because no randomized trials of alternative admission criteria exist. When compared in the same population, the PSI classified a slightly larger percentage of patients with CAP in the low-risk categories, compared with the CURB or CURB-65 criteria, while remaining associated with a similar low mortality rate among patients categorized as low risk [56]. Several factors are important in this comparison. The PSI includes 20 different variables and, therefore, relies on the availability of scoring sheets, limiting its practicality in a busy ED [55]. In contrast, the CURB-65 criteria are easily remembered. However, CURB-65 has not been as extensively studied as the PSI, especially with prospective validation in other patient populations (e.g., the indigent inner-city population), and has not been specifically studied as a means of reducing hospital admission rates. In EDs with sufficient decision support resources (either human or computerized), the benefit of greater experience with the PSI score may favor its use for screening patients who may be candidates for outpatient management [50, 57–59].

5. Objective criteria or scores should always be supplemented with physician determination of subjective factors, including the ability to safely and reliably take oral medication and the availability of outpatient support resources. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

Studies show that certain patients with low PSI or CURB-65 scores [20, 60, 61] require hospital admission, even to the ICU [49, 62, 63]. Both scores depend on certain assumptions. One is that the main rationale for admission of a patient with CAP is risk of death. This assumption is clearly not valid in all cases. Another is that the laboratory and vital signs used for scoring are stable over time rather than indicative of transient abnormalities. This is also not true in all cases. Therefore, dynamic assessment over several hours of observation may be more accurate than a score derived at a single point in time. Although advantageous to making decisions regarding hospital admission, sole reliance on a score for the hospital admission decision is unsafe.

Reasons for the admission of low-mortality-risk patients fall into 4 categories: (1) complications of the pneumonia itself, (2) exacerbation of underlying diseases(s), (3) inability to reliably take oral medications or receive outpatient care, and/or (4) multiple risk factors falling just above or below thresholds for the score [62]. Use of the PSI score in clinical trials has demonstrated some of its limitations, which may be equally applicable to other scoring techniques. A modification of the original PSI score was needed when it was applied to the admission decision. An arterial saturation of  $<90\%$  or an arterial oxygen pressure ( $\text{PaO}_2$ ) of  $<60$  mm Hg as a complication of the pneumonia, was added as a sole indicator for admission for patients in risk classes I–III as an added “margin of safety” in one trial [42]. In addition to patients who required hospital admission because of hypoxemia, a subsequent study identified patients in low PSI risk classes (I–III) who needed hospital admission because of shock, decompensated coexisting illnesses, pleural effusion, inability to maintain oral intake, social problems (the patient was dependent or no caregiver was available), and lack of response to previous adequate empirical antibiotic therapy [64]. Of 178 patients in low PSI risk classes who were treated as inpatients, 106 (60%) presented with at least 1 of these factors. Other medical or psychosocial needs requiring hospital care include intractable vomiting, injection drug abuse, severe psychiatric illness, homelessness, poor overall functional status [65], and cognitive dysfunction [61, 66].

The PSI score is based on a history of diseases that increase risk of death, whereas the CURB-65 score does not directly address underlying disease. However, pneumonia may exacerbate an underlying disease, such as obstructive lung disease, congestive heart failure, or diabetes mellitus, which, by themselves, may require hospital admission [60, 67]. Atlas et al. [25] were able to reduce hospital admissions among patients in PSI risk classes I–III from 58% in a retrospective control group to 43% in a PSI-based intervention group. Ten of 94 patients in the latter group (compared with 0 patients in the control population) were subsequently admitted, several for reasons unrelated to their pneumonia. Also, the presence of rare illnesses, such as neuromuscular or sickle cell disease, may require hospitalization but not affect the PSI score.

The necessary reliance on dichotomous predictor variables (abnormal vs. normal) in most criteria and the heavy reliance on age as a surrogate in the PSI score may oversimplify their use for admission decisions. For example, a previously healthy 25-year-old patient with severe hypotension and tachycardia and no additional pertinent prognostic factors would be placed in risk class II, whereas a 70-year-old man with a history of localized prostate cancer diagnosed 10 months earlier and no other problems would be placed in risk class IV [42]. Finally, patient satisfaction was lower among patients treated outside the hospital in one study with a PSI-based intervention group [25], suggesting that the savings resulting from use of the PSI may be overestimated and that physicians should consider additional factors not measured by the PSI.

6. For patients with CURB-65 scores  $\geq 2$ , more-intensive treatment—that is, hospitalization or, where appropriate and available, intensive in-home health care services—is usually warranted. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Although the PSI and CURB-65 criteria are valuable aids in avoiding inappropriate admissions of low-mortality-risk patients, another important role of these criteria may be to help identify patients at high risk who would benefit from hospitalization. The committee preferred the CURB-65 criteria because of ease of use and because they were designed to measure illness severity more than the likelihood of mortality. Patients with a CURB-65 score  $\geq 2$  are not only at increased risk of death but also are likely to have clinically important physiologic derangements requiring active intervention. These patients should usually be considered for hospitalization or for aggressive in-home care, where available. In a cohort of  $\sim 3000$  patients, the mortality with a CURB-65 score of 0 was only 1.2%, whereas 3–4 points were associated with 31% mortality [45].

Because the PSI score is not based as directly on severity of illness as are the CURB-65 criteria, a threshold for patients who would require hospital admission or intensive outpatient treatment is harder to define. The higher the score, the greater the need for hospitalization. However, even a patient who meets criteria for risk class V on the basis of very old age and multiple stable chronic illnesses may be successfully managed as an outpatient [23].

ICU admission decision.

7. Direct admission to an ICU is required for patients with septic shock requiring vasopressors or with acute respiratory failure requiring intubation and mechanical ventilation. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

8. Direct admission to an ICU or high-level monitoring unit is recommended for patients with 3 of the minor criteria for severe CAP listed in table 4. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The second-level admission decision is whether to place the patient in the ICU or a high-level monitoring unit rather than on a general medical floor. Approximately 10% of hospitalized patients with CAP require ICU admission [68–70], but the indications vary strikingly among patients, physicians, hospitals, and different health care systems. Some of the variability among institutions results from the availability of high-level monitoring or intermediate care units appropriate for patients at increased risk of complications. Because respiratory failure is the major reason for delayed transfer to the ICU, simple cardiac monitoring units would not meet the criteria for a high-level monitoring unit for patients with severe CAP. One of the most important determinants of the need for ICU care is the presence of chronic comorbid conditions [68–72]. However, approximately one-third of patients with severe CAP were previously healthy [73].

The rationale for specifically defining severe CAP is 4-fold:

- Appropriate placement of patients optimizes use of limited ICU resources.
- Transfer to the ICU for delayed respiratory failure or delayed onset of septic shock is associated with increased mortality [74]. Although low-acuity ICU admissions do occur, the major concern is initial admission to the general medical unit, with subsequent transfer to the ICU. As many as 45% of patients with CAP who ultimately require ICU admission were initially admitted to a non-ICU setting [75]. Many delayed transfers to the ICU represent rapidly progressive pneumonia that is not obvious on admission. However, some have subtle findings, including those included in the minor criteria in table 4, which might warrant direct admission to the ICU.
- The distribution of microbial etiologies differs from that of CAP in general [76–79], with significant implications for diagnostic testing and empirical antibiotic choices. Avoidance of inappropriate antibiotic therapy has also been associated with lower mortality [80, 81].
- Patients with CAP appropriate for immunomodulatory treatment must be identified. The systemic inflammatory response/severe sepsis criteria typically used for generic sepsis trials may not be adequate when applied specifically to severe CAP [82]. For example, patients with unilateral lobar pneumonia may have hypoxemia severe enough to meet criteria for acute lung injury but not have a systemic response.

Several criteria have been proposed to define severe CAP. Most case series have defined it simply as CAP that necessitates ICU admission. Objective criteria to identify patients for ICU

admission include the initial ATS definition of severe CAP [5] and its subsequent modification [6, 82], the CURB criteria [39, 45], and PSI severity class V (or IV and V) [42]. However, none of these criteria has been prospectively validated for the ICU admission decision. Recently, these criteria were retrospectively evaluated in a cohort of patients with CAP admitted to the ICU [63]. All were found to be both overly sensitive and nonspecific in comparison with the original clinical decision to admit to the ICU. Revisions of the criteria or alternative criteria were, therefore, recommended.

For the revised criteria, the structure of the modified ATS criteria for severe CAP was retained [6]. The 2 major criteria—mechanical ventilation with endotracheal intubation and septic shock requiring vasopressors—are absolute indications for admission to an ICU.

In contrast, the need for ICU admission is less straightforward for patients who do not meet the major criteria. On the basis of the published operating characteristics of the criteria, no single set of minor criteria is adequate to define severe CAP. Both the ATS minor criteria [75] and the CURB criteria [45] have validity when predicting which patients will be at increased risk of death. Therefore, the ATS minor criteria and the CURB variables were included in the new proposed minor criteria (table 4). Age, by itself, was not felt to be an appropriate factor for the ICU admission decision, but the remainder of the CURB-65 criteria [45] were retained as minor criteria (with the exception of hypotension requiring vasopressors as a major criterion). Rather than the complex criteria for confusion in the original CURB studies, the definition of confusion should be new-onset disorientation to person, place, or time.

Three additional minor criteria were added. Leukopenia (white blood cell count,  $<4000$  cells/mm<sup>3</sup>) resulting from CAP has consistently been associated with excess mortality, as well as with an increased risk of complications such as acute respiratory distress syndrome (ARDS) [77, 79, 83–87]. In addition, leukopenia is seen not only in bacteremic pneumococcal disease but also in gram-negative CAP [88, 89]. When leukopenia occurs in patients with a history of alcohol abuse, the adverse manifestations of septic shock and ARDS may be delayed or masked. Therefore, these patients were thought to benefit from ICU monitoring. The coagulation system is often activated in CAP, and development of thrombocytopenia (platelet count,  $<100,000$  cells/mm<sup>3</sup>) is also associated with a worse prognosis [86, 90–92]. Nonexposure hypothermia (core temperature,  $<36^{\circ}\text{C}$ ) also carries an ominous prognosis in CAP [83, 93]. The committee felt that there was sufficient justification for including these additional factors as minor criteria.

Other factors associated with increased mortality due to CAP were also considered, including acute alcohol ingestion and delirium tremens [79, 85, 94], hypoglycemia and hyperglycemia, occult metabolic acidosis or elevated lactate levels [91], and hyponatremia [95]. However, many of these criteria overlap with those selected. Future studies validating the proposed criteria should record these factors as well, to determine whether addition or substitution improves the predictive value of our proposed criteria.

With the addition of more minor criteria, the threshold for ICU admission was felt to be the presence of at least 3 minor criteria, based on the mortality association with the CURB criteria. Selecting 2 criteria appears to be too nonspecific, as is demonstrated by the initial ATS criteria [5]. Whether each of the criteria is of equal weight is also not clear. Therefore, prospective validation of this set of criteria is clearly needed.

DIAGNOSTIC TESTING

9. In addition to a constellation of suggestive clinical features, a demonstrable infiltrate by chest radiograph or other imaging technique, with or without supporting microbiological data, is required for the diagnosis of pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

The diagnosis of CAP is based on the presence of select clinical features (e.g., cough, fever, sputum production, and pleuritic chest pain) and is supported by imaging of the lung, usually by chest radiography. Physical examination to detect rales or bronchial breath sounds is an important component of the evaluation but is less sensitive and specific than chest radiographs [96]. Both clinical features and physical exam findings may be lacking or altered in elderly patients. All patients should be screened by pulse oximetry, which may suggest both the presence of pneumonia in patients without obvious signs of pneumonia and unsuspected hypoxemia in patients with diagnosed pneumonia [42, 97, 98].

A chest radiograph is required for the routine evaluation of patients who are likely to have pneumonia, to establish the diagnosis and to aid in differentiating CAP from other common causes of cough and fever, such as acute bronchitis. Chest radiographs are sometimes useful for suggesting the etiologic agent, prognosis, alternative diagnoses, and associated conditions. Rarely, the admission chest radiograph is clear, but the patient's toxic appearance suggests more than bronchitis. CT scans may be more sensitive, but the clinical significance of these findings when findings of radiography are negative is unclear [99]. For patients who are hospitalized for suspected pneumonia but who have negative chest radiography findings, it may be reasonable to treat their condition presumptively with antibiotics and repeat the imaging in 24–48 h.

Microbiological studies may support the diagnosis of pneumonia due to an infectious agent, but routine tests are frequently falsely negative and are often nonspecific. A history of recent travel or endemic exposure, if routinely sought, may identify specific potential etiologies that would otherwise be unexpected as a cause of CAP (see table 8) [100].

Recommended Diagnostic Tests for Etiology

10. Patients with CAP should be investigated for specific pathogens that would significantly alter standard (empirical) management decisions, when the presence of such pathogens is suspected on the basis of clinical and epidemiologic clues. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

The need for diagnostic testing to determine the etiology of CAP can be justified from several perspectives. The primary reason for such testing is if results will change the antibiotic management for an individual patient. The spectrum of antibiotic therapy can be broadened, narrowed, or completely altered on the basis of diagnostic testing. The alteration in therapy that is potentially most beneficial to the individual is an escalation or switch of the usual empirical regimen because of unusual pathogens (e.g., endemic fungi or Mycobacterium tuberculosis) or antibiotic resistance issues. Broad empirical coverage, such as that recommended in these guidelines, would not provide the optimal treatment for certain infections, such as psittacosis or tularemia. Increased mortality [80] and increased risk of clinical failure [81, 101] are more common with inappropriate antibiotic therapy. Management of initial antibiotic failure is greatly facilitated by an etiologic diagnosis at admission. De-escalation or narrowing of antibiotic therapy on the basis of diagnostic testing is less likely to decrease an individual's risk of death but may decrease cost, drug adverse effects, and antibiotic resistance pressure.

Some etiologic diagnoses have important epidemiologic implications, such as documentation of severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS), influenza, legionnaires disease, or agents of bioterrorism. Diagnostic testing for these infections may affect not only the individual but also many other people. Although pneumonia etiologies that should be reported to public health officials vary by state, in general, most states' health regulations require reporting of legionnaires disease, SARS, psittacosis, avian influenza (H5N1), and possible agents of bioterrorism (plague, tularemia, and anthrax). In addition, specific diagnostic testing and reporting are important for pneumonia cases of any etiology thought to be part of a cluster or caused by pathogens not endemic to the area.

There are also societal reasons for encouraging diagnostic testing. The antibiotic recommendations in the present guidelines are based on culture results and sensitivity patterns from patients with positive etiologic diagnoses [102]. Without the accumulated information available from these culture results, trends in antibiotic resistance are more difficult to track, and empirical antibiotic recommendations are less likely to be accurate.

The main downside of extensive diagnostic testing of all patients with CAP is cost, which is driven by the poor quality of most sputum microbiological samples and the low yield of positive culture results in many groups of patients with CAP. A clear need for improved diagnostic testing in CAP, most likely using molecular methodology rather than culture, has been recognized by the National Institutes of Health [103].

The cost-benefit ratio is even worse when antibiotic therapy

is not streamlined when possible [104, 105] or when inappropriate escalation occurs [95]. In clinical practice, narrowing of antibiotic therapy is, unfortunately, unusual, but the committee strongly recommends this as best medical practice. The possibility of polymicrobial CAP and the potential benefit of combination therapy for bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia have complicated the decision to narrow antibiotic therapy. Delays in starting antibiotic therapy that result from the need to obtain specimens, complications of invasive diagnostic procedures, and unneeded antibiotic changes and additional testing for false-positive tests are also important considerations.

The general recommendation of the committee is to strongly encourage diagnostic testing whenever the result is likely to change individual antibiotic management. For other patients with CAP, the recommendations for diagnostic testing focus on patients in whom the diagnostic yield is thought to be greatest. These 2 priorities often overlap. Recommendations for patients in whom routine diagnostic testing is indicated for the above reasons are listed in table 5. Because of the emphasis on clinical relevance, a variety of diagnostic tests that may be accurate but the results of which are not available in a time window to allow clinical decisions are neither recommended nor discussed.

11. Routine diagnostic tests to identify an etiologic diagnosis are optional for outpatients with CAP. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Retrospective studies of outpatient CAP management usually show that diagnostic tests to define an etiologic pathogen are infrequently performed, yet most patients do well with empirical antibiotic treatment [42, 106]. Exceptions to this general rule may apply to some pathogens important for epidemiologic reasons or management decisions. The availability of rapid point-of-care diagnostic tests, specific treatment and chemoprevention, and epidemiologic importance make influenza testing the most logical. Influenza is often suspected on the basis of typical symptoms during the proper season in the presence of an epidemic. However, respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) can cause a similar syndrome and often occurs in the same clinical scenario [107]. Rapid diagnostic tests may be indicated when the diagnosis is uncertain and when distinguishing influenza A from influenza B is important for therapeutic decisions.

Other infections that are important to verify with diagnostic studies because of epidemiologic implications or because they require unique therapeutic intervention are SARS and avian (H5N1) influenza, disease caused by agents of bioterrorism, Legionella infection, community-acquired MRSA (CA-MRSA) infection, M. tuberculosis infection, or endemic fungal infection. Attempts to establish an etiologic diagnosis are also appropriate in selected cases associated with outbreaks, specific risk factors, or atypical presentations.

12. Pretreatment blood samples for culture and an expectorated sputum sample for stain and culture (in patients with a productive cough) should be obtained from hospitalized patients with the clinical indications listed in table 5 but are optional for patients without these conditions. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)
13. Pretreatment Gram stain and culture of expectorated sputum should be performed only if a good-quality specimen can be obtained and quality performance measures for collection, transport, and processing of samples can be met. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)
14. Patients with severe CAP, as defined above, should at least have blood samples drawn for culture, urinary antigen tests for Legionella pneumophila and S. pneumoniae performed, and expectorated sputum samples collected for culture. For intubated patients, an endotracheal aspirate sample should be obtained. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The only randomized controlled trial of diagnostic strategy in CAP has demonstrated no statistically significant differences in mortality rate or LOS between patients receiving pathogen-directed therapy and patients receiving empirical therapy [108]. However, pathogen-directed therapy was associated with lower mortality among the small number of patients admitted to the ICU. The study was performed in a country with a low incidence of antibiotic resistance, which may limit its applicability to areas with higher levels of resistance. Adverse effects were significantly more common in the empirical therapy group but may have been unique to the specific antibiotic choice (erythromycin).

The lack of benefit overall in this trial should not be interpreted as a lack of benefit for an individual patient. Therefore, performing diagnostic tests is never incorrect or a breach of the standard of care. However, information from cohort and observational studies may be used to define patient groups in which the diagnostic yield is increased. Patient groups in which routine diagnostic testing is indicated and the recommended tests are listed in table 5.

Blood cultures. Pretreatment blood cultures yielded positive results for a probable pathogen in 5%–14% in large series of nonselected patients hospitalized with CAP [104, 105, 109–111]. The yield of blood cultures is, therefore, relatively low (although it is similar to yields in other serious infections), and, when management decisions are analyzed, the impact of positive blood cultures is minor [104, 105]. The most common blood culture isolate in all CAP studies is S. pneumoniae. Because this bacterial organism is always considered to be the most likely pathogen, positive blood culture results have not clearly led to better outcomes or improvements in antibiotic selection [105, 112]. False-positive blood culture results are associated with prolonged hospital stay, possibly related to changes in management based on preliminary results showing gram-positive cocci, which eventually prove to be coagulase-negative staphylococci [95, 109]. In addition, false-positive blood culture results have led to significantly more vancomycin use [95].

For these reasons, blood cultures are optional for all hospitalized patients with CAP but should be performed selectively (table 5). The yield for positive blood culture results is halved by prior antibiotic therapy [95]. Therefore, when performed, samples for blood culture should be obtained before antibiotic administration. However, when multiple risk factors for bacteremia are present, blood culture results after initiation of antibiotic therapy are still positive in up to 15% of cases [95] and are, therefore, still warranted in these cases, despite the lower yield.

The strongest indication for blood cultures is severe CAP. Patients with severe CAP are more likely to be infected with pathogens other than S. pneumoniae, including S. aureus, P. aeruginosa, and other gram-negative bacilli [77–80, 95, 113, 114]. Many of the factors predictive of positive blood culture results [95] overlap with risk factors for severe CAP (table 4). Therefore, blood cultures are recommended for all patients with severe CAP because of the higher yield, the greater possibility of the presence of pathogens not covered by the usual empirical antibiotic therapy, and the increased potential to affect antibiotic management.

Blood cultures are also indicated when patients have a host defect in the ability to clear bacteremia—for example, as a result of asplenia or complement deficiencies. Patients with chronic liver disease also are more likely to have bacteremia with CAP [95]. Leukopenia is also associated with a high incidence of bacteremia [79, 95].

Respiratory tract specimen Gram stain and culture. The yield of sputum bacterial cultures is variable and strongly influenced by the quality of the entire process, including specimen collection, transport, rapid processing, satisfactory use of cytologic criteria, absence of prior antibiotic therapy, and skill in interpretation. The yield of S. pneumoniae, for example, is only 40%–50% from sputum cultures from patients with bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia in studies performed a few decades ago [115, 116]. A more recent study of 100 cases of bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia found that sputum specimens were not submitted in 31% of cases and were judged as inadequate in another 16% of cases [117]. When patients receiving antibiotics for >24 h were excluded, Gram stain showed pneumococci in 63% of sputum specimens, and culture results were positive in 86%. For patients who had received no antibiotics, the Gram stain was read as being consistent with pneumococci in 80% of cases, and sputum culture results were positive in 93%.

Although there are favorable reports of the utility of Gram stain [118], a meta-analysis showed a low yield, considering the number of patients with adequate specimens and definitive results [119]. Recent data show that an adequate specimen with a predominant morphotype on Gram stain was found in only 14% of 1669 hospitalized patients with CAP [120]. Higher PSI scores did not predict higher yield. However, a positive Gram stain was highly predictive of a subsequent positive culture result.

The benefit of a sputum Gram stain is, therefore, 2-fold. First, it broadens initial empirical coverage for less common etiologies, such as infection with S. aureus or gram-negative organisms. This indication is probably the most important, because it will lead to less inappropriate antibiotic therapy. Second, it can validate the subsequent sputum culture results.

Forty percent or more of patients are unable to produce any sputum or to produce sputum in a timely manner [108, 120]. The yield of cultures is substantially higher with endotracheal aspirates, bronchoscopic sampling, or transthoracic needle aspirates [120–126], although specimens obtained after initiation of antibiotic therapy are unreliable and must be interpreted carefully [120, 127, 128]. Interpretation is improved with quantitative cultures of respiratory secretions from any source (sputum, tracheal aspirations, and bronchoscopic aspirations) or by interpretation based on semiquantitative culture results [122, 123, 129]. Because of the significant influence on diagnostic yield and cost effectiveness, careful attention to the details of specimen handling and processing are critical if sputum cultures are obtained.

Because the best specimens are collected and processed before antibiotics are given, the time to consider obtaining expectorated sputum specimens from patients with factors listed in table 5 is before initiation of antibiotic therapy. Once again, the best indication for more extensive respiratory tract cultures is severe CAP. Gram stain and culture of endotracheal aspirates from intubated patients with CAP produce different results than expectorated sputum from non-ICU patients [76, 120]. Many of the pathogens in the broader microbiological spectrum of severe CAP are unaffected by a single dose of antibiotics, unlike S. pneumoniae. In addition, an endotracheal aspirate does not require patient cooperation, is clearly a lower respiratory tract sample, and is less likely to be contaminated by oropharyngeal colonizers. Nosocomial tracheal colonization is not an issue if the sample is obtained soon after intubation. Therefore, culture and Gram stain of endotracheal aspirates are recommended for patients intubated for severe CAP. In addition to routine cultures, a specific request for culture of respiratory secretions on buffered charcoal yeast extract agar to isolate Legionella species may be useful in this subset of patients with severe CAP in areas where Legionella is endemic, as well as in patients with a recent travel history [130].

The fact that a respiratory tract culture result is negative does not mean that it has no value. Failure to detect S. aureus or gram-negative bacilli in good-quality specimens is strong evidence against the presence of these pathogens. Growth inhibition by antibiotics is lower with these pathogens than with S. pneumoniae, but specimens obtained after initiation of antibiotic therapy are harder to interpret, with the possibility of colonization. Necrotizing or cavitary pneumonia is a risk for CA-MRSA infection, and sputum samples should be obtained in all cases. Negative Gram stain and culture results should be adequate to withhold or stop treatment for MRSA infection.

Severe COPD and alcoholism are major risk factors for infection with P. aeruginosa and other gram-negative pathogens [131]. Once again, Gram stain and culture of an adequate sputum specimen are usually adequate to exclude the need for empirical coverage of these pathogens.

A sputum culture in patients with suspected legionnaires disease is important, because the identification of Legionella species implies the possibility of an environmental source to which other susceptible individuals may be exposed. Localized community outbreaks of legionnaires disease might be recognized by clinicians or local health departments because  $\geq 2$  patients might be admitted to the same hospital. However, outbreaks of legionnaires disease associated with hotels or cruise ships [132–134] are rarely detected by individual clinicians, because travelers typically disperse from the source of infection before developing symptoms. Therefore, a travel history should be actively sought from patients with CAP, and Legionella testing should be performed for those who have traveled in the 2 weeks before the onset of symptoms. Urinary antigen tests may be adequate to diagnose and treat an individual, but efforts to obtain a sputum specimen for culture are still indicated to facilitate epidemiologic tracking. The availability of a culture isolate of Legionella dramatically improves the likelihood that an environmental source of Legionella can be identified and remediated [135–137]. The yield of sputum culture is increased to 43%–57% when associated with a positive urinary antigen test result [138, 139].

Attempts to obtain a sample for sputum culture from a patient with a positive pneumococcal urinary antigen test result may be indicated for similar reasons. Patients with a productive cough and positive urinary antigen test results have positive sputum culture results in as many as 40%–80% of cases [140–143]. In these cases, not only can sensitivity testing confirm the appropriate choice for the individual patient, but important data regarding local community antibiotic resistance rates can also be acquired.

Other cultures. Patients with pleural effusions >5 cm in height on a lateral upright chest radiograph [111] should undergo thoracentesis to yield material for Gram stain and culture for aerobic and anaerobic bacteria. The yield with pleural fluid cultures is low, but the impact on management decisions is substantial, in terms of both antibiotic choice and the need for drainage.

Nonbronchoscopic bronchoalveolar lavage (BAL) in the ED has been studied in a small, randomized trial of intubated patients with CAP [144]. A high percentage (87%) of non-bronchoscopic BAL culture results were positive, even in some patients who had already received their first dose of antibiotics. Unfortunately, tracheal aspirates were obtained from only a third of patients in the control group, but they all were culture positive. Therefore, it is unclear that endotracheal aspirates are inferior to nonbronchoscopic BAL. The use of bronchoscopic BAL, protected specimen brushing, or transthoracic lung aspiration has not been prospectively studied for initial management of patients with CAP [123]. The best indications are for immunocompromised patients with CAP or for patients with CAP in whom therapy failed [101, 145].

Antigen tests. Urinary antigen tests are commercially available and have been cleared by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for detection of S. pneumoniae and L. pneumophila serogroup 1 [138, 140, 146–149]. Urinary antigen testing appears to have a higher diagnostic yield in patients with more severe illness [139, 140].

For pneumococcal pneumonia, the principal advantages of antigen tests are rapidity (~15 min), simplicity, reasonable specificity in adults, and the ability to detect pneumococcal pneumonia after antibiotic therapy has been started. Studies in adults show a sensitivity of 50%–80% and a specificity of >90% [146, 149, 150]. This is an attractive test for detecting pneumococcal pneumonia when samples for culture cannot be obtained in a timely fashion or when antibiotic therapy has already been initiated. Serial specimens from patients with known bacteremia were still positive for pneumococcal urinary antigen in 83% of cases after 3 days of therapy [147]. Comparisons with Gram stain show that these 2 rapidly available tests often do not overlap, with only 28% concordance (25 of 88) among patients when results of either test were positive [140]. Only ~50% of Binax pneumococcal urinary antigen–positive patients can be diagnosed by conventional methods [140, 150]. Disadvantages include cost (approximately $30 per specimen), although this is offset by increased diagnosis-related group–based reimbursement for coding for pneumococcal pneumonia, and the lack of an organism for in vitro susceptibility tests. False-positive results have been seen in children with chronic respiratory diseases who are colonized with S. pneumoniae [151] and in patients with an episode of CAP within the previous 3 months [152], but they do not appear to be a significant problem in colonized patients with COPD [140, 152].

For Legionella, several urinary antigen assays are available, but all detect only L. pneumophila serogroup 1. Although this particular serogroup accounts for 80%–95% of community-acquired cases of legionnaires disease [138, 153] in many areas of North America, other species and serogroups predominate in specific locales [154, 155]. Prior studies of culture-proven legionnaires disease indicate a sensitivity of 70%–90% and a specificity of nearly 99% for detection of L. pneumophila serogroup 1. The urine is positive for antigen on day 1 of illness and continues to be positive for weeks [138, 150].

The major issue with urinary bacterial antigen detection is whether the tests allow narrowing of empirical antibiotic therapy to a single specific agent. The recommended empirical antibiotic regimens will cover both of these microorganisms. Results of a small observational study suggest that therapy with a macrolide alone is adequate for hospitalized patients with CAP who test positive for L. pneumophila urinary antigen [156]. Further research is needed in this area.

In contrast, rapid antigen detection tests for influenza, which can also provide an etiologic diagnosis within 15–30 min, can lead to consideration of antiviral therapy. Test performance varies according to the test used, sample type, duration of illness, and patient age. Most show a sensitivity of 50%–70% in adults and a specificity approaching 100% [157–159]. Advantages include the high specificity, the ability of some assays to distinguish between influenza A and B, the rapidity with which the results can be obtained, the possibly reduced use of antibacterial agents, and the utility of establishing this diagnosis for epidemiologic purposes, especially in hospitalized patients who may require infection control precautions. Disadvantages include cost (approximately $30 per specimen), high rates of false-negative test results, false-positive assays with adenovirus infections, and the fact that the sensitivity is not superior to physician judgment among patients with typical symptoms during an influenza epidemic [157, 158, 160].

Direct fluorescent antibody tests are available for influenza and RSV and require ~2 h. For influenza virus, the sensitivity is better than with the point-of-care tests (85%–95%). They will detect animal subtypes such as H5N1 and, thus, may be preferred for hospitalized patients [161, 162]. For RSV, direct fluorescent antibody tests are so insensitive (sensitivity, 20%–30%) in adults that they are rarely of value [163].

Acute-phase serologic testing. The standard for diagnosis of infection with most atypical pathogens, including Chlamydomphila pneumoniae, Mycoplasma pneumoniae, and Legionella species other than L. pneumophila, relies on acute- and convalescent-phase serologic testing. Most studies use a microimmunofluorescence serologic test, but this test shows poor reproducibility [164]. Management of patients on the basis of a single acute-phase titer is unreliable [165], and initial antibiotic therapy will be completed before the earliest time point to check a convalescent-phase specimen.

PCR. A new PCR test (BD ProbeTec ET Legionella pneumophila; Becton Dickinson) that will detect all serotypes of L. pneumophila in sputum is now cleared by the FDA, but extensive published clinical experience is lacking. Most PCR reagents for other respiratory pathogens (except Mycobacterium species) are “home grown,” with requirements for use based on compliance with NCCLS criteria for analytical validity [166]. Despite the increasing use of these tests for atypical pathogens [167, 168], a 2001 review by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) of diagnostic assays for detection of C. pneumoniae indicated that, of the 18 PCR reagents, only 4 satisfied the criteria for a validated test [166]. The diagnostic criteria defined in this review are particularly important for use in prospective studies of CAP, because most prior reports used liberal criteria, which resulted in exaggerated rates. For SARS, several PCR assays have been developed, but these tests are inadequate because of high rates of false-negative assays in early stages of infection [169, 170].

ANTIBIOTIC TREATMENT

A major goal of therapy is eradication of the infecting organism, with resultant resolution of clinical disease. As such, antimicrobials are a mainstay of treatment. Appropriate drug selection is dependent on the causative pathogen and its antibiotic susceptibility. Acute pneumonia may be caused by a wide variety of pathogens (table 6). However, until more accurate and rapid diagnostic methods are available, the initial treatment for most patients will remain empirical. Recommendations for therapy (table 7) apply to most cases; however, physicians should consider specific risk factors for each patient (table 8). A syndromic approach to therapy (under the assumption that an etiology correlates with the presenting clinical manifestations) is not specific enough to reliably predict the etiology of CAP [172–174]. Even if a microbial etiology is identified, debate continues with regard to pathogen-specific treatment, because recent studies suggest coinfection by atypical pathogens (such as C. pneumoniae, Legionella species, and viruses) and more traditional bacteria [120, 175]. However, the importance of treating multiple infecting organisms has not been firmly established.

The majority of antibiotics released in the past several decades have an FDA indication for CAP, making the choice of antibiotics potentially overwhelming. Selection of antimicrobial regimens for empirical therapy is based on prediction of the most likely pathogen(s) and knowledge of local susceptibility patterns. Recommendations are generally for a class of antibiotics rather than a specific drug, unless outcome data clearly favor one drug. Because overall efficacy remains good for many classes of agents, the more potent drugs are given preference because of their benefit in decreasing the risk of selection for antibiotic resistance. Other factors for consideration of specific antimicrobials include pharmacokinetics/pharmacodynamics, compliance, safety, and cost.

Likely Pathogens in CAP

Although CAP may be caused by a myriad of pathogens, a limited number of agents are responsible for most cases. The emergence of newly recognized pathogens, such as the novel

SARS-associated coronavirus [170], continually increases the challenge for appropriate management.

Table 6 lists the most common causes of CAP, in decreasing order of frequency of occurrence and stratified for severity of illness as judged by site of care (ambulatory vs. hospitalized). S. pneumoniae is the most frequently isolated pathogen. Other bacterial causes include nontypeable Haemophilus influenzae

and Moraxella catarrhalis, generally in patients who have underlying bronchopulmonary disease, and S. aureus, especially during an influenza outbreak. Risks for infection with Enterobacteriaceae species and P. aeruginosa as etiologies for CAP are chronic oral steroid administration or severe underlying bronchopulmonary disease, alcoholism, and frequent antibiotic therapy [79, 131], whereas recent hospitalization would define cases as HCAP. Less common causes of pneumonia include, but are by no means limited to, Streptococcus pyogenes, Neisseria meningitidis, Pasteurella multocida, and H. influenzae type b.

The “atypical” organisms, so called because they are not detectable on Gram stain or cultivatable on standard bacteriologic media, include M. pneumoniae, C. pneumoniae, Legionella species, and respiratory viruses. With the exception of Legionella species, these microorganisms are common causes of pneumonia, especially among outpatients. However, these pathogens are not often identified in clinical practice because, with a few exceptions, such as L. pneumophila and influenza virus, no specific, rapid, or standardized tests for their detection exist. Although influenza remains the predominant viral cause of CAP in adults, other commonly recognized viruses include RSV [107], adenovirus, and parainfluenza virus, as well as less common viruses, including human metapneumovirus, herpes simplex virus, varicella-zoster virus, SARS-associated coronavirus, and measles virus. In a recent study of immunocompetent adult patients admitted to the hospital with CAP, 18% had evidence of a viral etiology, and, in 9%, a respiratory virus was the only pathogen identified [176]. Studies that include outpatients find viral pneumonia rates as high as 36% [167]. The frequency of other etiologic agents—for example, M. tuberculosis, Chlamydia psittaci (psittacosis), Coxiella burnetii (Q fever), Francisella tularensis (tularemia), Bordetella pertussis (whooping cough), and endemic fungi (Histoplasma capsulatum, Coccidioides immitis, Cryptococcus neoformans, and Blastomyces hominis)—is largely determined by the epidemiologic setting (table 8) but rarely exceeds 2%–3% total [113, 177]. The exception may be endemic fungi in the appropriate geographic distribution [100].

The need for specific anaerobic coverage for CAP is generally overestimated. Anaerobic bacteria cannot be detected by diagnostic techniques in current use. Anaerobic coverage is clearly indicated only in the classic aspiration pleuropulmonary syndrome in patients with a history of loss of consciousness as a result of alcohol/drug overdose or after seizures in patients with concomitant gingival disease or esophageal motility disorders. Antibiotic trials have not demonstrated a need to specifically treat these organisms in the majority of CAP cases. Small-volume aspiration at the time of intubation should be adequately handled by standard empirical severe CAP treatment [178] and by the high oxygen tension provided by mechanical ventilation.

Antibiotic Resistance Issues

Resistance to commonly used antibiotics for CAP presents another major consideration in choosing empirical therapy. Resistance patterns clearly vary by geography. Local antibiotic prescribing patterns are a likely explanation [179–181]. However, clonal spread of resistant strains is well documented. Therefore, antibiotic recommendations must be modified on the basis of local susceptibility patterns. The most reliable source is state/provincial or municipal health department regional data, if available. Local hospital antibiograms are generally the most accessible source of data but may suffer from small numbers of isolates.

Drug-resistant S. pneumoniae (DRSP). The emergence of drug-resistant pneumococcal isolates is well documented. The incidence of resistance appears to have stabilized somewhat in the past few years. Resistance to penicillin and cephalosporins may even be decreasing, whereas macrolide resistance continues to increase [179, 182]. However, the clinical relevance of DRSP for pneumonia is uncertain, and few well-controlled studies have examined the impact of in vitro resistance on clinical outcomes of CAP. Published studies are limited by small sample sizes, biases inherent in observational design, and the relative infrequency of isolates exhibiting high-level resistance [183–185]. Current levels of  $\beta$ -lactam resistance do not generally result in CAP treatment failures when appropriate agents (i.e., amoxicillin, ceftriaxone, or cefotaxime) and doses are used, even in the presence of bacteremia [112, 186]. The available data suggest that the clinically relevant level of penicillin resistance is a MIC of at least 4 mg/L [3]. One report suggested that, if cefuroxime is used to treat pneumococcal bacteremia when the organism is resistant in vitro, the outcome is worse than with other therapies [112]. Other discordant therapies, including penicillin, did not have an impact on mortality. Data exist suggesting that resistance to macrolides [187–189] and older fluoroquinolones (ciprofloxacin and levofloxacin) [180, 190, 191] results in clinical failure. To date, no failures have been reported for the newer fluoroquinolones (moxifloxacin and gemifloxacin).

Risk factors for infection with  $\beta$ -lactam-resistant S. pneumoniae include age <2 years or >65 years,  $\beta$ -lactam therapy within the previous 3 months, alcoholism, medical comorbidities, immunosuppressive illness or therapy, and exposure to a child in a day care center [112, 192–194]. Although the relative predictive value of these risk factors is unclear, recent treatment with antimicrobials is likely the most significant. Recent therapy or repeated courses of therapy with  $\beta$ -lactams, macrolides, or fluoroquinolones are risk factors for pneumococcal resistance to the same class of antibiotic [181, 193, 195, 196]. One study found that use of either a  $\beta$ -lactam or macrolide within the previous 6 months predicted an increased likelihood that, if pneumococcal bacteremia is present, the organism would be penicillin resistant [196]. Other studies have shown that repeated use of fluoroquinolones predicts an increased risk of infection with fluoroquinolone-resistant pneumococci [195, 197]. Whether this risk applies equally to all fluoroquinolones or is more of a concern for less active antipneumococcal agents (levofloxacin and ciprofloxacin) than for more active agents (moxifloxacin and gemifloxacin) is uncertain [190, 197, 198].

Recommendations for the use of highly active agents in patients at risk for infection with DRSP is, therefore, based only in part on efficacy considerations; it is also based on a desire to prevent more resistance from emerging by employing the most potent regimen possible. Although increasing the doses of certain agents (penicillins, cephalosporins, levofloxacin) may lead to adequate outcomes in the majority of cases, switching to more potent agents may lead to stabilization or even an overall decrease in resistance rates [179, 180].

CA-MRSA. Recently, an increasing incidence of pneumonia due to CA-MRSA has been observed [199, 200]. CA-MRSA appears in 2 patterns: the typical hospital-acquired strain [80] and, recently, strains that are epidemiologically, genotypically, and phenotypically distinct from hospital-acquired strains [201, 202]. Many of the former may represent HCAP, because these earlier studies did not differentiate this group from typical CAP. The latter are resistant to fewer antimicrobials than are hospital-acquired MRSA strains and often contain a novel type IV SCCmec gene. In addition, most contain the gene for Pantone-Valentine leukocidin [200, 202], a toxin associated with clinical features of necrotizing pneumonia, shock, and respiratory failure, as well as formation of abscesses and empyemas. The large majority of cases published to date have been skin infections in children. In a large study of CA-MRSA in 3 communities, 2% of CA-MRSA infections were pneumonia [203]. However, pneumonia in both adults [204] and children has been reported, often associated with preceding influenza. This strain should also be suspected in patients who present with cavitary infiltrates without risk factors for anaerobic aspiration pneumonia (gingivitis and a risk for loss of consciousness, such as seizures or alcohol abuse, or esophageal motility disorders). Diagnosis is usually straightforward, with high yields from sputum and blood cultures in this characteristic clinical scenario. CA-MRSA CAP remains rare in most communities but is expected to be an emerging problem in CAP treatment.

Empirical Antimicrobial Therapy

Outpatient treatment. The following regimens are recommended for outpatient treatment on the basis of the listed clinical risks.

15. Previously healthy and no risk factors for DRSP infection:
  - A. A macrolide (azithromycin, clarithromycin, or erythromycin) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. Doxycycline (weak recommendation; level III evidence)
16. Presence of comorbidities, such as chronic heart, lung, liver, or renal disease; diabetes mellitus; alcoholism; malignancies; asplenia; immunosuppressing conditions or use of immunosuppressing drugs; use of antimicrobials within the previous 3 months (in which case an alternative from a different class should be selected); or other risks for DRSP infection:
  - A. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (moxifloxacin, gemifloxacin, or levofloxacin [750 mg]) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (High-dose amoxicillin [e.g., 1 g 3 times daily] or amoxicillin-clavulanate [2 g 2 times daily] is preferred; alternatives include ceftriaxone, cefpodoxime, and cefuroxime [500 mg 2 times daily]; doxycycline [level II evidence] is an alternative to the macrolide.)
17. In regions with a high rate (>25%) of infection with high-level (MIC,  $\geq 16$   $\mu\text{g}/\text{mL}$ ) macrolide-resistant S. pneumoniae, consider the use of alternative agents listed above in recommendation 16 for any patient, including those without comorbidities. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

The most common pathogens identified from recent studies of mild (ambulatory) CAP were S. pneumoniae, M. pneumoniae, C. pneumoniae, and H. influenzae [177, 205]. Mycoplasma infection was most common among patients <50 years of age without significant comorbid conditions or abnormal vital signs, whereas S. pneumoniae was the most common pathogen among older patients and among those with significant underlying disease. Hemophilus infection was found in 5%—mostly in patients with comorbidities. The importance of therapy for Mycoplasma infection and Chlamydothila infection in mild CAP has been the subject of debate, because many infections are self-limiting [206, 207]. Nevertheless, studies from the 1960s of children indicate that treatment of mild M. pneumoniae CAP reduces the morbidity of pneumonia and shortens the duration of symptoms [208]. The evidence to support specific treatment of these microorganisms in adults is lacking.

Macrolides have long been commonly prescribed for treatment of outpatients with CAP in the United States, because of their activity against S. pneumoniae and the atypical pathogens. This class includes the erythromycin-type agents (including dirithromycin), clarithromycin, and the azalide azithromycin. Although the least expensive, erythromycin is not often used now, because of gastrointestinal intolerance and lack of activity against H. influenzae. Because of H. influenzae, azithromycin is preferred for outpatients with comorbidities such as COPD.

Numerous randomized clinical trials have documented the efficacy of clarithromycin and azithromycin as monotherapy for outpatient CAP, although several studies have demonstrated that clinical failure can occur with a resistant isolate. When such patients were hospitalized and treated with a  $\beta$ -lactam and a macrolide, however, all survived and generally recovered without significant complications [188, 189]. Most of these patients had risk factors for which therapy with a macrolide alone is not recommended in the present guidelines. Thus, for patients with a significant risk of DRSP infection, monotherapy with a macrolide is not recommended. Doxycycline is included as a cost-effective alternative on the basis of in vitro data indicating effectiveness equivalent to that of erythromycin for pneumococcal isolates.

The use of fluoroquinolones to treat ambulatory patients with CAP without comorbid conditions, risk factors for DRSP, or recent antimicrobial use is discouraged because of concern that widespread use may lead to the development of fluoroquinolone resistance [185]. However, the fraction of total fluoroquinolone use specifically for CAP is extremely small and unlikely to lead to increased resistance by itself. More concerning is a recent study suggesting that many outpatients given a fluoroquinolone may not have even required an antibiotic, that the dose and duration of treatment were often incorrect, and that another agent often should have been used as first-line therapy. This usage pattern may promote the rapid development of resistance to fluoroquinolones [209].

Comorbidities or recent antimicrobial therapy increase the likelihood of infection with DRSP and enteric gram-negative bacteria. For such patients, recommended empirical therapeutic options include (1) a respiratory fluoroquinolone (moxifloxacin, gemifloxacin, or levofloxacin [750 mg daily]) or (2) combination therapy with a  $\beta$ -lactam effective against S. pneumoniae plus a macrolide (doxycycline as an alternative). On the basis of present pharmacodynamic principles, high-dose amox-

icillin (amoxicillin [1 g 3 times daily] or amoxicillin-clavulanate [2 g 2 times daily]) should target >93% of S. pneumoniae and is the preferred  $\beta$ -lactam. Ceftriaxone is an alternative to high-dose amoxicillin when parenteral therapy is feasible. Selected oral cephalosporins (cefepodoxime and cefuroxime) can be used as alternatives [210], but these are less active in vitro than high-dose amoxicillin or ceftriaxone. Agents in the same class as the patient had been receiving previously should not be used to treat patients with recent antibiotic exposure.

Telithromycin is the first of the ketolide antibiotics, derived from the macrolide family, and is active against S. pneumoniae that is resistant to other antimicrobials commonly used for CAP (including penicillin, macrolides, and fluoroquinolones). Several CAP trials suggest that telithromycin is equivalent to comparators (including amoxicillin, clarithromycin, and trovafloxacin) [211–214]. There have also been recent postmarketing reports of life-threatening hepatotoxicity [215]. At present, the committee is awaiting further evaluation of the safety of this drug by the FDA before making its final recommendation.

18. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
19. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (Preferred  $\beta$ -lactam agents include cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, and ampicillin; ertapenem for selected patients; with doxycycline [level III evidence] as an alternative to the macrolide. A respiratory fluoroquinolone should be used for penicillin-allergic patients.)

The recommendations of combination treatment with a  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide or monotherapy with a fluoroquinolone were based on retrospective studies demonstrating a significant reduction in mortality compared with that associated with administration of a cephalosporin alone [216–219]. Multiple prospective randomized trials have demonstrated that either regimen results in high cure rates. The major discriminating factor between the 2 regimens is the patient's prior antibiotic exposure (within the past 3 months).

Preferred  $\beta$ -lactams are those effective against S. pneumoniae and other common, nonatypical pathogens without being overly broad spectrum. In January 2002, the Clinical Laboratory Standards Institute (formerly the NCCLS) increased the MIC breakpoints for cefotaxime and ceftriaxone for nonmeningeal S. pneumoniae infections. These new breakpoints acknowledge that nonmeningeal infections caused by strains formerly considered to be intermediately susceptible, or even resistant, can be treated successfully with usual doses of these  $\beta$ -lactams [112, 186, 220].

Two randomized, double-blind studies showed ertapenem to be equivalent to ceftriaxone [221, 222]. It also has excellent activity against anaerobic organisms, DRSP, and most Enterobacteriaceae species (including extended-spectrum  $\beta$ -lactamase producers, but not P. aeruginosa). Ertapenem may be useful in treating patients with risks for infection with these pathogens and for patients who have recently received antibiotic therapy. However, clinical experience with this agent is limited. Other "antipneumococcal, antipseudomonal"  $\beta$ -lactam agents are appropriate when resistant pathogens, such as Pseudomonas, are likely to be present. Doxycycline can be used as an alternative to a macrolide on the basis of scant data for treatment of Legionella infections [171, 223, 224].

Two randomized, double-blind studies of adults hospitalized for CAP have demonstrated that parenteral azithromycin alone was as effective, with improved tolerability, as intravenous cefuroxime, with or without intravenous erythromycin [225, 226]. In another study, mortality and readmission rates were similar, but the mean LOS was shorter among patients receiving azithromycin alone than among those receiving other guideline-recommended therapy [227]. None of the 10 patients with erythromycin-resistant S. pneumoniae infections died or was transferred to the ICU, including 6 who received azithromycin alone. Another study showed that those receiving a macrolide alone had the lowest 30-day mortality but were the least ill [219]. Such patients were younger and were more likely to be in lower-risk groups.

These studies suggest that therapy with azithromycin alone can be considered for carefully selected patients with CAP with nonsevere disease (patients admitted primarily for reasons other than CAP) and no risk factors for infection with DRSP or gram-negative pathogens. However, the emergence of high rates of macrolide resistance in many areas of the country suggests that this therapy cannot be routinely recommended. Initial therapy should be given intravenously for most admitted patients, but some without risk factors for severe pneumonia could receive oral therapy, especially with highly bioavailable agents such as fluoroquinolones. When an intravenous  $\beta$ -lactam is combined with coverage for atypical pathogens, oral therapy with a macrolide or doxycycline is appropriate for selected patients without severe pneumonia risk factors [228].

Inpatient, ICU treatment. The following regimen is the minimal recommended treatment for patients admitted to the ICU.

20. A  $\beta$ -lactam (cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, or ampicillin-sulbactam) plus either azithromycin (level II evidence) or a fluoroquinolone (level I evidence) (strong recommendation) (For penicillin-allergic patients, a respiratory fluoroquinolone and aztreonam are recommended.)

A single randomized controlled trial of treatment for severe CAP is available. Patients with shock were excluded; however, among the patients with mechanical ventilation, treatment with a fluoroquinolone alone resulted in a trend toward inferior outcome [229]. Because septic shock and mechanical ventilation are the clearest reasons for ICU admission, the majority of ICU patients would still require combination therapy. ICU patients are routinely excluded from other trials; therefore, recommendations are extrapolated from nonsevere cases, in conjunction with case series and retrospective analyses of cohorts with severe CAP.

For all patients admitted to the ICU, coverage for S. pneumoniae and Legionella species should be ensured [78, 230] by using a potent antipneumococcal  $\beta$ -lactam and either a macrolide or a fluoroquinolone. Therapy with a respiratory fluoroquinolone alone is not established for severe CAP [229], and, if the patient has concomitant pneumococcal meningitis, the efficacy of fluoroquinolone monotherapy is uncertain. In addition, 2 prospective observational studies [231, 232] and 3 retrospective analyses [233–235] have found that combination therapy for bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia is associated with lower mortality than monotherapy. The mechanism of this benefit is unclear but was principally found in the patients with the most severe illness and has not been demonstrated in nonbacteremic pneumococcal CAP studies. Therefore, combination empirical therapy is recommended for at least 48 h or until results of diagnostic tests are known.

In critically ill patients with CAP, a large number of microorganisms other than S. pneumoniae and Legionella species must be considered. A review of 9 studies that included 890 patients with CAP who were admitted to the ICU demonstrates that the most common pathogens in the ICU population were (in descending order of frequency) S. pneumoniae, Legionella species, H. influenzae, Enterobacteriaceae species, S. aureus, and Pseudomonas species [171]. The atypical pathogens responsible for severe CAP may vary over time but can account collectively for  $\geq 20\%$  of severe pneumonia episodes. The dominant atypical pathogen in severe CAP is Legionella [230], but some diagnostic bias probably accounts for this finding [78].

The recommended standard empirical regimen should routinely cover the 3 most common pathogens that cause severe CAP, all of the atypical pathogens, and most of the relevant Enterobacteriaceae species. Treatment of MRSA or P. aeruginosa infection is the main reason to modify the standard empirical regimen. The following are additions or modifications to the basic empirical regimen recommended above if these pathogens are suspected.

21. For Pseudomonas infection, use an antipneumococcal, antipseudomonal  $\beta$ -lactam (piperacillin-tazobactam, ceftepime, imipenem, or meropenem) plus either ciprofloxacin or levofloxacin (750-mg dose)
or
the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and azithromycin

or

the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and an antipneumococcal fluoroquinolone. (For penicillin-allergic patients, substitute aztreonam for the above  $\beta$ -lactam.)

(Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Pseudomonal CAP requires combination treatment to prevent inappropriate initial therapy, just as Pseudomonas nosocomial pneumonia does [131]. Once susceptibilities are known, treatment can be adjusted accordingly. Alternative regimens are provided for patients who may have recently received an oral fluoroquinolone, in whom the aminoglycoside-containing regimen would be preferred. A consistent Gram stain of tracheal aspirate, sputum, or blood is the best indication for Pseudomonas coverage. Other, easier-to-treat gram-negative microorganisms may ultimately be proven to be the causative pathogen, but empirical coverage of Pseudomonas species until culture results are known is least likely to be associated with inappropriate therapy. Other clinical risk factors for infection with Pseudomonas species include structural lung diseases, such as bronchiectasis, or repeated exacerbations of severe COPD leading to frequent steroid and/or antibiotic use, as well as prior antibiotic therapy [131]. These patients do not necessarily require ICU admission for CAP [236], so Pseudomonas infection remains a concern for them even if they are only hospitalized on a general ward. The major risk factor for infection with other serious gram-negative pathogens, such as Klebsiella pneumoniae or Acinetobacter species, is chronic alcoholism.

22. For CA-MRSA infection, add vancomycin or linezolid.
(Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

The best indicator of S. aureus infection is the presence of gram-positive cocci in clusters in a tracheal aspirate or in an adequate sputum sample. The same findings on preliminary results of blood cultures are not as reliable, because of the significant risk of contamination [95]. Clinical risk factors for S. aureus CAP include end-stage renal disease, injection drug abuse, prior influenza, and prior antibiotic therapy (especially with fluoroquinolones [237]).

For methicillin-sensitive S. aureus, the empirical combination therapy recommended above, which includes a  $\beta$ -lactam and sometimes a respiratory fluoroquinolone, should be adequate until susceptibility results are available and specific therapy with a penicillinase-resistant semisynthetic penicillin or first-generation cephalosporin can be initiated. Both also offer additional coverage for DRSP. Neither linezolid [241] nor vancomycin [238] is an optimal drug for methicillin-sensitive S. aureus.

Although methicillin-resistant strains of S. aureus are still the minority, the excess mortality associated with inappropriate antibiotic therapy [80] would suggest that empirical coverage should be considered when CA-MRSA is a concern. The most effective therapy has yet to be defined. The majority of CA-MRSA strains are more susceptible in vitro to non- $\beta$ -lactam antimicrobials, including trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole (TMP-SMX) and fluoroquinolones, than are hospital-acquired strains. Previous experience with TMP-SMX in other types of severe infections (endocarditis and septic thrombophlebitis) suggests that TMP-SMX is inferior to vancomycin [239]. Further experience and study of the adequacy of TMP-SMX for CA-MRSA CAP is clearly needed. Vancomycin has never been specifically studied for CAP, and linezolid has been found to be better than ceftriaxone for bacteremic S. pneumoniae in a nonblinded study [240] and superior to vancomycin in retrospective analysis of studies involving nosocomial MRSA pneumonia [241]. Newer agents for MRSA have recently become available, and others are anticipated. Of the presently available agents, daptomycin should not be used for CAP, and no data on pneumonia are available for tigecycline.

A concern with CA-MRSA is necrotizing pneumonia associated with production of Panton-Valentine leukocidin and other toxins. Vancomycin clearly does not decrease toxin production, and the effect of TMP-SMX and fluoroquinolones on toxin production is unclear. Addition of clindamycin or use of linezolid, both of which have been shown to affect toxin production in a laboratory setting [242], may warrant their consideration for treatment of these necrotizing pneumonias [204]. Unfortunately, the emergence of resistance during therapy with clindamycin has been reported (especially in erythromycin-resistant strains), and vancomycin would still be needed for bacterial killing.

Pathogens Suspected on the Basis of Epidemiologic Considerations

Clinicians should be aware of epidemiologic conditions and/or risk factors that may suggest that alternative or specific additional antibiotics should be considered. These conditions and specific pathogens, with preferred treatment, are listed in tables 8 and 9.

Pathogen-Directed Therapy

23. Once the etiology of CAP has been identified on the basis of reliable microbiological methods, antimicrobial therapy should be directed at that pathogen. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Treatment options may be simplified (table 9) if the etiologic agent is established or strongly suspected. Diagnostic procedures that identify a specific etiology within 24–72 h can still be useful for guiding continued therapy. This information is often available at the time of consideration for a switch from parenteral to oral therapy and may be used to direct specific oral antimicrobial choices. If, for example, an appropriate culture reveals penicillin-susceptible S. pneumoniae, a narrow-spectrum agent (such as penicillin or amoxicillin) may be used. This will, hopefully, reduce the selective pressure for resistance.

The major issue with pathogen-specific therapy is management of bacteremic S. pneumoniae CAP. The implications of the observational finding that dual therapy was associated with reduced mortality in bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia [231–235] are uncertain. One explanation for the reduced mortality may be the presence of undiagnosed coinfection with an atypical pathogen; although reported to occur in 18%–38% of CAP cases in some studies [73, 175], much lower rates of undiagnosed coinfection are found in general [171] and specifically in severe cases [78]. An alternative explanation is the immunomodulatory effects of macrolides [244, 245]. It is important to note that these studies evaluated the effects of initial empirical therapy before the results of blood cultures were known and did not examine effects of pathogen-specific therapy after the results of blood cultures were available. The benefit of combination therapy was also most pronounced in the more severely ill patients [233, 234]. Therefore, discontinuation of combination therapy after results of cultures are known is most likely safe in non-ICU patients.

24. Early treatment (within 48 h of onset of symptoms) with oseltamivir or zanamivir is recommended for influenza A. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
25. Use of oseltamivir and zanamivir is not recommended for patients with uncomplicated influenza with symptoms for >48 h (level I evidence), but these drugs may be used to reduce viral shedding in hospitalized patients or for influenza pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Studies that demonstrate that treatment of influenza is effective only if instituted within 48 h of the onset of symptoms have been performed only in uncomplicated cases [246–249]. The impact of such treatment on patients who are hospitalized with influenza pneumonia or a bacterial pneumonia complicating influenza is unclear. In hospitalized adults with influenza, a minority of whom had radiographically documented pneumonia, no obvious benefit was found in one retrospective study of amantadine treatment [250]. Treatment of antigen- or culture-positive patients with influenza with antivirals in addition to antibiotics is warranted, even if the radiographic infiltrate is caused by a subsequent bacterial superinfection. Because of the longer period of persistent positivity after infection, the appropriate treatment for patients diagnosed with only 1 of the rapid diagnostic tests is unclear. Because such patients often have recoverable virus (median duration of 4 days) after hospitalization, antiviral treatment seems reasonable from an infection-control standpoint alone.

Because of its broad influenza spectrum, low risk of resistance emergence, and lack of bronchospasm risk, oseltamivir is an appropriate choice for hospitalized patients. The neuraminidase inhibitors are effective against both influenza A and B viruses, whereas the M2 inhibitors, amantadine, and rimantadine are active only against influenza A [251]. In addition, viruses recently circulating in the United States and Canada are often resistant to the M2 inhibitors on the basis of antiviral testing [252, 253]. Therefore, neither amantadine nor rimantadine should be used for treatment or chemoprophylaxis of influenza A in the United States until susceptibility to these antiviral medications has been reestablished among circulating influenza A viruses [249].

Early treatment of influenza in ambulatory adults with inhaled zanamivir or oral oseltamivir appears to reduce the likelihood of lower respiratory tract complications [254–256]. The use of influenza antiviral medications appears to reduce the likelihood of respiratory tract complications, as reflected by reduced usage rates of antibacterial agents in ambulatory patients with influenza. Although clearly important in outpatient pneumonia, this experience may also apply to patients hospitalized primarily for influenza.

Parenteral acyclovir is indicated for treatment of varicella-zoster virus infection [257] or herpes simplex virus pneumonia. No antiviral treatment of proven value is available for other viral pneumonias—that is, parainfluenza virus, RSV, adenovirus, metapneumovirus, the SARS agent, or hantavirus. For all patients with viral pneumonias, a high clinical suspicion of bacterial superinfection should be maintained.

Pandemic influenza.

26. Patients with an illness compatible with influenza and with known exposure to poultry in areas with previous H5N1 infection should be tested for H5N1 infection. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
27. In patients with suspected H5N1 infection, droplet precautions and careful routine infection control measures should be used until an H5N1 infection is ruled out. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
28. Patients with suspected H5N1 infection should be treated with oseltamivir (level II evidence) and antibacterial agents targeting S. pneumoniae and S. aureus, the most common causes of secondary bacterial pneumonia in patients with influenza (level III evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)

Recent human infections caused by avian influenza A (H5N1) in Vietnam, Thailand, Cambodia, China, Indonesia, Egypt, and Turkey raise the possibility of a pandemic in the near future. The severity of H5N1 infection in humans distinguishes it from that caused by routine seasonal influenza. Respiratory failure requiring hospitalization and intensive care has been seen in the majority of the >140 recognized cases, and mortality is ~50% [258, 259]. If a pandemic occurs, deaths will result from primary influenza pneumonia with or without secondary bacterial pneumonia. This section highlights issues for consideration, recognizing that treatment recommendations will likely change as the pandemic progresses. More specific guidance can be found on the IDSA, ATS, CDC, and WHO Web sites as the key features of the pandemic become clearer. Additional guidance is available at <http://www.pandemicflu.gov>.

The WHO has delineated 6 phases of an influenza pandemic, defined by increasing levels of risk and public health response [260]. During the current pandemic alert phase (phase 3: cases of novel influenza infection without sustained person-to-person transmission), testing should be focused on confirming all suspected cases in areas where H5N1 infection has been documented in poultry and on detecting the arrival of the pandemic strain in unaffected countries. Early clinical features of H5N1 infection include persistent fever, cough, and respiratory difficulty progressing over 3–5 days, as well as lymphopenia on admission to the hospital [258, 259, 261]. Exposure to sick and dying poultry in an area with known or suspected H5N1 activity has been reported by most patients, although the recognition of poultry outbreaks has sometimes followed the recognition of human cases [261].

Rapid bedside tests to detect influenza A have been used as screening tools for avian influenza in some settings. Throat swabs tested by RT-PCR have been the most sensitive for confirming H5N1 infection to date, but nasopharyngeal swabs, washes, and aspirates; BAL fluid; lung and other tissues; and stool have yielded positive results by RT-PCR and viral culture with varying sensitivity. Convalescent-phase serum can be tested by microneutralization for antibodies to H5 antigen in a small number of international reference laboratories. Specimens from suspected cases of H5N1 infection should be sent to public health laboratories with appropriate biocontainment facilities; the case should be discussed with health department officials to arrange the transfer of specimens and to initiate an epidemiologic evaluation. During later phases of an ongoing pandemic, testing may be necessary for many more patients, so that appropriate treatment and infection control decisions can be made, and to assist in defining the extent of the pandemic. Recommendations for such testing will evolve on the basis of the features of the pandemic, and guidance should be sought from the CDC and WHO Web sites (<http://www.cdc.gov> and <http://www.who.int>).

Patients with confirmed or suspected H5N1 influenza should be treated with oseltamivir. Most H5N1 isolates since 2004 have been susceptible to the neuraminidase inhibitors oseltamivir and zanamivir and resistant to the adamantanes (amantidine and rimantidine) [262, 263]. The current recommendation is for a 5-day course of treatment at the standard dosage of 75 mg 2 times daily. In addition, droplet precautions should be used for patients with suspected H5N1 influenza, and they should be placed in respiratory isolation until that etiology is ruled out. Health care personnel should wear N-95 (or higher) respirators during medical procedures that have a high likelihood of generating infectious respiratory aerosols.

Bacterial superinfections, particularly pneumonia, are important complications of influenza pneumonia. The bacterial etiologies of CAP after influenza infection have included S. pneumoniae, S. aureus, H. influenzae, and group A streptococci. Legionella, Chlamydia, and Mycoplasma species are not important causes of secondary bacterial pneumonia after influenza. Appropriate agents would therefore include cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, and respiratory fluoroquinolones. Treatment with vancomycin, linezolid, or other agents directed against CA-MRSA should be limited to patients with confirmed infection or a compatible clinical presentation (shock and necrotizing pneumonia). Because shortages of antibacterials and antivirals are anticipated during a pandemic, the appropriate use of diagnostic tests will be even more important to help target antibacterial therapy whenever possible, especially for patients admitted to the hospital.

Time to First Antibiotic Dose

29. For patients admitted through the ED, the first antibiotic dose should be administered while still in the ED. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Time to first antibiotic dose for CAP has recently received significant attention from a quality-of-care perspective. This emphasis is based on 2 retrospective studies of Medicare beneficiaries that demonstrated statistically significantly lower mortality among patients who received early antibiotic therapy [109, 264]. The initial study suggested a breakpoint of 8 h [264], whereas the subsequent analysis found that 4 h was associated with lower mortality [109]. Studies that document the time to first antibiotic dose do not consistently demonstrate this difference, although none had as large a patient population. Most importantly, prospective trials of care by protocol have not demonstrated a survival benefit to increasing the percentage of patients with CAP who receive antibiotics within the first 4–8 h [22, 65]. Early antibiotic administration does not appear to shorten the time to clinical stability, either [265], although time of first dose does appear to correlate with LOS [266, 267]. A problem of internal consistency is also present, because, in both studies [109, 264], patients who received antibiotics in the first 2 h after presentation actually did worse than those who received antibiotics 2–4 h after presentation. For these and other reasons, the committee did not feel that a specific time window for delivery of the first antibiotic dose should be recommended. However, the committee does feel that therapy should be administered as soon as possible after the diagnosis is considered likely.

Conversely, a delay in antibiotic therapy has adverse consequences in many infections. For critically ill, hemodynamically unstable patients, early antibiotic therapy should be encouraged, although no prospective data support this recommendation. Delay in beginning antibiotic treatment during the transition from the ED is not uncommon. Especially with the frequent use of once-daily antibiotics for CAP, timing and communication issues may result in patients not receiving antibiotics for >8 h after hospital admission. The committee felt that the best and most practical resolution to this issue was that the initial dose be given in the ED [22].

Data from the Medicare database indicated that antibiotic treatment before hospital admission was also associated with lower mortality [109]. Given that there are even more concerns regarding timing of the first dose of antibiotic when the patient is directly admitted to a busy inpatient unit, provision of the first dose in the physician's office may be best if the recommended oral or intramuscular antibiotics are available in the office.

Switch from Intravenous to Oral Therapy

30. Patients should be switched from intravenous to oral therapy when they are hemodynamically stable and improving clinically, are able to ingest medications, and have a normally functioning gastrointestinal tract. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
31. Patients should be discharged as soon as they are clinically stable, have no other active medical problems, and have a safe environment for continued care. Inpatient observation while receiving oral therapy is not necessary. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

With the use of a potent, highly bioavailable antibiotic, the ability to eat and drink is the major consideration for switching from intravenous to oral antibiotic therapy for non-ICU patients. Initially, Ramirez et al. [268] defined a set of criteria for an early switch from intravenous to oral therapy (table 10). In general, as many as two-thirds of all patients have clinical improvement and meet criteria for a therapy switch in the first 3 days, and most non-ICU patients meet these criteria by day 7.

Subsequent studies have suggested that even more liberal criteria are adequate for the switch to oral therapy. An alternative approach is to change from intravenous to oral therapy at a predetermined time, regardless of the clinical response [269]. One study population with nonsevere illness was randomized to receive either oral therapy alone or intravenous therapy, with the switch occurring after 72 h without fever. The study population with severe illness was randomized to receive either intravenous therapy with a switch to oral therapy after 2 days or a full 10-day course of intravenous antibiotics. Time to resolution of symptoms for the patients with nonsevere illness was similar with either regimen. Among patients with more severe illness, the rapid switch to oral therapy had the same rate of treatment failure and the same time to resolution of symptoms as prolonged intravenous therapy. The rapid-switch group required fewer inpatient days (6 vs. 11), although this was likely partially a result of the protocol, but the patients also had fewer adverse events.

The need to keep patients in the hospital once clinical stability is achieved has been questioned, even though physicians commonly choose to observe patients receiving oral therapy for  $\geq 1$  day. Even in the presence of pneumococcal bacteremia, a switch to oral therapy can be safely done once clinical stability is achieved and prolonged intravenous therapy is not needed [270]. Such patients generally take longer (approximately half a day) to become clinically stable than do nonbacteremic patients. The benefits of in-hospital observation after a switch to oral therapy are limited and add to the cost of care [32].

Discharge should be considered when the patient is a candidate for oral therapy and when there is no need to treat any comorbid illness, no need for further diagnostic testing, and no unmet social needs [32, 271, 272]. Although it is clear that clinically stable patients can be safely switched to oral therapy and discharged, the need to wait for all of the features of clinical stability to be present before a patient is discharged is uncertain. For example, not all investigators have found it necessary to have the white blood cell count improve. Using the definition for clinical stability in table 10, Halm et al. [273] found that 19.1% of 680 patients were discharged from the hospital with  $\geq 1$  instability. Death or readmission occurred in 10.5% of patients with no instability on discharge, in 13.7% of patients with 1 instability, and in 46.2% with  $\geq 2$  instabilities. In general, patients in higher PSI classes take longer to reach clinical stability than do patients in lower risk classes [274]. This finding may reflect the fact that elderly patients with multiple comorbidities often recover more slowly. Arrangements for appropriate follow-up care, including rehabilitation, should therefore be initiated early for these patients.

In general, when switching to oral antibiotics, either the same agent as the intravenous antibiotic or the same drug class should be used. Switching to a different class of agents simply because of its high bioavailability (such as a fluoroquinolone) is probably not necessary for a responding patient. For patients who received intravenous  $\beta$ -lactam–macrolide combination therapy, a switch to a macrolide alone appears to be safe for those who do not have DRSP or gram-negative enteric pathogens isolated [275].

Duration of Antibiotic Therapy

32. Patients with CAP should be treated for a minimum of 5 days (level I evidence), should be afebrile for 48–72 h, and should have no more than 1 CAP-associated sign of clinical instability (table 10) before discontinuation of therapy (level II evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)
33. A longer duration of therapy may be needed if initial therapy was not active against the identified pathogen or if it was complicated by extrapulmonary infection, such as meningitis or endocarditis. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)

Most patients with CAP have been treated for 7–10 days or longer, but few well-controlled studies have evaluated the optimal duration of therapy for patients with CAP, managed in or out of the hospital. Available data on short-course treatment do not suggest any difference in outcome with appropriate therapy in either inpatients or outpatients [276]. Duration is also difficult to define in a uniform fashion, because some antibiotics (such as azithromycin) are administered for a short time yet have a long half-life at respiratory sites of infection.

In trials of antibiotic therapy for CAP, azithromycin has been used for 3–5 days as oral therapy for outpatients, with some reports of single-dose therapy for patients with atypical pathogen infections [276–278]. Results with azithromycin should not be extrapolated to other drugs with significantly shorter half-lives. The ketolide telithromycin has been used for 5–7 days to treat outpatients, including some with pneumococcal bacteremia or PSI classes  $\geq$ III [211]. In a recent study, high-dose (750 mg) levofloxacin therapy for 5 days was equally successful and resulted in more afebrile patients by day 3 than did the 500-mg dose for 7–10 days (49.1% vs. 38.5%;  $P = .03$ ) [276]. On the basis of these studies, 5 days appears to be the minimal overall duration of therapy documented to be effective in usual forms of CAP.

As is discussed above, most patients become clinically stable within 3–7 days, so longer durations of therapy are rarely necessary. Patients with persistent clinical instability are often readmitted to the hospital and may not be candidates for short-duration therapy. Short-duration therapy may be suboptimal for patients with bacteremic S. aureus pneumonia (because of the risk of associated endocarditis and deep-seated infection), for those with meningitis or endocarditis complicating pneumonia, and for those infected with other, less common pathogens (e.g., Burkholderia pseudomallei or endemic fungi). An 8-day course of therapy for nosocomial P. aeruginosa pneumonia led to relapse more commonly than did a 15-day course of therapy [279]. Whether the same results would be applicable to CAP cases is unclear, but the presence of cavities or other signs of tissue necrosis may warrant prolonged treatment. Studies of duration of therapy have focused on patients receiving empirical treatment, and reliable data defining treatment duration after an initially ineffective regimen are lacking.

OTHER TREATMENT CONSIDERATIONS

34. Patients with CAP who have persistent septic shock despite adequate fluid resuscitation should be considered for treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated within 24 h of admission. (Weak recommendation, level II evidence.)

Drotrecogin alfa activated is the first immunomodulatory therapy approved for severe sepsis. In the United States, the FDA recommended the use of drotrecogin alfa activated for patients at high risk of death. The high-risk criterion suggested by the FDA was an Acute Physiologic and Chronic Health Assessment (APACHE) II score  $\geq$ 25, based on a subgroup analysis of the overall study. However, the survival advantage (absolute risk reduction, 9.8%) of drotrecogin alfa activated treatment of patients in the CAP subgroup was equivalent to that in the subgroup with APACHE II scores  $\geq$ 25 [92, 280, 281]. The greatest reduction in the mortality rate was for S. pneumoniae infection (relative risk, 0.56; 95% CI, 0.35–0.88) [282]. Subsequent data have suggested that the benefit appears to be greatest when the treatment is given as early in the hospital admission as possible. In the subgroup with severe CAP caused by a pathogen other than S. pneumoniae and treated with appropriate antibiotics, there was no evidence that drotrecogin alfa activated affected mortality.

Although the benefit of drotrecogin alfa activated is clearly greatest for patients with CAP who have high APACHE II scores, this criterion alone may not be adequate to select appropriate patients. An APACHE II score  $\geq$ 25 was selected by a subgroup analysis of the entire study cohort and may not be similarly calibrated in a CAP-only cohort. Two-organ failure, the criterion suggested for drotrecogin alfa activated use by the European regulatory agency, did not influence the mortality benefit for patients with CAP [92].

Therefore, in addition to patients with septic shock, other patients with severe CAP could be considered for treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated. Those with sepsis-induced leukopenia are at extremely high risk of death and ARDS and are, therefore, potential candidates. Conversely, the benefit of drotrecogin alfa activated is not as clear when respiratory failure is caused more by exacerbation of underlying lung disease rather than by the pneumonia itself. Other minor criteria for severe CAP proposed above are similar to organ failure criteria used in many sepsis trials. Consideration of treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated is appropriate, but the strength of the recommendation is only level II.

35. Hypotensive, fluid-resuscitated patients with severe CAP should be screened for occult adrenal insufficiency. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

A large, multicenter trial has suggested that stress-dose (200–300 mg of hydrocortisone per day or equivalent) steroid treatment improves outcomes of vasopressor-dependent patients with septic shock who do not have an appropriate cortisol response to stimulation [283]. Once again, patients with CAP made up a significant fraction of patients entered into the trial. In addition, 3 small pilot studies have suggested that there is a benefit to corticosteroid therapy even for patients with severe CAP who are not in shock [284–286]. The small sample size and baseline differences between groups compromise the conclusions. Although the criteria for steroid replacement therapy remain controversial, the frequency of intermittent steroid treatment in patients at risk for severe CAP, such as those with severe COPD, suggests that screening of patients with severe CAP is appropriate with replacement if inadequate cortisol levels are documented. If corticosteroids are used, close attention to tight glucose control is required [287].

36. Patients with hypoxemia or respiratory distress should receive a cautious trial of noninvasive ventilation (NIV) unless they require immediate intubation because of severe hypoxemia (arterial oxygen pressure/fraction of inspired oxygen [ $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$ ] ratio,  $<150$ ) and bilateral alveolar infiltrates. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)

Patients who do not require immediate intubation but who have either hypoxemia or respiratory distress should receive a trial of NIV [114, 288, 289]. Patients with underlying COPD are most likely to benefit. Patients with CAP who were randomized to receive NIV had a  $>25\%$  absolute risk reduction for the need for intubation [114]. The use of NIV may also improve intermediate-term mortality. Inability to expectorate may limit the use of NIV [290], but intermittent application of NIV may allow for its use in patients with productive cough unless sputum production is excessive. Prompt recognition of a failed NIV trial is critically important, because most studies demonstrate worse outcomes for patients who require intubation after a prolonged NIV trial [288, 290]. Within the first 1–2 h of NIV, failure to improve respiratory rate and oxygenation [114, 289, 290] or failure to decrease carbon dioxide partial pressure ( $\text{pCO}_2$ ) in patients with initial hypercarbia [114] predicts NIV failure and warrants prompt intubation. NIV provides no benefit for patients with ARDS [289], which may be nearly indistinguishable from CAP among patients with bilateral alveolar infiltrates. Patients with CAP who have severe hypoxemia ( $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$  ratio,  $<150$ ) are also poor candidates for NIV [290].

37. Low-tidal-volume ventilation (6  $\text{cm}^3/\text{kg}$  of ideal body weight) should be used for patients undergoing ventilation who have diffuse bilateral pneumonia or ARDS. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Distinguishing between diffuse bilateral pneumonia and ARDS is difficult, but it may not be an important distinction. Results of the ARDSNet trial suggest that the use of low-tidal-volume ventilation provides a survival advantage [291]. Pneumonia, principally CAP, was the most common cause of ARDS in that trial, and the benefit of the low-tidal-volume ventilatory strategy appeared to be equivalent in the population with pneumonia compared with the entire cohort. The absolute risk reduction for mortality in the pneumonia cohort was 11%, indicating that, in order to avoid 1 death, 9 patients must be treated [292].

Other aspects of the management of severe sepsis and septic shock in patients with CAP do not appear to be significantly different from those for patients with other sources of infection. Recommendations for these aspects of care are reviewed elsewhere [293].

MANAGEMENT OF NONRESPONDING PNEUMONIA

Because of the limitations of diagnostic testing, the majority of CAP is still treated empirically. Critical to empirical therapy is an understanding of the management of patients who do not follow the normal response pattern.

Although difficult to define, nonresponse is not uncommon. Overall, 6%–15% of hospitalized patients with CAP do not respond to the initial antibiotic treatment [81, 84, 101, 294]. The incidence of treatment failure among patients with CAP who are not hospitalized is not well known, because population-based studies are required. Almirall et al. [295] described an overall hospitalization rate of 60% in a population-based study, but the rate of failure among the 30% of patients who initially presented to their primary care physician was not provided. The frequency of prior antibiotic therapy among Medicare patients admitted to the hospital with CAP is 24%–40% [95, 109], but the percentage who received prior antibiotic therapy for the acute episode of pneumonia itself versus other indications is unclear. For patients initially admitted to the ICU, the risk of failure to respond is already high; as many as 40% will experience deterioration even after initial stabilization in the ICU [101].

Mortality among nonresponding patients is increased several-fold in comparison with that among responding patients [296]. Overall mortality rates as high as 49% have been reported for an entire population of nonresponding hospitalized patients with CAP [76, 84, 101], and the mortality rate reported in one study of early failure was 27% [81]. APACHE II score was not the only factor independently associated with mortality in the nonresponding group, suggesting that the excess mortality may be due to factors other than severity of illness at presentation [101].

Definition and classification.

38. The use of a systematic classification of possible causes of failure to respond, based on time of onset and type of failure (table 11), is recommended. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The term “nonresponding pneumonia” is used to define a situation in which an inadequate clinical response is present despite antibiotic treatment. Lack of a clear-cut and validated definition in the literature makes nonresponse difficult to study. Lack of response also varies according to the site of treatment. Lack of response in outpatients is very different from that in patients admitted to the ICU. The time of evaluation is also important. Persistent fever after the first day of treatment differs significantly from fever persisting (or recurring) at day 7 of treatment.

Table 11 provides a construct for evaluating nonresponse to antibiotic treatment of CAP, based on several studies addressing this issue [76, 81, 84, 101]. Two patterns of unacceptable response are seen in hospitalized patients [101]. The first is progressive pneumonia or actual clinical deterioration, with acute respiratory failure requiring ventilatory support and/or septic shock, usually occurring within the first 72 h of hospital admission. As is noted above, as many as 45% of patients with CAP who ultimately require ICU admission are initially admitted to a non-ICU setting and are transferred because of deterioration [75]. Deterioration and development of respiratory failure or hypotension >72 h after initial treatment is often related to intercurrent complications, deterioration in underlying disease, or development of nosocomial superinfection.

The second pattern is that of persistent or nonresponding pneumonia. Nonresponse can be defined as absence of or delay in achieving clinical stability, using the criteria in table 10 [274, 294]. When these criteria were used, the median time to achieve clinical stability was 3 days for all patients, but a quarter of patients took  $\geq 6$  days to meet all of these criteria for stability [274]. Stricter definitions for each of the criteria and higher PSI scores were associated with longer times to achieve clinical stability. Conversely, subsequent transfer to the ICU after achieving this degree of clinical stability occurred in <1% of cases. A separate multicenter trial demonstrated similar findings [297]. Given these results, concern regarding nonresponse should be tempered before 72 h of therapy. Antibiotic changes during this period should be considered only for patients with deterioration or in whom new culture data or epidemiologic clues suggest alternative etiologies.

Finally, nonresolving or slow-resolving pneumonia has been used to refer to the conditions of patients who present with persistence of pulmonary infiltrates >30 days after initial pneumonia-like syndrome [298]. As many as 20% of these patients will be found to have diseases other than CAP when carefully evaluated [295].

Two studies have evaluated the risk factors for a lack of response in multivariate analyses [81, 84], including those amenable to medical intervention. Use of fluoroquinolones was independently associated with a better response in one study [84], whereas discordant antimicrobial therapy was associated with early failure [81]. In table 12, the different risk and protective factors and their respective odds ratios are summarized.

Specific causes that may be responsible for a lack of response in CAP have been classified by Arancibia et al. [101] (table 11). This classification may be useful for clinicians as a systematic approach to diagnose the potential causes of nonresponse in CAP. Although in the original study only 8 (16%) of 49 cases could not be classified [101], a subsequent prospective multicenter trial found that the cause of failure could not be determined in 44% [84].

Management of nonresponding CAP. Nonresponse to antibiotics in CAP will generally result in  $\geq 1$  of 3 clinical responses: (1) transfer of the patient to a higher level of care, (2)

further diagnostic testing, and (3) escalation or change in treatment. Issues regarding hospital admission and ICU transfer are discussed above.

An inadequate host response, rather than inappropriate antibiotic therapy or unexpected microorganisms, is the most common cause of apparent antibiotic failure when guideline-recommended therapy is used. Decisions regarding further diagnostic testing and antibiotic change/escalation are intimately intertwined and need to be discussed in tandem.

Information regarding the utility of extensive microbiological testing in cases of nonresponding CAP is mainly retrospective and therefore affected by selection bias. A systematic diagnostic approach, which included invasive, noninvasive, and imaging procedures, in a series of nonresponding patients with CAP obtained a specific diagnosis in 73% [101]. In a different study, mortality among patients with microbiologically guided versus empirical antibiotic changes was not improved (mortality rate, 67% vs. 64%, respectively) [76]. However, no antibiotic changes were based solely on sputum smears, suggesting that invasive cultures or nonculture methods may be needed.

Mismatch between the susceptibility of a common causative organism, infection with a pathogen not covered by the usual empirical regimen, and nosocomial superinfection pneumonia are major causes of apparent antibiotic failure. Therefore, the first response to nonresponse or deterioration is to reevaluate the initial microbiological results. Culture or sensitivity data not available at admission may now make the cause of clinical failure obvious. In addition, a further history of any risk factors for infection with unusual microorganisms (table 8) should be taken if not done previously. Viruses are relatively neglected as a cause of infection in adults but may account for 10%–20% of cases [299]. Other family members or coworkers may have developed viral symptoms in the interval since the patient was admitted, increasing suspicion of this cause.

The evaluation of nonresponse is severely hampered if a microbiological diagnosis was not made on initial presentation. If cultures were not obtained, clinical decisions are much more difficult than if the adequate cultures were obtained but negative. Risk factors for nonresponse or deterioration (table 12), therefore, figure prominently in the list of situations in which more aggressive initial diagnostic testing is warranted (table 5).

Blood cultures should be repeated for deterioration or progressive pneumonia. Deteriorating patients have many of the risk factors for bacteremia, and blood cultures are still high yield even in the face of prior antibiotic therapy [95]. Positive blood culture results in the face of what should be adequate antibiotic therapy should increase the suspicion of either antibiotic-resistant isolates or metastatic sites, such as endocarditis or arthritis.

Despite the high frequency of infectious pulmonary causes of nonresponse, the diagnostic utility of respiratory tract cultures is less clear. Caution in the interpretation of sputum or tracheal aspirate cultures, especially of gram-negative bacilli, is warranted because early colonization, rather than superinfection with resistant bacteria, is not uncommon in specimens obtained after initiation of antibiotic treatment. Once again, the absence of multidrug-resistant pathogens, such as MRSA or Pseudomonas, is strong evidence that they are not the cause of nonresponse. An etiology was determined by bronchoscopy in 44% of patients with CAP, mainly in those not responding to therapy [300]. Despite the potential benefit suggested by these results, and in contrast to ventilator-associated pneumonia [301, 302], no randomized study has compared the utility of invasive versus noninvasive strategies in the CAP population with nonresponse.

Rapid urinary antigen tests for S. pneumoniae and L. pneumophila remain positive for days after initiation of antibiotic therapy [147, 152] and, therefore, may be high-yield tests in this group. A urinary antigen test result that is positive for L. pneumophila has several clinical implications, including that coverage for Legionella should be added if not started empirically [81]. This finding may be a partial explanation for the finding that fluoroquinolones are associated with a lower incidence of nonresponse [84]. If a patient has persistent fever, the faster response to fluoroquinolones in Legionella CAP warrants consideration of switching coverage from a macrolide [303]. Stopping the  $\beta$ -lactam component of combination therapy to exclude drug fever is probably also safe [156]. Because one of the major explanations for nonresponse is poor host immunity rather than incorrect antibiotics, a positive pneumococcal antigen test result would at least clarify the probable original pathogen and turn attention to other causes of failure. In addition, a positive pneumococcal antigen test result would also help with interpretation of subsequent sputum/tracheal aspirate cultures, which may indicate early superinfection.

Nonresponse may also be mimicked by concomitant or subsequent extrapulmonary infection, such as intravascular catheter, urinary, abdominal, and skin infections, particularly in ICU patients. Appropriate cultures of these sites should be considered for patients with nonresponse to CAP therapy.

In addition to microbiological diagnostic procedures, several other tests appear to be valuable for selected patients with nonresponse:

- Chest CT. In addition to ruling out pulmonary emboli, a CT scan can disclose other reasons for antibiotic failure, including pleural effusions, lung abscess, or central airway obstruction. The pattern of opacities may also suggest alternative noninfectious disease, such as bronchiolitis obliterans organizing pneumonia.
- Thoracentesis. Empyema and parapneumonic effusions are important causes of nonresponse [81, 101], and thoracentesis should be performed whenever significant pleural fluid is present.
- Bronchoscopy with BAL and transbronchial biopsies. If the differential of nonresponse includes noninfectious pneumonia mimics, bronchoscopy will provide more diagnostic information than routine microbiological cultures. BAL may reveal noninfectious entities, such as pulmonary hemorrhage or acute eosinophilic pneumonia, or hints of infectious diseases, such as lymphocytic rather than neutrophilic alveolitis pointing toward virus or Chlamydomphila infection. Transbronchial biopsies can also yield a specific diagnosis.

Antibiotic management of nonresponse in CAP has not been studied. The overwhelming majority of cases of apparent nonresponse are due to the severity of illness at presentation or a delay in treatment response related to host factors. Other than the use of combination therapy for severe bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia [112, 231, 233, 234], there is no documentation that additional antibiotics for early deterioration lead to a better outcome. The presence of risk factors for potentially untreated microorganisms may warrant temporary empirical broadening of the antibiotic regimen until results of diagnostic tests are available.

PREVENTION

39. All persons  $\geq 50$  years of age, others at risk for influenza complications, household contacts of high-risk persons, and health care workers should receive inactivated influenza vaccine as recommended by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP), CDC. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

NOTE. Adapted from the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [304].

<sup>a</sup> Avoid use in persons with asthma, reactive airways disease, or other chronic disorders of the pulmonary or cardiovascular systems; persons with other underlying medical conditions, including diabetes, renal dysfunction, and hemoglobinopathies; persons with immunodeficiencies or who receive immunosuppressive therapy; children or adolescents receiving salicylates; persons with a history of Guillain-Barré syndrome; and pregnant women.

<sup>b</sup> Vaccinating current smokers is recommended by the Pneumonia Guidelines Committee but is not currently an indication for vaccine according to the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices statement.

40. The intranasally administered live attenuated vaccine is an alternative vaccine formulation for some persons 5–49 years of age without chronic underlying diseases, including immunodeficiency, asthma, or chronic medical conditions. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
41. Health care workers in inpatient and outpatient settings and long-term care facilities should receive annual influenza immunization. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
42. Pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine is recommended for persons  $\geq 65$  years of age and for those with selected

high-risk concurrent diseases, according to current ACIP guidelines. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

Vaccines targeting pneumococcal disease and influenza remain the mainstay for preventing CAP. Pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine and inactivated influenza vaccine are recommended for all older adults and for younger persons with medical conditions that place them at high risk for pneumonia morbidity and mortality (table 13) [304, 305]. The new live attenuated influenza vaccine is recommended for healthy persons 5–49 years of age, including health care workers [304].

Postlicensure epidemiologic studies have documented the effectiveness of pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccines for prevention of invasive infection (bacteremia and meningitis) among elderly individuals and younger adults with certain chronic medical conditions [306–309]. The overall effectiveness against invasive pneumococcal disease among persons  $\geq 65$  years of age is 44%–75% [306, 308, 310], although efficacy may decrease with advancing age [308]. The effectiveness of the vaccine against pneumococcal disease in immunocompromised persons is less clear, and results of studies evaluating its effectiveness against pneumonia without bacteremia have been mixed. The vaccine has been shown to be cost effective for general populations of adults 50–64 years of age and  $\geq 65$  years of age [311, 312]. A second dose of pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine after a  $\geq 5$ -year interval has been shown to be safe, with only slightly more local reactions than are seen after the first dose [313]. Because the safety of a third dose has not been demonstrated, current guidelines do not suggest repeated revaccination. The pneumococcal conjugate vaccine is under investigation for use in adults but is currently only licensed for use in young children [314, 315]. However, its use in children  $< 5$  years of age has dramatically reduced invasive pneumococcal bacteremia among adults as well [314, 316].

The effectiveness of influenza vaccines depends on host factors and on how closely the antigens in the vaccine are matched with the circulating strain of influenza. A systematic review demonstrates that influenza vaccine effectively prevents pneumonia, hospitalization, and death [317, 318]. A recent large observational study of adults  $\geq 65$  years of age found that vaccination against influenza was associated with a reduction in the risk of hospitalization for cardiac disease (19% reduction), cerebrovascular disease (16%–23% reduction), and pneumonia or influenza (29%–32% reduction) and a reduction in the risk of death from all causes (48%–50% reduction) [319]. In long-term-care facilities, vaccination of health care workers with influenza vaccine is an important preventive health measure [318, 320, 321]. Because the main virulence factors of influenza virus, a neuraminidase and hemagglutinin, adapt quickly to selective pressures, new vaccine formulations are created each year on the basis of the strains expected to be circulating, and annual revaccination is needed for optimal protection.

43. Vaccination status should be assessed at the time of hospital admission for all patients, especially those with medical illnesses. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
44. Vaccination may be performed either at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
45. Influenza vaccine should be offered to persons at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment during the fall and winter. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

Many people who should receive either influenza or pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine have not received them. According to a 2003 survey, only 69% of adults  $\geq 65$  years of age had received influenza vaccine in the past year, and only 64% had ever received pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine [322]. Coverage levels are lower for younger persons with vaccine indications. Among adults 18–64 years of age with diabetes, 49% had received influenza vaccine, and 37% had ever received pneumococcal vaccine [323]. Studies of vaccine delivery methods indicate that the use of standing orders is the best way to improve vaccination coverage in office, hospital, or long-term care settings [324].

Hospitalization of at-risk patients represents an underutilized opportunity to assess vaccination status and to either provide or recommend immunization. Ideally, patients should be vaccinated before developing pneumonia; therefore, admissions for illnesses other than respiratory tract infections would be an appropriate focus. However, admission for pneumonia is an important trigger for assessing the need for immunization. The actual immunization may be better provided at the time of outpatient follow-up, especially with the emphasis on early discharge of patients with CAP. Patients with an acute fever should not be vaccinated until their fever has resolved. Confusion of a febrile reaction to immunization with recurrent/superinfection pneumonia is a risk. However, immunization at discharge for pneumonia is warranted for patients for whom outpatient follow-up is unreliable, and such vaccinations have been safely given to many patients.

The best time for influenza vaccination in North America is October and November, although vaccination in December and later is recommended for those who were not vaccinated earlier. Influenza and pneumococcal vaccines can be given at the same time in different arms.

Chemoprophylaxis can be used as an adjunct to vaccination for prevention and control of influenza. Oseltamivir and zanamivir are both approved for prophylaxis; amantadine and rimantadine have FDA indications for chemoprophylaxis against influenza A infection, but these agents are currently not recommended because of the frequency of resistance among strains circulating in the United States and Canada [252, 253]. Developing an adequate immune response to the inactivated influenza vaccine takes  $\sim 2$  weeks in adults; chemoprophylaxis may be useful during this period for those with household exposure to influenza, those who live or work in institutions with an influenza outbreak, or those who are at high risk for influenza complications in the setting of a community outbreak [325, 326]. Chemoprophylaxis also may be useful for persons with contraindications to influenza vaccine or as an adjunct to vaccination for those who may not respond well to influenza vaccine (e.g., persons with HIV infection) [325, 326]. The use of influenza antiviral medications for treatment or chemoprophylaxis should not affect the response to the inactivated vaccine. Because it is unknown whether administering influenza antiviral medications affects the performance of the new live attenuated intranasal vaccine, this vaccine should not be used in conjunction with antiviral agents.

Other types of vaccination can be considered. Pertussis is a rare cause of pneumonia itself. However, pneumonia is one of the major complications of pertussis. Concern over waning immunity has led the ACIP to emphasize adult immunization for pertussis [327]. One-time vaccination with the new tetanus toxoid, reduced diphtheria toxoid, and acellular pertussis vaccine—adsorbed (Tdap) product, ADACEL (Sanofi Pasteur)—is recommended for adults 19–64 years of age. For most adults, the vaccine should be given in place of their next routine tetanus-diphtheria booster; adults with close contact with infants <12 months of age and health care workers should receive the vaccine as soon as possible, with an interval as short as 2 years after their most recent tetanus/diphtheria booster.

46. Smoking cessation should be a goal for persons hospitalized with CAP who smoke. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
47. Smokers who will not quit should also be vaccinated for both pneumococcus and influenza. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)

Smoking is associated with a substantial risk of pneumococcal bacteremia; one report showed that smoking was the strongest of multiple risks for invasive pneumococcal disease in immunocompetent nonelderly adults [328]. Smoking has also been identified as a risk for Legionella infection [329]. Smoking cessation should be attempted when smokers are hospitalized; this is particularly important and relevant when these patients are hospitalized for pneumonia. Materials for clinicians and patients to assist with smoking cessation are available online from the US Surgeon General (<http://www.surgeongeneral.gov/tobacco>), the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (<http://www.cdc.gov/tobacco>), and the American Cancer Society (<http://www.cancer.org>). The most successful approaches to quitting include some combination of nicotine replacement and/or bupropion, a method to change habits, and emotional support. Given the increased risk of pneumonia, the committee felt that persons unwilling to stop smoking should be given the pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine, although this is not currently an ACIP-recommended indication.

48. Cases of pneumonia that are of public health concern should be reported immediately to the state or local health department. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

Public health interventions are important for preventing some forms of pneumonia. Notifying the state or local health department about a condition of interest is the first step to getting public health professionals involved. Rules and regulations regarding which diseases are reportable differ between states. For pneumonia, most states require reporting for legionnaires disease, SARS, and psittacosis, so that an investigation can determine whether others may be at risk and whether control measures are necessary. For legionnaires disease, reporting of cases has helped to identify common-source outbreaks caused by environmental contamination [130]. For SARS, close observation and, in some cases, quarantine of close contacts have been critical for controlling transmission [330]. In addition, any time avian influenza (H5N1) or a possible terrorism agent (e.g., plague, tularemia, or anthrax) is being considered as the etiology of pneumonia, the case should be reported immediately, even before a definitive diagnosis is obtained. In addition, pneumonia cases that are caused by pathogens not thought to be endemic to the area should be reported, even if those conditions are not typically on the list of reportable conditions, because control strategies might be possible.

For other respiratory diseases, episodes that are suspected of being part of an outbreak or cluster should be reported. For pneumococcal disease and influenza, outbreaks can occur in crowded settings of susceptible hosts, such as homeless shelters, nursing homes, and jails. In these settings, prophylaxis, vaccination, and infection control methods are used to control further transmission [331]. For Mycoplasma, antibiotic prophylaxis has been used in schools and institutions to control outbreaks [332].

49. Respiratory hygiene measures, including the use of hand hygiene and masks or tissues for patients with cough, should be used in outpatient settings and EDs as a means to reduce the spread of respiratory infections. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

In part because of the emergence of SARS, improved respiratory hygiene measures (“respiratory hygiene” or “cough etiquette”) have been promoted as a means for reducing transmission of respiratory infections in outpatient clinics and EDs [333]. Key components of respiratory hygiene include encouraging patients to alert providers when they present for a visit and have symptoms of a respiratory infection; the use of hand hygiene measures, such as alcohol-based hand gels; and the use of masks or tissues to cover the mouth for patients with respiratory illnesses. In a survey of the US population, the use of masks in outpatient settings was viewed as an acceptable means for reducing the spread of respiratory infections [334]. For hospitalized patients, infection control recommendations typically are pathogen specific. For more details on the use of personal protective equipment and other measures to prevent transmission within health care settings, refer to the Healthcare Infection Control Practices Advisory Committee [335].

SUGGESTED PERFORMANCE INDICATORS

Performance indicators are tools to help guideline users measure both the extent and the effects of implementation of guidelines. Such tools or measures can be indicators of the process itself, outcomes, or both. Deviations from the recommendations are expected in a proportion of cases, and compliance in 80%–95% of cases is generally appropriate, depending on the indicator.

Four specific performance indicators have been selected for the CAP guidelines, 3 of which focus on treatment issues and 1 of which deals with prevention:

- Initial empirical treatment of CAP should be consistent with guideline recommendations. Data exist that support the role of CAP guidelines and that have demonstrated reductions in cost, LOS, and mortality when the guidelines are followed. Reasons for deviation from the guidelines should be clearly documented in the medical record.
- The first treatment dose for patients who are to be admitted to the hospital should be given in the ED. Unlike in prior guidelines, a specific time frame is not being recommended. Initiation of treatment would be expected within 6–8 h of presentation whenever the admission diagnosis is likely CAP. A rush to treatment without a diagnosis of CAP can, however, result in the inappropriate use of antibiotics with a concomitant increase in costs, adverse drug events, increased antibiotic selection pressure, and, possibly, increased antibiotic resistance. Consideration should be given to monitoring the number of patients who receive empirical antibiotics in the ED but are admitted to the hospital without an infectious diagnosis.
- Mortality data for all patients with CAP admitted to wards, ICUs, or high-level monitoring units should be collected. Although tools to predict mortality and severity of illness exist—such as the PSI and CURB-65 criteria, respectively—none is foolproof. Overall mortality rates for all patients with CAP admitted to the hospital, including general medical wards, should be monitored and compared with severity-adjusted norms. In addition, careful attention should be paid to the percentage of patients with severe CAP, as defined in this document, who are admitted initially to a non-ICU or a high-level monitoring unit and to their mortality rate.
- It is important to determine what percentage of at-risk patients in one's practice actually receive immunization for influenza or pneumococcal infection. Prevention of infection is clearly more desirable than having to treat established infection, but it is clear that target groups are undervaccin-

ated. Trying to increase the number of protected individuals is a desirable end point and, therefore, a goal worth pursuing. This is particularly true for influenza, because the vaccine data are more compelling, but it is important to try to protect against pneumococcal infection as well. Coverage of 90% of adults  $\geq 65$  years of age should be the target.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

On November 7, 2019, Administrative Law Judge Yolonda Y. Green of the Florida Division of Administrative Hearings ("Division"), conducted a final hearing pursuant to section 120.57(1), Florida Statutes, in Lady Lake, Florida.

APPEARANCES

For Petitioner: Virginia Edwards, Esquire
William Edward Walker, Esquire
Department of Health
Bin C-65
4052 Bald Cypress Way
Tallahassee, Florida 32399

For Respondent: John Joseph Im, D.O., pro se
Exceptional Urgent Care Center
13767 U.S. Highway 441
Lady Lake, Florida 32159

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES

Whether Respondent failed to meet the prevailing professional standard of care by failing to counsel J.K.

regarding the risks of, or alternatives to, taking Levaquin with Tikosyn in violation of section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes, as alleged in the Administrative Complaint; and, if so, what sanction is appropriate.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

On June 19, 2019, Petitioner, the Department of Health, Board of Osteopathic Medicine ("Petitioner" or the "Department"), filed an Administrative Complaint against Respondent, Dr. John Joseph Im, D.O. ("Respondent" or "Dr. Im"), alleging that he violated section 459.015(1)(x). On July 24, 2019, Respondent filed an Election of Rights seeking a final hearing pursuant to section 120.57(1), and on September 6, 2019, the case was referred to the Division for assignment of an administrative law judge.

The undersigned issued a Notice of Hearing scheduling the final hearing to take place on November 7, 2019, which commenced on the scheduled date. At hearing, Petitioner presented the testimony of patient J.K. (by deposition), K.K. (Patient J.K.'s wife), and Dr. Anthony Davis (Petitioner's expert). Petitioner's Exhibits 1 through 3, and 5 through 9 were admitted. Petitioner proffered Exhibit 4. Respondent testified on his own behalf. Respondent's Exhibit 7 was admitted over objection, and Exhibit 8 was admitted without objection.

At the hearing, the undersigned considered Respondent's Motion for Sanctions as it related to his assertions regarding the conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the deposition of K.K. After hearing argument from both parties, the undersigned denied Respondent's request for sanctions.<sup>1/</sup>

The one-volume Transcript of the hearing was filed with the Division on December 4, 2019. The Petitioner timely filed its Proposed Recommended Order in this matter, which has been carefully considered in the preparation of this Recommended Order. Respondent did not file a post-hearing submittal.

Unless otherwise indicated, all references to the Florida Statutes are to the 2017 codification, and all references to the Florida Administrative Code are to the 2016 version.<sup>2/</sup>

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following Findings of Fact are based upon the testimony and documentary evidence presented at hearing, the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses, and on the entire record of this proceeding.

1. Petitioner is the state agency charged with regulating the practice of osteopathic medicine pursuant to section 20.43, and chapters 456 and 459, Florida Statutes.

2. At all times material to these proceedings, Respondent was a licensed osteopathic physician within the State of Florida, having been issued license number OS 8729.

3. Respondent's address of record at the time of filing the Administrative Complaint was 11950 County Road 101, Suites 101, 102, and 103, The Villages, Florida 32162. Respondent's current address of record is 13767 U.S. Highway 441, Lady Lake, Florida 32159.

4. Respondent currently holds no board certification in any specialty area, and did not complete any residency other than in emergency medicine. Respondent attended Michigan State University, College of Osteopathic Medicine. In 2002, he began full-time practice as an emergency room physician at Munroe Regional Medical Center in Ocala, Florida. He worked as an emergency room physician until he opened Exceptional Urgent Care Center ("EUCC").

5. At all times material to this complaint, Respondent owned and operated EUCC.

Treatment Provided to Patient J.K.

6. On March 15, 2018, J.K., along with his wife, presented to EUCC with complaints of a sore throat and fever. This was the first of two visits to the clinic.

7. J.K. reported his medications as Amlodipine, Warfarin, Tamsulosin, and Dofetilide (unless otherwise indicated, hereinafter referred to by its trade name "Tikosyn").

8. J.K. was prescribed these medications by his cardiologist at the William S. Middleton Memorial Veterans Hospital ("V.A. Hospital") in Wisconsin, his home state.

9. Relevant to this matter, Tikosyn helps patients maintain a normal heartbeat rhythm. Tikosyn was prescribed to keep J.K.'s heart in rhythm as he had atrial fibrillation.

10. J.K. was treated by a nurse practitioner, who ordered a chest x-ray and a flu swab. The flu swab returned negative, and the chest x-ray showed no focal pneumonia. J.K. was prescribed Tamiflu and Naproxen. J.K. elected not to fill the Tamiflu due to the "expensive cost." Respondent was not involved in J.K.'s treatment on this date.

11. On March 16, 2018, J.K. and his wife K.K. returned to EUCC as J.K.'s symptoms had not improved. On this visit, J.K. saw Dr. Im. Dr. Im evaluated J.K. and ordered two tests. Dr. Im ordered a Prothrombin Time International Normalized Ration ("PT INR") test to determine J.K.'s coagulation and he ordered a CT scan of the chest. The PT INR results were within the therapeutic range. The CT scan showed shattered ground-glass opacification in the posterior right lower lobe and the medial left upper lobe. The CT scan findings were interpreted as "non-specific, may represent hypoventilatory change or an infectious inflammatory process (acute or chronic)."

12. Respondent advised J.K. and K.K. that the CT scan appeared to show the start of pneumonia, and he was going to prescribe three medications: Levaquin 750 mg, Prednisone 20 mg, and Zyrtec 10 mg.

13. K.K. testified that she asked Respondent if the Levaquin, Prednisone, or Zyrtec were contraindicated with any of J.K.'s current prescriptions, specifically Tikosyn. K.K. recalls that Respondent replied that he was not familiar with Dofetilide (Tikosyn), and advised them to check with the pharmacist to see if there were any contraindications.

14. Although Respondent initially advised J.K. and K.K. that he was not familiar with Tikosyn, Respondent testified that he advised J.K. and K.K. of the possible interactions between Levaquin and Tikosyn and told her that the interaction was very rare. He testified that he advised J.K. and K.K. that the pharmacist is a safety net, and the pharmacist would call him to discuss the prescriptions if he missed anything.

15. K.K. credibly testified that Respondent did not counsel J.K. or K.K. on any risks regarding the medications Dr. Im prescribed or provide them with any alternatives during the visit on March 16, 2018.

16. J.K. and K.K. left EUCC and went to Publix to fill the prescriptions. K.K. asked the pharmacist if any medications would interfere with any of J.K.'s prescribed medications. Upon advice of the pharmacist that Levaquin was contraindicated with Tikosyn, K.K. declined to fill the prescription for Levaquin.

17. On behalf of J.K., K.K. then called EUCC and asked for a different antibiotic that would not interact with Tikosyn. However, she was instructed to contact J.K.'s cardiologist.

18. K.K. then contacted the cardiology staff of the V.A. Hospital in Wisconsin, who instructed K.K. to follow the advice of the pharmacist and (tell J.K.) not to take the Levaquin.

19. K.K. called EUCC a second time to confirm whether J.K. had an infection and she was told that J.K. did not have an infection.

20. Respondent recalls that he had a personal conversation with K.K. during a courtesy telephone call placed the next day (March 17, 2018). Respondent testified that during that call, he explained Levaquin was the drug of choice, other medications would not cover J.K.'s pneumonia, the potential interactions were very rare, and J.K. needed to take the Levaquin. By his own admission and his medical records, Respondent did not provide J.K. or K.K. with any specific alternative antibiotics and insisted that J.K. needed to take the Levaquin.

21. K.K. disputes that Dr. Im spoke with her or J.K. at any point after the March 16, 2018, visit. She clearly recalled that she spoke with a woman each time she spoke with staff at Dr. Im's office. Overall, J.K. and K.K. clearly and convincingly testified that Respondent never advised them of the risks of using Levaquin with Tikosyn or provided any alternatives to the Levaquin.

Expert Testimony

22. Petitioner offered the testimony of Dr. Anthony Davis, who testified as an expert. Dr. Davis has been licensed as an osteopathic physician in Florida since 1995. Dr. Davis attended Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine and completed an internship in family practice. He has been board certified in family medicine by the American Board of Osteopathic Family Physicians since 2001, and board certified in emergency medicine by the American Association of Physician Specialists since July 2003. He is also affiliated with professional organizations including the American College of Family Practice and Florida Osteopathic Medical Association.

23. Dr. Davis was accepted as an expert in emergency and family medicine.

24. Dr. Davis relied upon his work experience, his training, and his review of the medical records for J.K. to render his opinion regarding the standard of care related to treating J.K.

25. The standard of care requires an osteopathic physician treating a patient similar to J.K. to: (1) provide and document their justification for why Levaquin was the appropriate drug of choice; (2) note the patient's acknowledgment that there are interactions with Tikosyn; (3) ensure the patient understands the risks and benefits of combining Tikosyn and Levaquin; (4) explain to the patient that there are limited alternatives to Levaquin; and (5) provide the reason for prescribing a potentially dangerous drug.

26. Levaquin is a medication that comes with a black box warning that requires physicians to counsel patients on the risks associated.

27. When a drug is designated as contraindicated and has a category X for interaction, the standard of care requires that the physician clearly explains to the patient why they are using the drug and defend how it is going to be safe. Tr., p. 70.

28. Dr. Davis opined there were multiple treatment options available for J.K., such as supportive care or an antibiotic with a lower risk of interaction with J.K.'s existing medication. Moreover, Dr. Davis testified that there were safer alternatives to Levaquin that would effectively treat pneumonia, such as doxycycline, if J.K. actually had pneumonia and an antibiotic was necessary.

29. Respondent provided literature from the Infectious Diseases Society of America related to community-acquired pneumonia in an attempt to prove that X-Ray or other imaging techniques are required for the diagnosis of pneumonia and to support his claim that Levaquin was the drug of choice for J.K. However, Dr. Davis credibly pointed out that the article, published in 2007, is no longer accurate.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

30. The Division has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties to this action pursuant to sections 120.569 and 120.57(1), Florida Statutes (2019).

31. This is a proceeding in which the Department seeks to revoke Respondent's license to practice medicine. The Department has the burden to prove the allegations in the Administrative Complaint by clear and convincing evidence.

Dep't of Banking & Fin. v. Osborne Stern and Co., 670 So. 2d 932 (Fla. 1996); Ferris v. Turlington, 595 So. 2d 292 (Fla. 1987). As stated by the Supreme Court of Florida,

Clear and convincing evidence requires that the evidence must be found to be credible; the facts to which the witnesses testify must be distinctly remembered; the testimony must be precise and lacking in confusion as to the facts at issue. The evidence must be of such a weight that it produces in the mind of the trier of fact a firm belief or conviction, without hesitancy, as to the truth of the allegations sought to be established.

In re Henson, 913 So. 2d 579, 590 (Fla. 2005) (quoting Slomowitz v. Walker, 429 So. 2d 797, 800 (Fla. 4th DCA 1983)). This burden of proof may be met where the evidence is in conflict; however, "it seems to preclude evidence that is ambiguous."

Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Shuler Bros., 590 So. 2d 986, 988 (Fla. 1st DCA 1991).

32. Disciplinary statutes and rules "must always be construed strictly in favor of the one against whom the penalty would be imposed and are never to be extended by construction." Griffis v. Fish & Wildlife Conser. Comm'n, 57 So. 3d 929, 931 (Fla. 1st DCA 2011); Munch v. Dep't of Prof'l Reg., Div. of Real Estate, 592 So. 2d 1136 (Fla. 1st DCA 1992).

33. Petitioner charged Respondent under section 459.015(1)(x), which provides in pertinent part: "Notwithstanding s. 456.072(2) but as specified in s. 456.50(2): 1. Committing medical malpractice as defined in s. 456.50. The board shall give great weight to the provisions of s. 766.102 when enforcing this paragraph. Medical malpractice shall not be construed to require more than one instance, event, or act."

34. The Administrative Complaint alleged that Respondent committed medical malpractice. Section 456.50(1)(g), Florida Statutes, defined "medical malpractice," in relevant part, as the failure to practice medicine in accordance with the level of care, skill, and treatment recognized in general law related to health care licensure.

35. Section 766.102(1), Florida Statutes, provided in part, that the prevailing professional standard of care for a given health care provider shall be that level of care, skill, and treatment which, in light of all relevant surrounding circumstances, is recognized as acceptable and appropriate by reasonably prudent similar healthcare providers.

36. Petitioner alleged that Respondent committed medical malpractice by failing to advise J.K. of the contraindication of Levaquin and Tikosyn. Dr. Davis testified that the applicable standard of care required that an osteopathic physician advise a patient of the interactions between Levaquin and Tikosyn and provide any alternatives to taking Levaquin. Dr. Davis' expert testimony was credited. Petitioner proved this allegation.

37. Even had Levaquin not been contraindicated with Tikosyn, the standard of care required that Respondent advise J.K. of the additional risks, including death, involved in taking the two drugs together. The more compelling evidence demonstrates that Respondent did not advise J.K. of these risks, and Respondent's testimony to the contrary is rejected as not credible.

38. Petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that Respondent committed medical malpractice in violation of section 459.015(1)(x), as charged in the Administrative Complaint.

Penalty

39. Petitioner imposes penalties upon licensees consistent with disciplinary guidelines prescribed by Florida

Administrative Code Rule 64B15-19.002. See Parrot Heads, Inc. v. Dep't of Bus. & Prof'l Reg., 741 So. 2d 1231, 1233-34 (Fla. 5th DCA 1999).

40. Penalties in a licensure discipline case may not exceed those in effect at the time the violation was committed. Willner v. Dep't of Prof. Reg., Bd. of Med., 563 So. 2d 805, 806 (Fla. 1st DCA 1990), rev. denied, 576 So. 2d 295 (Fla. 1991).

41. At the time of the incidents, rule 64B15-19.002(28) provided that for a first-time offender, committing medical malpractice, as described in section 459.015(1)(x), the prescribed penalty range was "letter of concern, up to one (1) year probation and $1,000 fine to denial or revocation and $10,000 fine."

42. Rule 64B15-19.003 provided that, in applying the penalty guidelines, Petitioner may deviate from the penalties recommended above when there is evidence of aggravating and mitigating factors present in the individual case. Petitioner shall consider aggravating or mitigating factors as follows:

- (1) The danger to the public;
- (2) The length of time since the violations;
- (3) The number of times the licensee has been previously disciplined by the Board;
- (4) The length of time the licensee has practiced;
- (5) The actual damage, physical or otherwise, caused by the violation;

- (6) The deterrent effect of the penalty imposed;
- (7) The effect of penalty upon the licensee's livelihood;
- (8) Any effort of rehabilitation by the licensee;
- (9) The actual knowledge of the licensee pertaining to the violation;
- (10) Attempts by the licensee to correct or stop violations or refusal by licensee to correct or stop violations;
- (11) Related violations against licensee in another state, including findings of guilt or innocence, penalties imposed and penalties served;
- (12) The actual negligence of the licensee pertaining to any violations;
- (13) The penalties imposed for related offenses; and
- (14) The pecuniary gain to the licensee;
- (15) Any other relevant mitigating or aggravating factors under the circumstances. Any penalties imposed by the board may not exceed the maximum penalties set forth in Section 459.015(2), F.S.

43. A significant aggravating factor was that Respondent's actions exposed J.K. to potential serious injury or death. While there was potential for harm, J.K. did not suffer harm as he did not fill the prescription or take the Levaquin.

44. On the other hand, Respondent was not under any legal restraints at the time of the incident. There was no evidence of any prior disciplinary history in any jurisdiction over a 15-year successful career. Respondent received no special pecuniary benefit or self-gain from his actions. While these factors do not serve as a legal defense to the proven charges, they are relevant in determining an appropriate penalty.

45. Taken as a whole, the evidence presented does not warrant deviation in penalty from the disciplinary guidelines contained within the rule.

RECOMMENDATION

Based on the foregoing Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, it is RECOMMENDED that the Board of Osteopathic Medicine enter a Final Order as follows:

a) Finding that John Joseph Im, D.O., violated section 459.015(1)(x), by committing medical malpractice, as defined in section 456.50, as alleged in the Administrative Complaint;

b) Issue a letter of concern against Respondent's license to practice osteopathic medicine;

c) Requiring completion of a prescribing practices course;
and

d) Imposing an administrative fine of $2,500.

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO SUBMIT EXCEPTIONS

All parties have the right to submit written exceptions within 15 days from the date of this Recommended Order. Any exceptions to this Recommended Order should be filed with the agency that will issue the Final Order in this case.

Respondent's Written Exceptions to Petitioner's Proposed Recommended Order

1. Patient J.K. stated in his deposition that majority of the information submitted to DOH was from his wife because he was feeling too bad to comprehend anything (pg.53 of his deposition).
2. Patient J.K. answered "yes" when he was asked if he had trouble recalling some of the factual incidents on March 15, 2018 and March 16, 2018 (pg.53).
3. J.K. stated that he was not present when K.K. had a conversation with the pharmacist.
4. J.K. stated in his deposition that K.K. called Dr. Im but he was not present during the phone conversation.
5. J.K. stated "I recall her telling me that" when he was asked "do you recall if the pharmacist told your wife the incidence of the fatal arrhythmia that can be caused by Levaquin and Tikosyn" (pg. 48) but he clearly stated that he was not present when his wife K.K. spoke to the pharmacist.
6. Petitioner states that respondent did not counsel patient J.K. on the risks of Levaquin nor provide alternatives but offers no direct evidence but only alludes to J.K's testimony as direct evidence.
7. Petitioner printed out in Exhibit 8 that K.K "did not want" the Levaquin which directly contradicts K.K's testimony that the pharmacist did not fill the prescriptions.
8. Petitioner's expert witness testified that the pharmacist has an obligation to call the physician if he/she sees an error on a potential dangerous interaction.
9. Petitioner never introduced the pharmacist who is a central piece in the case against the respondent as the VA notes Exhibit shows the nurse case manager advised K.K. to follow the instructions of the pharmacist.
10. It was clearly documented that K.K. refused to pick up Levaquin but in fact it was ready for pick up.
11. Petitioner states (pg. 9 paragraph 24) that K.K. contacted the VA cardiology department "conducted their own research" but petitioner never submitted evidence of research conducted by cardiology department.
12. K.K stated that the pharmacist and VA instructed her to not take the Levaquin but no evidence was submitted to support her claim.
13. In fact, both the VA notes and pharmacist's note clearly demonstrates that K.K. came to her own conclusion to not pick up the Levaquin and it was her decision and her decision alone.
14. Petitioner's expert witness stated that he would have used a different antibiotic, but in his testimony stated that CT was equivocal and that pneumonia was unlikely.
15. Dr. Davis also stated that he would have given the albuterol inhaler which he admitted has contraindications to Tikosyn.

16. When asked if he would give the first dose of Levaquin IV to a patient with pneumonia without counseling patient on risk he stated “yes”
17. Petitioner states (pg.10 paragraph 28) that J.K. clearly remembered interactions with Dr. Im when in fact his deposition J.K. stated he was “too ill to recall the conversation with Dr. Im”
18. Petitioner states (pg. 12 paragraph 33) that a physician is required to counsel patients about Levaquin’s Black Box warning when Dr. Davis testified that the warning is about tendon rupture and not interactions with Tikosyn
19. Petitioner’s expert witness reiterated that a reasonably prudent physician can rely on his own experience when choosing a treatment modality
20. Based on the CT chest findings, Dr. Im felt the prudent decision was to treat the pneumonia with Levaquin which is the drug of choice
21. Because the petitioners seek to impose license discipline, the burden of proof must be clear and convincing
22. Also, the evidence must be credible and memories of the witnesses must be clear and without confusion
23. Petitioner states that K.K’s testimony was clear and without confusion, but throughout her testimony during trial she contradicted herself on numerous occasions
24. Mrs K.K clearly displayed bias as evidence of her publishing on a public forum that Dr. Im is “arrogant and dangerous” prior to her formal complaint to the DOH
25. Mrs. K.K. stated that Dr.Im gave a written prescription when actuality the prescription was sent electronically (pg. 175 of transcript)
26. Mrs. K.K admitted that she remembers Dr. Im going over the results with patient J.K. (pg. 183) which by definition is counseling
27. Mrs. K.K also admitted that she remembers Dr. Im going over the three medication with patient J.K. (pg. 185) which by definition is counseling
28. Mrs. K.K. was asked if she made a mistake when she stated on her complaint that she spoke to the cardiologist and she stated “yes” (pg.190)
29. Mrs. K.K. was asked if she remember how much time Dr. Im spent going over the results and medications with patient J.K. and Mrs. K.K. answered “maybe a few minutes”, which is by definition counseling
30. Mrs. K.K. was asked “do you remember refusing to take the prescription Levaquin” and she stated “yes”
31. According to pharmacy notes which was submitted as an exhibit, it was noted that Levaquin was filled and ready for pick-up, but patient refused (pg. 196)
32. Respondent clearly testified that he provided his explanation of why he chose Levaquin and that it was the drug of choice for pneumonia
33. Respondent clearly testified that he acknowledged that there is a potential interaction, but it is extremely rare
34. Respondent clearly testified that he educated and reiterated the importance of medication compliance
35. Respondent clearly testified that he explained to J.K. that Levaquin is the drug of choice and the alternatives would not cover for the pneumonia
36. Petitioner’s expert witness demonstrated his limitations as an expert by admitting he has not worked in an urgent care setting since 2001

37. Petitioner's expert witness stated that he used UptoDate, a cellphone application, as his resource to come to his conclusion that Levaquin was the wrong medication.
38. UptoDate is not considered a reliable medical resource, it is a simple cellphone application that can be used as a supplement to the guidelines published by the American College of Emergency Physicians.
39. Dr. Davis admitted that he used the plaintiff's letter of complaint to DOH as a source to come to his conclusion that Dr. Im did not counsel the patient J.K. on the potential interactions of Levaquin and Tikosyn and did not offer potential alternatives.

Recommendation

Based on the foregoing Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, it is Recommended that the Board of Osteopathic Medicine enter a Final Order:

1. Finding that Respondent John Joseph Im, D.O., did not violate section 459.015 (1) (x), Florida Statutes (2017), by committing medical malpractice as defined in Section 456.50, Florida Statutes, as charged in Petitioner's Administrative Complaint

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES

The issues to be determined in this proceeding are whether Respondent, a licensed osteopathic physician, violated section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes (2017), by failing to meet the prevailing professional standard of care in the treatment of Patient J.K., and if so, what penalty should be imposed for the violation.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

On June 19, 2019, the Florida Department of Health ("Department" or "Petitioner"), filed a one-count Administrative Complaint against Respondent, John Joseph Im, D.O. ("Respondent"). Petitioner's Complaint charged Respondent with violating section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes (2017), by committing medical malpractice as defined in Section 456.50, Florida Statutes.

On July 24, 2019, Respondent filed an election of rights disputing allegations of material fact contained in Petitioner's Administrative Complaint and requesting a formal hearing. On September 6, 2019, Petitioner referred the case to DOAH for assignment to an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"). The case was assigned to Administrative Law Judge Yolonda Green, under DOAH case number 19-4724PL. By notice issued September 18, 2019, the case was scheduled for hearing on November 7, 2019, at which time the hearing was commenced and concluded.

Prior to the hearing, Respondent filed a motion for sanctions against counsel for Petitioner based on conduct during the deposition of K.K. Respondent's motion was denied, and witness K.K. was made available to testify telephonically at the hearing.

Further, Petitioner filed a Motion for Official Recognition of the Disciplinary Guidelines of the Florida Board of Osteopathic Medicine, which was accepted with a modification to use the guidelines in effect prior to August 2018.

Petitioner's exhibits 1 - 3, and 5 - 9 were admitted in to evidence without objection. Petitioner's exhibit 4 was excluded but proffered. Respondent's exhibit 8 was admitted in part, only entering page two. Respondent's exhibit 7 was admitted over objection. Respondent's exhibit 5 was excluded. Petitioner presented testimony of Dr. Anthony Davis as an expert witness, and the testimony of K.K., the wife of Patient J.K., as a lay witness. Petitioner also presented the deposition of Patient J.K. in lieu of live testimony. Respondent testified on his own behalf and called no other witnesses.

The complete transcript of the hearing was filed with DOAH on November 15, 2019. Proposed Recommended Orders were to be filed by November 25, 2019. Timely filed Proposed Recommended Orders were considered in preparation of this Recommended Order.

All references to the Florida Statutes and Florida Administrative Code Rules shall be to those in effect at the time of the alleged violations unless otherwise noted. References to the record are as follows:

- a. "Tr., p.", referring to the transcript and page number;
- b. "P. Exh. #, p.", referring to Petitioner's exhibits; and
- c. "R. Exh. #, p.", referring to Respondent's exhibits.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses, and the entire record of this proceeding, the following findings of fact are made:

1. Petitioner is the state agency charged with regulating the practice of osteopathic medicine pursuant to section 20.43, Florida Statutes, chapter 456, Florida Statutes, and chapter 459, Florida Statutes.

2. At all times material to Petitioner's Administrative Complaint, Respondent was a licensed osteopathic physician within the State of Florida, having been issued license number OS 8729. P. Exh. 7, p. 2; P. Exh. 8, p. 6.

3. Respondent's address of record at the time of the filing of the administrative complaint was 11950 County Road 101, Ste 101, 102, 103, The Villages, Florida 32162. P. Exh. 7, p. 2.

4. Respondent's current address of record is 13767 U.S. Highway 441, Lady Lake, Florida 32159. P. Exh. 8, p. 10.

5. Respondent does not have any board certifications. P. Exh. 8, p. 6; Tr. pp. 159-162.

6. At all times material to this complaint, Respondent owned and was employed by Exceptional Urgent Care located in The Villages, Florida. P. Exh. 8, p. 10; P. Exh. 7, p. 2.

7. On March 15, 2018, Patient J.K., accompanied by his wife K.K., presented to Exceptional Urgent Care with complaints of a sore throat and fever. P. Exh. 2, p. 1; Tr. pp. 55, 169.

8. Patient J.K. reported his current medications as Amlodipine, Warfarin, Tamsulosin, and Dofetilide (hereinafter referred to by its trade name "Tikosyn"). P. Exh. 2, p. 1; P. Exh. 1, p. 12; Tr., pp. 55, 170.

9. Patient J.K. was prescribed these medications by his heart doctor at the Veterans Administration in Wisconsin as he lives in Wisconsin part of the year. P. Exh. 1, pp. 12-13. Tikosyn was prescribed to keep Patient J.K.'s heart in rhythm as he had atrial fibrillation. P. Exh. 1, p. 12.

10. Patient J.K. was treated by a nurse practitioner, who ordered a chest x-ray and a flu swab. The flu swab returned negative, and the chest x-ray showed no focal pneumonia. Patient J.K. was prescribed Tamiflu and Naproxen. Respondent was not involved in Patient J.K.'s treatment on this date. P. Exh. 8, pp. 22, 28-29; Tr., pp. 55-56, 171-172; P. Exh. 1, p. 13.

11. On March 16, 2018, Patient J.K. and his wife K.K. returned to Exceptional Urgent Care and met with Respondent as his symptoms had not improved. Patient J.K. did not fill the Tamiflu due to the cost. P. Exh. 1, pp. 14-15; P. Exh. 2, p. 5; Tr., pp. 56, 173-174.

12. Respondent's records for March 16, 2018 note that J.K. was in no apparent distress, was well developed and nourished, and was oriented to person, place, and time. The medical records go on to note that J.K.'s mood and affect were normal and appropriate to the situation. However, Respondent testified at the final hearing that "J.K. was a lot more ill than the chart displayed". P. Exh 2, p.6.; Tr. p. 215.

13. Respondent ordered a Prothrombin Time International Normalized Ration ("PT INR") test to determine Patient J.K.'s coagulation and ordered a CT scan of the chest. The INR results were within the therapeutic range. The CT scan showed shattered ground-glass opacification in the posterior right lower lobe and the medial left upper lobe. The Radiologist interpreting the CT Scan found that the findings were "non-specific, may represent hypoventilatory change or an infectious inflammatory process (acute or chronic)". P. Exh. 2, pp. 6, 8; Tr., p. 58; P. Exh. 8, p. 31.

14. Respondent testified that the official report from the radiologist would not be provided until 24 to 48 hours later, however, based on his review of the CT scan, it appeared to be pneumonia. Respondent testified that he is not a radiologist, but he has very good training and is very good at reading the images. Tr., pp. 218-219. Respondent did not provide evidence of any radiology training other than a one-month rotation during his residency. P. Exh. 8, p. 59.

15. Respondent testified he advised Patient J.K. and K.K. that the CT scan appeared to show the start of pneumonia, and he was going to prescribe three medications, Levaquin 750 mg, Prednisone, and Zyrtec. Tr., p. 219. P. Exh. 8, p. 33.

16. K.K. testified Respondent advised her and Patient J.K. that he had determined there was no infection, that it appeared to be allergies, and that he was going to prescribe medications. Tr., pp. 174-175.

17. K.K. then asked Respondent if the Levaquin, Prednisone, or Zyrtec he was prescribing were contraindicated with any of Patient J.K.'s current prescriptions, in particular Tikosyn. K.K. and Patient J.K. both clearly remember Respondent advising he was not familiar with Tikosyn, and telling them to check with the pharmacist to see if there were any contraindications. P. Exh. 1, p.16; Tr., p. 175. Respondent did not counsel her or Patient J.K. on any risks regarding the medications prescribed or provide them with any alternatives. Tr., pp. 175-176, 199.

18. Respondent testified that he was aware of the risk of QT Prolongation and Torsades, but it is rare. He further testified the risks with taking Levaquin can range anywhere from a mild reaction to something as severe as death. P. Exh. 8, p. 34. Tr., pp. 220-221. Respondent further advised that the Electronic Medical Record ("EMR") flagged potential interactions between drugs when he prescribes them. P. Exh. 7, p. 4.; Tr., p. 190.

19. Respondent claimed that he did advise K.K. of the possible interactions between Levaquin and Tikosyn, but he told her that the interaction was very rare. He further claimed that he advised K.K. that the pharmacist is a safety net, and the pharmacist would call him to discuss the prescriptions if he missed anything. Tr., pp. 219-221; P. Exh. 8, pp. 35-37.

20. K.K. and Patient J.K. left Exceptional Urgent Care and went to Publix to fill the prescriptions. K.K. asked the pharmacist if any medications would interfere with any of Patient J.K.'s currently prescribed medications. The pharmacist advised her that the antibiotic Levaquin was contraindicated with Tikosyn. K.K. requested that prescription not be filled. Tr., pp. 176, 186, 188.

21. A note from the Publix pharmacy indicates that the pharmacist spoke with the K.K. regarding the interaction between Tikosyn and Levaquin, and K.K. did not want the prescription filled. Tr., p. 95; R. Exh. 8.

22. K.K. then called Exceptional Urgent Care and asked for a different antibiotic that would not interact with Patient's J.K.'s Tikosyn, but was told no by staff, and that she needed to contact Patient J.K.'s cardiologist. K.K. further verified with the staff member that Patient J.K. did not have an infection. Tr., pp. 177, 197.

23. K.K. received an additional call from staff at Exceptional Urgent Care later and was told by staff that Respondent insisted Patient J.K. take the prescribed medication. K.K. didn't understand why since it was contraindicated. Tr., p. 178.

24. K.K. then contacted the cardiology department of the V.A. in Wisconsin, who conducted their own research on possible interactions, and told her that under no circumstances should she give Patient J.K. the Levaquin as it was contraindicated with Tikosyn and could cause fatal heart arrhythmia. Tr., p. 178-179, 200.

25. A certified copy of the progress notes from the V.A. cardiology department reflects a phone call took place on March 16, 2018, with K.K. who informed staff that Patient J.K. was prescribed Levaquin for "bad allergies". K.K.'s testimony at the final hearing that the pharmacist informed her that Levaquin was contraindicated with Tikosyn, but Respondent still wanted Patient J.K. to take a Levaquin even after she told him about the contraindication was consistent with her contemporaneous statements recorded by the cardiology staff at the V.A. Hospital. The staff at the VA in Wisconsin then instructed K.K. to listen to the pharmacist and not take the Levaquin. P. Exh. 5., p.2.

26. Respondent testified he had a personal conversation with K.K. after a courtesy call was placed the next day. Respondent claims that K.K. asked for his permission not to give the Levaquin to her husband. Respondent testified that he explained Levaquin was the drug of choice, other medications would not cover J.K.'s pneumonia, the potential interactions were very rare, and Patient J.K. needed to take the Levaquin. By his own account, Respondent did not provide K.K. with any specific alternative antibiotics and insisted at least three times that Patient J.K. needed to take the Levaquin. Tr., p. 221-222; P. Exh. 8, p. 48.

27. K.K. testified she never personally spoke to Respondent on the phone. Further, K.K. testified Respondent never discussed the risks of using Levaquin with Tikosyn or provided any alternatives to the Levaquin. Tr., pp. 175-176, 179-180, 203-206.

28. Patients K.K. and J.K. clearly remembered their interactions with Respondent and their account is corroborated by available medical records and collateral sources. Their testimony is credited over Respondent's account which is not supported by his own contemporaneous records.

29. Dr. Anthony Davis testified as a medical expert for Petitioner. Dr. Davis has been board certified in family practice through the American Board of Osteopathic Family Physicians since 2001, and board certified in emergency medicine through AAPS since July 2003. Tr., pp. 51-52; P. Exh. 9.

30. Dr. Davis works at the V.A. Hospital in St. Petersburg, Florida. He also worked at Southbay Hospital in the emergency department during the times material to this complaint. He treated walk-in patients, and patients with conditions similar to those of Patient J.K. Tr., p. 50-51, 54; P. Exh. 9.

31. Dr. Davis credibly testified to the importance of knowing the underlying conditions of patients due to potential complications between medications. He further testified there are common programs used to determine drug interactions such as Up To Date and Epocrates, which are standard prescription databases that list the potential drug interactions for all medical practitioners. Tr., pp. 58-59.

32. Dr. Davis opined that the finding of scattered ground-glass opacification on the March 16, 2018, CT scan of Patient J.K.'s chest was non-specific, meaning it did not clearly indicate a single diagnosis, and could be an indicator of multiple conditions. Dr. Davis testified that ground glass does not correlate to acute infection. Tr., pp. 58-59, 106-108. He further opined there were multiple treatment options available for Patient J.K., such as supportive care or an antibiotic with a lower risk of interaction with Patient J.K.'s existing medication. Tr., p. 59.

33. Levaquin and Tikosyn are contraindicated due to the risk of dangerous interaction, including ventricular fibrillation and torsades, which is an electrical disturbance of the heart where it becomes erratic and the heart can stop. Tr., p. 61. Dr. Davis testified that entering the two medications in to the Epocrates or

Up to Date drug interaction programs both indicate the drugs are contraindicated and instruct the practitioner to find alternatives. Tr., p. 61. Further, Levaquin is a medication that comes with a black box warning that requires physicians to counsel patients on the risks associated. Tr., p. 62-63.

34. Dr. Davis testified that there are safer alternatives to Levaquin that would effectively treat pneumonia, such as doxycycline, if Patient J.K. actually had pneumonia and an antibiotic was necessary. Tr., pp. 65-66.

35. The standard of care requires an osteopathic physician treating a patient similar to J.K. to (1) provide and document their justification for why Levaquin was the appropriate drug of choice; (2) note their acknowledgment that there are interactions with Tikosyn; (3) ensure the patient understands the risks and benefits of combining Tikosyn and Levaquin; (4) explain to the patient that there are limited to no alternatives; and (5) qualify the reason for prescribing a potentially dangerous drug. Tr., p. 69. When a drug comes up as contraindicated as a category X for interaction, the standard of care requires the physician to clearly explain to the patient why they are using the drug and to defend how it is going to be safe. Tr., p. 70.

36. A reasonably prudent osteopathic physician can rely on their own experience when choosing a treatment modality, but he or she will also utilize multiple resources to determine the appropriate treatment for the patient, such as the pneumonia severity index scoring, and other resources on the M.D. calculator. Tr., pp. 68-69.

37. Respondent did not meet the prevailing standard of care in his treatment of Patient J.K. because there is insufficient documentation to support or justify the use of Levaquin. There is no documentation of any risk/benefit analysis that would justify the potentially fatal use of Levaquin in combination with Tiksoyn. Further, there is no documentation that suggests Respondent clearly explained the risk and benefits to the patient. Tr., p. 71-73.

38. Dr. Davis testified that if a prescription poses a significant concern, the pharmacist often calls to confer with the physician. However, if the patient independently puts the physician on notice of being prescribed a medication with potential contraindications, the physician must understand those medications and treat the whole patient. Tr., pp. 70-71, 93-94.

39. Respondent provided literature from the Infectious Diseases Society of America related to community acquired pneumonia in an attempt to prove that X-Ray or other imaging techniques are required for the diagnosis of pneumonia and to support his claim that Levaquin was the drug of choice for Patient J.K. R. Exh. 7. However, Dr. Davis pointed out that the article is from 2007 and is no longer accurate. Dr. Davis testified that there are several other sources available to physicians, such as Epocrates and Up To Date, that contradict this article. Tr., pp. 129-131. Dr. Davis credibly testified that Levaquin received a black box warning around 2008 or 2009 and that the possible interaction between Levaquin and heart conditions similar to Patient J.K.'s was known even before 2008. Tr., pp. 62-63. Dr. Davis' testimony was clear, concise, and his opinion is credited.

40. Respondent moved to strike Dr. Davis' expert testimony under Daubert due to a lack of formal training or board certification in internal medicine, arguing he would not be qualified to opine on an urgent care center. After an analysis of Dr. Davis' credentials, the Court determined Dr. Davis was qualified to testify in the given case based on his experience and board certifications in emergency medicine and family medicine.

41. Respondent holds no board certifications. Respondent's defense relies on literature that was 12 years old and no longer accurate at the time he treated Patient J.K. in March 2018. Tr., p. 62, 155 - 162. Respondent's testimony, to the extent that it conflicts with Patient J.K.'s factual account and Dr. Davis' opinions, is not credited.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

42. DOAH has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties to this action pursuant to sections 120.569 and 120.57(1), Florida Statutes (2017).

43. Petitioner is the state agency charged with regulating the practice of osteopathic medicine. See § 20.43, ch. 456, ch. 459, Fla. Stat.

44. Because Petitioner seeks to impose license discipline, Petitioner has the burden to prove its allegations by clear and convincing evidence. See Dep't of Banking & Fin. v. Osborne Stern & Co., Inc., 670 So. 2d 932 (Fla. 1996); Ferris v. Turlington, 510 So. 2d 292 (Fla. 1987). This "entails both a qualitative and quantitative standard. The evidence must be credible; the memories of the witnesses must be clear and without confusion; and the sum total of the evidence must be of sufficient weight to convince the trier of fact without hesitancy." In re Davey, 645 So. 2d 398, 404 (Fla. 1994). See also Slomowitz v. Walker, 429 So. 2d 797, 800 (Fla. 4th DCA 1983). "Although this standard of proof may be met where the evidence is in conflict,... it seems to preclude evidence that is ambiguous." Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Shuler Bros., Inc., 590 So. 2d 986, 988 (Fla. 1st DCA 1991).

45. Section 459.015(1)(x) provides in relevant part:

"[t]he following acts constitute grounds for denial of a license or disciplinary action, as specified in s. 456.072(2):

(x) Notwithstanding s. 456.072(2) but as specified in s. 456.50(2):

1. Committing medical malpractice as defined in s. 456.50. The board shall give great weight to the provisions of s. 766.102 when enforcing this paragraph. Medical malpractice shall not be construed to require more than one instance, event, or act.

2. Committing gross medical malpractice.

3. Committing repeated medical malpractice as defined in s. 456.50. A person found by the board to have committed repeated medical malpractice based on s. 456.50 may not be licensed or continue to be licensed by this state to provide health care services as a medical doctor in this state.

46. Section 456.50 states in relevant part:

(e) "Level of care, skill, and treatment recognized in general law related to health care licensure" means the standard of care specified in s. 766.102.

(f) "Medical doctor" means a physician licensed pursuant to chapter 458 or chapter 459.

(g) "Medical malpractice" means the failure to practice medicine in accordance with the level of care, skill, and treatment recognized in general law related to health care licensure. Only for the purpose of finding repeated medical malpractice pursuant to this section, any similar wrongful act, neglect, or default committed in another state or country which, if committed in this state, would have been considered medical malpractice as defined in this paragraph, shall be considered medical malpractice if the standard of care and burden of proof applied in the other state or country equaled or exceeded that used in this state.

(h) "Repeated medical malpractice" means three or more incidents of medical malpractice found to have been committed by a medical doctor. Only an incident occurring on or after November 2, 2004, shall be considered an incident for purposes of finding repeated medical malpractice under this section.

47. Section 766.102 defines the prevailing professional standard of care as "the prevailing professional standard of care for a given health care provider shall be that level of care, skill, and treatment which, in light of all relevant surrounding circumstances, is recognized as acceptable and appropriate by reasonably prudent similar health care providers.”

48. Petitioner alleges that Respondent violated Section 459.015(1)(x) by failing to meet the prevailing professional standard of care in his treatment of Patient J.K.

49. The standard of care required Respondent to counsel J.K. on all of the risks associated with using Levaquin in combination with Tikosyn, provide him with available alternatives to Levaquin, and to document a full risk/benefit analysis.

50. As detailed in the Findings of Fact, K.K. credibly testified that neither she nor Patient J.K. were counseled on the risks of using Levaquin with Tikosyn, but instead, were directed to discuss the medications with the pharmacist. K.K.’s testimony was clear, without confusion, and strengthened by the record of her contemporaneous statements in the notes from the V.A. hospital in Wisconsin.

51. Respondent testified he explained the benefits outweighed the rare risk and that no alternatives were available based on the diagnosis, but he failed to provide any documentation or outside testimony to verify that the risks were fully explained. The medical record only reflects that the risks of not taking the medication were discussed after a phone call with K.K. the day after the appointment took place. Dr. Davis credibly testified that the standard of care required that the patient understand the risks and benefits of combining Tikosyn and Levaquin when prescribing the medication and that Respondent qualify the reason for prescribing a potentially dangerous drug.

52. K.K. credibly testified she called Respondent's office requesting an alternative after her discussion of an interaction between the medications with the Publix pharmacist. K.K. credibly testified she was told Patient J.K. needed to take the Levaquin, and no alternatives were offered. Her testimony was supported by the certified progress notes provided from the Wisconsin V.A. cardiology department regarding a phone call that took place on March 16, 2018. The notes indicate K.K. was advised that Patient J.K. should not take the contraindicated medication. Further, the Publix pharmacy notes clearly indicate K.K. did not want to fill the prescription because of an interaction. Further, Respondent offered no evidence that he did offer alternatives, only that he repeatedly stated Levaquin was the drug of choice and no other antibiotic would treat Patient J.K.'s pneumonia, despite the credible testimony of Dr. Davis to the contrary.

53. Dr. Davis credibly testified that Respondent's assertion that Levaquin was the drug of choice was not consistent with current medical knowledge, and there were several tools easily available to Respondent once K.K. put him on notice of the potential for contraindications.

54. As detailed in the Findings of Fact, Petitioner proved by clear and convincing evidence that Respondent failed to counsel Patient J.K. on the risks of, or alternatives to, using Levaquin in combination with Tikosyn.

55. Based on the foregoing, Petitioner has proven by clear and convincing evidence that Respondent violated section 459.015(1)(x), Florida Statutes (2017), by committing medical malpractice in his treatment of Patient J.K.

RECOMMENDATION

Based on the foregoing Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, it is RECOMMENDED that that the Board of Osteopathic Medicine enter a Final Order:

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Improving the care of adult patients with community-acquired pneumonia (CAP) has been the focus of many different organizations, and several have developed guidelines for management of CAP. Two of the most widely referenced are those of the Infectious Diseases Society of America (IDSA) and the American Thoracic Society (ATS). In response to confusion regarding differences between their respective guidelines, the IDSA and the ATS convened a joint committee to develop a unified CAP guideline document.

The guidelines are intended primarily for use by emergency medicine physicians, hospitalists, and primary care practitioners; however, the extensive literature evaluation suggests that they are also an appropriate starting point for consultation by specialists. Substantial overlap exists among the patients whom these guidelines address and those discussed in the recently published guidelines for health care–associated pneumonia (HCAP). Pneumonia in nonambulatory residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities epidemiologically mirrors hospital-acquired pneumonia and should be treated according to the HCAP guidelines. However, certain other patients whose conditions are included in the designation of HCAP are better served by management in accordance with CAP guidelines with concern for specific pathogens.

Implementation of Guideline Recommendations

1. Locally adapted guidelines should be implemented to improve process of care variables and relevant clinical outcomes. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

It is important to realize that guidelines cannot always account for individual variation among patients. They are not intended to supplant physician judgment with respect to particular patients or special clinical situations. The IDSA considers adherence to these guidelines to be voluntary, with the ultimate determination regarding their application to be made by the physician in the light of each patient's individual circumstances.

This official statement of the Infectious Diseases Society of America (IDSA) and the American Thoracic Society (ATS) was approved by the IDSA Board of Directors on 5 November 2006 and the ATS Board of Directors on 29 September 2006.

Enthusiasm for developing these guidelines derives, in large part, from evidence that previous CAP guidelines have led to improvement in clinically relevant outcomes. Consistently beneficial effects in clinically relevant parameters (listed in table 3) followed the introduction of a comprehensive protocol (including a combination of components from table 2) that increased compliance with published guidelines. The first recommendation, therefore, is that CAP management guidelines be locally adapted and implemented.

Documented benefits.

2. CAP guidelines should address a comprehensive set of elements in the process of care rather than a single element in isolation. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)
3. Development of local CAP guidelines should be directed toward improvement in specific and clinically relevant outcomes. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Site-of-Care Decisions

Almost all of the major decisions regarding management of CAP, including diagnostic and treatment issues, revolve around the initial assessment of severity. Site-of-care decisions (e.g., hospital vs. outpatient, intensive care unit [ICU] vs. general ward) are important areas for improvement in CAP management.

Hospital admission decision.

4. Severity-of-illness scores, such as the CURB-65 criteria (confusion, uremia, respiratory rate, low blood pressure, age 65 years or greater), or prognostic models, such as the Pneumonia Severity Index (PSI), can be used to identify patients with CAP who may be candidates for outpatient treatment. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
5. Objective criteria or scores should always be supplemented with physician determination of subjective factors, including the ability to safely and reliably take oral medication and the availability of outpatient support resources. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
6. For patients with CURB-65 scores  $\geq 2$ , more-intensive treatment—that is, hospitalization or, where appropriate and available, intensive in-home health care services—is usually warranted. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Physicians often admit patients to the hospital who could be well managed as outpatients and who would generally prefer to be treated as outpatients. Objective scores, such as the CURB-65 score or the PSI, can assist in identifying patients who may be appropriate for outpatient care, but the use of such scores must be tempered by the physician's determination of additional critical factors, including the ability to safely and reliably take oral medication and the availability of outpatient support resources.

ICU admission decision.

7. Direct admission to an ICU is required for patients with septic shock requiring vasopressors or with acute respiratory failure requiring intubation and mechanical ventilation. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
8. Direct admission to an ICU or high-level monitoring unit is recommended for patients with 3 of the minor criteria for severe CAP listed in table 4. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

In some studies, a significant percentage of patients with CAP are transferred to the ICU in the first 24–48 h after hospitalization. Mortality and morbidity among these patients appears to be greater than those among patients admitted directly to the ICU. Conversely, ICU resources are often overstretched in many institutions, and the admission of patients with CAP who would not directly benefit from ICU care is also problematic. Unfortunately, none of the published criteria for severe CAP adequately distinguishes these patients from those for whom ICU admission is necessary. In the present set of guidelines, a new set of criteria has been developed on the basis of data on individual risks, although the previous ATS criteria format is retained. In addition to the 2 major criteria (need for mechanical ventilation and septic shock), an expanded set of minor criteria (respiratory rate,  $>30$  breaths/min; arterial oxygen pressure/fraction of inspired oxygen ( $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$ ) ratio,  $<250$ ; multilobar infiltrates; confusion; blood urea nitrogen level,  $>20$  mg/dL; leukopenia resulting from infection; thrombocytopenia; hypothermia; or hypotension requiring aggressive fluid resuscitation) is proposed (table 4). The presence of at least 3 of these criteria suggests the need for ICU care but will require prospective validation.

Diagnostic Testing

9. In addition to a constellation of suggestive clinical features, a demonstrable infiltrate by chest radiograph or other imaging technique, with or without supporting microbiological data, is required for the diagnosis of pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Recommended diagnostic tests for etiology.

10. Patients with CAP should be investigated for specific pathogens that would significantly alter standard (empirical) management decisions, when the presence of such pathogens is suspected on the basis of clinical and epidemiologic clues. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

Recommendations for diagnostic testing remain controversial. The overall low yield and infrequent positive impact on clinical care argue against the routine use of common tests, such as blood and sputum cultures. Conversely, these cultures may have a major impact on the care of an individual patient and are important for epidemiologic reasons, including the antibiotic susceptibility patterns used to develop treatment guidelines. A list of clinical indications for more extensive diagnostic testing (table 5) was, therefore, developed, primarily on the basis of 2 criteria: (1) when the result is likely to change individual antibiotic management and (2) when the test is likely to have the highest yield.

11. Routine diagnostic tests to identify an etiologic diagnosis are optional for outpatients with CAP. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
12. Pretreatment blood samples for culture and an expectorated sputum sample for stain and culture (in patients with a productive cough) should be obtained from hospitalized patients with the clinical indications listed in table 5 but are optional for patients without these conditions. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)
13. Pretreatment Gram stain and culture of expectorated sputum should be performed only if a good-quality specimen can be obtained and quality performance measures for collection, transport, and processing of samples can be met. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)
14. Patients with severe CAP, as defined above, should at least have blood samples drawn for culture, urinary antigen tests for Legionella pneumophila and Streptococcus pneumoniae performed, and expectorated sputum samples collected for culture. For intubated patients, an endotracheal aspirate sample should be obtained. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The most clear-cut indication for extensive diagnostic testing is in the critically ill CAP patient. Such patients should at least have blood drawn for culture and an endotracheal aspirate obtained if they are intubated; consideration should be given to more extensive testing, including urinary antigen tests for L. pneumophila and S. pneumoniae and Gram stain and culture of expectorated sputum in nonintubated patients. For inpatients without the clinical indications listed in table 5, diagnostic testing is optional (but should not be considered wrong).

Antibiotic Treatment

Empirical antimicrobial therapy. Empirical antibiotic recommendations (table 7) have not changed significantly from those in previous guidelines. Increasing evidence has strengthened the recommendation for combination empirical therapy for severe CAP. Only 1 recently released antibiotic has been added to the recommendations: ertapenem, as an acceptable  $\beta$ -lactam alternative for hospitalized patients with risk factors for infection with gram-negative pathogens other than Pseudomonas aeruginosa. At present, the committee is awaiting further evaluation of the safety of telithromycin by the US Food and Drug Administration before making its final recommendation regarding this drug. Recommendations are generally for a class of antibiotics rather than for a specific drug, unless outcome data clearly favor one drug. Because overall efficacy remains good for many classes of agents, the more potent drugs are given preference because of their benefit in decreasing the risk of selection for antibiotic resistance.

Outpatient treatment

15. Previously healthy and no risk factors for drug-resistant S. pneumoniae (DRSP) infection:
  - A. A macrolide (azithromycin, clarithromycin, or erythromycin) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. Doxycycline (weak recommendation; level III evidence)
16. Presence of comorbidities, such as chronic heart, lung, liver, or renal disease; diabetes mellitus; alcoholism; malignancies; asplenia; immunosuppressing conditions or use of immunosuppressing drugs; use of antimicrobials within the previous 3 months (in which case an alternative from a different class should be selected); or other risks for DRSP infection:
  - A. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (moxifloxacin, gemifloxacin, or levofloxacin [750 mg]) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (High-dose amoxicillin [e.g., 1 g 3 times daily] or amoxicillin-clavulanate [2 g 2 times daily] is preferred; alternatives include ceftriaxone, cefpodoxime, and cefuroxime [500 mg 2 times daily]; doxycycline [level II evidence] is an alternative to the macrolide.)
17. In regions with a high rate (>25%) of infection with high-level (MIC,  $\geq 16$   $\mu\text{g}/\text{mL}$ ) macrolide-resistant S. pneumoniae, consider the use of alternative agents listed above in recommendation 16 for any patient, including those without comorbidities. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Inpatient, non-ICU treatment

18. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
19. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (Preferred  $\beta$ -lactam agents include cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, and ampicillin; ertapenem for selected patients; with doxycycline [level III evidence] as an alternative to the macrolide. A respiratory fluoroquinolone should be used for penicillin-allergic patients.)

Increasing resistance rates have suggested that empirical therapy with a macrolide alone can be used only for the treatment of carefully selected hospitalized patients with nonsevere disease and without risk factors for infection with drug-resistant pathogens. However, such monotherapy cannot be routinely recommended.

Inpatient, ICU treatment

20. A  $\beta$ -lactam (cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, or ampicillin-sulbactam) plus either azithromycin (level II evidence) or a fluoroquinolone (level I evidence) (strong recommendation) (For penicillin-allergic patients, a respiratory fluoroquinolone and aztreonam are recommended.)
21. For Pseudomonas infection, use an antipneumococcal, antipseudomonal  $\beta$ -lactam (piperacillin-tazobactam, ceftipime, imipenem, or meropenem) plus either ciprofloxacin or levofloxacin (750-mg dose)
or
the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and azithromycin
or
the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and an antipneumococcal fluoroquinolone (for penicillin-allergic patients, substitute aztreonam for the above  $\beta$ -lactam). (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
22. For community-acquired methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus infection, add vancomycin or linezolid. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Infections with the overwhelming majority of CAP pathogens will be adequately treated by use of the recommended empirical regimens. The emergence of methicillin-resistant S. aureus as a CAP pathogen and the small but significant incidence of CAP due to P. aeruginosa are the exceptions. These pathogens occur in specific epidemiologic patterns and/or with certain clinical presentations, for which empirical antibiotic coverage may be warranted. However, diagnostic tests are likely to be of high yield for these pathogens, allowing early discontinuation of empirical treatment if results are negative. The risk factors are included in the table 5 recommendations for indications for increased diagnostic testing.

Pathogens suspected on the basis of epidemiologic considerations.

Risk factors for other uncommon etiologies of CAP are listed in table 8, and recommendations for treatment are included in table 9.

Pathogen-directed therapy.

23. Once the etiology of CAP has been identified on the basis of reliable microbiological methods, antimicrobial therapy should be directed at that pathogen. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
24. Early treatment (within 48 h of the onset of symptoms)

with oseltamivir or zanamivir is recommended for influenza A. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

25. Use of oseltamivir and zanamivir is not recommended for patients with uncomplicated influenza with symptoms for >48 h (level I evidence), but these drugs may be used to reduce viral shedding in hospitalized patients or for influenza pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Pandemic influenza

26. Patients with an illness compatible with influenza and with known exposure to poultry in areas with previous H5N1 infection should be tested for H5N1 infection. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
27. In patients with suspected H5N1 infection, droplet precautions and careful routine infection control measures should be used until an H5N1 infection is ruled out. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
28. Patients with suspected H5N1 infection should be treated with oseltamivir (level II evidence) and antibacterial agents targeting S. pneumoniae and S. aureus, the most common causes of secondary bacterial pneumonia in patients with influenza (level III evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)

Time to first antibiotic dose.

29. For patients admitted through the emergency department (ED), the first antibiotic dose should be administered while still in the ED. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Rather than designating a specific window in which to initiate treatment, the committee felt that hospitalized patients with CAP should receive the first antibiotic dose in the ED.

Switch from intravenous to oral therapy.

30. Patients should be switched from intravenous to oral therapy when they are hemodynamically stable and improving clinically, are able to ingest medications, and have a normally functioning gastrointestinal tract. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
31. Patients should be discharged as soon as they are clinically stable, have no other active medical problems, and have a safe environment for continued care. Inpatient observation while receiving oral therapy is not necessary. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

Duration of antibiotic therapy.

32. Patients with CAP should be treated for a minimum of 5 days (level I evidence), should be afebrile for 48–72 h, and should have no more than 1 CAP-associated sign of clinical instability (table 10) before discontinuation of therapy (level II evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)

33. A longer duration of therapy may be needed if initial therapy was not active against the identified pathogen or if it was complicated by extrapulmonary infection, such as meningitis or endocarditis. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)

Other Treatment Considerations

34. Patients with CAP who have persistent septic shock despite adequate fluid resuscitation should be considered for treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated within 24 h of admission. (Weak recommendation; level II evidence.)
35. Hypotensive, fluid-resuscitated patients with severe CAP should be screened for occult adrenal insufficiency. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)
36. Patients with hypoxemia or respiratory distress should receive a cautious trial of noninvasive ventilation unless they require immediate intubation because of severe hypoxemia ( $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$  ratio,  $<150$ ) and bilateral alveolar infiltrates. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)
37. Low-tidal-volume ventilation ( $6 \text{ cm}^3/\text{kg}$  of ideal body weight) should be used for patients undergoing ventilation who have diffuse bilateral pneumonia or acute respiratory distress syndrome. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Management of Nonresponding Pneumonia

Definitions and classification.

38. The use of a systematic classification of possible causes of failure to respond, based on time of onset and type of failure (table 11), is recommended. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

As many as 15% of patients with CAP may not respond appropriately to initial antibiotic therapy. A systematic approach to these patients (table 11) will help to determine the cause. Because determination of the cause of failure is more accurate if the original microbiological etiology is known, risk factors for nonresponse or deterioration (table 12) figure prominently in the list of situations in which more aggressive and/or extensive initial diagnostic testing is warranted (table 5).

Prevention (see table 13)

39. All persons  $\geq 50$  years of age, others at risk for influenza complications, household contacts of high-risk persons, and health care workers should receive inactivated influenza vaccine as recommended by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

40. The intranasally administered live attenuated vaccine is an alternative vaccine formulation for some persons 5–49 years of age without chronic underlying diseases, including immunodeficiency, asthma, or chronic medical conditions. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
41. Health care workers in inpatient and outpatient settings and long-term care facilities should receive annual influenza immunization. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
42. Pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine is recommended for persons  $\geq 65$  years of age and for those with selected high-risk concurrent diseases, according to current Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices guidelines. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
43. Vaccination status should be assessed at the time of hospital admission for all patients, especially those with medical illnesses. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
44. Vaccination may be performed either at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
45. Influenza vaccine should be offered to persons at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment during the fall and winter. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)
46. Smoking cessation should be a goal for persons hospitalized with CAP who smoke. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
47. Smokers who will not quit should also be vaccinated for both pneumococcus and influenza. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)
48. Cases of pneumonia that are of public health concern should be reported immediately to the state or local health department. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)
49. Respiratory hygiene measures, including the use of hand hygiene and masks or tissues for patients with cough, should be used in outpatient settings and EDs as a means to reduce the spread of respiratory infections. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

INTRODUCTION

Improving the care of patients with community-acquired pneumonia (CAP) has been the focus of many different organizations. Such efforts at improvement in care are warranted, because CAP, together with influenza, remains the seventh leading cause of death in the United States [1]. According to one estimate, 915,900 episodes of CAP occur in adults  $\geq 65$  years of age each year in the United States [2]. Despite advances in antimicrobial therapy, rates of mortality due to pneumonia have not decreased significantly since penicillin became routinely available [3].

Groups interested in approaches to the management of CAP include professional societies, such as the American Thoracic Society (ATS) and the Infectious Diseases Society of America (IDSA); government agencies or their contract agents, such as the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services and the Department of Veterans Affairs; and voluntary accrediting agencies, such as the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. In addition, external review groups and consumer groups have chosen CAP outcomes as major quality indicators. Such interest has resulted in numerous guidelines for the management of CAP [4]. Some of these guidelines represent truly different perspectives, including differences in health care systems, in the availability of diagnostic tools or therapeutic agents, or in either the etiology or the antibiotic susceptibility of common causative microorganisms. The most widely referenced guidelines in the United States have been those published by the ATS [5, 6] and the IDSA [7–9].

Differences, both real and imagined, between the ATS and IDSA guidelines have led to confusion for individual physicians, as well as for other groups who use these published guidelines rather than promulgating their own. In response to this concern, the IDSA and the ATS convened a joint committee to develop a unified CAP guideline document. This document represents a consensus of members of both societies, and both governing councils have approved the statement.

Purpose and scope. The purpose of this document is to update clinicians with regard to important advances and controversies in the management of patients with CAP. The committee chose not to address CAP occurring in immunocompromised patients, including solid organ, bone marrow, or stem cell transplant recipients; patients receiving cancer chemotherapy or long-term (>30 days) high-dose corticosteroid treatment; and patients with congenital or acquired immunodeficiency or those infected with HIV who have CD4 cell counts <350 cells/mm<sup>3</sup>, although many of these patients may be infected with the same microorganisms. Pneumonia in children (≤18 years of age) is also not addressed.

Substantial overlap exists among the patients these guidelines address and those discussed in the recently published guidelines for health care–associated pneumonia (HCAP) [10]. Two issues are pertinent: (1) an increased risk of infection with drug-resistant isolates of usual CAP pathogens, such as Streptococcus pneumoniae, and (2) an increased risk of infection with less common, usually hospital-associated pathogens, such as Pseudomonas and Acinetobacter species and methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA). Pneumonia in nonambulatory residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities epidemiologically mirrors hospital-acquired pneumonia and should be treated according to the HCAP guidelines. However, certain other patients whose conditions are included under the designation of HCAP are better served by management in accordance with CAP guidelines with concern for specific pathogens. For example, long-term dialysis alone is a risk for MRSA infection but does not necessarily predispose patients to infection with other HCAP pathogens, such as Pseudomonas aeruginosa or Acinetobacter species. On the other hand, certain patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) are at greater risk for infection with Pseudomonas species but not MRSA. These issues will be discussed in specific sections below.

The committee started with the premise that mortality due to CAP can be decreased. We, therefore, have placed the greatest emphasis on aspects of the guidelines that have been associated with decreases in mortality. For this reason, the document focuses mainly on management and minimizes discussions of such factors as pathophysiology, pathogenesis, mechanisms of antibiotic resistance, and virulence factors.

The committee recognizes that the majority of patients with CAP are cared for by primary care, hospitalist, and emergency medicine physicians [11], and these guidelines are, therefore, directed primarily at them. The committee consisted of infectious diseases, pulmonary, and critical care physicians with interest and expertise in pulmonary infections. The expertise of the committee and the extensive literature evaluation suggest that these guidelines are also an appropriate starting point for consultation by these types of physicians.

Although much of the literature cited originates in Europe, these guidelines are oriented toward the United States and Canada. Although the guidelines are generally applicable to other parts of the world, local antibiotic resistance patterns, drug availability, and variations in health care systems suggest that modification of these guidelines is prudent for local use.

Methodology. The process of guideline development started with the selection of committee cochairs by the presidents of the IDSA [12] and ATS [13], in consultation with other leaders in the respective societies. The committee cochairs were charged with selection of the rest of the committee. The IDSA members were those involved in the development of previous IDSA CAP guidelines [9], whereas ATS members were chosen in consultation with the leadership of the Mycobacteria Tuberculosis and Pulmonary Infection Assembly, with input from the chairs of the Clinical Pulmonary and Critical Care assemblies. Committee members were chosen to represent differing expertise and viewpoints on the various topics. One acknowledged weakness of this document is the lack of representation by primary care, hospitalist, and emergency medicine physicians.

The cochairs generated a general outline of the topics to be covered that was then circulated to committee members for input. A conference phone call was used to review topics and to discuss evidence grading and the general aims and expectations of the document. The topics were divided, and committee members were assigned by the cochairs and charged with presentation of their topic at an initial face-to-face meeting, as well as with development of a preliminary document dealing with their topic. Controversial topics were assigned to 2 committee members, 1 from each society.

An initial face-to-face meeting of a majority of committee members involved presentations of the most controversial topics, including admission decisions, diagnostic strategies, and antibiotic therapy. Prolonged discussions followed each presentation, with consensus regarding the major issues achieved before moving to the next topic. With input from the rest of the committee, each presenter and committee member assigned to the less controversial topics prepared an initial draft of their section, including grading of the evidence. Iterative drafts of the statement were developed and distributed by e-mail for critique, followed by multiple revisions by the primary authors. A second face-to-face meeting was also held for discussion of the less controversial areas and further critique of the initial drafts. Once general agreement on the separate topics was obtained, the coauthors incorporated the separate documents into a single statement, with substantial editing for style and consistency. The document was then redistributed to committee members to review and update with new information from the literature up to June 2006. Recommended changes were reviewed by all committee members by e-mail and/or conference phone call and were incorporated into the final document by the coauthors.

This document was then submitted to the societies for approval. Each society independently selected reviewers, and changes recommended by the reviewers were discussed by the committee and incorporated into the final document. The guideline was then submitted to the IDSA Governing Council and the ATS Board of Directors for final approval.

Grading of guideline recommendations. Initially, the committee decided to grade only the strength of the evidence, using a 3-tier scale (table 1) used in a recent guideline from both societies [10]. In response to reviewers' comments and the maturation of the field of guideline development [14], a separate grading of the strength of the recommendations was added to the final draft. More extensive and validated criteria, such as GRADE [14], were impractical for use at this stage. The 3-tier scale similar to that used in other IDSA guideline documents [12] and familiar to many of the committee members was therefore chosen.

The strength of each recommendation was graded as "strong," "moderate," or "weak." Each committee member independently graded each recommendation on the basis of not only the evidence but also expert interpretation and clinical applicability. The final grading of each recommendation was a composite of the individual committee members' grades. For the final document, a strong recommendation required  $\geq 6$  (of

12) of the members to consider it to be strong and the majority of the others to grade it as moderate.

The implication of a strong recommendation is that most patients should receive that intervention. Significant variability in the management of patients with CAP is well documented. Some who use guidelines suggest that this variability itself is undesirable. Industrial models suggesting that variability per se is undesirable may not always be relevant to medicine [15]. Such models do not account for substantial variability among patients, nor do they account for variable end points, such as limitation of care in patients with end-stage underlying diseases who present with CAP. For this reason, the committee members feel strongly that 100% compliance with guidelines is not the desired goal. However, the rationale for variation from a strongly recommended guideline should be apparent from the medical record.

Conversely, moderate or weak recommendations suggest that, even if a majority would follow the recommended management, many practitioners may not. Deviation from guidelines may occur for a variety of reasons [16, 17]. One document cannot cover all of the variable settings, unique hosts, or epidemiologic patterns that may dictate alternative management strategies, and physician judgment should always supersede guidelines. This is borne out by the finding that deviation from guidelines is greatest in the treatment of patients with CAP admitted to the ICU [18]. In addition, few of the recommendations have level I evidence to support them, and most are, therefore, legitimate topics for future research. Subsequent publication of studies documenting that care that deviates from guidelines results in better outcomes will stimulate revision of the guidelines. The committee anticipates that this will occur, and, for this reason, both the ATS and IDSA leaderships have committed to the revision of these guidelines on a regular basis.

We recognize that these guidelines may be used as a measure of quality of care for hospitals and individual practitioners. Although these guidelines are evidence based, the committee strongly urges that deviations from them not necessarily be considered substandard care, unless they are accompanied by evidence for worse outcomes in a studied population.

IMPLEMENTATION OF GUIDELINE RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Locally adapted guidelines should be implemented to improve process of care variables and relevant clinical outcomes. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Enthusiasm for developing this set of CAP guidelines derives, in large part, from evidence that previous CAP guidelines have led to improvement in clinically relevant outcomes [17, 19–21]. Protocol design varies among studies, and the preferable randomized, parallel group design has been used in only a small minority. Confirmatory studies that use randomized, parallel groups with precisely defined treatments are still needed, but a consistent pattern of benefit is found in the other types of level I studies.

Documented benefits. Published protocols have varied in primary focus and comprehensiveness, and the corresponding benefits vary from one study to another. However, the most impressive aspect of this literature is the consistently beneficial effect seen in some clinically relevant parameter after the introduction of a protocol that increases compliance with published guidelines.

A decrease in mortality with the introduction of guideline-based protocols was found in several studies [19, 21]. A 5-year study of 28,700 patients with pneumonia who were admitted during implementation of a pneumonia guideline demonstrated that the crude 30-day mortality rate was 3.2% lower with the guideline (adjusted OR, 0.69; 95% CI, 0.49–0.97) [19], compared with that among patients treated concurrently by nonaffiliated physicians. After implementation of a practice guideline at one Spanish hospital [21], the survival rate at 30 days was higher (OR, 2.14; 95% CI, 1.23–3.72) than at baseline and in comparison with 4 other hospitals without overt protocols. Lower mortality was seen in other studies, although the differences were not statistically significant [22, 23]. Studies that documented lower mortality emphasized increasing the number of patients receiving guideline-recommended antibiotics, confirming results of the multivariate analysis of a retrospective review [24].

When the focus of a guideline was hospitalization, the number of less ill patients admitted to the hospital was consistently found to be lower. Using admission decision support, a prospective study of >1700 emergency department (ED) visits in 19 hospitals randomized between pathway and “conventional” management found that admission rates among low-risk patients at pathway hospitals decreased (from 49% to 31% of patients in Pneumonia Severity Index [PSI] classes I–III;  $P < .01$ ) without differences in patient satisfaction scores or rate of readmission [20]. Calculating the PSI score and assigning the risk class, providing oral clarithromycin, and home nursing follow-up significantly ( $P = .01$ ) decreased the number of low-mortality-risk admissions [25]. However, patient satisfaction among outpatients was lower after implementation of this guideline, despite survey data that suggested most patients would prefer outpatient treatment [26]. Of patients discharged from the ED, 9% required hospitalization within 30 days, although another study showed lower readmission rates with the use of a protocol [23]. Admission decision support derived from the 1993 ATS guideline [5] recommendations, combined with outpatient antibiotic recommendations, reduced the CAP hospitalization rate from 13.6% to 6.4% [23], and admission rates for other diagnoses were unchanged. Not surprisingly, the resultant overall cost of care decreased by half ( $P = .01$ ).

Protocols using guidelines to decrease the duration of hospitalization have also been successful. Guideline implementation in 31 Connecticut hospitals decreased the mean length of hospital stay (LOS) from 7 to 5 days ( $P < .001$ ) [27]. An ED-based protocol decreased the mean LOS from 9.7 to 6.4 days ( $P < .0001$ ), with the benefits of guideline implementation maintained 3 years after the initial study [22]. A 7-site trial, randomized by physician group, of guideline alone versus the same guideline with a multifaceted implementation strategy found that addition of an implementation strategy was associated with decreased duration of intravenous antibiotic therapy and LOS, although neither decrease was statistically significant [28]. Several other studies used guidelines to significantly shorten the LOS, by an average of >1.5 days [20, 21].

Markers of process of care can also change with the use of a protocol. The time to first antibiotic dose has been effectively decreased with CAP protocols [22, 27, 29]. A randomized, parallel group study introduced a pneumonia guideline in 20 of 36 small Oklahoma hospitals [29], with the identical protocol implemented in the remaining hospitals in a second phase. Serial measurement of key process measures showed significant improvement in time to first antibiotic dose and other variables, first in the initial 20 hospitals and later in the remaining 16 hospitals. Implementing a guideline in the ED halved the time to initial antibiotic dose [22].

2. CAP guidelines should address a comprehensive set of elements in the process of care rather than a single element in isolation. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

Common to all of the studies documented above, a comprehensive protocol was developed and implemented, rather than one addressing a single aspect of CAP care. No study has documented that simply changing 1 metric, such as time to first antibiotic dose, is associated with a decrease in mortality. Elements important in CAP guidelines are listed in table 2. Of these, rapid and appropriate empirical antibiotic therapy is consistently associated with improved outcome. We have also included elements of good care for general medical inpatients, such as early mobilization [30] and prophylaxis against thromboembolic disease [31]. Although local guidelines need not include all elements, a logical constellation of elements should be addressed.

3. Development of local CAP guidelines should be directed toward improvement in specific and clinically relevant outcomes. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

In instituting CAP protocol guidelines, the outcomes most relevant to the individual center or medical system should be addressed first. Unless a desire to change clinically relevant outcomes exists, adherence to guidelines will be low, and institutional resources committed to implement the guideline are likely to be insufficient. Guidelines for the treatment of pneumonia must use approaches that differ from current practice and must be successfully implemented before process of care and outcomes can change. For example, Rhew et al. [32] designed a guideline to decrease LOS that was unlikely to change care, because the recommended median LOS was longer than the existing LOS for CAP at the study hospitals. The difficulty in implementing guidelines and changing physician behavior has also been documented [28, 33].

Clinically relevant outcome parameters should be evaluated to measure the effect of the local guideline. Outcome parameters that can be used to measure the effect of implementation of a CAP guideline within an organization are listed in table 3. Just as it is important not to focus on one aspect of care, studying more than one outcome is also important. Improvements in one area may be offset by worsening in a related area; for example, decreasing admission of low-acuity patients might increase the number of return visits to the ED or hospital readmissions [25].

SITE-OF-CARE DECISIONS

Almost all of the major decisions regarding management of CAP, including diagnostic and treatment issues, revolve around the initial assessment of severity. We have, therefore, organized the guidelines to address this issue first.

Hospital admission decision. The initial management decision after diagnosis is to determine the site of care—outpatient, hospitalization in a medical ward, or admission to an ICU. The decision to admit the patient is the most costly issue in the management of CAP, because the cost of inpatient care for pneumonia is up to 25 times greater than that of outpatient care [34] and consumes the majority of the estimated $8.4–$10 billion spent yearly on treatment.

Other reasons for avoiding unnecessary admissions are that patients at low risk for death who are treated in the outpatient setting are able to resume normal activity sooner than those who are hospitalized, and 80% are reported to prefer outpatient therapy [26, 35]. Hospitalization also increases the risk of thromboembolic events and superinfection by more-virulent or resistant hospital bacteria [36].

4. Severity-of-illness scores, such as the CURB-65 criteria (confusion, uremia, respiratory rate, low blood pressure, age  $\geq 65$  years or greater), or prognostic models, such as the PSI, can be used to identify patients with CAP who may be candidates for outpatient treatment. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Significant variation in admission rates among hospitals and among individual physicians is well documented. Physicians often overestimate severity and hospitalize a significant number of patients at low risk for death [20, 37, 38]. Because of these issues, interest in objective site-of-care criteria has led to attempts by a number of groups to develop such criteria [39–48]. The relative merits and limitations of various proposed criteria have been carefully evaluated [49]. The 2 most interesting are the PSI [42] and the British Thoracic Society (BTS) criteria [39, 45].

The PSI is based on derivation and validation cohorts of 14,199 and 38,039 hospitalized patients with CAP, respectively, plus an additional 2287 combined inpatients and outpatients [42]. The PSI stratifies patients into 5 mortality risk classes, and its ability to predict mortality has been confirmed in multiple subsequent studies. On the basis of associated mortality rates, it has been suggested that risk class I and II patients should be treated as outpatients, risk class III patients should be treated in an observation unit or with a short hospitalization, and risk class IV and V patients should be treated as inpatients [42].

Yealy et al. [50] conducted a cluster-randomized trial of low-, moderate-, and high-intensity processes of guideline implementation in 32 EDs in the United States. Their guideline used the PSI for admission decision support and included recommendations for antibiotic therapy, timing of first antibiotic dose, measurement of oxygen saturation, and blood cultures for admitted patients. EDs with moderate- to high-intensity guideline implementation demonstrated more outpatient treatment of low-risk patients and higher compliance with antibiotic recommendations. No differences were found in mortality rate, rate of hospitalization, median time to return to work or usual activities, or patient satisfaction. This study differs from those reporting a mortality rate difference [19, 21] in that many hospitalized patients with pneumonia were not included. In addition, EDs with low-intensity guideline implementation formed the comparison group, rather than EDs practicing non-guideline, usual pneumonia care.

The BTS original criteria of 1987 have subsequently been modified [39, 51]. In the initial study, risk of death was increased 21-fold if a patient, at the time of admission, had at least 2 of the following 3 conditions: tachypnea, diastolic hypotension, and an elevated blood urea nitrogen (BUN) level. These criteria appear to function well except among patients with underlying renal insufficiency and among elderly patients [52, 53].

The most recent modification of the BTS criteria includes 5 easily measurable factors [45]. Multivariate analysis of 1068 patients identified the following factors as indicators of increased mortality: confusion (based on a specific mental test or disorientation to person, place, or time), BUN level  $>7$  mmol/L (20 mg/dL), respiratory rate  $\geq 30$  breaths/min, low blood pressure (systolic,  $<90$  mm Hg; or diastolic,  $\leq 60$  mm Hg), and age  $\geq 65$  years; this gave rise to the acronym CURB-65. In the derivation and validation cohorts, the 30-day mortality among patients with 0, 1, or 2 factors was 0.7%, 2.1%, and 9.2%, respectively. Mortality was higher when 3, 4, or 5 factors were present and was reported as 14.5%, 40%, and 57%, respectively. The authors suggested that patients with a CURB-65 score of 0–1 be treated as outpatients, that those with a score of 2 be admitted to the wards, and that patients with a score of  $\geq 3$  often required ICU care. A simplified version (CRB-65), which does not require testing for BUN level, may be appropriate for decision making in a primary care practitioner's office [54].

The use of objective admission criteria clearly can decrease the number of patients hospitalized with CAP [20, 23, 25, 55]. Whether the PSI or the CURB-65 score is superior is unclear, because no randomized trials of alternative admission criteria exist. When compared in the same population, the PSI classified a slightly larger percentage of patients with CAP in the low-risk categories, compared with the CURB or CURB-65 criteria, while remaining associated with a similar low mortality rate among patients categorized as low risk [56]. Several factors are important in this comparison. The PSI includes 20 different variables and, therefore, relies on the availability of scoring sheets, limiting its practicality in a busy ED [55]. In contrast, the CURB-65 criteria are easily remembered. However, CURB-65 has not been as extensively studied as the PSI, especially with prospective validation in other patient populations (e.g., the indigent inner-city population), and has not been specifically studied as a means of reducing hospital admission rates. In EDs with sufficient decision support resources (either human or computerized), the benefit of greater experience with the PSI score may favor its use for screening patients who may be candidates for outpatient management [50, 57–59].

5. Objective criteria or scores should always be supplemented with physician determination of subjective factors, including the ability to safely and reliably take oral medication and the availability of outpatient support resources. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

Studies show that certain patients with low PSI or CURB-65 scores [20, 60, 61] require hospital admission, even to the ICU [49, 62, 63]. Both scores depend on certain assumptions. One is that the main rationale for admission of a patient with CAP is risk of death. This assumption is clearly not valid in all cases. Another is that the laboratory and vital signs used for scoring are stable over time rather than indicative of transient abnormalities. This is also not true in all cases. Therefore, dynamic assessment over several hours of observation may be more accurate than a score derived at a single point in time. Although advantageous to making decisions regarding hospital admission, sole reliance on a score for the hospital admission decision is unsafe.

Reasons for the admission of low-mortality-risk patients fall into 4 categories: (1) complications of the pneumonia itself, (2) exacerbation of underlying diseases(s), (3) inability to reliably take oral medications or receive outpatient care, and/or (4) multiple risk factors falling just above or below thresholds for the score [62]. Use of the PSI score in clinical trials has demonstrated some of its limitations, which may be equally applicable to other scoring techniques. A modification of the original PSI score was needed when it was applied to the admission decision. An arterial saturation of <90% or an arterial oxygen pressure (PaO<sub>2</sub>) of <60 mm Hg as a complication of the pneumonia, was added as a sole indicator for admission for patients in risk classes I–III as an added “margin of safety” in one trial [42]. In addition to patients who required hospital admission because of hypoxemia, a subsequent study identified patients in low PSI risk classes (I–III) who needed hospital admission because of shock, decompensated coexisting illnesses, pleural effusion, inability to maintain oral intake, social problems (the patient was dependent or no caregiver was available), and lack of response to previous adequate empirical antibiotic therapy [64]. Of 178 patients in low PSI risk classes who were treated as inpatients, 106 (60%) presented with at least 1 of these factors. Other medical or psychosocial needs requiring hospital care include intractable vomiting, injection drug abuse, severe psychiatric illness, homelessness, poor overall functional status [65], and cognitive dysfunction [61, 66].

The PSI score is based on a history of diseases that increase risk of death, whereas the CURB-65 score does not directly address underlying disease. However, pneumonia may exacerbate an underlying disease, such as obstructive lung disease, congestive heart failure, or diabetes mellitus, which, by themselves, may require hospital admission [60, 67]. Atlas et al. [25] were able to reduce hospital admissions among patients in PSI risk classes I–III from 58% in a retrospective control group to 43% in a PSI-based intervention group. Ten of 94 patients in the latter group (compared with 0 patients in the control population) were subsequently admitted, several for reasons unrelated to their pneumonia. Also, the presence of rare illnesses, such as neuromuscular or sickle cell disease, may require hospitalization but not affect the PSI score.

The necessary reliance on dichotomous predictor variables (abnormal vs. normal) in most criteria and the heavy reliance on age as a surrogate in the PSI score may oversimplify their use for admission decisions. For example, a previously healthy 25-year-old patient with severe hypotension and tachycardia and no additional pertinent prognostic factors would be placed in risk class II, whereas a 70-year-old man with a history of localized prostate cancer diagnosed 10 months earlier and no other problems would be placed in risk class IV [42]. Finally, patient satisfaction was lower among patients treated outside the hospital in one study with a PSI-based intervention group [25], suggesting that the savings resulting from use of the PSI may be overestimated and that physicians should consider additional factors not measured by the PSI.

6. For patients with CURB-65 scores  $\geq 2$ , more-intensive treatment—that is, hospitalization or, where appropriate and available, intensive in-home health care services—is usually warranted. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Although the PSI and CURB-65 criteria are valuable aids in avoiding inappropriate admissions of low-mortality-risk patients, another important role of these criteria may be to help identify patients at high risk who would benefit from hospitalization. The committee preferred the CURB-65 criteria because of ease of use and because they were designed to measure illness severity more than the likelihood of mortality. Patients with a CURB-65 score  $\geq 2$  are not only at increased risk of death but also are likely to have clinically important physiologic derangements requiring active intervention. These patients should usually be considered for hospitalization or for aggressive in-home care, where available. In a cohort of ~3000 patients, the mortality with a CURB-65 score of 0 was only 1.2%, whereas 3–4 points were associated with 31% mortality [45].

Because the PSI score is not based as directly on severity of illness as are the CURB-65 criteria, a threshold for patients who would require hospital admission or intensive outpatient treatment is harder to define. The higher the score, the greater the need for hospitalization. However, even a patient who meets criteria for risk class V on the basis of very old age and multiple stable chronic illnesses may be successfully managed as an outpatient [23].

ICU admission decision.

7. Direct admission to an ICU is required for patients with septic shock requiring vasopressors or with acute respiratory failure requiring intubation and mechanical ventilation. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

8. Direct admission to an ICU or high-level monitoring unit is recommended for patients with 3 of the minor criteria for severe CAP listed in table 4. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The second-level admission decision is whether to place the patient in the ICU or a high-level monitoring unit rather than on a general medical floor. Approximately 10% of hospitalized patients with CAP require ICU admission [68–70], but the indications vary strikingly among patients, physicians, hospitals, and different health care systems. Some of the variability among institutions results from the availability of high-level monitoring or intermediate care units appropriate for patients at increased risk of complications. Because respiratory failure is the major reason for delayed transfer to the ICU, simple cardiac monitoring units would not meet the criteria for a high-level monitoring unit for patients with severe CAP. One of the most important determinants of the need for ICU care is the presence of chronic comorbid conditions [68–72]. However, approximately one-third of patients with severe CAP were previously healthy [73].

The rationale for specifically defining severe CAP is 4-fold:

- Appropriate placement of patients optimizes use of limited ICU resources.
- Transfer to the ICU for delayed respiratory failure or delayed onset of septic shock is associated with increased mortality [74]. Although low-acuity ICU admissions do occur, the major concern is initial admission to the general medical unit, with subsequent transfer to the ICU. As many as 45% of patients with CAP who ultimately require ICU admission were initially admitted to a non-ICU setting [75]. Many delayed transfers to the ICU represent rapidly progressive pneumonia that is not obvious on admission. However, some have subtle findings, including those included in the minor criteria in table 4, which might warrant direct admission to the ICU.
- The distribution of microbial etiologies differs from that of CAP in general [76–79], with significant implications for diagnostic testing and empirical antibiotic choices. Avoidance of inappropriate antibiotic therapy has also been associated with lower mortality [80, 81].
- Patients with CAP appropriate for immunomodulatory treatment must be identified. The systemic inflammatory response/severe sepsis criteria typically used for generic sepsis trials may not be adequate when applied specifically to severe CAP [82]. For example, patients with unilateral lobar pneumonia may have hypoxemia severe enough to meet criteria for acute lung injury but not have a systemic response.

Several criteria have been proposed to define severe CAP. Most case series have defined it simply as CAP that necessitates ICU admission. Objective criteria to identify patients for ICU

admission include the initial ATS definition of severe CAP [5] and its subsequent modification [6, 82], the CURB criteria [39, 45], and PSI severity class V (or IV and V) [42]. However, none of these criteria has been prospectively validated for the ICU admission decision. Recently, these criteria were retrospectively evaluated in a cohort of patients with CAP admitted to the ICU [63]. All were found to be both overly sensitive and nonspecific in comparison with the original clinical decision to admit to the ICU. Revisions of the criteria or alternative criteria were, therefore, recommended.

For the revised criteria, the structure of the modified ATS criteria for severe CAP was retained [6]. The 2 major criteria—mechanical ventilation with endotracheal intubation and septic shock requiring vasopressors—are absolute indications for admission to an ICU.

In contrast, the need for ICU admission is less straightforward for patients who do not meet the major criteria. On the basis of the published operating characteristics of the criteria, no single set of minor criteria is adequate to define severe CAP. Both the ATS minor criteria [75] and the CURB criteria [45] have validity when predicting which patients will be at increased risk of death. Therefore, the ATS minor criteria and the CURB variables were included in the new proposed minor criteria (table 4). Age, by itself, was not felt to be an appropriate factor for the ICU admission decision, but the remainder of the CURB-65 criteria [45] were retained as minor criteria (with the exception of hypotension requiring vasopressors as a major criterion). Rather than the complex criteria for confusion in the original CURB studies, the definition of confusion should be new-onset disorientation to person, place, or time.

Three additional minor criteria were added. Leukopenia (white blood cell count,  $<4000$  cells/ $\text{mm}^3$ ) resulting from CAP has consistently been associated with excess mortality, as well as with an increased risk of complications such as acute respiratory distress syndrome (ARDS) [77, 79, 83–87]. In addition, leukopenia is seen not only in bacteremic pneumococcal disease but also in gram-negative CAP [88, 89]. When leukopenia occurs in patients with a history of alcohol abuse, the adverse manifestations of septic shock and ARDS may be delayed or masked. Therefore, these patients were thought to benefit from ICU monitoring. The coagulation system is often activated in CAP, and development of thrombocytopenia (platelet count,  $<100,000$  cells/ $\text{mm}^3$ ) is also associated with a worse prognosis [86, 90–92]. Nonexposure hypothermia (core temperature,  $<36^\circ\text{C}$ ) also carries an ominous prognosis in CAP [83, 93]. The committee felt that there was sufficient justification for including these additional factors as minor criteria.

Other factors associated with increased mortality due to CAP were also considered, including acute alcohol ingestion and delirium tremens [79, 85, 94], hypoglycemia and hyperglycemia, occult metabolic acidosis or elevated lactate levels [91], and hyponatremia [95]. However, many of these criteria overlap with those selected. Future studies validating the proposed criteria should record these factors as well, to determine whether addition or substitution improves the predictive value of our proposed criteria.

With the addition of more minor criteria, the threshold for ICU admission was felt to be the presence of at least 3 minor criteria, based on the mortality association with the CURB criteria. Selecting 2 criteria appears to be too nonspecific, as is demonstrated by the initial ATS criteria [5]. Whether each of the criteria is of equal weight is also not clear. Therefore, prospective validation of this set of criteria is clearly needed.

DIAGNOSTIC TESTING

9. In addition to a constellation of suggestive clinical features, a demonstrable infiltrate by chest radiograph or other imaging technique, with or without supporting microbiological data, is required for the diagnosis of pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

The diagnosis of CAP is based on the presence of select clinical features (e.g., cough, fever, sputum production, and pleuritic chest pain) and is supported by imaging of the lung, usually by chest radiography. Physical examination to detect rales or bronchial breath sounds is an important component of the evaluation but is less sensitive and specific than chest radiographs [96]. Both clinical features and physical exam findings may be lacking or altered in elderly patients. All patients should be screened by pulse oximetry, which may suggest both the presence of pneumonia in patients without obvious signs of pneumonia and unsuspected hypoxemia in patients with diagnosed pneumonia [42, 97, 98].

A chest radiograph is required for the routine evaluation of patients who are likely to have pneumonia, to establish the diagnosis and to aid in differentiating CAP from other common causes of cough and fever, such as acute bronchitis. Chest radiographs are sometimes useful for suggesting the etiologic agent, prognosis, alternative diagnoses, and associated conditions. Rarely, the admission chest radiograph is clear, but the patient's toxic appearance suggests more than bronchitis. CT scans may be more sensitive, but the clinical significance of these findings when findings of radiography are negative is unclear [99]. For patients who are hospitalized for suspected pneumonia but who have negative chest radiography findings, it may be reasonable to treat their condition presumptively with antibiotics and repeat the imaging in 24–48 h.

Microbiological studies may support the diagnosis of pneumonia due to an infectious agent, but routine tests are frequently falsely negative and are often nonspecific. A history of recent travel or endemic exposure, if routinely sought, may identify specific potential etiologies that would otherwise be unexpected as a cause of CAP (see table 8) [100].

Recommended Diagnostic Tests for Etiology

10. Patients with CAP should be investigated for specific pathogens that would significantly alter standard (empirical) management decisions, when the presence of such pathogens is suspected on the basis of clinical and epidemiologic clues. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

The need for diagnostic testing to determine the etiology of CAP can be justified from several perspectives. The primary reason for such testing is if results will change the antibiotic management for an individual patient. The spectrum of antibiotic therapy can be broadened, narrowed, or completely altered on the basis of diagnostic testing. The alteration in therapy that is potentially most beneficial to the individual is an escalation or switch of the usual empirical regimen because of unusual pathogens (e.g., endemic fungi or Mycobacterium tuberculosis) or antibiotic resistance issues. Broad empirical coverage, such as that recommended in these guidelines, would not provide the optimal treatment for certain infections, such as psittacosis or tularemia. Increased mortality [80] and increased risk of clinical failure [81, 101] are more common with inappropriate antibiotic therapy. Management of initial antibiotic failure is greatly facilitated by an etiologic diagnosis at admission. De-escalation or narrowing of antibiotic therapy on the basis of diagnostic testing is less likely to decrease an individual's risk of death but may decrease cost, drug adverse effects, and antibiotic resistance pressure.

Some etiologic diagnoses have important epidemiologic implications, such as documentation of severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS), influenza, legionnaires disease, or agents of bioterrorism. Diagnostic testing for these infections may affect not only the individual but also many other people. Although pneumonia etiologies that should be reported to public health officials vary by state, in general, most states' health regulations require reporting of legionnaires disease, SARS, psittacosis, avian influenza (H5N1), and possible agents of bioterrorism (plague, tularemia, and anthrax). In addition, specific diagnostic testing and reporting are important for pneumonia cases of any etiology thought to be part of a cluster or caused by pathogens not endemic to the area.

There are also societal reasons for encouraging diagnostic testing. The antibiotic recommendations in the present guidelines are based on culture results and sensitivity patterns from patients with positive etiologic diagnoses [102]. Without the accumulated information available from these culture results, trends in antibiotic resistance are more difficult to track, and empirical antibiotic recommendations are less likely to be accurate.

The main downside of extensive diagnostic testing of all patients with CAP is cost, which is driven by the poor quality of most sputum microbiological samples and the low yield of positive culture results in many groups of patients with CAP. A clear need for improved diagnostic testing in CAP, most likely using molecular methodology rather than culture, has been recognized by the National Institutes of Health [103].

The cost-benefit ratio is even worse when antibiotic therapy

is not streamlined when possible [104, 105] or when inappropriate escalation occurs [95]. In clinical practice, narrowing of antibiotic therapy is, unfortunately, unusual, but the committee strongly recommends this as best medical practice. The possibility of polymicrobial CAP and the potential benefit of combination therapy for bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia have complicated the decision to narrow antibiotic therapy. Delays in starting antibiotic therapy that result from the need to obtain specimens, complications of invasive diagnostic procedures, and unneeded antibiotic changes and additional testing for false-positive tests are also important considerations.

The general recommendation of the committee is to strongly encourage diagnostic testing whenever the result is likely to change individual antibiotic management. For other patients with CAP, the recommendations for diagnostic testing focus on patients in whom the diagnostic yield is thought to be greatest. These 2 priorities often overlap. Recommendations for patients in whom routine diagnostic testing is indicated for the above reasons are listed in table 5. Because of the emphasis on clinical relevance, a variety of diagnostic tests that may be accurate but the results of which are not available in a time window to allow clinical decisions are neither recommended nor discussed.

11. Routine diagnostic tests to identify an etiologic diagnosis are optional for outpatients with CAP. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Retrospective studies of outpatient CAP management usually show that diagnostic tests to define an etiologic pathogen are infrequently performed, yet most patients do well with empirical antibiotic treatment [42, 106]. Exceptions to this general rule may apply to some pathogens important for epidemiologic reasons or management decisions. The availability of rapid point-of-care diagnostic tests, specific treatment and chemoprevention, and epidemiologic importance make influenza testing the most logical. Influenza is often suspected on the basis of typical symptoms during the proper season in the presence of an epidemic. However, respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) can cause a similar syndrome and often occurs in the same clinical scenario [107]. Rapid diagnostic tests may be indicated when the diagnosis is uncertain and when distinguishing influenza A from influenza B is important for therapeutic decisions.

Other infections that are important to verify with diagnostic studies because of epidemiologic implications or because they require unique therapeutic intervention are SARS and avian (H5N1) influenza, disease caused by agents of bioterrorism, Legionella infection, community-acquired MRSA (CA-MRSA) infection, M. tuberculosis infection, or endemic fungal infection. Attempts to establish an etiologic diagnosis are also appropriate in selected cases associated with outbreaks, specific risk factors, or atypical presentations.

12. Pretreatment blood samples for culture and an expectorated sputum sample for stain and culture (in patients with a productive cough) should be obtained from hospitalized patients with the clinical indications listed in table 5 but are optional for patients without these conditions. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)
13. Pretreatment Gram stain and culture of expectorated sputum should be performed only if a good-quality specimen can be obtained and quality performance measures for collection, transport, and processing of samples can be met. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)
14. Patients with severe CAP, as defined above, should at least have blood samples drawn for culture, urinary antigen tests for Legionella pneumophila and S. pneumoniae performed, and expectorated sputum samples collected for culture. For intubated patients, an endotracheal aspirate sample should be obtained. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The only randomized controlled trial of diagnostic strategy in CAP has demonstrated no statistically significant differences in mortality rate or LOS between patients receiving pathogen-directed therapy and patients receiving empirical therapy [108]. However, pathogen-directed therapy was associated with lower mortality among the small number of patients admitted to the ICU. The study was performed in a country with a low incidence of antibiotic resistance, which may limit its applicability to areas with higher levels of resistance. Adverse effects were significantly more common in the empirical therapy group but may have been unique to the specific antibiotic choice (erythromycin).

The lack of benefit overall in this trial should not be interpreted as a lack of benefit for an individual patient. Therefore, performing diagnostic tests is never incorrect or a breach of the standard of care. However, information from cohort and observational studies may be used to define patient groups in which the diagnostic yield is increased. Patient groups in which routine diagnostic testing is indicated and the recommended tests are listed in table 5.

Blood cultures. Pretreatment blood cultures yielded positive results for a probable pathogen in 5%–14% in large series of nonselected patients hospitalized with CAP [104, 105, 109–111]. The yield of blood cultures is, therefore, relatively low (although it is similar to yields in other serious infections), and, when management decisions are analyzed, the impact of positive blood cultures is minor [104, 105]. The most common blood culture isolate in all CAP studies is S. pneumoniae. Because this bacterial organism is always considered to be the most likely pathogen, positive blood culture results have not clearly led to better outcomes or improvements in antibiotic selection [105, 112]. False-positive blood culture results are associated with prolonged hospital stay, possibly related to changes in management based on preliminary results showing gram-positive cocci, which eventually prove to be coagulase-negative staphylococci [95, 109]. In addition, false-positive blood culture results have led to significantly more vancomycin use [95].

For these reasons, blood cultures are optional for all hospitalized patients with CAP but should be performed selectively (table 5). The yield for positive blood culture results is halved by prior antibiotic therapy [95]. Therefore, when performed, samples for blood culture should be obtained before antibiotic administration. However, when multiple risk factors for bacteremia are present, blood culture results after initiation of antibiotic therapy are still positive in up to 15% of cases [95] and are, therefore, still warranted in these cases, despite the lower yield.

The strongest indication for blood cultures is severe CAP. Patients with severe CAP are more likely to be infected with pathogens other than S. pneumoniae, including S. aureus, P. aeruginosa, and other gram-negative bacilli [77–80, 95, 113, 114]. Many of the factors predictive of positive blood culture results [95] overlap with risk factors for severe CAP (table 4). Therefore, blood cultures are recommended for all patients with severe CAP because of the higher yield, the greater possibility of the presence of pathogens not covered by the usual empirical antibiotic therapy, and the increased potential to affect antibiotic management.

Blood cultures are also indicated when patients have a host defect in the ability to clear bacteremia—for example, as a result of asplenia or complement deficiencies. Patients with chronic liver disease also are more likely to have bacteremia with CAP [95]. Leukopenia is also associated with a high incidence of bacteremia [79, 95].

Respiratory tract specimen Gram stain and culture.

The yield of sputum bacterial cultures is variable and strongly influenced by the quality of the entire process, including specimen collection, transport, rapid processing, satisfactory use of cytologic criteria, absence of prior antibiotic therapy, and skill in interpretation. The yield of S. pneumoniae, for example, is only 40%–50% from sputum cultures from patients with bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia in studies performed a few decades ago [115, 116]. A more recent study of 100 cases of bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia found that sputum specimens were not submitted in 31% of cases and were judged as inadequate in another 16% of cases [117]. When patients receiving antibiotics for >24 h were excluded, Gram stain showed pneumococci in 63% of sputum specimens, and culture results were positive in 86%. For patients who had received no antibiotics, the Gram stain was read as being consistent with pneumococci in 80% of cases, and sputum culture results were positive in 93%.

Although there are favorable reports of the utility of Gram stain [118], a meta-analysis showed a low yield, considering the number of patients with adequate specimens and definitive results [119]. Recent data show that an adequate specimen with a predominant morphotype on Gram stain was found in only 14% of 1669 hospitalized patients with CAP [120]. Higher PSI scores did not predict higher yield. However, a positive Gram stain was highly predictive of a subsequent positive culture result.

The benefit of a sputum Gram stain is, therefore, 2-fold. First, it broadens initial empirical coverage for less common etiologies, such as infection with S. aureus or gram-negative organisms. This indication is probably the most important, because it will lead to less inappropriate antibiotic therapy. Second, it can validate the subsequent sputum culture results.

Forty percent or more of patients are unable to produce any sputum or to produce sputum in a timely manner [108, 120]. The yield of cultures is substantially higher with endotracheal aspirates, bronchoscopic sampling, or transthoracic needle aspirates [120–126], although specimens obtained after initiation of antibiotic therapy are unreliable and must be interpreted carefully [120, 127, 128]. Interpretation is improved with quantitative cultures of respiratory secretions from any source (sputum, tracheal aspirations, and bronchoscopic aspirations) or by interpretation based on semiquantitative culture results [122, 123, 129]. Because of the significant influence on diagnostic yield and cost effectiveness, careful attention to the details of specimen handling and processing are critical if sputum cultures are obtained.

Because the best specimens are collected and processed before antibiotics are given, the time to consider obtaining expectorated sputum specimens from patients with factors listed in table 5 is before initiation of antibiotic therapy. Once again, the best indication for more extensive respiratory tract cultures is severe CAP. Gram stain and culture of endotracheal aspirates from intubated patients with CAP produce different results than expectorated sputum from non-ICU patients [76, 120]. Many of the pathogens in the broader microbiological spectrum of severe CAP are unaffected by a single dose of antibiotics, unlike S. pneumoniae. In addition, an endotracheal aspirate does not require patient cooperation, is clearly a lower respiratory tract sample, and is less likely to be contaminated by oropharyngeal colonizers. Nosocomial tracheal colonization is not an issue if the sample is obtained soon after intubation. Therefore, culture and Gram stain of endotracheal aspirates are recommended for patients intubated for severe CAP. In addition to routine cultures, a specific request for culture of respiratory secretions on buffered charcoal yeast extract agar to isolate Legionella species may be useful in this subset of patients with severe CAP in areas where Legionella is endemic, as well as in patients with a recent travel history [130].

The fact that a respiratory tract culture result is negative does not mean that it has no value. Failure to detect S. aureus or gram-negative bacilli in good-quality specimens is strong evidence against the presence of these pathogens. Growth inhibition by antibiotics is lower with these pathogens than with S. pneumoniae, but specimens obtained after initiation of antibiotic therapy are harder to interpret, with the possibility of colonization. Necrotizing or cavitory pneumonia is a risk for CA-MRSA infection, and sputum samples should be obtained in all cases. Negative Gram stain and culture results should be adequate to withhold or stop treatment for MRSA infection.

Severe COPD and alcoholism are major risk factors for infection with P. aeruginosa and other gram-negative pathogens [131]. Once again, Gram stain and culture of an adequate sputum specimen are usually adequate to exclude the need for empirical coverage of these pathogens.

A sputum culture in patients with suspected legionnaires disease is important, because the identification of Legionella species implies the possibility of an environmental source to which other susceptible individuals may be exposed. Localized community outbreaks of legionnaires disease might be recognized by clinicians or local health departments because  $\geq 2$  patients might be admitted to the same hospital. However, outbreaks of legionnaires disease associated with hotels or cruise ships [132–134] are rarely detected by individual clinicians, because travelers typically disperse from the source of infection before developing symptoms. Therefore, a travel history should be actively sought from patients with CAP, and Legionella testing should be performed for those who have traveled in the 2 weeks before the onset of symptoms. Urinary antigen tests may be adequate to diagnose and treat an individual, but efforts to obtain a sputum specimen for culture are still indicated to facilitate epidemiologic tracking. The availability of a culture isolate of Legionella dramatically improves the likelihood that an environmental source of Legionella can be identified and remediated [135–137]. The yield of sputum culture is increased to 43%–57% when associated with a positive urinary antigen test result [138, 139].

Attempts to obtain a sample for sputum culture from a patient with a positive pneumococcal urinary antigen test result may be indicated for similar reasons. Patients with a productive cough and positive urinary antigen test results have positive sputum culture results in as many as 40%–80% of cases [140–143]. In these cases, not only can sensitivity testing confirm the appropriate choice for the individual patient, but important data regarding local community antibiotic resistance rates can also be acquired.

Other cultures. Patients with pleural effusions >5 cm in height on a lateral upright chest radiograph [111] should undergo thoracentesis to yield material for Gram stain and culture for aerobic and anaerobic bacteria. The yield with pleural fluid cultures is low, but the impact on management decisions is substantial, in terms of both antibiotic choice and the need for drainage.

Nonbronchoscopic bronchoalveolar lavage (BAL) in the ED has been studied in a small, randomized trial of intubated patients with CAP [144]. A high percentage (87%) of non-bronchoscopic BAL culture results were positive, even in some patients who had already received their first dose of antibiotics. Unfortunately, tracheal aspirates were obtained from only a third of patients in the control group, but they all were culture positive. Therefore, it is unclear that endotracheal aspirates are inferior to nonbronchoscopic BAL. The use of bronchoscopic BAL, protected specimen brushing, or transthoracic lung aspiration has not been prospectively studied for initial management of patients with CAP [123]. The best indications are for immunocompromised patients with CAP or for patients with CAP in whom therapy failed [101, 145].

Antigen tests. Urinary antigen tests are commercially available and have been cleared by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for detection of S. pneumoniae and L. pneumophila serogroup 1 [138, 140, 146–149]. Urinary antigen testing appears to have a higher diagnostic yield in patients with more severe illness [139, 140].

For pneumococcal pneumonia, the principal advantages of antigen tests are rapidity (~15 min), simplicity, reasonable specificity in adults, and the ability to detect pneumococcal pneumonia after antibiotic therapy has been started. Studies in adults show a sensitivity of 50%–80% and a specificity of >90% [146, 149, 150]. This is an attractive test for detecting pneumococcal pneumonia when samples for culture cannot be obtained in a timely fashion or when antibiotic therapy has already been initiated. Serial specimens from patients with known bacteremia were still positive for pneumococcal urinary antigen in 83% of cases after 3 days of therapy [147]. Comparisons with Gram stain show that these 2 rapidly available tests often do not overlap, with only 28% concordance (25 of 88) among patients when results of either test were positive [140]. Only ~50% of Binax pneumococcal urinary antigen–positive patients can be diagnosed by conventional methods [140, 150]. Disadvantages include cost (approximately $30 per specimen), although this is offset by increased diagnosis-related group–based reimbursement for coding for pneumococcal pneumonia, and the lack of an organism for in vitro susceptibility tests. False-positive results have been seen in children with chronic respiratory diseases who are colonized with S. pneumoniae [151] and in patients with an episode of CAP within the previous 3 months [152], but they do not appear to be a significant problem in colonized patients with COPD [140, 152].

For Legionella, several urinary antigen assays are available, but all detect only L. pneumophila serogroup 1. Although this particular serogroup accounts for 80%–95% of community-acquired cases of legionnaires disease [138, 153] in many areas of North America, other species and serogroups predominate in specific locales [154, 155]. Prior studies of culture-proven legionnaires disease indicate a sensitivity of 70%–90% and a specificity of nearly 99% for detection of L. pneumophila serogroup 1. The urine is positive for antigen on day 1 of illness and continues to be positive for weeks [138, 150].

The major issue with urinary bacterial antigen detection is whether the tests allow narrowing of empirical antibiotic therapy to a single specific agent. The recommended empirical antibiotic regimens will cover both of these microorganisms. Results of a small observational study suggest that therapy with a macrolide alone is adequate for hospitalized patients with CAP who test positive for L. pneumophila urinary antigen [156]. Further research is needed in this area.

In contrast, rapid antigen detection tests for influenza, which can also provide an etiologic diagnosis within 15–30 min, can lead to consideration of antiviral therapy. Test performance varies according to the test used, sample type, duration of illness, and patient age. Most show a sensitivity of 50%–70% in adults and a specificity approaching 100% [157–159]. Advantages include the high specificity, the ability of some assays to distinguish between influenza A and B, the rapidity with which the results can be obtained, the possibly reduced use of antibacterial agents, and the utility of establishing this diagnosis for epidemiologic purposes, especially in hospitalized patients who may require infection control precautions. Disadvantages include cost (approximately $30 per specimen), high rates of false-negative test results, false-positive assays with adenovirus infections, and the fact that the sensitivity is not superior to physician judgment among patients with typical symptoms during an influenza epidemic [157, 158, 160].

Direct fluorescent antibody tests are available for influenza and RSV and require ~2 h. For influenza virus, the sensitivity is better than with the point-of-care tests (85%–95%). They will detect animal subtypes such as H5N1 and, thus, may be preferred for hospitalized patients [161, 162]. For RSV, direct fluorescent antibody tests are so insensitive (sensitivity, 20%–30%) in adults that they are rarely of value [163].

Acute-phase serologic testing. The standard for diagnosis of infection with most atypical pathogens, including Chlamydia pneumoniae, Mycoplasma pneumoniae, and Legionella species other than L. pneumophila, relies on acute- and convalescent-phase serologic testing. Most studies use a microimmunofluorescence serologic test, but this test shows poor reproducibility [164]. Management of patients on the basis of a single acute-phase titer is unreliable [165], and initial antibiotic therapy will be completed before the earliest time point to check a convalescent-phase specimen.

PCR. A new PCR test (BD ProbeTec ET Legionella pneumophila; Becton Dickinson) that will detect all serotypes of L. pneumophila in sputum is now cleared by the FDA, but extensive published clinical experience is lacking. Most PCR reagents for other respiratory pathogens (except Mycobacterium species) are “home grown,” with requirements for use based on compliance with NCCLS criteria for analytical validity [166]. Despite the increasing use of these tests for atypical pathogens [167, 168], a 2001 review by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) of diagnostic assays for detection of C. pneumoniae indicated that, of the 18 PCR reagents, only 4 satisfied the criteria for a validated test [166]. The diagnostic criteria defined in this review are particularly important for use in prospective studies of CAP, because most prior reports used liberal criteria, which resulted in exaggerated rates. For SARS, several PCR assays have been developed, but these tests are inadequate because of high rates of false-negative assays in early stages of infection [169, 170].

ANTIBIOTIC TREATMENT

A major goal of therapy is eradication of the infecting organism, with resultant resolution of clinical disease. As such, antimicrobials are a mainstay of treatment. Appropriate drug selection is dependent on the causative pathogen and its antibiotic susceptibility. Acute pneumonia may be caused by a wide variety of pathogens (table 6). However, until more accurate and rapid diagnostic methods are available, the initial treatment for most patients will remain empirical. Recommendations for therapy (table 7) apply to most cases; however, physicians should consider specific risk factors for each patient (table 8). A syndromic approach to therapy (under the assumption that an etiology correlates with the presenting clinical manifestations) is not specific enough to reliably predict the etiology of CAP [172–174]. Even if a microbial etiology is identified, debate continues with regard to pathogen-specific treatment, because recent studies suggest coinfection by atypical pathogens (such as C. pneumoniae, Legionella species, and viruses) and more traditional bacteria [120, 175]. However, the importance of treating multiple infecting organisms has not been firmly established.

The majority of antibiotics released in the past several decades have an FDA indication for CAP, making the choice of antibiotics potentially overwhelming. Selection of antimicrobial regimens for empirical therapy is based on prediction of the most likely pathogen(s) and knowledge of local susceptibility patterns. Recommendations are generally for a class of antibiotics rather than a specific drug, unless outcome data clearly favor one drug. Because overall efficacy remains good for many classes of agents, the more potent drugs are given preference because of their benefit in decreasing the risk of selection for antibiotic resistance. Other factors for consideration of specific antimicrobials include pharmacokinetics/pharmacodynamics, compliance, safety, and cost.

Likely Pathogens in CAP

Although CAP may be caused by a myriad of pathogens, a limited number of agents are responsible for most cases. The emergence of newly recognized pathogens, such as the novel

Outpatient treatment

1. Previously healthy and no use of antimicrobials within the previous 3 months
  - A macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - Doxycycline (weak recommendation; level III evidence)
2. Presence of comorbidities such as chronic heart, lung, liver or renal disease; diabetes mellitus; alcoholism; malignancies; asplenia; immunosuppressing conditions or use of immunosuppressing drugs; or use of antimicrobials within the previous 3 months (in which case an alternative from a different class should be selected)
  - A respiratory fluoroquinolone (moxifloxacin, gemifloxacin, or levofloxacin [750 mg]) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
3. In regions with a high rate (>25%) of infection with high-level (MIC  $\geq 16$   $\mu\text{g/mL}$ ) macrolide-resistant Streptococcus pneumoniae, consider use of alternative agents listed above in (2) for patients without comorbidities (moderate recommendation; level III evidence)

Inpatients, non-ICU treatment

- A respiratory fluoroquinolone (strong recommendation; level I evidence)

Special concerns

- If Pseudomonas is a consideration

SARS-associated coronavirus [170], continually increases the challenge for appropriate management.

Table 6 lists the most common causes of CAP, in decreasing order of frequency of occurrence and stratified for severity of illness as judged by site of care (ambulatory vs. hospitalized). S. pneumoniae is the most frequently isolated pathogen. Other bacterial causes include nontypeable Haemophilus influenzae

and Moraxella catarrhalis, generally in patients who have underlying bronchopulmonary disease, and S. aureus, especially during an influenza outbreak. Risks for infection with Enterobacteriaceae species and P. aeruginosa as etiologies for CAP are chronic oral steroid administration or severe underlying bronchopulmonary disease, alcoholism, and frequent antibiotic therapy [79, 131], whereas recent hospitalization would define cases as HCAP. Less common causes of pneumonia include, but are by no means limited to, Streptococcus pyogenes, Neisseria meningitidis, Pasteurella multocida, and H. influenzae type b.

The “atypical” organisms, so called because they are not detectable on Gram stain or cultivatable on standard bacteriologic media, include M. pneumoniae, C. pneumoniae, Legionella species, and respiratory viruses. With the exception of Legionella species, these microorganisms are common causes of pneumonia, especially among outpatients. However, these pathogens are not often identified in clinical practice because, with a few exceptions, such as L. pneumophila and influenza virus, no specific, rapid, or standardized tests for their detection exist. Although influenza remains the predominant viral cause of CAP in adults, other commonly recognized viruses include RSV [107], adenovirus, and parainfluenza virus, as well as less common viruses, including human metapneumovirus, herpes simplex virus, varicella-zoster virus, SARS-associated coronavirus, and measles virus. In a recent study of immunocompetent adult patients admitted to the hospital with CAP, 18% had evidence of a viral etiology, and, in 9%, a respiratory virus was the only pathogen identified [176]. Studies that include outpatients find viral pneumonia rates as high as 36% [167]. The frequency of other etiologic agents—for example, M. tuberculosis, Chlamydia psittaci (psittacosis), Coxiella burnetii (Q fever), Francisella tularensis (tularemia), Bordetella pertussis (whooping cough), and endemic fungi (Histoplasma capsulatum, Coccidioides immitis, Cryptococcus neoformans, and Blastomyces hominis)—is largely determined by the epidemiologic setting (table 8) but rarely exceeds 2%–3% total [113, 177]. The exception may be endemic fungi in the appropriate geographic distribution [100].

The need for specific anaerobic coverage for CAP is generally overestimated. Anaerobic bacteria cannot be detected by diagnostic techniques in current use. Anaerobic coverage is clearly indicated only in the classic aspiration pleuropulmonary syndrome in patients with a history of loss of consciousness as a result of alcohol/drug overdose or after seizures in patients with concomitant gingival disease or esophageal motility disorders. Antibiotic trials have not demonstrated a need to specifically treat these organisms in the majority of CAP cases. Small-volume aspiration at the time of intubation should be adequately handled by standard empirical severe CAP treatment [178] and by the high oxygen tension provided by mechanical ventilation.

Antibiotic Resistance Issues

Resistance to commonly used antibiotics for CAP presents another major consideration in choosing empirical therapy. Resistance patterns clearly vary by geography. Local antibiotic prescribing patterns are a likely explanation [179–181]. However, clonal spread of resistant strains is well documented. Therefore, antibiotic recommendations must be modified on the basis of local susceptibility patterns. The most reliable source is state/provincial or municipal health department regional data, if available. Local hospital antibiograms are generally the most accessible source of data but may suffer from small numbers of isolates.

Drug-resistant S. pneumoniae (DRSP). The emergence of drug-resistant pneumococcal isolates is well documented. The incidence of resistance appears to have stabilized somewhat in the past few years. Resistance to penicillin and cephalosporins may even be decreasing, whereas macrolide resistance continues to increase [179, 182]. However, the clinical relevance of DRSP for pneumonia is uncertain, and few well-controlled studies have examined the impact of in vitro resistance on clinical outcomes of CAP. Published studies are limited by small sample sizes, biases inherent in observational design, and the relative infrequency of isolates exhibiting high-level resistance [183–185]. Current levels of  $\beta$ -lactam resistance do not generally result in CAP treatment failures when appropriate agents (i.e., amoxicillin, ceftriaxone, or cefotaxime) and doses are used, even in the presence of bacteremia [112, 186]. The available data suggest that the clinically relevant level of penicillin resistance is a MIC of at least 4 mg/L [3]. One report suggested that, if cefuroxime is used to treat pneumococcal bacteremia when the organism is resistant in vitro, the outcome is worse than with other therapies [112]. Other discordant therapies, including penicillin, did not have an impact on mortality. Data exist suggesting that resistance to macrolides [187–189] and older fluoroquinolones (ciprofloxacin and levofloxacin) [180, 190, 191] results in clinical failure. To date, no failures have been reported for the newer fluoroquinolones (moxifloxacin and gemifloxacin).

Risk factors for infection with  $\beta$ -lactam-resistant S. pneumoniae include age <2 years or >65 years,  $\beta$ -lactam therapy within the previous 3 months, alcoholism, medical comorbidities, immunosuppressive illness or therapy, and exposure to a child in a day care center [112, 192–194]. Although the relative predictive value of these risk factors is unclear, recent treatment with antimicrobials is likely the most significant. Recent therapy or repeated courses of therapy with  $\beta$ -lactams, macrolides, or fluoroquinolones are risk factors for pneumococcal resistance to the same class of antibiotic [181, 193, 195, 196]. One study found that use of either a  $\beta$ -lactam or macrolide within the previous 6 months predicted an increased likelihood that, if pneumococcal bacteremia is present, the organism would be penicillin resistant [196]. Other studies have shown that repeated use of fluoroquinolones predicts an increased risk of infection with fluoroquinolone-resistant pneumococci [195, 197]. Whether this risk applies equally to all fluoroquinolones or is more of a concern for less active antipneumococcal agents (levofloxacin and ciprofloxacin) than for more active agents (moxifloxacin and gemifloxacin) is uncertain [190, 197, 198].

Recommendations for the use of highly active agents in patients at risk for infection with DRSP is, therefore, based only in part on efficacy considerations; it is also based on a desire to prevent more resistance from emerging by employing the most potent regimen possible. Although increasing the doses of certain agents (penicillins, cephalosporins, levofloxacin) may lead to adequate outcomes in the majority of cases, switching to more potent agents may lead to stabilization or even an overall decrease in resistance rates [179, 180].

CA-MRSA. Recently, an increasing incidence of pneumonia due to CA-MRSA has been observed [199, 200]. CA-MRSA appears in 2 patterns: the typical hospital-acquired strain [80] and, recently, strains that are epidemiologically, genotypically, and phenotypically distinct from hospital-acquired strains [201, 202]. Many of the former may represent HCAP, because these earlier studies did not differentiate this group from typical CAP. The latter are resistant to fewer antimicrobials than are hospital-acquired MRSA strains and often contain a novel type IV SCCmec gene. In addition, most contain the gene for Panton-Valentine leukocidin [200, 202], a toxin associated with clinical features of necrotizing pneumonia, shock, and respiratory failure, as well as formation of abscesses and empyemas. The large majority of cases published to date have been skin infections in children. In a large study of CA-MRSA in 3 communities, 2% of CA-MRSA infections were pneumonia [203]. However, pneumonia in both adults [204] and children has been reported, often associated with preceding influenza. This strain should also be suspected in patients who present with cavitary infiltrates without risk factors for anaerobic aspiration pneumonia (gingivitis and a risk for loss of consciousness, such as seizures or alcohol abuse, or esophageal motility disorders). Diagnosis is usually straightforward, with high yields from sputum and blood cultures in this characteristic clinical scenario. CA-MRSA CAP remains rare in most communities but is expected to be an emerging problem in CAP treatment.

Empirical Antimicrobial Therapy

Outpatient treatment. The following regimens are recommended for outpatient treatment on the basis of the listed clinical risks.

15. Previously healthy and no risk factors for DRSP infection:
  - A. A macrolide (azithromycin, clarithromycin, or erythromycin) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. Doxycycline (weak recommendation; level III evidence)
16. Presence of comorbidities, such as chronic heart, lung, liver, or renal disease; diabetes mellitus; alcoholism; malignancies; asplenia; immunosuppressing conditions or use of immunosuppressing drugs; use of antimicrobials within the previous 3 months (in which case an alternative from a different class should be selected); or other risks for DRSP infection:
  - A. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (moxifloxacin, gemifloxacin, or levofloxacin [750 mg]) (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
  - B. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (High-dose amoxicillin [e.g., 1 g 3 times daily] or amoxicillin-clavulanate [2 g 2 times daily] is preferred; alternatives include ceftriaxone, cefpodoxime, and cefuroxime [500 mg 2 times daily]; doxycycline [level II evidence] is an alternative to the macrolide.)
17. In regions with a high rate (>25%) of infection with high-level (MIC,  $\geq 16$   $\mu\text{g/mL}$ ) macrolide-resistant S. pneumoniae, consider the use of alternative agents listed above in recommendation 16 for any patient, including those without comorbidities. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

The most common pathogens identified from recent studies of mild (ambulatory) CAP were S. pneumoniae, M. pneumoniae, C. pneumoniae, and H. influenzae [177, 205]. Mycoplasma infection was most common among patients <50 years of age without significant comorbid conditions or abnormal vital signs, whereas S. pneumoniae was the most common pathogen among older patients and among those with significant underlying disease. Hemophilus infection was found in 5%—mostly in patients with comorbidities. The importance of therapy for Mycoplasma infection and Chlamydothila infection in mild CAP has been the subject of debate, because many infections are self-limiting [206, 207]. Nevertheless, studies from the 1960s of children indicate that treatment of mild M. pneumoniae CAP reduces the morbidity of pneumonia and shortens the duration of symptoms [208]. The evidence to support specific treatment of these microorganisms in adults is lacking.

Macrolides have long been commonly prescribed for treatment of outpatients with CAP in the United States, because of their activity against S. pneumoniae and the atypical pathogens. This class includes the erythromycin-type agents (including dirithromycin), clarithromycin, and the azalide azithromycin. Although the least expensive, erythromycin is not often used now, because of gastrointestinal intolerance and lack of activity against H. influenzae. Because of H. influenzae, azithromycin is preferred for outpatients with comorbidities such as COPD.

Numerous randomized clinical trials have documented the efficacy of clarithromycin and azithromycin as monotherapy for outpatient CAP, although several studies have demonstrated that clinical failure can occur with a resistant isolate. When such patients were hospitalized and treated with a  $\beta$ -lactam and a macrolide, however, all survived and generally recovered without significant complications [188, 189]. Most of these patients had risk factors for which therapy with a macrolide alone is not recommended in the present guidelines. Thus, for patients with a significant risk of DRSP infection, monotherapy with a macrolide is not recommended. Doxycycline is included as a cost-effective alternative on the basis of in vitro data indicating effectiveness equivalent to that of erythromycin for pneumococcal isolates.

The use of fluoroquinolones to treat ambulatory patients with CAP without comorbid conditions, risk factors for DRSP, or recent antimicrobial use is discouraged because of concern that widespread use may lead to the development of fluoroquinolone resistance [185]. However, the fraction of total fluoroquinolone use specifically for CAP is extremely small and unlikely to lead to increased resistance by itself. More concerning is a recent study suggesting that many outpatients given a fluoroquinolone may not have even required an antibiotic, that the dose and duration of treatment were often incorrect, and that another agent often should have been used as first-line therapy. This usage pattern may promote the rapid development of resistance to fluoroquinolones [209].

Comorbidities or recent antimicrobial therapy increase the likelihood of infection with DRSP and enteric gram-negative bacteria. For such patients, recommended empirical therapeutic options include (1) a respiratory fluoroquinolone (moxifloxacin, gemifloxacin, or levofloxacin [750 mg daily]) or (2) combination therapy with a  $\beta$ -lactam effective against S. pneumoniae plus a macrolide (doxycycline as an alternative). On the basis of present pharmacodynamic principles, high-dose amox-

icillin (amoxicillin [1 g 3 times daily] or amoxicillin-clavulanate [2 g 2 times daily]) should target >93% of S. pneumoniae and is the preferred  $\beta$ -lactam. Ceftriaxone is an alternative to high-dose amoxicillin when parenteral therapy is feasible. Selected oral cephalosporins (cefepodoxime and cefuroxime) can be used as alternatives [210], but these are less active in vitro than high-dose amoxicillin or ceftriaxone. Agents in the same class as the patient had been receiving previously should not be used to treat patients with recent antibiotic exposure.

Telithromycin is the first of the ketolide antibiotics, derived from the macrolide family, and is active against S. pneumoniae that is resistant to other antimicrobials commonly used for CAP (including penicillin, macrolides, and fluoroquinolones). Several CAP trials suggest that telithromycin is equivalent to comparators (including amoxicillin, clarithromycin, and trovafloxacin) [211–214]. There have also been recent postmarketing reports of life-threatening hepatotoxicity [215]. At present, the committee is awaiting further evaluation of the safety of this drug by the FDA before making its final recommendation.

18. A respiratory fluoroquinolone (strong recommendation; level I evidence)
19. A  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide (strong recommendation; level I evidence) (Preferred  $\beta$ -lactam agents include cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, and ampicillin; ertapenem for selected patients; with doxycycline [level III evidence] as an alternative to the macrolide. A respiratory fluoroquinolone should be used for penicillin-allergic patients.)

The recommendations of combination treatment with a  $\beta$ -lactam plus a macrolide or monotherapy with a fluoroquinolone were based on retrospective studies demonstrating a significant reduction in mortality compared with that associated with administration of a cephalosporin alone [216–219]. Multiple prospective randomized trials have demonstrated that either regimen results in high cure rates. The major discriminating factor between the 2 regimens is the patient's prior antibiotic exposure (within the past 3 months).

Preferred  $\beta$ -lactams are those effective against S. pneumoniae and other common, nonatypical pathogens without being overly broad spectrum. In January 2002, the Clinical Laboratory Standards Institute (formerly the NCCLS) increased the MIC breakpoints for cefotaxime and ceftriaxone for nonmeningeal S. pneumoniae infections. These new breakpoints acknowledge that nonmeningeal infections caused by strains formerly considered to be intermediately susceptible, or even resistant, can be treated successfully with usual doses of these  $\beta$ -lactams [112, 186, 220].

Two randomized, double-blind studies showed ertapenem to be equivalent to ceftriaxone [221, 222]. It also has excellent activity against anaerobic organisms, DRSP, and most Enterobacteriaceae species (including extended-spectrum  $\beta$ -lactamase producers, but not P. aeruginosa). Ertapenem may be useful in treating patients with risks for infection with these pathogens and for patients who have recently received antibiotic therapy. However, clinical experience with this agent is limited. Other “antipneumococcal, antipseudomonal”  $\beta$ -lactam agents are appropriate when resistant pathogens, such as Pseudomonas, are likely to be present. Doxycycline can be used as an alternative to a macrolide on the basis of scant data for treatment of Legionella infections [171, 223, 224].

Two randomized, double-blind studies of adults hospitalized for CAP have demonstrated that parenteral azithromycin alone was as effective, with improved tolerability, as intravenous cefuroxime, with or without intravenous erythromycin [225, 226]. In another study, mortality and readmission rates were similar, but the mean LOS was shorter among patients receiving azithromycin alone than among those receiving other guideline-recommended therapy [227]. None of the 10 patients with erythromycin-resistant S. pneumoniae infections died or was transferred to the ICU, including 6 who received azithromycin alone. Another study showed that those receiving a macrolide alone had the lowest 30-day mortality but were the least ill [219]. Such patients were younger and were more likely to be in lower-risk groups.

These studies suggest that therapy with azithromycin alone can be considered for carefully selected patients with CAP with nonsevere disease (patients admitted primarily for reasons other than CAP) and no risk factors for infection with DRSP or gram-negative pathogens. However, the emergence of high rates of macrolide resistance in many areas of the country suggests that this therapy cannot be routinely recommended. Initial therapy should be given intravenously for most admitted patients, but some without risk factors for severe pneumonia could receive oral therapy, especially with highly bioavailable agents such as fluoroquinolones. When an intravenous  $\beta$ -lactam is combined with coverage for atypical pathogens, oral therapy with a macrolide or doxycycline is appropriate for selected patients without severe pneumonia risk factors [228].

Inpatient, ICU treatment. The following regimen is the minimal recommended treatment for patients admitted to the ICU.

20. A  $\beta$ -lactam (cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, or ampicillin-sulbactam) plus either azithromycin (level II evidence) or a fluoroquinolone (level I evidence) (strong recommendation) (For penicillin-allergic patients, a respiratory fluoroquinolone and aztreonam are recommended.)

A single randomized controlled trial of treatment for severe CAP is available. Patients with shock were excluded; however, among the patients with mechanical ventilation, treatment with a fluoroquinolone alone resulted in a trend toward inferior outcome [229]. Because septic shock and mechanical ventilation are the clearest reasons for ICU admission, the majority of ICU patients would still require combination therapy. ICU patients are routinely excluded from other trials; therefore, recommendations are extrapolated from nonsevere cases, in conjunction with case series and retrospective analyses of cohorts with severe CAP.

For all patients admitted to the ICU, coverage for S. pneumoniae and Legionella species should be ensured [78, 230] by using a potent antipneumococcal  $\beta$ -lactam and either a macrolide or a fluoroquinolone. Therapy with a respiratory fluoroquinolone alone is not established for severe CAP [229], and, if the patient has concomitant pneumococcal meningitis, the efficacy of fluoroquinolone monotherapy is uncertain. In addition, 2 prospective observational studies [231, 232] and 3 retrospective analyses [233–235] have found that combination therapy for bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia is associated with lower mortality than monotherapy. The mechanism of this benefit is unclear but was principally found in the patients with the most severe illness and has not been demonstrated in nonbacteremic pneumococcal CAP studies. Therefore, combination empirical therapy is recommended for at least 48 h or until results of diagnostic tests are known.

In critically ill patients with CAP, a large number of microorganisms other than S. pneumoniae and Legionella species must be considered. A review of 9 studies that included 890 patients with CAP who were admitted to the ICU demonstrates that the most common pathogens in the ICU population were (in descending order of frequency) S. pneumoniae, Legionella species, H. influenzae, Enterobacteriaceae species, S. aureus, and Pseudomonas species [171]. The atypical pathogens responsible for severe CAP may vary over time but can account collectively for  $\geq 20\%$  of severe pneumonia episodes. The dominant atypical pathogen in severe CAP is Legionella [230], but some diagnostic bias probably accounts for this finding [78].

The recommended standard empirical regimen should routinely cover the 3 most common pathogens that cause severe CAP, all of the atypical pathogens, and most of the relevant Enterobacteriaceae species. Treatment of MRSA or P. aeruginosa infection is the main reason to modify the standard empirical regimen. The following are additions or modifications to the basic empirical regimen recommended above if these pathogens are suspected.

21. For Pseudomonas infection, use an antipneumococcal, antipseudomonal  $\beta$ -lactam (piperacillin-tazobactam, ceftepime, imipenem, or meropenem) plus either ciprofloxacin or levofloxacin (750-mg dose)

or

the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and azithromycin

or

the above  $\beta$ -lactam plus an aminoglycoside and an antipneumococcal fluoroquinolone. (For penicillin-allergic patients, substitute aztreonam for the above  $\beta$ -lactam.)

(Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Pseudomonal CAP requires combination treatment to prevent inappropriate initial therapy, just as Pseudomonas nosocomial pneumonia does [131]. Once susceptibilities are known, treatment can be adjusted accordingly. Alternative regimens are provided for patients who may have recently received an oral fluoroquinolone, in whom the aminoglycoside-containing regimen would be preferred. A consistent Gram stain of tracheal aspirate, sputum, or blood is the best indication for Pseudomonas coverage. Other, easier-to-treat gram-negative microorganisms may ultimately be proven to be the causative pathogen, but empirical coverage of Pseudomonas species until culture results are known is least likely to be associated with inappropriate therapy. Other clinical risk factors for infection with Pseudomonas species include structural lung diseases, such as bronchiectasis, or repeated exacerbations of severe COPD leading to frequent steroid and/or antibiotic use, as well as prior antibiotic therapy [131]. These patients do not necessarily require ICU admission for CAP [236], so Pseudomonas infection remains a concern for them even if they are only hospitalized on a general ward. The major risk factor for infection with other serious gram-negative pathogens, such as Klebsiella pneumoniae or Acinetobacter species, is chronic alcoholism.

22. For CA-MRSA infection, add vancomycin or linezolid.
(Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

The best indicator of S. aureus infection is the presence of gram-positive cocci in clusters in a tracheal aspirate or in an adequate sputum sample. The same findings on preliminary results of blood cultures are not as reliable, because of the significant risk of contamination [95]. Clinical risk factors for S. aureus CAP include end-stage renal disease, injection drug abuse, prior influenza, and prior antibiotic therapy (especially with fluoroquinolones [237]).

For methicillin-sensitive S. aureus, the empirical combination therapy recommended above, which includes a  $\beta$ -lactam and sometimes a respiratory fluoroquinolone, should be adequate until susceptibility results are available and specific therapy with a penicillinase-resistant semisynthetic penicillin or first-generation cephalosporin can be initiated. Both also offer additional coverage for DRSP. Neither linezolid [241] nor vancomycin [238] is an optimal drug for methicillin-sensitive S. aureus.

Although methicillin-resistant strains of S. aureus are still the minority, the excess mortality associated with inappropriate antibiotic therapy [80] would suggest that empirical coverage should be considered when CA-MRSA is a concern. The most effective therapy has yet to be defined. The majority of CA-MRSA strains are more susceptible in vitro to non- $\beta$ -lactam antimicrobials, including trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole (TMP-SMX) and fluoroquinolones, than are hospital-acquired strains. Previous experience with TMP-SMX in other types of severe infections (endocarditis and septic thrombophlebitis) suggests that TMP-SMX is inferior to vancomycin [239]. Further experience and study of the adequacy of TMP-SMX for CA-MRSA CAP is clearly needed. Vancomycin has never been specifically studied for CAP, and linezolid has been found to be better than ceftriaxone for bacteremic S. pneumoniae in a nonblinded study [240] and superior to vancomycin in retrospective analysis of studies involving nosocomial MRSA pneumonia [241]. Newer agents for MRSA have recently become available, and others are anticipated. Of the presently available agents, daptomycin should not be used for CAP, and no data on pneumonia are available for tigecycline.

A concern with CA-MRSA is necrotizing pneumonia associated with production of Panton-Valentine leukocidin and other toxins. Vancomycin clearly does not decrease toxin production, and the effect of TMP-SMX and fluoroquinolones on toxin production is unclear. Addition of clindamycin or use of linezolid, both of which have been shown to affect toxin production in a laboratory setting [242], may warrant their consideration for treatment of these necrotizing pneumonias [204]. Unfortunately, the emergence of resistance during therapy with clindamycin has been reported (especially in erythromycin-resistant strains), and vancomycin would still be needed for bacterial killing.

Pathogens Suspected on the Basis of Epidemiologic Considerations

Clinicians should be aware of epidemiologic conditions and/or risk factors that may suggest that alternative or specific additional antibiotics should be considered. These conditions and specific pathogens, with preferred treatment, are listed in tables 8 and 9.

Pathogen-Directed Therapy

23. Once the etiology of CAP has been identified on the basis of reliable microbiological methods, antimicrobial therapy should be directed at that pathogen. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Treatment options may be simplified (table 9) if the etiologic agent is established or strongly suspected. Diagnostic procedures that identify a specific etiology within 24–72 h can still be useful for guiding continued therapy. This information is often available at the time of consideration for a switch from parenteral to oral therapy and may be used to direct specific oral antimicrobial choices. If, for example, an appropriate culture reveals penicillin-susceptible S. pneumoniae, a narrow-spectrum agent (such as penicillin or amoxicillin) may be used. This will, hopefully, reduce the selective pressure for resistance.

The major issue with pathogen-specific therapy is management of bacteremic S. pneumoniae CAP. The implications of the observational finding that dual therapy was associated with reduced mortality in bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia [231–235] are uncertain. One explanation for the reduced mortality may be the presence of undiagnosed coinfection with an atypical pathogen; although reported to occur in 18%–38% of CAP cases in some studies [73, 175], much lower rates of undiagnosed coinfection are found in general [171] and specifically in severe cases [78]. An alternative explanation is the immunomodulatory effects of macrolides [244, 245]. It is important to note that these studies evaluated the effects of initial empirical therapy before the results of blood cultures were known and did not examine effects of pathogen-specific therapy after the results of blood cultures were available. The benefit of combination therapy was also most pronounced in the more severely ill patients [233, 234]. Therefore, discontinuation of combination therapy after results of cultures are known is most likely safe in non-ICU patients.

24. Early treatment (within 48 h of onset of symptoms) with oseltamivir or zanamivir is recommended for influenza A. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
25. Use of oseltamivir and zanamivir is not recommended for patients with uncomplicated influenza with symptoms for >48 h (level I evidence), but these drugs may be used to reduce viral shedding in hospitalized patients or for influenza pneumonia. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Studies that demonstrate that treatment of influenza is effective only if instituted within 48 h of the onset of symptoms have been performed only in uncomplicated cases [246–249]. The impact of such treatment on patients who are hospitalized with influenza pneumonia or a bacterial pneumonia complicating influenza is unclear. In hospitalized adults with influenza, a minority of whom had radiographically documented pneumonia, no obvious benefit was found in one retrospective study of amantadine treatment [250]. Treatment of antigen- or culture-positive patients with influenza with antivirals in addition to antibiotics is warranted, even if the radiographic infiltrate is caused by a subsequent bacterial superinfection. Because of the longer period of persistent positivity after infection, the appropriate treatment for patients diagnosed with only 1 of the rapid diagnostic tests is unclear. Because such patients often have recoverable virus (median duration of 4 days) after hospitalization, antiviral treatment seems reasonable from an infection-control standpoint alone.

Because of its broad influenza spectrum, low risk of resistance emergence, and lack of bronchospasm risk, oseltamivir is an appropriate choice for hospitalized patients. The neuraminidase inhibitors are effective against both influenza A and B viruses, whereas the M2 inhibitors, amantadine, and rimantadine are active only against influenza A [251]. In addition, viruses recently circulating in the United States and Canada are often resistant to the M2 inhibitors on the basis of antiviral testing [252, 253]. Therefore, neither amantadine nor rimantadine should be used for treatment or chemoprophylaxis of influenza A in the United States until susceptibility to these antiviral medications has been reestablished among circulating influenza A viruses [249].

Early treatment of influenza in ambulatory adults with inhaled zanamivir or oral oseltamivir appears to reduce the likelihood of lower respiratory tract complications [254–256]. The use of influenza antiviral medications appears to reduce the likelihood of respiratory tract complications, as reflected by reduced usage rates of antibacterial agents in ambulatory patients with influenza. Although clearly important in outpatient pneumonia, this experience may also apply to patients hospitalized primarily for influenza.

Parenteral acyclovir is indicated for treatment of varicella-zoster virus infection [257] or herpes simplex virus pneumonia. No antiviral treatment of proven value is available for other viral pneumonias—that is, parainfluenza virus, RSV, adenovirus, metapneumovirus, the SARS agent, or hantavirus. For all patients with viral pneumonias, a high clinical suspicion of bacterial superinfection should be maintained.

Pandemic influenza.

26. Patients with an illness compatible with influenza and with known exposure to poultry in areas with previous H5N1 infection should be tested for H5N1 infection. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
27. In patients with suspected H5N1 infection, droplet precautions and careful routine infection control measures should be used until an H5N1 infection is ruled out. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
28. Patients with suspected H5N1 infection should be treated with oseltamivir (level II evidence) and antibacterial agents targeting S. pneumoniae and S. aureus, the most common causes of secondary bacterial pneumonia in patients with influenza (level III evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)

Recent human infections caused by avian influenza A (H5N1) in Vietnam, Thailand, Cambodia, China, Indonesia, Egypt, and Turkey raise the possibility of a pandemic in the near future. The severity of H5N1 infection in humans distinguishes it from that caused by routine seasonal influenza. Respiratory failure requiring hospitalization and intensive care has been seen in the majority of the >140 recognized cases, and mortality is ~50% [258, 259]. If a pandemic occurs, deaths will result from primary influenza pneumonia with or without secondary bacterial pneumonia. This section highlights issues for consideration, recognizing that treatment recommendations will likely change as the pandemic progresses. More specific guidance can be found on the IDSA, ATS, CDC, and WHO Web sites as the key features of the pandemic become clearer. Additional guidance is available at <http://www.pandemicflu.gov>.

The WHO has delineated 6 phases of an influenza pandemic, defined by increasing levels of risk and public health response [260]. During the current pandemic alert phase (phase 3: cases of novel influenza infection without sustained person-to-person transmission), testing should be focused on confirming all suspected cases in areas where H5N1 infection has been documented in poultry and on detecting the arrival of the pandemic strain in unaffected countries. Early clinical features of H5N1 infection include persistent fever, cough, and respiratory difficulty progressing over 3–5 days, as well as lymphopenia on admission to the hospital [258, 259, 261]. Exposure to sick and dying poultry in an area with known or suspected H5N1 activity has been reported by most patients, although the recognition of poultry outbreaks has sometimes followed the recognition of human cases [261].

Rapid bedside tests to detect influenza A have been used as screening tools for avian influenza in some settings. Throat swabs tested by RT-PCR have been the most sensitive for confirming H5N1 infection to date, but nasopharyngeal swabs, washes, and aspirates; BAL fluid; lung and other tissues; and stool have yielded positive results by RT-PCR and viral culture with varying sensitivity. Convalescent-phase serum can be tested by microneutralization for antibodies to H5 antigen in a small number of international reference laboratories. Specimens from suspected cases of H5N1 infection should be sent to public health laboratories with appropriate biocontainment facilities; the case should be discussed with health department officials to arrange the transfer of specimens and to initiate an epidemiologic evaluation. During later phases of an ongoing pandemic, testing may be necessary for many more patients, so that appropriate treatment and infection control decisions can be made, and to assist in defining the extent of the pandemic. Recommendations for such testing will evolve on the basis of the features of the pandemic, and guidance should be sought from the CDC and WHO Web sites (<http://www.cdc.gov> and <http://www.who.int>).

Patients with confirmed or suspected H5N1 influenza should be treated with oseltamivir. Most H5N1 isolates since 2004 have been susceptible to the neuraminidase inhibitors oseltamivir

and zanamivir and resistant to the adamantanes (amantidine and rimantidine) [262, 263]. The current recommendation is for a 5-day course of treatment at the standard dosage of 75 mg 2 times daily. In addition, droplet precautions should be used for patients with suspected H5N1 influenza, and they should be placed in respiratory isolation until that etiology is ruled out. Health care personnel should wear N-95 (or higher) respirators during medical procedures that have a high likelihood of generating infectious respiratory aerosols.

Bacterial superinfections, particularly pneumonia, are important complications of influenza pneumonia. The bacterial etiologies of CAP after influenza infection have included S. pneumoniae, S. aureus, H. influenzae, and group A streptococci. Legionella, Chlamydia, and Mycoplasma species are not important causes of secondary bacterial pneumonia after influenza. Appropriate agents would therefore include cefotaxime, ceftriaxone, and respiratory fluoroquinolones. Treatment with vancomycin, linezolid, or other agents directed against CA-MRSA should be limited to patients with confirmed infection or a compatible clinical presentation (shock and necrotizing pneumonia). Because shortages of antibacterials and antivirals are anticipated during a pandemic, the appropriate use of diagnostic tests will be even more important to help target antibacterial therapy whenever possible, especially for patients admitted to the hospital.

Time to First Antibiotic Dose

29. For patients admitted through the ED, the first antibiotic dose should be administered while still in the ED. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)

Time to first antibiotic dose for CAP has recently received significant attention from a quality-of-care perspective. This emphasis is based on 2 retrospective studies of Medicare beneficiaries that demonstrated statistically significantly lower mortality among patients who received early antibiotic therapy [109, 264]. The initial study suggested a breakpoint of 8 h [264], whereas the subsequent analysis found that 4 h was associated with lower mortality [109]. Studies that document the time to first antibiotic dose do not consistently demonstrate this difference, although none had as large a patient population. Most importantly, prospective trials of care by protocol have not demonstrated a survival benefit to increasing the percentage of patients with CAP who receive antibiotics within the first 4–8 h [22, 65]. Early antibiotic administration does not appear to shorten the time to clinical stability, either [265], although time of first dose does appear to correlate with LOS [266, 267]. A problem of internal consistency is also present, because, in both studies [109, 264], patients who received antibiotics in the first 2 h after presentation actually did worse than those who received antibiotics 2–4 h after presentation. For these and other reasons, the committee did not feel that a specific time window for delivery of the first antibiotic dose should be recommended. However, the committee does feel that therapy should be administered as soon as possible after the diagnosis is considered likely.

Conversely, a delay in antibiotic therapy has adverse consequences in many infections. For critically ill, hemodynamically unstable patients, early antibiotic therapy should be encouraged, although no prospective data support this recommendation. Delay in beginning antibiotic treatment during the transition from the ED is not uncommon. Especially with the frequent use of once-daily antibiotics for CAP, timing and communication issues may result in patients not receiving antibiotics for >8 h after hospital admission. The committee felt that the best and most practical resolution to this issue was that the initial dose be given in the ED [22].

Data from the Medicare database indicated that antibiotic treatment before hospital admission was also associated with lower mortality [109]. Given that there are even more concerns regarding timing of the first dose of antibiotic when the patient is directly admitted to a busy inpatient unit, provision of the first dose in the physician's office may be best if the recommended oral or intramuscular antibiotics are available in the office.

Switch from Intravenous to Oral Therapy

30. Patients should be switched from intravenous to oral therapy when they are hemodynamically stable and improving clinically, are able to ingest medications, and have a normally functioning gastrointestinal tract. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)
31. Patients should be discharged as soon as they are clinically stable, have no other active medical problems, and have a safe environment for continued care. Inpatient observation while receiving oral therapy is not necessary. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

With the use of a potent, highly bioavailable antibiotic, the ability to eat and drink is the major consideration for switching from intravenous to oral antibiotic therapy for non-ICU patients. Initially, Ramirez et al. [268] defined a set of criteria for an early switch from intravenous to oral therapy (table 10). In general, as many as two-thirds of all patients have clinical improvement and meet criteria for a therapy switch in the first 3 days, and most non-ICU patients meet these criteria by day 7.

Subsequent studies have suggested that even more liberal criteria are adequate for the switch to oral therapy. An alternative approach is to change from intravenous to oral therapy at a predetermined time, regardless of the clinical response [269]. One study population with nonsevere illness was randomized to receive either oral therapy alone or intravenous therapy, with the switch occurring after 72 h without fever. The study population with severe illness was randomized to receive either intravenous therapy with a switch to oral therapy after 2 days or a full 10-day course of intravenous antibiotics. Time to resolution of symptoms for the patients with nonsevere illness was similar with either regimen. Among patients with more severe illness, the rapid switch to oral therapy had the same rate of treatment failure and the same time to resolution of symptoms as prolonged intravenous therapy. The rapid-switch group required fewer inpatient days (6 vs. 11), although this was likely partially a result of the protocol, but the patients also had fewer adverse events.

The need to keep patients in the hospital once clinical stability is achieved has been questioned, even though physicians commonly choose to observe patients receiving oral therapy for  $\geq 1$  day. Even in the presence of pneumococcal bacteremia, a switch to oral therapy can be safely done once clinical stability is achieved and prolonged intravenous therapy is not needed [270]. Such patients generally take longer (approximately half a day) to become clinically stable than do nonbacteremic patients. The benefits of in-hospital observation after a switch to oral therapy are limited and add to the cost of care [32].

Discharge should be considered when the patient is a candidate for oral therapy and when there is no need to treat any comorbid illness, no need for further diagnostic testing, and no unmet social needs [32, 271, 272]. Although it is clear that clinically stable patients can be safely switched to oral therapy and discharged, the need to wait for all of the features of clinical stability to be present before a patient is discharged is uncertain. For example, not all investigators have found it necessary to have the white blood cell count improve. Using the definition for clinical stability in table 10, Halm et al. [273] found that 19.1% of 680 patients were discharged from the hospital with  $\geq 1$  instability. Death or readmission occurred in 10.5% of patients with no instability on discharge, in 13.7% of patients with 1 instability, and in 46.2% with  $\geq 2$  instabilities. In general, patients in higher PSI classes take longer to reach clinical stability than do patients in lower risk classes [274]. This finding may reflect the fact that elderly patients with multiple comorbidities often recover more slowly. Arrangements for appropriate follow-up care, including rehabilitation, should therefore be initiated early for these patients.

In general, when switching to oral antibiotics, either the same agent as the intravenous antibiotic or the same drug class should be used. Switching to a different class of agents simply because of its high bioavailability (such as a fluoroquinolone) is probably not necessary for a responding patient. For patients who received intravenous  $\beta$ -lactam–macrolide combination therapy, a switch to a macrolide alone appears to be safe for those who do not have DRSP or gram-negative enteric pathogens isolated [275].

Duration of Antibiotic Therapy

32. Patients with CAP should be treated for a minimum of 5 days (level I evidence), should be afebrile for 48–72 h, and should have no more than 1 CAP-associated sign of clinical instability (table 10) before discontinuation of therapy (level II evidence). (Moderate recommendation.)
33. A longer duration of therapy may be needed if initial therapy was not active against the identified pathogen or if it was complicated by extrapulmonary infection, such as meningitis or endocarditis. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)

Most patients with CAP have been treated for 7–10 days or longer, but few well-controlled studies have evaluated the optimal duration of therapy for patients with CAP, managed in or out of the hospital. Available data on short-course treatment do not suggest any difference in outcome with appropriate therapy in either inpatients or outpatients [276]. Duration is also difficult to define in a uniform fashion, because some antibiotics (such as azithromycin) are administered for a short time yet have a long half-life at respiratory sites of infection.

In trials of antibiotic therapy for CAP, azithromycin has been used for 3–5 days as oral therapy for outpatients, with some reports of single-dose therapy for patients with atypical pathogen infections [276–278]. Results with azithromycin should not be extrapolated to other drugs with significantly shorter half-lives. The ketolide telithromycin has been used for 5–7 days to treat outpatients, including some with pneumococcal bacteremia or PSI classes  $\geq$ III [211]. In a recent study, high-dose (750 mg) levofloxacin therapy for 5 days was equally successful and resulted in more afebrile patients by day 3 than did the 500-mg dose for 7–10 days (49.1% vs. 38.5%;  $P = .03$ ) [276]. On the basis of these studies, 5 days appears to be the minimal overall duration of therapy documented to be effective in usual forms of CAP.

As is discussed above, most patients become clinically stable within 3–7 days, so longer durations of therapy are rarely necessary. Patients with persistent clinical instability are often readmitted to the hospital and may not be candidates for short-duration therapy. Short-duration therapy may be suboptimal for patients with bacteremic S. aureus pneumonia (because of the risk of associated endocarditis and deep-seated infection), for those with meningitis or endocarditis complicating pneumonia, and for those infected with other, less common pathogens (e.g., Burkholderia pseudomallei or endemic fungi). An 8-day course of therapy for nosocomial P. aeruginosa pneumonia led to relapse more commonly than did a 15-day course of therapy [279]. Whether the same results would be applicable to CAP cases is unclear, but the presence of cavities or other signs of tissue necrosis may warrant prolonged treatment. Studies of duration of therapy have focused on patients receiving empirical treatment, and reliable data defining treatment duration after an initially ineffective regimen are lacking.

OTHER TREATMENT CONSIDERATIONS

34. Patients with CAP who have persistent septic shock despite adequate fluid resuscitation should be considered for treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated within 24 h of admission. (Weak recommendation, level II evidence.)

Drotrecogin alfa activated is the first immunomodulatory therapy approved for severe sepsis. In the United States, the FDA recommended the use of drotrecogin alfa activated for patients at high risk of death. The high-risk criterion suggested by the FDA was an Acute Physiologic and Chronic Health Assessment (APACHE) II score  $\geq$ 25, based on a subgroup analysis of the overall study. However, the survival advantage (absolute risk reduction, 9.8%) of drotrecogin alfa activated treatment of patients in the CAP subgroup was equivalent to that in the subgroup with APACHE II scores  $\geq$ 25 [92, 280, 281]. The greatest reduction in the mortality rate was for S. pneumoniae infection (relative risk, 0.56; 95% CI, 0.35–0.88) [282]. Subsequent data have suggested that the benefit appears to be greatest when the treatment is given as early in the hospital admission as possible. In the subgroup with severe CAP caused by a pathogen other than S. pneumoniae and treated with appropriate antibiotics, there was no evidence that drotrecogin alfa activated affected mortality.

Although the benefit of drotrecogin alfa activated is clearly greatest for patients with CAP who have high APACHE II scores, this criterion alone may not be adequate to select appropriate patients. An APACHE II score  $\geq$ 25 was selected by a subgroup analysis of the entire study cohort and may not be similarly calibrated in a CAP-only cohort. Two-organ failure, the criterion suggested for drotrecogin alfa activated use by the European regulatory agency, did not influence the mortality benefit for patients with CAP [92].

Therefore, in addition to patients with septic shock, other patients with severe CAP could be considered for treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated. Those with sepsis-induced leukopenia are at extremely high risk of death and ARDS and are, therefore, potential candidates. Conversely, the benefit of drotrecogin alfa activated is not as clear when respiratory failure is caused more by exacerbation of underlying lung disease rather than by the pneumonia itself. Other minor criteria for severe CAP proposed above are similar to organ failure criteria used in many sepsis trials. Consideration of treatment with drotrecogin alfa activated is appropriate, but the strength of the recommendation is only level II.

35. Hypotensive, fluid-resuscitated patients with severe CAP should be screened for occult adrenal insufficiency. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

A large, multicenter trial has suggested that stress-dose (200–300 mg of hydrocortisone per day or equivalent) steroid treatment improves outcomes of vasopressor-dependent patients with septic shock who do not have an appropriate cortisol response to stimulation [283]. Once again, patients with CAP made up a significant fraction of patients entered into the trial. In addition, 3 small pilot studies have suggested that there is a benefit to corticosteroid therapy even for patients with severe CAP who are not in shock [284–286]. The small sample size and baseline differences between groups compromise the conclusions. Although the criteria for steroid replacement therapy remain controversial, the frequency of intermittent steroid treatment in patients at risk for severe CAP, such as those with severe COPD, suggests that screening of patients with severe CAP is appropriate with replacement if inadequate cortisol levels are documented. If corticosteroids are used, close attention to tight glucose control is required [287].

36. Patients with hypoxemia or respiratory distress should receive a cautious trial of noninvasive ventilation (NIV) unless they require immediate intubation because of severe hypoxemia (arterial oxygen pressure/fraction of inspired oxygen [ $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$ ] ratio, <150) and bilateral alveolar infiltrates. (Moderate recommendation; level I evidence.)

Patients who do not require immediate intubation but who have either hypoxemia or respiratory distress should receive a trial of NIV [114, 288, 289]. Patients with underlying COPD are most likely to benefit. Patients with CAP who were ran-

domized to receive NIV had a >25% absolute risk reduction for the need for intubation [114]. The use of NIV may also improve intermediate-term mortality. Inability to expectorate may limit the use of NIV [290], but intermittent application of NIV may allow for its use in patients with productive cough unless sputum production is excessive. Prompt recognition of a failed NIV trial is critically important, because most studies demonstrate worse outcomes for patients who require intubation after a prolonged NIV trial [288, 290]. Within the first 1–2 h of NIV, failure to improve respiratory rate and oxygenation [114, 289, 290] or failure to decrease carbon dioxide partial pressure ( $\text{pCO}_2$ ) in patients with initial hypercarbia [114] predicts NIV failure and warrants prompt intubation. NIV provides no benefit for patients with ARDS [289], which may be nearly indistinguishable from CAP among patients with bilateral alveolar infiltrates. Patients with CAP who have severe hypoxemia ( $\text{PaO}_2/\text{FiO}_2$  ratio, <150) are also poor candidates for NIV [290].

37. Low-tidal-volume ventilation (6  $\text{cm}^3/\text{kg}$  of ideal body weight) should be used for patients undergoing ventilation who have diffuse bilateral pneumonia or ARDS. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)

Distinguishing between diffuse bilateral pneumonia and ARDS is difficult, but it may not be an important distinction. Results of the ARDSNet trial suggest that the use of low-tidal-volume ventilation provides a survival advantage [291]. Pneumonia, principally CAP, was the most common cause of ARDS in that trial, and the benefit of the low-tidal-volume ventilatory strategy appeared to be equivalent in the population with pneumonia compared with the entire cohort. The absolute risk reduction for mortality in the pneumonia cohort was 11%, indicating that, in order to avoid 1 death, 9 patients must be treated [292].

Other aspects of the management of severe sepsis and septic shock in patients with CAP do not appear to be significantly different from those for patients with other sources of infection. Recommendations for these aspects of care are reviewed elsewhere [293].

MANAGEMENT OF NONRESPONDING PNEUMONIA

Because of the limitations of diagnostic testing, the majority of CAP is still treated empirically. Critical to empirical therapy is an understanding of the management of patients who do not follow the normal response pattern.

Although difficult to define, nonresponse is not uncommon. Overall, 6%–15% of hospitalized patients with CAP do not respond to the initial antibiotic treatment [81, 84, 101, 294]. The incidence of treatment failure among patients with CAP who are not hospitalized is not well known, because population-based studies are required. Almirall et al. [295] described an overall hospitalization rate of 60% in a population-based study, but the rate of failure among the 30% of patients who initially presented to their primary care physician was not provided. The frequency of prior antibiotic therapy among Medicare patients admitted to the hospital with CAP is 24%–40% [95, 109], but the percentage who received prior antibiotic therapy for the acute episode of pneumonia itself versus other indications is unclear. For patients initially admitted to the ICU, the risk of failure to respond is already high; as many as 40% will experience deterioration even after initial stabilization in the ICU [101].

Mortality among nonresponding patients is increased several-fold in comparison with that among responding patients [296]. Overall mortality rates as high as 49% have been reported for an entire population of nonresponding hospitalized patients with CAP [76, 84, 101], and the mortality rate reported in one study of early failure was 27% [81]. APACHE II score was not the only factor independently associated with mortality in the nonresponding group, suggesting that the excess mortality may be due to factors other than severity of illness at presentation [101].

Definition and classification.

- 38. The use of a systematic classification of possible causes of failure to respond, based on time of onset and type of failure (table 11), is recommended. (Moderate recommendation; level II evidence.)

The term “nonresponding pneumonia” is used to define a situation in which an inadequate clinical response is present despite antibiotic treatment. Lack of a clear-cut and validated definition in the literature makes nonresponse difficult to study. Lack of response also varies according to the site of treatment. Lack of response in outpatients is very different from that in patients admitted to the ICU. The time of evaluation is also important. Persistent fever after the first day of treatment differs significantly from fever persisting (or recurring) at day 7 of treatment.

Table 11 provides a construct for evaluating nonresponse to antibiotic treatment of CAP, based on several studies addressing this issue [76, 81, 84, 101]. Two patterns of unacceptable response are seen in hospitalized patients [101]. The first is progressive pneumonia or actual clinical deterioration, with acute respiratory failure requiring ventilatory support and/or septic shock, usually occurring within the first 72 h of hospital admission. As is noted above, as many as 45% of patients with CAP who ultimately require ICU admission are initially admitted to a non-ICU setting and are transferred because of deterioration [75]. Deterioration and development of respiratory failure or hypotension >72 h after initial treatment is often related to intercurrent complications, deterioration in underlying disease, or development of nosocomial superinfection.

The second pattern is that of persistent or nonresponding pneumonia. Nonresponse can be defined as absence of or delay in achieving clinical stability, using the criteria in table 10 [274, 294]. When these criteria were used, the median time to achieve clinical stability was 3 days for all patients, but a quarter of patients took ≥6 days to meet all of these criteria for stability [274]. Stricter definitions for each of the criteria and higher PSI scores were associated with longer times to achieve clinical stability. Conversely, subsequent transfer to the ICU after achieving this degree of clinical stability occurred in <1% of cases. A separate multicenter trial demonstrated similar findings [297]. Given these results, concern regarding nonresponse should be tempered before 72 h of therapy. Antibiotic changes during this period should be considered only for patients with deterioration or in whom new culture data or epidemiologic clues suggest alternative etiologies.

Finally, nonresolving or slow-resolving pneumonia has been used to refer to the conditions of patients who present with persistence of pulmonary infiltrates >30 days after initial pneumonia-like syndrome [298]. As many as 20% of these patients will be found to have diseases other than CAP when carefully evaluated [295].

Two studies have evaluated the risk factors for a lack of response in multivariate analyses [81, 84], including those amenable to medical intervention. Use of fluoroquinolones was independently associated with a better response in one study [84], whereas discordant antimicrobial therapy was associated with early failure [81]. In table 12, the different risk and protective factors and their respective odds ratios are summarized.

Specific causes that may be responsible for a lack of response in CAP have been classified by Arancibia et al. [101] (table 11). This classification may be useful for clinicians as a systematic approach to diagnose the potential causes of nonresponse in CAP. Although in the original study only 8 (16%) of 49 cases could not be classified [101], a subsequent prospective multicenter trial found that the cause of failure could not be determined in 44% [84].

Management of nonresponding CAP. Nonresponse to antibiotics in CAP will generally result in  $\geq 1$  of 3 clinical responses: (1) transfer of the patient to a higher level of care, (2)

further diagnostic testing, and (3) escalation or change in treatment. Issues regarding hospital admission and ICU transfer are discussed above.

An inadequate host response, rather than inappropriate antibiotic therapy or unexpected microorganisms, is the most common cause of apparent antibiotic failure when guideline-recommended therapy is used. Decisions regarding further diagnostic testing and antibiotic change/escalation are intimately intertwined and need to be discussed in tandem.

Information regarding the utility of extensive microbiological testing in cases of nonresponding CAP is mainly retrospective and therefore affected by selection bias. A systematic diagnostic approach, which included invasive, noninvasive, and imaging procedures, in a series of nonresponding patients with CAP obtained a specific diagnosis in 73% [101]. In a different study, mortality among patients with microbiologically guided versus empirical antibiotic changes was not improved (mortality rate, 67% vs. 64%, respectively) [76]. However, no antibiotic changes were based solely on sputum smears, suggesting that invasive cultures or nonculture methods may be needed.

Mismatch between the susceptibility of a common causative organism, infection with a pathogen not covered by the usual empirical regimen, and nosocomial superinfection pneumonia are major causes of apparent antibiotic failure. Therefore, the first response to nonresponse or deterioration is to reevaluate the initial microbiological results. Culture or sensitivity data not available at admission may now make the cause of clinical failure obvious. In addition, a further history of any risk factors for infection with unusual microorganisms (table 8) should be taken if not done previously. Viruses are relatively neglected as a cause of infection in adults but may account for 10%–20% of cases [299]. Other family members or coworkers may have developed viral symptoms in the interval since the patient was admitted, increasing suspicion of this cause.

The evaluation of nonresponse is severely hampered if a microbiological diagnosis was not made on initial presentation. If cultures were not obtained, clinical decisions are much more difficult than if the adequate cultures were obtained but negative. Risk factors for nonresponse or deterioration (table 12), therefore, figure prominently in the list of situations in which more aggressive initial diagnostic testing is warranted (table 5).

Blood cultures should be repeated for deterioration or progressive pneumonia. Deteriorating patients have many of the risk factors for bacteremia, and blood cultures are still high yield even in the face of prior antibiotic therapy [95]. Positive blood culture results in the face of what should be adequate antibiotic therapy should increase the suspicion of either antibiotic-resistant isolates or metastatic sites, such as endocarditis or arthritis.

Despite the high frequency of infectious pulmonary causes of nonresponse, the diagnostic utility of respiratory tract cultures is less clear. Caution in the interpretation of sputum or tracheal aspirate cultures, especially of gram-negative bacilli, is warranted because early colonization, rather than superinfection with resistant bacteria, is not uncommon in specimens obtained after initiation of antibiotic treatment. Once again, the absence of multidrug-resistant pathogens, such as MRSA or Pseudomonas, is strong evidence that they are not the cause of nonresponse. An etiology was determined by bronchoscopy in 44% of patients with CAP, mainly in those not responding to therapy [300]. Despite the potential benefit suggested by these results, and in contrast to ventilator-associated pneumonia [301, 302], no randomized study has compared the utility of invasive versus noninvasive strategies in the CAP population with nonresponse.

Rapid urinary antigen tests for S. pneumoniae and L. pneumophila remain positive for days after initiation of antibiotic therapy [147, 152] and, therefore, may be high-yield tests in this group. A urinary antigen test result that is positive for L. pneumophila has several clinical implications, including that coverage for Legionella should be added if not started empirically [81]. This finding may be a partial explanation for the finding that fluoroquinolones are associated with a lower incidence of nonresponse [84]. If a patient has persistent fever, the faster response to fluoroquinolones in Legionella CAP warrants consideration of switching coverage from a macrolide [303]. Stopping the  $\beta$ -lactam component of combination therapy to exclude drug fever is probably also safe [156]. Because one of the major explanations for nonresponse is poor host immunity rather than incorrect antibiotics, a positive pneumococcal antigen test result would at least clarify the probable original pathogen and turn attention to other causes of failure. In addition, a positive pneumococcal antigen test result would also help with interpretation of subsequent sputum/tracheal aspirate cultures, which may indicate early superinfection.

Nonresponse may also be mimicked by concomitant or subsequent extrapulmonary infection, such as intravascular catheter, urinary, abdominal, and skin infections, particularly in ICU patients. Appropriate cultures of these sites should be considered for patients with nonresponse to CAP therapy.

In addition to microbiological diagnostic procedures, several other tests appear to be valuable for selected patients with nonresponse:

- Chest CT. In addition to ruling out pulmonary emboli, a CT scan can disclose other reasons for antibiotic failure, including pleural effusions, lung abscess, or central airway obstruction. The pattern of opacities may also suggest alternative noninfectious disease, such as bronchiolitis obliterans organizing pneumonia.
- Thoracentesis. Empyema and parapneumonic effusions are important causes of nonresponse [81, 101], and thoracentesis should be performed whenever significant pleural fluid is present.
- Bronchoscopy with BAL and transbronchial biopsies. If the differential of nonresponse includes noninfectious pneumonia mimics, bronchoscopy will provide more diagnostic information than routine microbiological cultures. BAL may reveal noninfectious entities, such as pulmonary hemorrhage or acute eosinophilic pneumonia, or hints of infectious diseases, such as lymphocytic rather than neutrophilic alveolitis pointing toward virus or Chlamydomphila infection. Transbronchial biopsies can also yield a specific diagnosis.

Antibiotic management of nonresponse in CAP has not been studied. The overwhelming majority of cases of apparent nonresponse are due to the severity of illness at presentation or a delay in treatment response related to host factors. Other than the use of combination therapy for severe bacteremic pneumococcal pneumonia [112, 231, 233, 234], there is no documentation that additional antibiotics for early deterioration lead to a better outcome. The presence of risk factors for potentially untreated microorganisms may warrant temporary empirical broadening of the antibiotic regimen until results of diagnostic tests are available.

PREVENTION

All persons  $\geq 50$  years of age, others at risk for influenza complications, household contacts of high-risk persons, and health care workers should receive inactivated influenza vaccine as recommended by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP), CDC. <sup>b</sup> Vaccinating current smokers is recommended by the Pneumonia Guidelines Committee but is not currently an indication for vaccine according to the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices statement.

40. The intranasally administered live attenuated vaccine is an alternative vaccine formulation for some persons 5–49 years of age without chronic underlying diseases, including immunodeficiency, asthma, or chronic medical conditions. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
41. Health care workers in inpatient and outpatient settings and long-term care facilities should receive annual influenza immunization. (Strong recommendation; level I evidence.)
42. Pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine is recommended for persons  $\geq 65$  years of age and for those with selected

high-risk concurrent diseases, according to current ACIP guidelines. (Strong recommendation; level II evidence.)

Vaccines targeting pneumococcal disease and influenza remain the mainstay for preventing CAP. Pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine and inactivated influenza vaccine are recommended for all older adults and for younger persons with medical conditions that place them at high risk for pneumonia morbidity and mortality (table 13) [304, 305]. The new live attenuated influenza vaccine is recommended for healthy persons 5–49 years of age, including health care workers [304].

Postlicensure epidemiologic studies have documented the effectiveness of pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccines for prevention of invasive infection (bacteremia and meningitis) among elderly individuals and younger adults with certain chronic medical conditions [306–309]. The overall effectiveness against invasive pneumococcal disease among persons  $\geq 65$  years of age is 44%–75% [306, 308, 310], although efficacy may decrease with advancing age [308]. The effectiveness of the vaccine against pneumococcal disease in immunocompromised persons is less clear, and results of studies evaluating its effectiveness against pneumonia without bacteremia have been mixed. The vaccine has been shown to be cost effective for general populations of adults 50–64 years of age and  $\geq 65$  years of age [311, 312]. A second dose of pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine after a  $\geq 5$ -year interval has been shown to be safe, with only slightly more local reactions than are seen after the first dose [313]. Because the safety of a third dose has not been demonstrated, current guidelines do not suggest repeated revaccination. The pneumococcal conjugate vaccine is under investigation for use in adults but is currently only licensed for use in young children [314, 315]. However, its use in children  $< 5$  years of age has dramatically reduced invasive pneumococcal bacteremia among adults as well [314, 316].

The effectiveness of influenza vaccines depends on host factors and on how closely the antigens in the vaccine are matched with the circulating strain of influenza. A systematic review demonstrates that influenza vaccine effectively prevents pneumonia, hospitalization, and death [317, 318]. A recent large observational study of adults  $\geq 65$  years of age found that vaccination against influenza was associated with a reduction in the risk of hospitalization for cardiac disease (19% reduction), cerebrovascular disease (16%–23% reduction), and pneumonia or influenza (29%–32% reduction) and a reduction in the risk of death from all causes (48%–50% reduction) [319]. In long-term-care facilities, vaccination of health care workers with influenza vaccine is an important preventive health measure [318, 320, 321]. Because the main virulence factors of influenza virus, a neuraminidase and hemagglutinin, adapt quickly to selective pressures, new vaccine formulations are created each year on the basis of the strains expected to be circulating, and annual revaccination is needed for optimal protection.

43. Vaccination status should be assessed at the time of hospital admission for all patients, especially those with medical illnesses. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
44. Vaccination may be performed either at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
45. Influenza vaccine should be offered to persons at hospital discharge or during outpatient treatment during the fall and winter. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

Many people who should receive either influenza or pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine have not received them. According to a 2003 survey, only 69% of adults  $\geq 65$  years of age had received influenza vaccine in the past year, and only 64% had ever received pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine [322]. Coverage levels are lower for younger persons with vaccine indications. Among adults 18–64 years of age with diabetes, 49% had received influenza vaccine, and 37% had ever received pneumococcal vaccine [323]. Studies of vaccine delivery methods indicate that the use of standing orders is the best way to improve vaccination coverage in office, hospital, or long-term care settings [324].

Hospitalization of at-risk patients represents an underutilized opportunity to assess vaccination status and to either provide or recommend immunization. Ideally, patients should be vaccinated before developing pneumonia; therefore, admissions for illnesses other than respiratory tract infections would be an appropriate focus. However, admission for pneumonia is an important trigger for assessing the need for immunization. The actual immunization may be better provided at the time of outpatient follow-up, especially with the emphasis on early discharge of patients with CAP. Patients with an acute fever should not be vaccinated until their fever has resolved. Confusion of a febrile reaction to immunization with recurrent/superinfection pneumonia is a risk. However, immunization at discharge for pneumonia is warranted for patients for whom outpatient follow-up is unreliable, and such vaccinations have been safely given to many patients.

The best time for influenza vaccination in North America is October and November, although vaccination in December and later is recommended for those who were not vaccinated earlier. Influenza and pneumococcal vaccines can be given at the same time in different arms.

Chemoprophylaxis can be used as an adjunct to vaccination for prevention and control of influenza. Oseltamivir and zanamivir are both approved for prophylaxis; amantadine and rimantadine have FDA indications for chemoprophylaxis against influenza A infection, but these agents are currently not recommended because of the frequency of resistance among strains circulating in the United States and Canada [252, 253]. Developing an adequate immune response to the inactivated influenza vaccine takes  $\sim 2$  weeks in adults; chemoprophylaxis may be useful during this period for those with household exposure to influenza, those who live or work in institutions with an influenza outbreak, or those who are at high risk for influenza complications in the setting of a community outbreak [325, 326]. Chemoprophylaxis also may be useful for persons with contraindications to influenza vaccine or as an adjunct to vaccination for those who may not respond well to influenza vaccine (e.g., persons with HIV infection) [325, 326]. The use of influenza antiviral medications for treatment or chemoprophylaxis should not affect the response to the inactivated vaccine. Because it is unknown whether administering influenza antiviral medications affects the performance of the new live attenuated intranasal vaccine, this vaccine should not be used in conjunction with antiviral agents.

Other types of vaccination can be considered. Pertussis is a rare cause of pneumonia itself. However, pneumonia is one of the major complications of pertussis. Concern over waning immunity has led the ACIP to emphasize adult immunization for pertussis [327]. One-time vaccination with the new tetanus toxoid, reduced diphtheria toxoid, and acellular pertussis vaccine—adsorbed (Tdap) product, ADACEL (Sanofi Pasteur)—is recommended for adults 19–64 years of age. For most adults, the vaccine should be given in place of their next routine tetanus-diphtheria booster; adults with close contact with infants <12 months of age and health care workers should receive the vaccine as soon as possible, with an interval as short as 2 years after their most recent tetanus/diphtheria booster.

46. Smoking cessation should be a goal for persons hospitalized with CAP who smoke. (Moderate recommendation; level III evidence.)
47. Smokers who will not quit should also be vaccinated for both pneumococcus and influenza. (Weak recommendation; level III evidence.)

Smoking is associated with a substantial risk of pneumococcal bacteremia; one report showed that smoking was the strongest of multiple risks for invasive pneumococcal disease in immunocompetent nonelderly adults [328]. Smoking has also been identified as a risk for Legionella infection [329]. Smoking cessation should be attempted when smokers are hospitalized; this is particularly important and relevant when these patients are hospitalized for pneumonia. Materials for clinicians and patients to assist with smoking cessation are available online from the US Surgeon General (<http://www.surgeongeneral.gov/tobacco>), the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (<http://www.cdc.gov/tobacco>), and the American Cancer Society (<http://www.cancer.org>). The most successful approaches to quitting include some combination of nicotine replacement and/or bupropion, a method to change habits, and emotional support. Given the increased risk of pneumonia, the committee felt that persons unwilling to stop smoking should be given the pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine, although this is not currently an ACIP-recommended indication.

48. Cases of pneumonia that are of public health concern should be reported immediately to the state or local health department. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

Public health interventions are important for preventing some forms of pneumonia. Notifying the state or local health department about a condition of interest is the first step to getting public health professionals involved. Rules and regulations regarding which diseases are reportable differ between states. For pneumonia, most states require reporting for legionnaires disease, SARS, and psittacosis, so that an investigation can determine whether others may be at risk and whether control measures are necessary. For legionnaires disease, reporting of cases has helped to identify common-source outbreaks caused by environmental contamination [130]. For SARS, close observation and, in some cases, quarantine of close contacts have been critical for controlling transmission [330]. In addition, any time avian influenza (H5N1) or a possible terrorism agent (e.g., plague, tularemia, or anthrax) is being considered as the etiology of pneumonia, the case should be reported immediately, even before a definitive diagnosis is obtained. In addition, pneumonia cases that are caused by pathogens not thought to be endemic to the area should be reported, even if those conditions are not typically on the list of reportable conditions, because control strategies might be possible.

For other respiratory diseases, episodes that are suspected of being part of an outbreak or cluster should be reported. For pneumococcal disease and influenza, outbreaks can occur in crowded settings of susceptible hosts, such as homeless shelters, nursing homes, and jails. In these settings, prophylaxis, vaccination, and infection control methods are used to control further transmission [331]. For Mycoplasma, antibiotic prophylaxis has been used in schools and institutions to control outbreaks [332].

49. Respiratory hygiene measures, including the use of hand hygiene and masks or tissues for patients with cough, should be used in outpatient settings and EDs as a means to reduce the spread of respiratory infections. (Strong recommendation; level III evidence.)

In part because of the emergence of SARS, improved respiratory hygiene measures (“respiratory hygiene” or “cough etiquette”) have been promoted as a means for reducing transmission of respiratory infections in outpatient clinics and EDs [333]. Key components of respiratory hygiene include encouraging patients to alert providers when they present for a visit and have symptoms of a respiratory infection; the use of hand hygiene measures, such as alcohol-based hand gels; and the use of masks or tissues to cover the mouth for patients with respiratory illnesses. In a survey of the US population, the use of masks in outpatient settings was viewed as an acceptable means for reducing the spread of respiratory infections [334]. For hospitalized patients, infection control recommendations typically are pathogen specific. For more details on the use of personal protective equipment and other measures to prevent transmission within health care settings, refer to the Healthcare Infection Control Practices Advisory Committee [335].

SUGGESTED PERFORMANCE INDICATORS

Performance indicators are tools to help guideline users measure both the extent and the effects of implementation of guidelines. Such tools or measures can be indicators of the process itself, outcomes, or both. Deviations from the recommendations are expected in a proportion of cases, and compliance in 80%–95% of cases is generally appropriate, depending on the indicator.

Four specific performance indicators have been selected for the CAP guidelines, 3 of which focus on treatment issues and 1 of which deals with prevention:

- Initial empirical treatment of CAP should be consistent with guideline recommendations. Data exist that support the role of CAP guidelines and that have demonstrated reductions in cost, LOS, and mortality when the guidelines are followed. Reasons for deviation from the guidelines should be clearly documented in the medical record.
- The first treatment dose for patients who are to be admitted to the hospital should be given in the ED. Unlike in prior guidelines, a specific time frame is not being recommended. Initiation of treatment would be expected within 6–8 h of presentation whenever the admission diagnosis is likely CAP. A rush to treatment without a diagnosis of CAP can, however, result in the inappropriate use of antibiotics with a concomitant increase in costs, adverse drug events, increased antibiotic selection pressure, and, possibly, increased antibiotic resistance. Consideration should be given to monitoring the number of patients who receive empirical antibiotics in the ED but are admitted to the hospital without an infectious diagnosis.
- Mortality data for all patients with CAP admitted to wards, ICUs, or high-level monitoring units should be collected. Although tools to predict mortality and severity of illness exist—such as the PSI and CURB-65 criteria, respectively—none is foolproof. Overall mortality rates for all patients with CAP admitted to the hospital, including general medical wards, should be monitored and compared with severity-adjusted norms. In addition, careful attention should be paid to the percentage of patients with severe CAP, as defined in this document, who are admitted initially to a non-ICU or a high-level monitoring unit and to their mortality rate.
- It is important to determine what percentage of at-risk patients in one's practice actually receive immunization for influenza or pneumococcal infection. Prevention of infection is clearly more desirable than having to treat established infection, but it is clear that target groups are undervaccin-

ated. Trying to increase the number of protected individuals is a desirable end point and, therefore, a goal worth pursuing. This is particularly true for influenza, because the vaccine data are more compelling, but it is important to try to protect against pneumococcal infection as well. Coverage of 90% of adults  $\geq 65$  years of age should be the target.

ORDER DENYING PETITIONER'S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER AND TO QUASH SUBPOENAS

On November 4, 2019, this cause came before the undersigned on Petitioner's Emergency Motion for Protective Order and to Quash Subpoenas ("Motion for Protective Order"), which relates to the attendance of J.K. and K.K., two material and named witnesses in Petitioner's Administrative Complaint. Petitioner has placed the observations and statements of J.K. and K.K. at issue, and Respondent is entitled to defend against them. On October 8, 2019, Petitioner deposed J.K. and K.K. by deposition in lieu of live testimony. However, based on the circumstances surrounding conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the depositions as described by Respondent and reflected in the written transcripts, the undersigned is not yet persuaded that the depositions will be admitted into evidence at the final hearing.

While the witnesses were made aware, as early as October 18, 2019, that Respondent was attempting to serve subpoenas for their attendance at the hearing, Respondent eventually achieved service of the subpoenas on October 30, 2019. Petitioner contends that a protective order is necessary to protect the witnesses from undue burden and undue expense as the witnesses have a prescheduled event that presents a challenge for traveling to Florida for the final hearing. Based on the potential burden to the witnesses, the undersigned will allow the witnesses to present testimony by telephone at the final hearing.

The undersigned, having reviewed the Motion for Protective Order, Respondent's response thereto, and being fully advised on the premises, it is

ORDERED:

1. The Motion for Protective Order is DENIED.
2. The witnesses (J.K. and K.K.) are allowed to present testimony by telephone at the final hearing.
3. The Department shall be responsible for having a notary public with the witnesses (J.K. and K.K.) on the date of the final hearing, November 7, 2019, to swear the witnesses and shall provide the requisite documentation for proof. Fla. Admin. Code R. 28-106.213(5) (b).
4. The subpoena for the attendance of J.K. and K.K. at the final hearing remains in effect as modified by this Order permitting J.K. and K.K. to attend the final hearing by telephone.

DONE AND ORDERED this 5th day of November, 2019, in Tallahassee, Leon County, Florida.

DOAH Case no.: 19-4724PL

DOH Case No. 2018-07389

Addendum to Respondent's Motion to deny Petitioner's Motion of Emergency Motion for Protective Order and to Quash Subpoenas

1. Court must deny the motion to quash the subpoena
2. DOH asserts that deposition in lieu of live testimony is sufficient which is fatally flawed
3. Respondent's sought sanctions against Virginia Edwards due to the excessive objections which emboldened Mrs. K.K. to flat out refuse to answer several critical questions
4. Ms. Virginia Edwards failed to instruct Mrs. K.K. to answer questions which are critical to the respondent getting fair trial and to cross examine the plaintiffs
5. Since October 18th, Mrs. K.K. on numerous occasions have declined to accept subpoena from the process servers stating that she was not home (see Exhibit A)
6. After the failed attempts of the process servers, the respondent was forced to use the sheriff department to serve the subpoena
7. This directly contradicts Ms. Virginia Edward's argument that Mrs. K.K. did not have much time between being served and the trial date.
8. Therefore, plaintiff must appear before the judge November 7th so the respondent is not prejudiced against

Respondent's Motion to deny Petitioner's Motion of Emergency Motion for Protective Order and to Quash Subpoenas

1. On October 23, 2019, Petitioner filed Petitioner's Motion to Accept Depositions in Lieu of Live Testimony or in the Alternative Motion to Continue ("Motion"). Petitioner requests that the undersigned accept the depositions of J.K. and K.K. at this time. However, this cause is scheduled for final hearing on November 7, 2019. Respondent timely filed a written response objecting to the Motion.
2. On October 30, 2019, it was ordered that the Petitioner's Motion is premature, as the final hearing is not scheduled to commence until November 7, 2019. Thus, the motion is denied.
3. An award ceremony is optional and should not override a court subpoena
4. In his deposition, Mr. J.K. stated that they can fly to their Villages home. The cost of airline tickets can be recouped if they win at trial. Also, they travel regularly between their two residences
5. Respondent has already taken off November 7th for the trial date which is list wages

PETITIONER'S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER AND TO QUASH SUBPOENAS

Petitioner, Department of Health, hereby files this Emergency Motion for Protective Order and to Quash Subpoenas, pursuant to Rule 28-106.212(3), Fla. Admin. Code, concerning the Subpoena Ad Testificandums served upon witnesses K.K. and J.K. and in support states the following:

1. On or about October 17, 2019, Witnesses J.K. and K.K. mailed letters to Petitioner advising they were unavailable for live appearance at the trial currently scheduled for November 7, 2019 in Lady Lake, Florida. Copies of these notarized letters are attached as Exhibit A.

2. On or about November 1, 2019, Petitioner received notification from Respondent that on October 30, 2019 witnesses J.K. and K.K. were served with subpoenas to appear at trial. A copy of the notice of service is attached as Exhibit B.

3. Further, after service, K.K. contacted Petitioner via email to advise they are not available to appear on November 7, 2019.

4. Rule 28.106-212(3), Fla. Admin. Code, allows for the presiding officer to quash the subpoena.

5. J.K. and K.K. currently reside in Mauston, Wisconsin, which is out of state and over 100 miles from the hearing location.

6. Respondent has been aware that the witnesses were unavailable since the commencement of the proceedings.

7. To require J.K. and K.K. to travel to the trial from Wisconsin with a one-week notice would cause an undue burden and expense on both witnesses. Both witnesses provided notarized statements of unavailability due to a prior engagement in Wisconsin honoring K.K.'s recently deceased brother.

8. Petitioner respectfully requests the Court enter a Protective Order quashing the subpoenas served upon J.K. and K.K. for their appearance at the hearing currently scheduled for November 7, 2019.

9. Petitioner has conferred with Respondent regarding the relief requested in this motion, and Respondent objects.

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Petitioner respectfully requests that the Administrative Law Judge grant this motion quashing the subpoenas served upon J.K. and K.K. and grant the Protective Order.

Ms. Edwards,

I am unable to testify on the date of November 7, 2019. I will be attending a conference in which the Wisconsin State Public Defenders Board will be naming an award for my brother. My brother D [redacted] B [redacted] just recently passed away and we were invited to attend this ceremony. At the time of my deposition, the date of Nov. 7th was mentioned as a tentative court date. I did not have my appointment calendar with me at that time. I stated that I would probably be available if absolutely necessary. Upon rechecking that date the following week, I realized that it conflicted with the conference date. I apologize if this has caused any problems, however our arrangements to attend the conference had already been made earlier in the month. It is my hope that a different date can be scheduled as I would like to present my testimony.

Thank you,

Dear J [REDACTED],

It has been an absolute honor to work under D [REDACTED]'s leadership on the Public Defender Board. D [REDACTED] was such an inspirational leader to each of the Board members and to the agency. Last Friday, the Public Defender Board met and discussed preserving D [REDACTED] legacy for the agency, the staff, and for the private bar attorneys who take agency appointments. With unanimous support, we have renamed our Private Bar Award the D [REDACTED] B [REDACTED] Award which we hope will be a lasting and fitting tribute to D [REDACTED].

J [REDACTED] on behalf of the Public Defender Board, let me again express our deepest sorrow.

Section 120.569(2)(k), Florida Statutes

(k)1. Any person subject to a subpoena may, before compliance and on timely petition, request the presiding officer having jurisdiction of the dispute to invalidate the subpoena on the ground that it was not lawfully issued, is unreasonably broad in scope, or requires the production of irrelevant material.

2. A party may seek enforcement of a subpoena, order directing discovery, or order imposing sanctions issued under the authority of this chapter by filing a petition for enforcement in the circuit court of the judicial circuit in which the person failing to comply with the subpoena or order resides. A failure to comply with an order of the court shall result in a finding of contempt of court. However, no person shall be in contempt while a subpoena is being challenged under subparagraph 1. The court may award to the prevailing party all or part of the costs and attorney's fees incurred in obtaining the court order whenever the court determines that such an award should be granted under the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure.

3. Any public employee subpoenaed to appear at an agency proceeding shall be entitled to per diem and travel expenses at the same rate as that provided for state employees under s. 112.061 if travel away from such public employee's headquarters is required. All other witnesses appearing pursuant to a subpoena shall be paid such fees and mileage for their attendance as is provided in civil actions in circuit courts of this state. In the case of a public employee, such expenses shall be processed and paid in the manner provided for agency employee travel expense reimbursement, and in the case of a witness who is not a public employee, payment of such fees and expenses shall accompany the subpoena.

Florida Administrative Code Rule 28-106.212

(1) Upon the request of any party, a presiding officer shall issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses for deposition or at the hearing. The requesting party shall specify whether the witness is also requested to bring documents.

(2) A subpoena may be served by any person specified by law to serve process or by any person who is not a party and who is 18 years of age or older. Service shall be made by delivering a copy to the person named in the subpoena. Proof of service shall be made by affidavit of the person making service if not served by a person specified by law to serve process.

(3) Any motion to quash or limit the subpoena shall be filed with the presiding officer and shall state the grounds relied upon.

AMENDED ORDER DENYING MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

This cause came before the undersigned on Respondent's Notice of Filing Defendant's [sic] Motion for Sanctions Pursuant to Fla. Statute 57.105 ("Motion for Sanctions"), filed October 15, 2019. Prior to filing the Motion for Sanctions, Respondent requested a telephonic hearing to address the conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the depositions of Patient J.K. and K.K. Respondent asserts that the conduct of Petitioner's counsel interfered with his ability to ask all the questions he wished to ask the deponents during the depositions. The undersigned conducted a telephonic motion hearing and heard argument from both parties. Since Respondent filed a motion pursuant to section 57.105, Florida Statutes, addressing concerns regarding discovery matters, the undersigned will address whether sanctions are warranted under section 57.105, and whether sanctions are warranted due to a discovery violation.

Section 57.105 provides, in pertinent part, that:

- (1) Upon the court's initiative or motion of any party, the court shall award a reasonable attorney's fee, . . . on any claim or defense at any time during a civil proceeding or action in which the court finds that the losing party or the losing party's attorney knew or should have known that a claim or defense when initially presented to the court or at any time before trial:

(a) Was not supported by the material facts necessary to establish the claim or defense; or

(b) Would not be supported by the application of then-existing law to those material facts.

(2) At any time in any civil proceeding or action in which the moving party proves by a preponderance of the evidence that any action taken by the opposing party, . . . was taken primarily for the purpose of unreasonable delay, the court shall award damages to the moving party for its reasonable expenses incurred in obtaining the order, which may include attorney's fees, and other loss resulting from the improper delay.

(4) A motion by a party seeking sanctions under this section must be served but may not be filed with or presented to the court unless, within 21 days after service of the motion, the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation, or denial is not withdrawn or appropriately corrected.

(5) In administrative proceedings under chapter 120, an administrative law judge shall award a reasonable attorney's fee and damages to be paid to the prevailing party in equal amounts by the losing party and a losing party's attorney or qualified representative in the same manner and upon the same basis as provided in subsections (1)-(4). Such award shall be a final order subject to judicial review pursuant to s. 120.68 . . . .

This case is scheduled for final hearing on November 7, 2019. At this time, the prevailing party has not been determined. As a result, Respondent's Motion for Sanctions pursuant to section 57.105, is denied. To the extent it is determined that Respondent is the prevailing party in this case, Respondent may renew his Motion for Sanctions at the appropriate time.

To the extent Respondent seeks sanctions pursuant to purported discovery violations, Respondent may raise appropriate objections to offering the depositions of J.K. and K.K. at the final hearing if the depositions are offered in evidence.

The undersigned having reviewed Respondent's Motion for Sanctions, Petitioner's response thereto, and the record in this cause, it is, therefore,

ORDERED that:

1. The Motion for Sanctions pursuant to section 57.105 is DENIED, without prejudice.

2. The undersigned reserves ruling regarding the conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the depositions in lieu of live testimony of J.K. and K.K. until such time as the depositions are offered into evidence.

DONE AND ORDERED this 4th day of November, 2019, in Tallahassee, Leon County, Florida.

(a) Was not supported by the material facts necessary to establish the claim or defense; or

(b) Would not be supported by the application of then-existing law to those material facts.

(2) At any time in any civil proceeding or action in which the moving party proves by a preponderance of the evidence that any action taken by the opposing party, . . . was taken primarily for the purpose of unreasonable delay, the court shall award damages to the moving party for its reasonable expenses incurred in obtaining the order, which may include attorney's fees, and other loss resulting from the improper delay.

(4) A motion by a party seeking sanctions under this section must be served but may not be filed with or presented to the court unless, within 21 days after service of the motion, the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation, or denial is not withdrawn or appropriately corrected.

(5) In administrative proceedings under chapter 120, an administrative law judge shall award a reasonable attorney's fee and damages to be paid to the prevailing party in equal amounts by the losing party and a losing party's attorney or qualified representative in the same manner and upon the same basis as provided in subsections (1)-(4). Such award shall be a final order subject to judicial review pursuant to s. 120.68 . . . .

This case is scheduled for final hearing on December 7, 2019. At this time, the prevailing party has not been determined. As a result, Respondent's Motion for Sanctions pursuant to section 57.105, is denied. To the extent it is determined that Respondent is the prevailing party in this case, Respondent may renew his Motion for Sanctions at the appropriate time.

To the extent Respondent seeks sanctions pursuant to purported discovery violations, the undersigned denies the Motion for Sanctions. Respondent may raise appropriate objections to offering the depositions of J.K. and K.K. at the final hearing if the depositions are offered in evidence.

The undersigned having reviewed Petitioner's Motion for Sanctions, Respondent's response thereto, and the record in this cause, it is, therefore,

ORDERED that:

1. The Motion for Sanctions pursuant to section 57.105 is DENIED, without prejudice.

2. The undersigned reserves ruling on the Motion for Sanctions as it relates to the conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the depositions in lieu of live testimony of J.K. and K.K. until such time as the depositions are offered into evidence.

DONE AND ORDERED this 4th day of November, 2019, in Tallahassee, Leon County, Florida.

(k)1. Any person subject to a subpoena may, before compliance and on timely petition, request the presiding officer having jurisdiction of the dispute to invalidate the subpoena on the ground that it was not lawfully issued, is unreasonably broad in scope, or requires the production of irrelevant material.

2. A party may seek enforcement of a subpoena, order directing discovery, or order imposing sanctions issued under the authority of this chapter by filing a petition for enforcement in the circuit court of the judicial circuit in which the person failing to comply with the subpoena or order resides. A failure to comply with an order of the court shall result in a finding of contempt of court. However, no person shall be in contempt while a subpoena is being challenged under subparagraph 1. The court may award to the prevailing party all or part of the costs and attorney's fees incurred in obtaining the court order whenever the court determines that such an award should be granted under the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure.

3. Any public employee subpoenaed to appear at an agency proceeding shall be entitled to per diem and travel expenses at the same rate as that provided for state employees under s. 112.061 if travel away from such public employee's headquarters is required. All other witnesses appearing pursuant to a subpoena shall be paid such fees and mileage for their attendance as is provided in civil actions in circuit courts of this state. In the case of a public employee, such expenses shall be processed and paid in the manner provided for agency employee travel expense reimbursement, and in the case of a witness who is not a public employee, payment of such fees and expenses shall accompany the subpoena.

Florida Administrative Code Rule 28-106.212

(1) Upon the request of any party, a presiding officer shall issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses for deposition or at the hearing. The requesting party shall specify whether the witness is also requested to bring documents.

(2) A subpoena may be served by any person specified by law to serve process or by any person who is not a party and who is 18 years of age or older. Service shall be made by delivering a copy to the person named in the subpoena. Proof of service shall be made by affidavit of the person making service if not served by a person specified by law to serve process.

(3) Any motion to quash or limit the subpoena shall be filed with the presiding officer and shall state the grounds relied upon.

PETITIONER'S RESPONSE TO RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

Petitioner, Department of Health, by and through the undersigned counsel, hereby files this Petitioner's Response to Respondent's Motion for Sanctions and responds as follows:

1. On or about October 8, 2019, Petitioner conducted the depositions of J.K. and K.K. via telephone and video recording.
2. The depositions were noticed to be in lieu of live testimony pursuant to Rule 1.330(a)(3), Fla.R.Civ.P, as both witnesses currently reside out of state in Mauston, Wisconsin, and will not return to Florida until January, 2020.

3. Additionally, Petitioner sent an email to Respondent informing him that the depositions were being taken in lieu of live testimony on or about September 25, 2019. [See Exhibit A to Respondent's Motion for Sanctions].

4. On or about October 11, 2019, Respondent filed a request for telephone conference with the Administrative Law Judge to discuss conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the deposition of K.K.

5. On or about October 14, 2019, a telephonic conference took place at which time Respondent's request was changed to a Motion for Sanctions.

6. On or about October 15, 2019, Respondent filed a Notice of Filing Defendant's Motion for Sanctions Pursuant to Fla. Statute 57.105.

7. On or about October 15, 2019, the Court issued an Order to Show Cause allowing Petitioner to show cause in writing why Respondent's Motion for Sanctions should not be granted.

Petitioner's Objections During the Depositions

8. Respondent alleges Petitioner made an excessive number of objections during the deposition of K.K. thus interfering with meaningful testimony and disrupting the orderly flow of the deposition.

9. Rule 1.310(c), Fla. R. Civ. P., advises examination and cross examination of witnesses may proceed as permitted at trial and objections must be stated concisely and in a nonargumentative and nonsuggestive manner.

10. Rule 1.330(d)(3)(A), Fla. R. Civ. P., states objections to the competency of a witness or to the competency, relevancy, or materiality of testimony are not waived by failure to make them before or during the taking of the deposition unless the ground of the objection is one that might have been obviated or removed if presented at that time.

11. Rule 1.330(d)(3)(B), Fla. R. Civ. P., states errors and irregularities occurring at the oral examination in the manner of taking the deposition, in the form of the questions or answers, in the oath or affirmation, or in the conduct of the parties and errors of any kind that may be obviated, removed, or cured if promptly presented are waived unless timely objection to them is made at the taking of the deposition.

12. As the depositions were noticed to be in lieu of live testimony, Petitioner made appropriate objections on the record to avoid waiving any objections pursuant to Rule 1.330(d)(3)(A) and (B), Fla. R. Civ. P.

13. Though Petitioner's direct examination of K.K. lasted approximately thirty-five minutes and addressed a two-day treatment period, Respondent's cross examination lasted over two hours.

14. Petitioner made appropriate and concise objections throughout the depositions. A copy of the complete transcript has been attached as Exhibit A for the Court's review.

15. Approximately an hour into Respondent's cross examination, Petitioner made "asked and answered" objections to several of Respondent's questions. Petitioner did not instruct K.K. not to answer the questions. K.K. did tell Respondent she had already answered several of the questions he was asking, but continued to provide answers. (Tr. p. 79; Tr. p. 82; Tr. p. 112, Tr. P. 113).

16. Respondent's Motion for Sanctions does not contain any allegations regarding the Petitioner's conduct during the deposition of J.K. However, a complete copy of the transcript has been provided as exhibit B, and Petitioner maintains all objections were appropriate and made to ensure they were not waived under 1.330(d)(3)(A) and (B), Fla. R. Civ. P.

Respondent's Conduct During Cross Examination.

17. Respondent alleges in his Motion for Sanctions that Petitioner threatened to terminate the deposition several times.

18. Rule 1.310(d) Fla. R. Civ. P. states that at any time during the taking of a deposition, on motion of a party or of the deponent and on a showing that the examination is being conducted in bad faith or in such a manner as to unreasonably annoy, embarrass, or oppress the deponent or party, the Court in which the action is pending may order the officer conducting the examination to cease immediately from taking the deposition or may limit the scope and manner of the taking of the deposition under rule 1.280(c).

19. Rule 1.280(c), Fla. R. Civ. P. states upon motion by a party...., and for good cause shown, the court in which the action is pending may make any order to protect a party or person from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense that justice requires including...(4) that certain matters not be inquired into, or that the scope of the discovery be limited to certain matters...

20. The matter before the Court involves a treatment period of two days, and a medication prescribed based on the diagnosis from the second day of treatment of J.K.

21. As the depositions were noticed in lieu of live testimony, and Respondent is Pro Se, Petitioner tried to allow him to ask any questions he felt necessary, though his questions would ordinarily be considered well beyond the scope of cross examination.

22. However, during the course of K.K.'s deposition, it became apparent that Respondent was acting in bad faith, and in such a manner as to unreasonably annoy, embarrass, or oppress K.K. (Tr. pp. 103 - 110).

23. Therefore, Petitioner appropriately objected on the grounds that Respondent was harassing the witness. Petitioner informed Respondent that the deposition would be terminated, and Petitioner would move for a protective order if he continued to harass K.K. (Tr. pp. 110-111).

Respondent's Attempts to Testify.

24. During the deposition, Respondent repeatedly testified on the record instead of asking the witness questions. Petitioner advised Respondent if he wasn't going to ask questions of the witness, the deposition would be terminated. (Tr. pp. 79-80).

25. Respondent then attempted to enter an exhibit of a medical article through K.K., a lay witness, and testify himself as to the contents of the exhibit by reading it in to the record. Upon objection, Petitioner advised Respondent that he was to ask questions of the witness, not to read an exhibit in to the record. Respondent continued to testify, and Petitioner advised she would need to move for a protective order if he continued. Over objection, Respondent ultimately read the information in to the record. (Tr. pp. 99-102)

Respondent's Repetitive Questions

26. Respondent then began a line of questions that had been previously answered by the witness numerous times. Petitioner advised Respondent if he was going to continue to ask the same questions, the deposition would be suspended, as he was harassing the witness. Respondent advised he was going to move on. (Tr. pp. 110-111).

27. Further, K.K. continued to answer Respondent's questions even after objections were made. (See transcript)

28. As Respondent is pro se, Petitioner never suspended or terminated the deposition and allowed Respondent to continue questioning the witness.

29. As explained above, Petitioner only interjected in the questioning when the Respondent attempted to testify and when he continued to ask irrelevant questions to the point of annoying and harassing the witness. After each objection, Respondent continued his questioning of the witness.

30. Contrary to the representations made by Respondent during the telephone conference on October 14, 2019, Respondent stated he was done deposing K.K. (Tr. p. 145).

Cost of the Deposition

31. Respondent further alleges Petitioner made a comment regarding payment of costs of the deposition and that she advised K.K. not to answer questions off the record.

32. After Respondent finished his cross examination, and the deposition was concluded, Respondent requested to ask a question of K.K. Since Petitioner does not represent K.K., Petitioner informed K.K. that it was up to her whether she wanted to answer. (Tr. p. 146).

33. Respondent then proceeded to threaten K.K. by saying that he would be filing an expensive lawsuit against her for defamation.

34. Petitioner immediately objected even though the record had been closed and told Respondent that she was releasing the witness as the deposition had ended, or alternatively she would re-open the record so that Respondent's attempt to intimidate a witness could be recorded.

35. As Respondent continued to object, Petitioner advised that the Department was paying for the deposition, including the room, court reporter and videographer, and Respondent could contact the witness separately on his own time regarding matters not relevant to the case.

Physical Location of JK and KK

36. Respondent contends Petitioner attempted to sway proceedings by stating J.K. and K.K. will not be available for the trial date on November 7, 2019. Pursuant to Rule 1.330(a)(3), Fla. R. Civ. P., the witnesses are out of State; therefore, the depositions can be properly noticed and entered in to evidence in lieu of live testimony.

37. Further, per Respondent's Exhibit A, Respondent was on proper notice that the depositions were to be taken in lieu of live testimony. During the depositions of J.K. and K.K. both witnesses testified that they will be in Wisconsin on the date of the hearing and will not return to Florida until January, 2020. (Exhibit A Tr. p. 9; Exhibit B Tr. p. 10)

Respondent's Motion for Sanctions

38. Respondent alleges that he is entitled to sanctions for the conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the deposition. However, it would be inappropriate for the division to impose sanctions for this issue.

39. Section 57.105, Florida Statutes is not applicable to this sanctions request.

40. However, Section 120.65(7), Florida Statutes, states that the rules promulgated by the division may authorize any reasonable sanctions, except contempt, for violation of the rules of the division or failure to comply with a reasonable order issued by an administrative law judge.

41. Rule 28-106.206, Fla. Admin Code provides that the presiding officer may issue appropriate orders to effectuate the purposes of discovery and to prevent delay, including the imposition of sanctions in accordance with the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure, except contempt.

42. Rule 1.380, Fla. R. Civ. P., specifically provides for sanctions for the failure of a party to comply with discovery requests or orders.

43. In the instant case, there was no failure to comply with discovery requirements as the deposition took place as scheduled, both parties were present, and Respondent was given the opportunity to cross examine the witnesses.

44. As detailed above, counsel for Petitioner's conduct during the depositions of J.K. and K.K. was entirely appropriate, and Petitioner respectfully requests Respondent's Motion for Sanctions be denied.

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Petitioner respectfully requests that the Administrative Law Judge deny the Respondent's Motion for Sanctions, and for such relief as is just and equitable.

Respectfully Submitted,

PETITIONER'S MOTION TO ACCEPT DEPOSITIONS IN LIEU OF LIVE TESTIMONY OR IN THE ALTERNATIVE MOTION TO CONTINUE

Petitioner, Department of Health, hereby files this Motion to Accept Depositions in Lieu of Live Testimony or in the alternative Motion to Continue and in support states the following:

1. This matter is scheduled for hearing November 7, 2019 in Lady Lake, Florida.
2. Under Rule 1.330(a)(3)(B), Fla.R.Civ.P., the deposition of a witness whether or not a party may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds that the witness is at a greater distance than 100 miles of the place of trial or out of the state, unless it appears that the absence of the witness was procured by the party offering the deposition.

3. During their depositions, J.K. and K.K., both testified that they currently reside in Mauston, Wisconsin, which is out of state and over 100 miles from the hearing location, and they will not return to Florida until January.

4. Petitioner properly noticed Respondent that the depositions of K.K. and J.K. would be taken in lieu of live testimony on September 16, 2019 via a telephone conversation, and via email on September 20, 2019.

5. Further, on September 24, 2019, Petitioner filed the deposition notices for both witness as Notices of Taking Deposition in Lieu of Live Testimony and specifically advised the depositions would be taken for the purpose of primary evidence at trial.

6. Upon completion of the depositions, Respondent provided notice of intent to subpoena J.K. and K.K. to testify live at the hearing.

7. K.K. and J.K. contacted Petitioner and advised via signed letters that they are unavailable to testify live or telephonically on November 7, 2019 as they have a prescheduled trip to attend a conference and award presentation in Wisconsin in honor of K.K.'s recently deceased brother. Copies of the signed letters are attached as Exhibit A. K.K. advised notarized copies are available if needed.

8. Respondent will not be prejudiced by admittance of the deposition testimony as Respondent had the opportunity to cross-examine both witnesses during their respective depositions.

9. Petitioner is aware there is a pending motion regarding the conduct during the depositions and will promptly provide a response upon receipt of the completed transcripts. Due to the notification of unavailability for trial from the witnesses, Petitioner felt it appropriate to submit this motion for consideration.

10. In the alternative, if the depositions are not accepted in lieu of live testimony, Petitioner requests the hearing date be continued to a time when the witnesses are available to appear telephonically or continued to late January when the witnesses will return to Florida and can present live testimony.

11. Petitioner has conferred with Respondent regarding the relief requested in this motion and Respondent objects.

WHEREFORE, for the foregoing reasons, Petitioner respectfully requests that the Administrative Law Judge grant this motion accepting the depositions be accepted in lieu of live testimony, or alternatively that the trial date and discovery deadline be continued to such time where the witnesses are able to present their testimony.

The depositions for Mr. and Mrs. K will take place on October 8th at 11am. I am still working on all of the details on the communication aspect, and will provide those as soon as everything is finalized. The depositions will be video recorded.

The deposition of Dr. Davis cannot take place at the same time. I reached out to Dr. Davis to find out his availability for a deposition, and he is available to be deposed on October 9th. Please note, if you are going to call Dr. Davis for a deposition, you are responsible for all associated costs, including paying Dr. Davis' deposition fee. Attached is a copy of his fee schedule. If you choose to obtain an expert, we would be required to pay the costs associated for deposing your expert.

I am able to work with Dr. Davis to find a location to conduct the deposition .

Please let me know how you would like to proceed.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

On October 11, 2019, this cause came before the undersigned on Respondent's written request for hearing to address the conduct of Petitioner's counsel during the depositions of two lay witnesses. On October 14, 2019, the undersigned conducted a telephonic conference at which time it became clear that Respondent was seeking sanctions against Petitioner. Respondent's request is, therefore, considered a motion for sanctions. Respondent did not include the required statement in his request that he had conferred with Petitioner and obtained Petitioner's position regarding any objection to the request. As such, Respondent has not yet had an opportunity to respond to the request for sanctions. It is, therefore,

ORDERED that no later than 5:00 p.m., October 25, 2019, Petitioner shall show cause in writing why Respondent's motion for sanctions should not be granted.

DONE AND ORDERED this 15th day of October, 2019, in Tallahassee, Leon County, Florida.

Case No. 2018-07389

Notice of Filing Defendant's Motion for Sanctions Pursuant to Fla. Statute 57.105

Defendant, Dr. John Im, hereby gives Notice to the Court and all parties that they are filing the attached defendant's Motion for Sanctions Pursuant to Fla. Stat. 57.105.

Certificate of Service

I HEREBY CERTIFY that a true and correct copy of the foregoing document is being faxed to the counsel of record via Florida Courts e-Filing Portal.

Ms. Virginia Edwards, during the October 8, 2019 deposition made an excessive number of objections thus interfering with meaningful testimony thereby disrupting the orderly flow of the deposition.

Ms. Virginia Edwards instructed Mrs. KK, the plaintiff, not to answer "redundant" questions. As a direct result Mrs. KK refuse to answer several of my questions.

Ms. Virginia Edwards never instructed Mrs. KK to answer the question when she refused to answer.

When I asked Mrs. KK to read the highlighted section in an exhibit, Ms. Virginia Edwards objected and instructed Mrs. KK that she did not have to read it.

On several occasions during the deposition, Ms. Virginia Edwards threatened to terminate the deposition.

The deposition was unfairly frustrated by the frequent objections and Ms. Virginia Edwards' attempt to intimidate me did not allow me to finish my questioning of Mrs. KK.

Ms. Virginia Edwards also attempted to sway the proceedings by stating in her email that the plaintiffs will not be available for the trial date November 7, 2019. Please see attached Exhibit A.

Your Honor,

I would like to request a telephone conference with you in regards to a disturbing incident during my deposition on October 8, 2019. Ms. Virginia Edwards Esq, told me that she does not represent the plaintiff or myself, however during the deposition she objected to my questioning of Mrs. KK at least thirty times. On several occasions when Mrs. KK refused to answer my questions, Ms. Virginia Edwards never instructed Mrs. KK to answer the questions. In fact, she threatened me several times stating that my questioning of Mrs. KK were grounds of harassment of the witness and that she will be forced to end the deposition and report me to the judge. At one point she stated, "We are paying for this deposition". This statement was really confusing to me and it is another form of intimidation. I feel that Ms. Edwards attempted to influence and empower the complaining party. She even told Mrs. KK that she did not have to talk to me off-record even though Mrs. KK agreed to. Rule 4-3.4 states "A lawyer must not fabricate evidence or counsel or assist a witness to testify falsely".

Thank you for your time and consideration and I look forward to addressing my concerns with you via telephone conference.

A party may seek enforcement of a subpoena, order directing discovery, or order imposing sanctions issued under the authority of this chapter by filing a petition for enforcement in the circuit court of the judicial circuit in which the person failing to comply with the subpoena or order resides. A failure to comply with an order of the court shall result in a finding of contempt of court. However, no person shall be in contempt while a subpoena is being challenged under subparagraph 1. The court may award to the prevailing party all or part of the costs and attorney's fees incurred in obtaining the court order whenever the court determines that such an award should be granted under the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure.

3. Any public employee subpoenaed to appear at an agency proceeding shall be entitled to per diem and travel expenses at the same rate as that provided for state employees under s. 112.061 if travel away from such public employee's headquarters is required. All other witnesses appearing pursuant to a subpoena shall be paid such fees and mileage for their attendance as is provided in civil actions in circuit courts of this state. In the case of a public employee, such expenses shall be processed and paid in the manner provided for agency employee travel expense reimbursement, and in the case of a witness who is not a public employee, payment of such fees and expenses shall accompany the subpoena.

Florida Administrative Code Rule 28-106.212

(1) Upon the request of any party, a presiding officer shall issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses for deposition or at the hearing. The requesting party shall specify whether the witness is also requested to bring documents.

(2) A subpoena may be served by any person specified by law to serve process or by any person who is not a party and who is 18 years of age or older. Service shall be made by delivering a copy to the person named in the subpoena. Proof of service shall be made by affidavit of the person making service if not served by a person specified by law to serve process.

(3) Any motion to quash or limit the subpoena shall be filed with the presiding officer and shall state the grounds relied upon.

4. Should Respondent file written objections to the assessment of costs, within ten (10) days of the date of this motion, specifying the grounds for the objections and the specific elements of the costs to which objections are made, Petitioner requests that the Board determine the amount of costs to be assessed based upon its consideration of the affidavit attached as Exhibit A and any timely-filed written objections.

5. Petitioner requests that the Board grant this motion and assess costs in the amount of $35,007.20 as supported by competent, substantial evidence. This assessment of costs is in addition to any other discipline imposed by the Board and is in accordance with Section 456.072(4), Florida Statutes (2017).

AFFIDAVIT OF FEES AND COSTS EXPENDED

STATE OF FLORIDA
COUNTY OF LEON:

BEFORE ME, the undersigned authority, personally appeared RACHEL BEAM who was sworn and states as follows:

- 1) My name is Rachel Beam.
- 2) I am over the age of 18, competent to testify, and make this affidavit upon my own personal knowledge and after review of the records at the Florida Department of Health (DOH).
- 3) I am the Operations and Management Consultant Manager (OMCM) for the Consumer Services and Compliance Management Unit for DOH. The Consumer Services Unit is where all complaints against Florida health care licensees (e.g., medical doctors, dentists, nurses, respiratory therapists) are officially filed. I have been in my current job position for more than one year. My business address is 4052 Bald Cypress Way, Bin C-75 Tallahassee, Florida 32399-3275.
- 4) As OMCM of the Consumer Services and Compliance Management Unit, my job duties include reviewing data in the Time Tracking System and verifying that the amounts correspond. The Time Tracking System is a computer program which records and tracks DOH's costs regarding the investigation and prosecution of cases against Florida health care licensees.
- 5) As of today, DOH's total costs for investigating and prosecuting DOH case number(s) 2018-07389 (Department of Health v John Joseph Im, DO) are THIRTY-SEVEN THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED TWENTY FOUR DOLLARS AND FORTY THREE CENTS ($38,824.43).
- 6) The costs for DOH case numbers 2018-07389 (Department of Health v. John Joseph Im, DO) are summarized in Exhibit 1 (Cost Summary Report), which is attached to this document.
- 7) The itemized costs and expenses for DOH case numbers 2018-07389 (Department of Health v. John Joseph Im, DO) are detailed in Exhibit 2 (Itemized Cost Report and Itemized Expense Report and receipts), which is attached to this document.
- 8) The itemized costs as reflected in Exhibit 2 are determined by the following method: DOH employees who work on cases daily are to keep track of their time in six-minute increments (e.g., investigators and lawyers). A designated DOH employee in the Consumer Services Unit, Legal Department, and in each area office, inputs the time worked and expenses spent into the Time Tracking System. Time and expenses are charged against a state health care Board (e.g., Florida Board of Medicine, Florida Board of Dentistry, Florida Board of Osteopathic Medicine), and/or a case. If no Board or case can be charged, then the time and expenses are charged as administrative time. The hourly rate of each employee is calculated by formulas established by the Department. (See the Itemized Cost Report)

9) Rachel Beam, first being duly sworn, states that she has read the foregoing Affidavit and its attachments and the statements contained therein are true and correct to the best of her knowledge and belief.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.
